Draft Law Changes To Affect Many Here

During the coming summer and fall Winchester men will experience the impact of the new draft regulations announced two months ago in Washington, D.C.

Under the new provisions local men not in their second or subsequent years of graduate school as of October 1, 1967, are not entitled to student deferments for the coming academic year. Excepted are medical, dental, and divinity students.

This means that within several months first year graduate students as well as June recipients of bachelor's degrees will lose their student deferments.

The new regulations do allow students in their first year of graduate studies as of October 1, 1967, to complete the current academic year.

Winchester graduate students in their second year by the October 1, 1967, date will be eligible for consideration for deferments to complete the degree for which they were enrolled at that time. Limitations exist as to the number of years allowed for completion of these advanced degrees.

When questioned about those who lose their student deferments this summer, but enter their first or second year of graduate school this fall only to receive an induction notice in mid-semester, Colonel Paul Feeney, deputy director of the Selective Service of the Commonwealth said, "They could petition for consideration of delaying induction." Depending on the outcome of this petition, this might allow a boy to complete the semester.

The Selective Service has also suspended the use of lists of critical skills and essential activities in giving job deferments. Colonel Feeney told the Star that responsibility for job deferments will rest upon the local boards. He added that the effect of discontinuing the lists will be "minimal in Massachusetts since we always felt each request must stand on its own merits."

Job Deferment Reviews

Those with job deferments will have their cases reviewed when their present deferments expire, which will be sometime within a year.

Charles Murphy, of 145 Pond Street, who heads Board No. 108 including Winchester and Stoneham, has observed that in deciding upon requests for these deferments, it has been the board's policy to seek the advice of the State Technical Advisory Board.

When asked whether confusion has arisen among draft boards on the new regulations, Colonel Feeney agreed that individual boards within the State have "differed in their interpretations about the significance of the new regulations" but declared, "We hope the air is cleared before June."

Colonel Feeney also noted that Selective Service tests for undergraduate students have been discontinued as a criteria for deferments as have class ranks. Undergraduate students, however, must remain in good standing.

The local board, which is comprised of two Stoneham and two Winchester men in addition to Mr. Murphy, has 9,500 registrants. Mr. Murphy reports that they have received many calls for information about the regulations. Other members are Frank Hurley and Jack Kolligian, of Winchester, and John Finnegan and Wallace Dunbar, of Stoneham.

A call for eight men has gone out from the board for April. Mr. Murphy explained that they will not know until induction day how many of these will go. In March of the 19 called, eight went. The variation between the two numbers is caused by those who enlist, join reserve units, or become ill after receiving induction notices. Local draft boards have no authority in determining the monthly quotas.

About 300 Register Saturday

Registrars of Voters processed 255 new voters last Saturday, the final day of registration before the April 30 primary. Working at Town Hall from noon until 10 in the evening, they also handled about 50 registered voters who sought to switch their party designation before the primary.

According to the Town Clerk's office voting registrations since February 13 have numbered 534, while 270 voters changed their enrollment in the same period of time.

Of those changing their party designation a majority switched from Republican to Independent. On primary day an Independent voter may take either a Republican or Democratic ballot.

Citizens registering on Saturday alone totalled more than the number who registered during 1956 and 1960, also presidential election years.

Serving as registrars are Henry P. Murray, chairman, William A. Wilde, Jr., Pasquale Coleila, and Elsie M. Nelson, Town Clerk.

Tax Base Gets Look From Business Angle

Tuesday night's meeting of the just re-organized Business and Professional Association zeroed in on the tax base from another angle than those of Town Meeting Sessions.

Businessmen, clearly worried, pressed Planning Board Chairman William Chapman as to what the Town is going to do to help them out, and reminded that business failure here as a result of the new shopping centers to the north and of the apathy of the people of Winchester and its government could have a very real and quick adverse affect on the Town's tax rate.

"It's time this town is cognizant of the fact that if it doesn't do something for business here, it will become a ghost town," warned one businessman.

"You say it depends on us to correct this," said another, "but I think things have gone too far."

William Chapman, attending his second meeting with the group in as many weeks, agreed with the complainants on many factors. "If we don't face facts, we're in serious trouble," he said. But he also gave some straight talk back to the more than 20 business people gathered, and told them, particularly on the on-street parking problem, that "some self-discipline is in order." He related that the Planning Board also has its problems with the apathy of the townspeople. Then he asked,

"How many of you know about the article in the Town Meeting warrant which aims for land to be used for Center parking?" And, "How many of you were there the last time to back us up and how many planned to be there this year.?"

The meeting opened with Planning Board consultant Samuel Snow of Lexington showing slides of a re-designed town center in Fresno, California, and talked about recent changes in Lexington and the good results therefrom.

It soon, however, got into a lively discussion of traffic and parking problems. Members who attended felt glad to have Mr. Chapman present, but indicated they would like to see others there too.

Reflections

April 2, 1968

Note to the Editor:

I wrote this note while on assignment to photograph the land sought in Articles 15, 16, and 17. I am sitting on top of a steep slope overlooking Sucker Brook. The sun is blazing through the white paper birches casting long shadows across the forest floor, a gentle breeze rustles through the trees, the brook gurgles below, crows are crackling overhead, the peepers are chirping in the swamp in the valley below.

I've been all over New England woodlands, and this view is as fine as you can find in the forests of Northern New England. Just before I came to rest at this spot a ruffed grouse (partridge) thundered from its sunning spot and climbed through the towering birches. This is the first grouse I've seen in Winchester in over a decade.

Although I've spent my childhood in these very woods, it was magnificent to revisit here. What a shame that this area will not be preserved for future generations to enjoy. I recall back to 1947 when the whole hill was forest. Now bulldozers have cut their destructive path almost to the very spot on which I am sitting.

I believe that if those 59 Town Meeting members who blocked the purchase of this area were here beside me, they would soon realize their great mistake and would hurry back to Thursday's Meeting for reconsideration of preserving this area for the benefit of generations to come and not be so selfish as to spoil this beautiful site for a doller per thousand on a one-time basis. Regretfully I am returning to the Center and its hustle and congestion that we have so carefully designed for ourselves.

Town's First Roll-Call Vote Defeats Conservation Plan

Meeting Declines 2, Tables 3 on Conservation;

Special Warrant on WHS Road Changes is Voted

The first roll-call vote in the history of Winchester's Town Meeting came Monday night when a standing voice vote of 116 to 59 was lacking two votes to authorize a Conservation Commission land acquisition. Calling of the roll by precinct was done by Town Clerk Elsie Nelson and resulted in a 113 to 59 tally, or a loss of three votes by the proponents of the article and the roll call.

This sixth session bogged badly in the wetlands, and at evening's end three hours deliberation had produced official action on only two articles—both of them on conservation, and both defeats for the Commission.

Thursday night saw an attempt by Arthur Hewis to obstruct action on the Special Warrant turned aside, and the Winchester representatives go ahead to vote the Selectmen authority to close a part of Summer Street and Shore Road for the WHS project. This fifth session went into low gear on its reconsideration of the School lunch budget but picked up later and subsequently passed this budget and those of group insurance, judgments and claims, and Water and Cemetery, deferring again only the Parks and Playgrounds money consideration.

In addition, last Thursday's meeting went on to finance a drug use and abuse program and amend the building laws. It, however, postponed action on the Water Department's request for cleaning and re-lining of the water mains.

March 28 Closes Roads; Concludes Most Budgets

At Thursday night's Special Town Meeting and fifth regular session of the Annual Meeting Town Counsel Leonard Mullen was called to the floor five times to make legal judgements which were stalling or confusing the action.

The pace and temper of the meeting was very irregular. It started sharp and fast with Arthur Hewis' attack on the legality of the Special Warrant, slowed to a drag with Robert Reid's overdetailed and abortive attempt to amend the school lunch budget; went rapidly through six more budgets; was reined in short by James Wakefield's seconding of questions on highway surfacing—water pipe renewal priorities, and petered out on building regulations. It convened at 7:50 and adjourned at 11.

Father Henry A. Marquardt invoked the meeting which opened with the Special Warrant asking authority to the Town to shut off 196 feet of Summer Street, going north from where it abuts the Town land and the about 575 feet of Shore Road between Skillings Road and Spruce Street. It also asked relocation of about 420 feet of Shore Road as it makes the bend going into Nelson Street.

At Mr. Hewis' instigation Moderator Chadwick read the Constable's return recording the receipt at the Post Office of the Warrant on March 20.

Mr. Hewis then asked that the Meeting be declared void for two reasons. First, he said that State Law "which supercedes any Town by-law" states that a warrant should be in the hands of the voters seven days before a meeting and explained that since the Warrants went out at bulk rate, the majority reached homes here on March 22. Second he called the warrant illegally and improperly drawn as it bore the signatures of all five Selectmen although only four were present at the March 18 meeting at which it was officially signed.

Mr. Hewis also maintained that the March 20 hearing on the subject of this Warrant had not been sufficiently publicized; and he complained that though he had requested the Selectmen to bring the records to Town Meeting, as they had not, "they are secreting them."

Counsel Denies Illegality

Mr. Mullen, called to answer the charges, said that the by-law dictates the Warrant to be received by the Post Office seven days before, not delivered (that State law says the same thing); that the Warrant was signed by a majority of the Selectmen (and later also by Mr. Chase); and that notice of the hearing is required only to the abutters.

"There is nothing that the previous speaker raised that would make this illegal," he concluded.

Against a background of Herbert Lord also calling the meeting illegal, Mr. Chadwick read the article and called for discussion.

Arthur Dunbar, chairman of the Secondary School Building Committee explained that the Article had been deferred from the February 26 meeting to allow for the incorporation of new ideas.

He showed three slides, the first showing the Summer-Winter Streets area, and he explained that since Winter Street is private it needs no discontinuance vote. He next showed the two slides showing the Shore Road around to Nelson Street area and told that subsequent to first plans, it had been pointed out that a small piece of land was to be wasted, which, if acquired by the Town, would allow the connecting road between the north end of Shore Road over to Holland Street to go further to the north, adding footage to the school site.

Owner Thomas F. MacPartlin, he related, had agreed to the acquisition but had asked that trees to be lost be replaced and that some kind of fence be erected to keep the dirt out during construction. He and other abutters had also asked that grading be such that the water run-off not be on their land.

In answer to questions from James Cullen, he noted that pedestrian access from the "Plains" area to the center would remain along Shore Road on a 12-foot emergency auto road; and that the triangular plot gained was about 1,200 feet; the Town would pay $80 for the land, and that though small "every foot is considered a gain."

Move School Back More

Upon this, John Horn arose to say, "If we're going to take land, let's bring the school back further and we won't have to drive so many of those piles."

Mr. Hewis next interjected a question about the legality of the Selectmen asking for the relocation of a Road which is presently under the jurisdiction of the School Committee and asked for a motion indefinitely to postpone the article. Mr. Lord made the motion, which when seconded, was voted down.

Mr. Mullen explained that a discontinuance of a roadway must always be done by the Selectmen and then, in answer to Elizabeth Herberich, noted that though the Town doesn't own the small tri-

Boys Suffer Dog Bites

Two Winchester boys suffered dog bites in recent weeks.

On March 27 School Traffic Officer Earle Jordan summoned police to Symmes Corner, where they found that David Craig, 8, of 8 Sanborn Street, had been bitten. The boy's mother took him to the Winchester Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations on the face, chest, left arm, and left fingers. The dog's owner, who lives at 7 Brooks Street, was told to restrain the animal for 10 days.

On March 21, David McGrath, 3½, of 26 Stowell Road, was bitten on the left cheek by a German Shepherd, whose owners live at 127 Main Street. He was transported to the Winchester Hospital and treated for lacerations requiring stitches. Apparently the boy was playing with the dog at the time of the incident. A check revealed that the same animal had bitten another boy last summer.

Three Hours: 2 Articles At April First Meeting

Monday night's sixth regular session of the Town Meeting was opened by a prayer given by the Reverend Everett L. Waters of the First Baptist Church.

First business, voted was to accept and place on file the report of the four-year-old Conservation Commission and this was followed immediately by a motion that $3,500 be appropriated to carry on its work.

Conservation Chairman David Turnquist oriented the Meeting to his group's work by showing slides which detailed the areas in the Town already in use as public lands (including schools, cemetery), superimposed on which were the projected acquisitions of the Conservation group to create a "green belt" area across the top of the West Side hill.

He reminded of the recent flood and said the Commission's plan encompasses the objectives of wetlands preservation together with those of furthered recreation areas. Flood potential could be slowed down, he said, if the Town Meeting acts favorably on the conservation Articles before it.

He reported that State and Federal Aid is allocated to assist towns and cities in conservation, that the State has already appropriated monies to this end and that although up until recently his Commission has been gloomy about Federal aid, the Housing and Urban Development had telegraphed Monday that it would give Winchester $5,717—allowing his group to hope for up to 75% total aid from State and Federal governments.

The Commission's working budget, asked for in the main to allow the Commission to take options, was voted by voice.

Article 13 asking authorization to purchase about 10 acres of land belonging to Anthony and Carmella Rossetti and running from High Street Extension to the Lexington boundary was called next. The motion, as are those motions for Articles 15 through 18, was worded to acquire the land by purchase, eminent domain, or otherwise and to seek financial assistance from the Federal and State governmental agencies related thereto.

In speaking on this article, Mr. Turnquist said that it asked eminent domain as did most, due to the very speculative nature of the value of the land throughout the area and that in most cases owners could not be reached or could not be negotiated with.

Mr. Dexter Approves,
But Reminds of Tax Rate

Finance Committee Chairman Richard Dexter got up to recommend favorable action on Article 13, but started off by reminding that expenses have risen due to last minute changes in budgets and that the tax rate now looks to be about $73.63, or $10.83 over where it was a year ago.

Speaking of the conservation articles he said the Committee had difficulty assessing them but had seen its way to its favorable recommendation by acknowledging the fact that this year may represent the last opportunity for the Town to obtain the land and that in total they represent a good investment which would be harder to make next year when the full costs of wage increases and the new High School are felt.

He noted that the land values had been placed by competent professionals. And he informed the Meeting that since the West Side has very little public land for any use his Committee felt that applications for Federal and State aid to the Town should be delayed until it could weigh more carefully whether Park Board, Planning Board or Schools might need some of it. Once it has accepted State aid, he said, then other uses would be precluded.

Henry Porter reported that the Selectmen, whose board he chairs, "goes with the program," that they have met with the Commission along the way and believe the land acquisition to be in the best interests of the Town. But Selectman Edmund Williams rose representing himself in dissent and urged the Meeting to vote unfavorably on Article 13 and all the others to be presented by the Conservation Commission.

Valia Downes Art League Winner In Springfield

Valia Downes, of 9 Myopia Road, was awarded on Sunday a Springfield Art League first prize in its 49th annual National Exhibition held at the Smith Art Museum in that town.

Mrs. Downes won the prize for her graphic, an intaglio print, entitled, "Whirl," in a show which will continue until April 28.

Mrs. Downes was first prize winner with an oil painting at the South Shore Arts Festival in 1966 and won the Richard Mitton gold medal award in the Jordan Marsh Modern Painting Show of 1964.

She has shown frequently in the area, including at the local Art Association shows, Boston Arts Festival, Eastern States Arts Exhibitions, North Shore Festival and many others.

"I still have the same feeling about my work," says Valia Downes, "not one is complete in itself. It is a continuing effort, one more step toward the goal of a lifetime, one more prayer that I may reach an ultimate idea—to strip my work of 'effects' until it stands monolithic. It should flow naturally, in a spontaneous art, from all the materials that are uesd—and this is very difficult."

Club to Hear Decoupage Talk

"The Art of Decoupage" will be the subject of a talk given by Mrs. June Williamson to the Winchester Estates Garden Club, on Monday, April 8, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. David Votaw, Jr., on 73 Oxford Street.

Decoupage is an art of painting with cutting and pasting. Smooth fabrics, such as cotton or silk, or paper cutouts, such as art prints, reproductions, pictures from calendars, and children's books are applied to a background, which may be wood, metal, glass, or plastic, so that the material is integrated into the background. As many as 20 or 30 coats of a varnish-like finish are applied, with sanding between the coats to lose the edges of the cutouts, and make the finished piece all one level.

Depending on how it is done, decoupage can be made to fit into any background or period. As an art form it dates back to the time of Marie Antoinette.

Mrs. Williamson, whose husband is a retired Air Force Colonel, has had a chance to develop an interest in various crafts during her travels. She will bring several boxes, trays and wastebaskets as examples of finished work, and also things which are in various stages of progress.

Co-hostess for the evening will be Mrs. Royal R. Morse, Jr. All club members are invited.

McCarthy Rally On Sunday

Academy Award Nominee Dustin Hoffman, star of the award-winning film, The Graduate, will be the featured speaker at a McCarthy for President Rally at the Arlington High School Auditorium on Sunday, April 7 at 3 p.m. Other speakers will include three men and a lady geologist who are running as delegates pledged to McCarthy in the April 30 Presidential Primary.

Lewis Kirstein, former mayor of Revere; John Elder, an Arlington clergyman; Dr. Ruth Terzaghi of 3 Robinson Circle; and Malden High School teacher, John O'Brien seek to represent this Congressional District at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago this August.

Pretty girls and a brass band will provide an old-timers atmosphere seldom recaptured in this age of television, and officials of the Seventh Congressional District which includes Winchester, have been invited to share the platform.

Crusade

In announcing the appointment, Mr. Fitzgerald said, "We realize that in the past the public has been more than generous. Massachusetts has traditionally been among the leaders in total contributions among the 50 states. But few people are aware that nearly a million dollars more than the $1,415,000 raised in Massachusetts last year returned to the Bay State in American Cancer Society research grants. I am confident that the 95,000 Massachusetts volunteer crusaders will accomplish their goal of raising $1,500,000 in Massachusetts."

The Cancer Crusade is conducted annually throughout the nation, seeking support of cancer research, public and professional education, and service to needy cancer patients. Congress has officially designated April as Cancer Control Month, and the Crusade will reach a climax on April 23, when local volunteers will canvass their neighborhoods. They will provide information about cancer's seven warning signals and give householders an opportunity to help the Society's three-faceted program of research, education and service.

Tax Base

The just-launched membership campaign of the Association is expected to bring in professional men in the town as well as more businessmen, and Lewis Snow, president and proprietor of Renton's Market, invites any interested people to contact him at 729-4700. He reminds also that the next meeting of the group will be held on Tuesday, April 23, again at the K of C Hall, and that ideas for improving the Center will be welcomed.

Police Seek Man In Exposure Case

Police are investigating a case of indecent exposure which occurred last Thursday night.

At 8:35 p.m. officers were summoned to a Winchester home where the family's 20-year-old daughter reported that as she walked along Main Street opposite Black Horse Terrace, she noticed a man standing in his underwear.

When she ran across Main Street, the person got into his auto and drove off towards Medford. The girl described the man as about 30 years of age and around six feet tall with dark curly hair.

He was driving an old model car.

In Like a Lion . . .

Out Like a Lamb!

Whew'. The way March came in, it felt as though the good weather would never get here. But last weekend heralded the arrival of warm Spring days and all that they bring with them.

From sun-up to sun-down the fire sirens wailed throughout nearly every community. Would-be landscapers spent a lot of time outdoors sweeping off sidewalks, rooting up old grass, and burning dead leaves. And the younger set dropped the convertible tops to enjoy some of those welcome Spring-time breezes.

It won't be long now before you'll be considering Spring cleaning, so we would like to remind you of our 20% discount "cash and carry" on rug cleaning. You can drop them off either at the showroom or at the cleaning plant.

Our schedule for wall-to-wall cleaning is also wide open. Chances are, if you call today, you can have your rugs back spic-and-span by Easter, when company comes. If you are interested in this, but you won't be home during the day, don't worry. We're scheduling evening and Saturday appointments so we can have as many done by Easter as possible.

Tax Base: Kiddies vs. Katydids

The argument as to which in the long run will cost the Town less, an open area with no homes, or fine homes with high assessments and children to be educated — this was at the base of some but not enough discussion and vote on Monday night's Conservation Commission articles.

On Tuesday night local businessmen working against the tide which is drawing suburban shopping out toward the Route 128 periphery, again brought the tax base into focus. The people of this town, they said, are going to begin to pay attention to the conditions relating to business growth and shrinkage if businesses move from the Center in sufficient numbers to affect their taxes.

It is clear that for local attention the realities of the tax base are giving the dramatics of the presidential campaign a good run for number-one priority. Monday night's Town Meeting saw only one person, Joseph Riga, close in on the tax base factor as a main issue involved in the Conservation-asked land acquisitions. It heard Mr. Riga argue that development for homes of the land asked for conservation would bring the Town a far better monetary return. It heard him use as an example the Socrates-Plato-Aristotle area where, he said, there is just under one child per house ratio, and no house assessed at less than $22,000.

No one gave Mr. Riga an argument on Monday, excepting as it could be inferred from Mr. Dexter's report of the Finance Committee recommendations in favor of the articles saying that this group feels that the purchase of this land represents a good investment and the "least cost overall" to the Town.

Yet when Conservation Comm. Chmn. David Turnquist showed his slide which had filled in the whole West Side hillside between Johnson Road and the Woburn line with homes, as is clearly expected to happen if no purchase is made, the effect had a strong impact on those whose minds run to the cost of educating the kids, clearing the roads of snow, and providing police and fire protection. And investigation since Monday has indicated to us that there are in fact 40 children in 13 houses on Socrates Way, Plato Terrace and Aristotle Drive; that there are 22 in the schools now at the rate of about $629 a child, or about $13,838 this year; and that there will be 29 enrolled next year at a considerably higher rate. To add emphasis, there has been built just one house on adjacent St. Augustine's Court. It houses four children, three in the schools now, one entering kindergarten next year. Remember, too, that with State and Federal aid, the total cost of the Conservation articles could be as little as $13,000.

Add to schooling proportions of the protection, highway, snow and ice, lighting and sewer budgets, at rates on which the Town will continue to pay from now on out and put these against a one-year tax impact of $1.33 for Conservation purchase. Is it not possible that what may appear to be economy on the part of opposition to conservation is, instead, expensive delusion?

Mr. Kyricos Asks Reservoirs Be Opened

Editor of the Star:

For quite a number of years the Town of Winchester has maintained a clean and beautiful reservoir. The reservoir used to be open to fishermen but due to the carelessness of mostly outsiders the grounds around the reservoir were littered. This rubbish was washed into the reservoir after rain storms and eventually the reservoir became polluted and had to be closed to everyone.

We the citizens of Winchester should not be deprived of the wonderful fishing that this area was known for, nor of its beauty. I propose that the reservoir be opened to Winchester only, under the following plan:

1) A permit be required, for a small fee, so as to provide the necessary additional funds which may be needed for administration of the plan.

2) Minors be permitted to fish only if they are accompanied with ther parents.

3) A very heavy fine be imposed for "litterbugging."

4) A heavy fine be imposed on outsiders fishing in the Winchester reservoir.

5) A fine be imposed on anyone who disturbs or damages any of the plant life or shrubbery in the area.

This beautiful reservoir belongs to us, the citizens of Winchester, and we should not be deprived of it due to the carelessness and ignorance of others. The plan will be considered at the Board of Selectmen's meeting on April 8th. All those interested in seeing the reservoir opened should write a letter to the Board and also contact their Town Meeting Members. The reservoir is probably one of the best fishing areas in eastern Massachusetts, let's get it opened.

Sincerely,
Arthur Kyricos

Mrs. Thuma Pleads Case For West Side Conservation

Editor of the Star:

It was with great distress that I viewed the Town Meeting's action Monday night in turning down Article 13. A mere two votes more, in favor, or a switch of one vote, would have seen the motion carry. The Town is the loser, for many reasons.

Winchester is over 90% developed, in 1968, with more subdivision plans on file or in the study phase. By contrast, Woburn is only 51% developed, and Lexington 75% developed. In the past three years Lexington has spent $100,000 acquiring lands to be preserved as open space. In the past year Woburn has spent about $300,000 to acquire lands for similar purposes. Since the Winchester Conservation Commission was constituted in 1964 the Town has spent about $26,000 acquiring a grand total of 6 acres: most of that sum has been or will be repaid through state and federal aid funds.

The Conservation Commission has worked earnestly for the past 12 months to come up with a comprehensive, well-thought out long range plan of land acquisition, the first phase of which was put to the Town Meeting Monday night. So far, the Commissions proposals have been turned down.

The Conservation Commission is charged, under Section 8c, Chapter 40 of the General Laws of the Commonwealth, with "the promotion and development of the natural resources and the protection of the watershed resources" of the Town. The plan presented at Monday's meeting fulfills this obligation admirably. In particular, Article 13, proposing the purchase of 10-plus acres of open land abutting the Lexington line on Whipple Hill, land which encompasses the stream which flows into the (largely) Town-owned Smith Pond, is designed to protect water resources. The stream which flows out of the saddle pond on Whipple Hill to Smith Pond goes on under Johnson Road, into a culvert under the Winchester Estates, out into Winning Farm and on to Horn Pond. As we all know, Horn Pond Brook brings water back to Wedge Pond: the land protecting the watershed in question is an important segment of Winchester's natural resources. Is the Town wise to spend almost $26,000, as it has in the past two years, to purchase Smith Pond, then throw away the chance to protect this investment by purchasing the watershed which feeds the Pond?

On the Lexington side of the line that town has purchased about 32 acres, surrounding the saddle pond, which have been set aside as open space land. Had Winchester voted to acquire the parcel in Article 13 it would have been getting a bargain: three acres for the price of one. The Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Inventory of Winchester taken last fall points out that a cooperative effort by Lexington and Winchester could easily develop a lovely outdoor recreation area here, with a ski-tow, sledding, picnic spots and public walkways.

Those speakers against the motion who stated that we must establish a wide tax base to cover the Town's expenses are, it seems to me, taking the short-range view. A town which abounds in attractive open spaces and pleasant surroundings is one which guarantees a substantial tax base, for it will always attract substantial citizens. By contrast, the totally urbanized area, our central city of Boston, has had a contracting tax base for the past 18 years, largely because it had ceased to provide an attractive environment in which to live. An enormously expensive urban renewal project had to be launched to attempt to reverse the process; its success is still not certain, even after ten years' time.

Winchester had the opportunity to protect its suburban character Monday night. The Town Meeting chose otherwise, albeit by only two votes.

There are many variables in our community life: we can organize ourselves under a Board of Selectmen, or a town manager, or a city council and mayor; we can choose a school system with 8-2-2, 6-4-2 or 4-4-4 year schools. We can rebuild the Town Hall next year or replace it next decade. But the land upon which we live is invariable: it has meets and bounds. Once "spent" it is gone, and cannot readily be recalled to be "spent" again in another way. Surely we have discovered this in the traumatic experience of choosing a new high school site,—for how many sites were shortsightedly spent years ago? Once again, it is most distressing to see the Town spending its capital, for the short run, rather than saving it to live off of the dividends for decades to come.

March 28 Concludes Most Budgets

angular piece of land under discussion, it can vote to put a road on it as this action is covered by a law governing easements.

After some further discussion about whether or not the building could be moved back any amount to save piles, and a clarification about the amount of money needed, the Meeting voted with a strong voice on motions representing each part of the article.

The representatives next voted to dissolve the Special Town Meeting and they re-opened the regular Warrant by returning to the School lunch budget.

Lunch Program Discussion

The Meeting next went to an approximate hour's discussion on this item which had been deferred from the fifth session due to a challenge from Member Robert Reid. Lawrence Beckley first gave, for the School Committee, the background of the program, and its Federal Government support. He reminded of the "serious allegations" made by Mr. Reid and told of a lengthy meeting held the prior evening by the School Committee in discussion with Mr. Reid.

Strongly re-affirming the Committee's support of its budget as submitted, he reviewed the particulars of the local story on the program, noting a serious problem of about five years ago when the students "were going to revolt," and telling of the School's answer to this by adding variety and interest. "It did cost a little more money," he allowed; but said that the participation average had come from just under 60% back up to 65%, and that they hoped to bring it up closer to the State average of about 67%.

He reviewed the factors which led the Committee to go into the use of paper utensils rather than making a big capital outlay to replace the McCall School dishwasher five years ago and reminded that this year's budget is much the same as that of last year. Richard Dexter reported the Finance Committee supported the budget; but added that there might be areas where economizing could be studied for next year.

The Moderator next read a motion submitted by Robert Reid to amend the lunch budget by cutting it down $5,115 and Mr. Reid got up to explain his motion.

Stating that he thought the salary levels here to be in line with those in the State, he said he felt the issue to be on how the labor is being used. "There is no real training of these people," he said, going on to suggest that the Town make more use of consultations and advice from the State office.

Mr. Reid Asks Changes

He pointed out that there must be extra money in the personal services budget because there is at the moment no supervisor and, although "Mrs. O'Brien is doing a fine job," she is still being paid her usual salary plus an extra stipend. He asked that the $2,500 in the temporary personal services budget be deleted, saying that times of sickness were rare, and the other workers could pick up the jobs at this time.

And he asked a nearly $8,000 reduction in the materials (food) budget, saying baking should be done on the School premises; but he wanted monies for a new oven and more for training program participation.

Mr. Reid noted that Mrs. O'Brien has brought the use of government materials from six up to 12 cents and that all of this is important as "nutrition is now part of the educational program."

Mr. Reid's time having run out, the Meeting voted him five more minutes in which time he seemed to deliver a lecture in food services not all of which held the attention of all the Members. There followed some clarifying questions about exactly how the amendment would affect the budget and a statement from the Finance Committee that it would not support the amendment in as much as there was not enough time to study out what appeared to be basic changes in the budget. Mr. Beckley then rose again to remind that the former supervisor had been lost to Waltham for an addition of $1,800 onto his $8,000 salary and to ask again that the Meeting not go along with Mr. Reid's deletion of monies for what amounted to the pay of one full-time person. Messrs. George Barbaro and David Ashton rose to say that the question deserved close attention in the future and a Member asked for Mr. Mullen's opinion on whether or not the budget under discussion was subject to the same rules as that of the main school budget.

Mr. Mullen answered that in his opinion the motion was an improper one—that had it related to items other than salaries it might be acceptable but that items involved also related to monies in the revolving fund of the budget, which were beyond the jurisdiction of the Town Meeting. And just after the amendment was defeated on a called standing vote of 101 to 46.

The School lunch budget passed with a strong voice majority just after.

Water Main Monies Postponed

In quick succession, and with the repeated support of both Finance and Selectmen, the Meeting next passed: a Recreation budget of $35,011; a Group insurance budget, expanded by the March 4 referendum vote from $65,000 to $74,500; a Judgements and Claims budget of $5,000; a Water Department budget of $244,737; and a Cemetery budget of $88,129.

It next indefinitely postponed Article 8 to increase the water and meter rates and went to Article 9 to authorize the Water and Sewer Board to proceed with laying, relaying, cleaning and lining of water mains and aqueducts which asked for a bond issue appropriation of $110,000.

Robert Bigelow queried whether the water main work on Washington Street would precede, he hoped, the resurfacing job on that street asked for in Article 25. He pressed twice, unsuccessfully, for a yes or no answer, though Parker Blanchard, chairman of the Water and Sewer Board said they would aim to do this. After some discussion about the bonding and its impact on the tax rate and an explanation by Water Superintendent Willian Conlon on exactly what is done in the cleaning and relining, given at the request of Clarence Borggaard, Mr. Wakefield, former superintendent of streets and highways, brought the topic back to Mr. Bigelow's question.

"Are we going to take up these streets again in one or two years?" Highland Avenue (resurfacing) is under contract and must be completed by June 1. "This is a thing (the laying of streets and then digging them up) on which the superintendent of streets for several years tried to get cooperation and failed miserably...The Board of Selectmen have tried and seem to have failed..."

A strong voice vote just after postponed this Article. And the Meeting immediately, after a short presentation from Board of Health chairman Dr. Warren J. Taylor, voted $2,000 for a town-wide drug use and abuse program.

The last vote of this session was to amend, as per Article 11, the building laws of the Town, "substantially." This was done after James B. L. Lane, chairman of the Building Revision Laws Committee told the Members that the article represented the results of long range planning to update the code. The changes involved were particularized descriptions of standards involving steel construction, window glass and interior glass as well as fire prevention and other rulings.

Jeremiah McCarron moved the adjournment.

Two Articles At April First Meeting

"Time is Now"

"I respect the problem of the tax rate...but we must be completely aware of what it will entail to ignore the opportunity (to acquire these lands)" said Planning Board Chairman, William Chapman rising next to say that the acquisition of the entire green belt has that Board's approval.

"If we do not make acquisitions now, we will not be able to in the future. The time to move is now."

Mrs. Barbara Sawyer then asked if the $73.63 tax rate quoted included paying for appropriations which might be ahead in the Planning Board Articles (27-33) and Chairman Dexter replied that that was difficult to answer, but that his group had looked to asking for a bond issue if all the Planning articles are accepted but—that they believe now the bulk of this can be financed from the Excess and Deficiency Fund.

Robert Beattie inquired on which articles must the Commission resort to eminent domain and, (of Counsel Leonard Mullen,) how often does such a settlement stand up in court? Mr. Turnquist said that only on Article 18 had an agreement been reached with the owner, and that eminent domain is involved in articles 14 through 17. Mr. Mullen said court decisions are very difficult to predict, they can go either way, and that the appropriations represented a rough estimate of purchase price, (plus legal fees).

Jeremiah McCarron, pointing out that in one of the Town's present green belts, the Aberjona watershed, conditions are a disgrace and could be the same if the Town took on another. He pressed as to whether the Finance Committee recommendation was unanimous but Mr. Dexter replied he did not recall.

Will Prices Hold?

George Barbaro next said he thought the prices quoted were very reasonable for land in that area and felt in the end they "will prove to be very fictitious," with a court granting more. Eugene Rotondi agreed, and asked for a firm tax base. Robert Winn cited personal knowledge of jury decisions very lenient to landowners.

Kendall Spencer then got up to cite personal experience of court cases the other way. Urging very strongly a favorable vote, he reminded that with Federal aid, the parcels could come to only $13,000 for the Town. "Admittedly, we must put the money on the line now, but if we do, we'll have a real bargain," he maintained.

Otto Schaefer reminded Members that although the area under discussion (meaning the total area) looks big, most of it represents very difficult grading and developing problems—that it is marginal land expensive to develop. "It is always difficult to vote to take people's property away from them," he said, "but it is becoming increasingly apparent that to protect ourselves we must start acting for the Town, even if we have to step on a few toes."

Stephen Moore, a member of the Conservation Commission rose to point out that in the Article 13 property, five lots have been left on which the owner can make a profit, and that for any property taken by the Town by eminent domain, monies would be received at fair market value immediately.

Mr. Riga Points to Tax Base

Joseph Riga came to the front to say that there are 5,123 pupils in the schools and 5,823 dwellers or less than one child per dwelling. On newly developed Socrates Way, Plato Terrace and Aristotle Drive, he said, there is no one house assessed for less than $22,000 and that no parcel of land was assessed for less than $3,500. "I don't think the Town is losing money with this kind of situation," he contended.

Next John Horn asked if the Commission had any preference on the articles if it could choose less than all—and if a bond issue had been considered to be used for any. Mr. Turnquist replied that the advice of the Finance Committee had been followed in not asking for a bond issue, and that, though given reluctantly, the Commission does have priorities—that Article 13 is its first, Articles 14 to 17 (together) second, and Article 18 third. To another questioner he said that he did not know much about prices his group was considering as compared to Lexington, excepting that on Article 13 it was the same as Lexington had paid per adjoining acre—and that the appraiser was the same that town had used.

Mr. Chadwick, trying to bring the Meeting to a vote, announced that it would take a 2/3 vote to pass the articles, as it always does in the case of eminent domain.

But before the Meeting came to vote, Mr. Cullen reminded that a few years ago Lockeland Road land appraised at $12,000 went to the Town for $48,000; Paul Garrity rose to ask for a yes vote in the interests of protection for the Town; Dr. Wildasin said if it were to protect wetlands he would be for it but any land suitable for developing he would not favor taking and he recalled the maintenance problem involved; and Mr. Rotondi reviewed the lack of established agreed prices with the owners.

The hall quieted down for the motion on Article 13 and Mr. Chadwick called for Members in favor to stand, then those opposed. The vote was 116 to 59, or two less than the number required for passage.

As the Moderator called for recess, Members came to the front of the hall to discuss procedures for reviewing the vote and in the halls, groups gathered to re-assess positions, looking for a possible review.

First Roll Call

Immediately after recess Mr. Chadwick announced that he had been asked what could be done in the way of a review of the vote and that there were two things: a roll-call vote, for which a majority would have to request; or a vote for re-consideration which could be taken an any time before the 1968 Meeting dissolves, but which two thirds of the meeting must request.

Henry Gerould, a West Side hill resident then asked for a roll-call and with 100 voting yes and 66 voting no, the call was demanded.

Marshall Symmes stood to say that in 60 years of attending Town Meeting, he had never seen this done before. Otto Schaefer asked if it were in order to speak and told "no." Robert Beattie asked if a Member must respond as before, and Mr. Chadwick said

BOOK REVIEW

Winchester Public Library

MYTHS OF THE SPACE AGE

by Daniel Cohen

Myths of the Space Age is going to raise questions about the authority of many popular books which have been added to the library collection in the last two or three years. Daniel Cohen casts himself in the role of a doubting Thomas and comes out against all kinds of current beliefs and misconceptions.

His first chapter takes up astrology, which has been considered only a pseudo-science for centuries. With the tremendous upsurge in the knowledge of astronomy in the last decade, one would almost think that astrology would fall into disuse. This is, however, not the case; today at least a thousand newspapers, including some locally, carry a daily horoscope column. While this does not necessarily indicate that everybody takes it seriously, some do consider it a guidpost for planning their day. One of the latest books to come out on the subject is called Write Your Own Horoscope.

Extra-sensory perception, unlike astrology, has attained a certain amount of scientific respectability in recent years. Learned societies have been formed to investigate it, and a few universities have established departments in parapsychology. The general public believes ESP to be a recognized branch of science. This is not so, says the author, and it shows up flaws in lay thinking. Most non-scientists do not realize that ESP has not established an iota of scientific proof. Publicized experiences in extra-sensory perception have either been disproved or have not received adequate investigation.

Along the same line are numerous prophets and psychics who foresee the future. Probably the most celebrated and the subject of several books, is Jeane Dixon, who foretold the assassination of President Kennedy. Upon examination the prediction is not such a bombshell. after all. It boils down to an article published in 1956 which said,

> As for the 1960 election Mrs. Dixon thinks it will be dominated by labor and won by a Democrat. But he will be assassinated or die in office though not necessarily in the first term.

Considering the ambiguity of some prophesies this is not bad, but by 1960 Mrs. Dixon seems to have had a curious lapse of memory—she forecast a victory for Richard Nixon and the Republican Party. The Dutch clairvoyant Peter Hurkos is another. He attained a certain notoriety in this section of the country when he was brought in to help solve the case of the Boston Strangler and made a botch of the job. The library has just ordered a book called Prophecy in Our Time by Martin Ebon, who looks at prediction from a different light.

Daniel Cohen also comes out against the belief that UFO's are visitors to our earth from outer space. This will be a disappointment to those who have accepted Incident at Exeter and Interrupted Journey and other serious studies by people who are convinced that we are being observed by people from other planets.

He also says that Ruth Simmons, a Colorado housewife, was not the reincarnation of Bridey Murphy, a nineteenth-century Irish girl, that there is no such thing as the Abominable Snowman, that there is not a shred of proof that America was visited by St. Brendan in the sixth century, or by the Phoenicians, or the lost tribes of Israel, or by Prince Madoc of Wales even earlier.

In fact Mr. Cohen is a skeptic. He has thrown cold water on all the curious beliefs and theories that are more fun to subscribe to than orthodox ones. He has an odd notion that these things should be proved and none of them have been.

Mrs. Barone Aids GOP Committee

"There seems to be a 'communications gap' within the Republican Party organizations in this State and I have tried and will continue to try to do everything possible to help close this gap," said Winchester's Republican Town Committee Vice Chairman Cynthia L. Barone, candidate for Republican State Committee in this district.

CYNTHIA L. BARONE

The statement was made during a discussion following a candidates meeting in Medford on Monday evening.

"Possibly due to the high costs of mailing," said Mrs. Barone, "the Republican State Committee does not seem to be getting through to the grass roots workers in the state. As a person trained in the areas of publicity and promotion, I am eager to work on a communications project in this district (if elected to the State Committee) which I believe could be effectively duplicated in other districts."

In answer to a question, she mentioned that it would be her special interest to work with State Committeeman William Barnstead of Arlington to make District Six (Arlington, Medford and Winchester) the best informed district in the state by publishing and mailing a District Newsletter. This could inform the Town Committee members and the general public (through local newspapers) about State Committee dates and activities and also serve as an interchange of news concerning the three Town Committees. In this way the grass roots workers would have an opportunity to be heard by the State Committee as well as vice versa.

"In my 12 years in the Town Committee and four years as vice chairman, I have never received any direct communication from the State Committee except for finance pleas and Convention literature during the three State Convention periods when I served as a delegate for Winchester."

Mrs. Barone told of a commendable news sheet published by the State Committee but pointed out that "the February issue with announcements for that month did not arrive at my home until the end of February when the activities were past!" She explained that much money is saved by the State Committee by enlisting the help of dedicated volunteer workers and for an over-all mailing it is a tremendous but long, slow job.

Praising State Committeeman Barnstead for his tireless efforts to keep the Republican Town Committees of Arlington, Medford and Winchester informed about State Committee affairs, Mrs. Barone added that his word-of-mouth reports at meetings unfortunately never could reach those members who did not attend.

Mrs. Barone has an extensive background in publicity and has worked in the Brooke organization since 1960, led the Volpe Reception in 1966, headed the public relations for the Massachusetts Medical Society Auxiliary, the Federation of Republican Women, a National Conference of Republican Women and for many local civic and church projects. Her husband, Dr. William D. Barone, is also active in Republican circles in Massachusetts.

April 27 Is Bunty Kimball Night at K of C

Past Grand Knight Everett "Bunty" Kimball has fallen upon troublesome times. A short time ago, he underwent a major, surgical operation and since that time, he is unable to work.

Bunty is a proud papa to a considerable platoon of kids, and by this time, we are sure that with doctors, hospitals, treatments and just plain eating "three squares," the bills and problems must look mountainous.

A group of his brothers and friends have decided to conduct an Everett "Bunty" Kimball dance on Saturday, April 27, at K. of C. Hall. The proceeds will be turned over to Bunty so that he and his family will know K. of C. members are hoping that he can get back his health.

"it is entirely up to you how you vote this time." William Ryerson asked are there members who can, by virtue of their office, vote, and was answered, that there are four—the Moderator, the Clerk, Town Counsel and Town Treasurer.

Winchester's Town Meeting then went into what appears to be its first roll-call vote in history, with Town Clerk Elsie Nelson reading from the list of those present by precincts and totalling of the yes and no votes being made by Christine McDonald, Mr. Chadwick and Comptroller James Costello. Results: 113 yes, 59 no.

Since at least one Town Meeting Member was seen entering the hall for the first time that evening just before the count, and since at least three names were called from the present list with no response, it is presumed that some Members either went home before or during recess.

Article 14 Deferred

The Town Meeting next deferred Article 14, which asked for acquisition of about six and one-half acres of land formerly owned by Ralph and Gertrude Thompson, now owned by Robert Johnson, a developer and estimated to cost the Town $34,500, until after it considers Article 33, the Planning Board Article relative to other lands owned by Mr. Johnson.

Using slides again, Mr. Turnquist next defined to the Meeting Conservation Commission hopes that Articles 15, 16 and 17 which lie adjacent leading along Sucker Brook and against the Woburn line, would be passed so as to provide "an especially good area for recreation."

The Articles relate to parcels of land owned "now or formerly" by William Maley, James and Helen Cullen, and Sarah Moss, respectively, and comprising five acres at $8,700, seven (plus) acres at $$11,900 and two acres at $3,700 respectively. They would, said Mr. Turnquist, be linked with land's designed by Woburn in its master plan for similar use, and, again with Woburn's cooperation, and a small dam built on that city's side, lead to an area which could be used for fishing, ice skating and perhaps small boating.

Mr. Dexter asked that the Meeting consider Articles 15, 16 and 17 together and this was so voted.

Mr. Cullen Speaks Out

Mr. Cullen was the only land owner to speak before the Meeting Monday. In two separate trips to the podium he told the meeting that:

—he had bought this land 28 years ago and gone to court to get access thereto;

—the figure of $20,000 had been mentioned at first and he would have accepted this;

—he had been granted a permit to remove loam—"which is six to seven foot deep over about two acres"—(or represents about 20,000 yards) of loam;

—the land has a beautiful grove of white paper birch as one of its assets; and that —he would be "less than human and less than American" if he didn't want to profit from his land;

In further discussion Mr. Bigelow asked if the river course alone could be taken, without the more valuable high land and Mr. Turnquist replied the Commission had carefully avoided planned home lots and that practical purchase dictated as outlined and not less. Mr. Rotondi asked why the Erickson property (subject of Article 18) was valued so much higher per acre than the Cullen property and Mr. Turnquist replied that the backland lots are worth considerably less than those off Johnson Road.

Dr. Wildasin asked if the Wetlands Bill would not preclude building on these lands and Mr. Turnquist reminded it was not yet passed and that the Hatch Act is very limited on what it can protect.

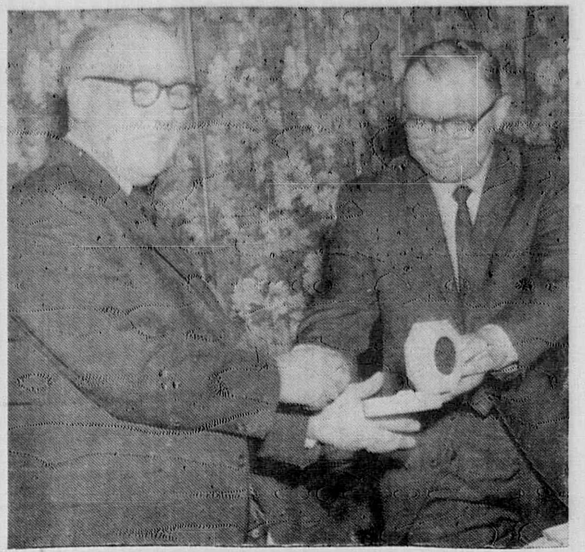
Mr. Robert Armstrong, last year's chairman of the Board of Selectmen exhorted the Members to vote yes reminding that "this is a watershed area;" that the total of $23,000 is a small amount to pay; that the boy or girl scouts would benefit; and that "if we delay, we cannot do it later."

Mr. Dexter asked favorable action from the Finance Committee. And in answer to a question by Richard Murphy, Mr. Turnquist said he wasn't sure if both appraisers knew of the Cullen loam permit and Mr. Mullen said that this might affect the value of the land but that the figures given had added monies on top of what the appraisers had suggested.

A vote then defeated the acquisition of lands described in Article 15, with 87 voting yes and 72 voting no.

Mr. Moore then moved to put Articles 16, 17 and 18 "on the table" until after Planning Board Article 33 is acted on, and the meeting adjourned at 11:05 p.m.

An Officer Retires



OFFICER JAMES E. FLAHERTY (left) receives a gift from Lt. Edward Bowler at his retirement party last week at The Ship in Saugus. The Police Department gathered at a dinner to honor Officer Flaherty, who had served with them for over 27 years. He joined the department on January 1, 1941, after serving as a special officer. Presented with a watch and a gold retirement badge, Officer Flaherty retired on April 1. Officer Flaherty, who makes his home at 68 Hemingway Street with his wife Marion, attended St. Mary's School and was graduated from Winchester High School. The Flahertys have two children. Marine Sullivan Speaks in Verse On Vietnam

P. F. C. KEVIN F. SULLIVAN

Marine Corps P.F.C. Kevin F. Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of 18 Glenwood Avenue has arrived in Vietnam for duty and sent back to a friend here the following verse. An October '67 enlistee, he trained at Parris Island, Camp Lejeune and Camp Pendleton before going to the battlefront.

Day by day we fight like mad
But way down deep I'm awful sad.
Vietnam is an awful place,
To try to kill and leave no trace.
With steel pots upon our heads
We fight like mad and eat hot lead.
We patrol and kill V. C.
Just to keep America free.
One Marine Corps color is gold;
It shows the world that we are bold.
And the other color is red;
It represents the blood we've shed.
Thirteen months of fighting Cong,
And you can't do one thing wrong.
You recieve an order to take a hill.
You say to yourself, will I have to kill?
You know the Cong are someplace near,
But whatever you do, you cannot fear.
So they say the Cong are mean
But you're the Marine with the M-16.
During patrol you think of home.
But there again I'm not alone.
Someday soon I will board the plane
That will bring me back from where I came.

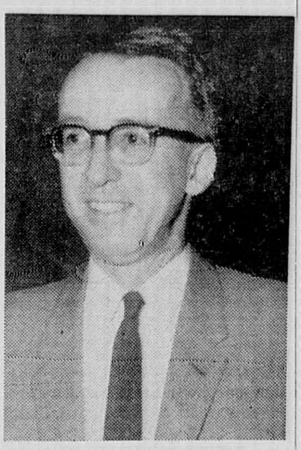
Robert Armstrong Gets New Post

Robert W. Armstrong, Jr., of 15 Chestnut Street, has been elected a vice president of Aerosol Techniques, Incorporated, nationwide aerosol manufacturer and president of the company's Armstrong Laboratories Division.

In the two offices, Mr. Armstrong succeeds his brother John C. Armstrong, who has resigned from his active operational responsibilities and will continue his association with ATI as consultant to the president, H. R. Shepherd.

Robert Armstrong has been vice president and general manager of the Armstrong Laboratories Division and a member of the executive operating committee of Aerosol Techniques. He has been associated with the aerosol industry since 1954, when he and his brother John converted their family-owned textile business in West Roxbury, to aerosol manufacturing.

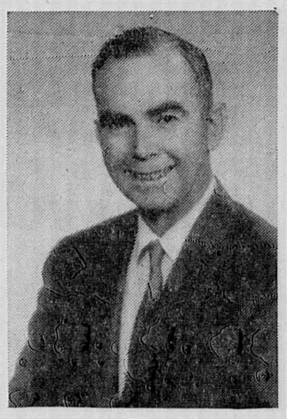


ROBERT W. ARMSTRONG, JR.

Pioneering in the specialized areas of pharmaceutical aerosol dosage and miniature packaging, the Armstrong Laboratories has a ranking position in the field. In 1964 Armstrong Laboratories was acquired by Aerosol Techniques and became one of the company's four divisions, all totally engaged in aerosol formulation and production.

The new Armstrong Laboratories Division president is a graduate of Bowdoin College and attened Yale University Graduate School. He served with the OSS, U.S. Army, in the Far East Theatre during World War II.

Mr. Armstrong has been chairman of the Board of Selectmen here where he has been active in civic affairs for many years. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong have four children.



VINCENT B. MARCH recently celebrated his 25th anniversary with General Radio Company. An instrument assembler at the Company's West Concord plant, Mr. March is known locally for his 16 years as scoutmaster, and for his service as Explorer Post Advisor. Although retired from active scouting, he still serves on the Explorer Post committee. He and his wife Alice reside at 20 Standish Lane and have three grown children and three grandchildren.

Kindergarten Registration This Month Marks 75th Year Since First Class

Registration for next year's kindergarten classes in the Public Schools will mark the 75th year since the Town opened its first kindergarten.

Though not regularly consecutive since then, Winchester was one of the first towns in the Commonwealth to experiment with this class. The first, in 1893, was, according to Chapman's History of Winchester, "so radical an experiment in education in the eyes of many that it had a good deal of prejudice to overcome..."But the School committee persisted; at least one or two kindergartens were continuously maintained; and the 'experiment' gradually made its way until all opposition melted before it."

The registration of children who will enter the kindergarten classes of the Winchester Public Schools next September will be conducted during the period from April 22nd through May 6th from 9 to 11:30 a.m. as outlined below.

In order to be eligible for admission to kindergarten, children must be five years old by December 31, 1968. Parents are advised to take their children's birth certificates with them when they register. Vaccination certificates must be provided by next September. The School Medical Officer will be in attendance during the registration periods in the event parents wish to have their children examined.

Winchester Rotary Auction Is On April 27

Auction-goers and bargain hunters this month are looking forward to the 16th holding of the Annual Rotary Auction at the Town Hall in Winchester—where this once a year event draws hundreds of buyers and turns over thousands of dollars in revenues to benefit charities.

On this one day of the year, Saturday, April 27, the Winchester Rotary Club service organization hires a professional auctioneer and sells-off everything from 10-cent bid children's toys to several-dollar household, personal and sports items, and even more expensive collectors' fancies and antiques.

The Annual Winchester Rotary Auction begins at 10 o'clock, following a 9 a.m. opening for browsing and sales of hundreds of donated books, always to a fully-packed auditorium of interested purchasers.

Uninterruptedly during the day until 7 at night articles donated by citizens throughout the preceding year—and amounting to a chock-full barn of usable objects—are put up to bid and auctioned off in rapid order.

Also during the day Rotary-Annes staff snack and food-sales booths for the benefit of auction-hunters who can't tear themselves away from the delightful atmosphere and bargains.

In the late afternoon, from 5 to 7 p.m., Rotarian chefs, assisted by members of the local Auxiliary Fire Department, turn out a magnificent Olde-Fashioned Bean Supper.

Rotary Club president Harry Chefalo said this week that the club looks forward to opening the doors on the largest auction yet, this year, and anticipates a large turn-out of visitors.

Miss Susan J. McClennan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. McClennan, of 32 Central Street has been named to the dean's list at Russell Sage College, Troy, New York, where she is a senior majoring in nursing.

A Boston Ball For Local Art

THE WINCHESTER CENTER FOR THE CREATIVE ARTS on Elmwood Avenue will benefit from a Champagne Ball being planned by the local Art Association to be held June 15 at the Sheraton Plaza ballroom. Mrs. John A. Volpe, left, honorary chairman, meets in her home with Mrs. Joseph R. DeSimone, chairman, to make final plans for the gala benefit. (Kelley photo)

As part of the program to support the new Winchester Center for the Creative Arts on Elmwood Avenue, the Winchester Art Association is sponsoring a benefit Champagne Ball to be held at the Sheraton-Plaza Ballroom in Boston on June 15.

Mrs. John A. Volpe, honorary chairman of the ball, fully supports the Winchester Art Association's objectives to provide the people of the Town with a cultural center. It is this kind of endeavor that the Massachusetts Council for the Arts and Humanities encourages in all the cities and towns of Massachusetts to benefit and encompass all the arts with special emphasis on programs for children.

Mrs. Volpe and Mrs. Joseph R. DeSimone, chairman of the ball, have set Saturday evening, June 15, as the date of this gala affair, which will hopefully yield at least a small portion of the thousands of dollars needed to make this project successful.

Working on the Champagne Ball Committee with Mrs. DeSimone are Mrs. Harry Carlson of Arlington, Mrs. John Donahue of Myopia Hill Road, Miss Paula Garcelon of Everett Avenue, Arthur S. Govoni of Myopia Road, Mrs. H. Rushton Harwood of Ledgewood Road, Mrs. Walter S. Howard of Thornberry Road, Mrs. Arthur J. Labrie of Medford, Miss Rita Mucera of Forest Street, and Mrs. Byron M. Stites of Oxford Street.

A special guests list includes names of some of the country's leading artists, directors and curators of museums and art galleries and art lovers from all over New England and New York; also foreign dignitaries from the Consulates in Boston are included in this list reports Mrs. H. Rushton Harwood, chairman of the Special Invitations Committee.

Music by Guy Ormandy, sparkling champagne and pre-Ball dinner parties already planned by some of the Winchester ladies should make this a delightful way to welcome summer and at the same time support a worthy cause. All are invited to attend, but reservations must be made early. Call 729-3174 for further information and tickets.

The Wonder Of It All

Christ's sacrifice for each person here on earth will be the central theme of Pastor Arnold R. Swanson's sermon, "The Wonder of It All," Saturday morning, April 6, at the 8:15 and 11 a.m. Worship hours of the New England Memorial Church Seventh-day Adventists, 5 Woodland Road, Stoneham.

"This is a message for every one," Pastor Swanson said, "as I begin my spring series of talks each Saturday morning during April and May with the general theme 'God Speaks to Modern Man."

Mental Health Auxiliary Plans Dinner Dance

The Auxiliary of the Massachusetts Mental Health Center will hold its 22nd annual fund raising dinner dance at the Chestnut Hill Country Club on Saturday evening, April 20.

Funds from this yearly event are used by the Auxiliary to contribute directly to the comfort of patients and staff in the hospital.

The Gift Shop and Coffee Shop which provide a place for patients to work within the hospital preparing them for later jobs in the community have been managed and financed by the Auxiliary for more than 20 years.

Mrs. Paul A. Walters, Jr., is president of the Auxiliary. She and her husband, Dr. Walters, and Dr. and Mrs. Laurence D. Trevett are among sponsors from Winchester.

Robert McTeague Gets Appointment

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Psychologists say that jokes and humor often contain a kernel of truth. A quip seen on the wall of a motor vehicle bureau may be in that vein: "By 1975 there will be more than 200 million automobiles. If you want to cross the street, you'd better do it now."

Pursuing that same thought, the Wall Street Journal humor column contained this message. "At the conclusion of a two-year foundation study, a safety expert delivered his findings: "There may be some uncertainties in a few areas, but one thing is proved conclusively—automobiles are not afraid of people!"

The automobile problem is serious. An auto insurance company executive opened a speech to a group recently with this remark: "One in six of you will be involved in an automobile accident by the end of this year. One in two of you will one day be killed, or seriously injured, on the street or highway."

These serious and semi-serious observations point up one thing: You should have well-planned insurance coverages on your Automobile, as well as the proper kind of Accident and Income protection. May we SERVE you?

Psychologists to Address Parents On Child Behavior Problems

Parents and friends are invited to attend a panel discussion on Tuesday, April 9, at 8 p.m. in the Washington School Auditorium. Featured speakers will be Dr. Norman Goldstein, chief psychologist for the Mystic Valley Children's Clinic in Lexington, and Mrs. Gloria Keville, elementary school adjustment counsellor for the Winchester Public Schools.

This meeting will afford an opportunity to learn of the coordination of services between school and clinic facilities. Some of the subjects to be discussed will be types of behavior that need to be referred to the elementary school adjustment counsellor and why it is sometimes necessary to suggest that parents seek professional help for pupils with emotional disturbances.

After the panel's presentation, those in the audience will be invited to present their questions. People from the entire Town are invited and encouraged to attend.

Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Glowacki To Address Alliance

Mrs. William L. Glowacki, of Winchester, will address members and guests of the Women's Alliance of the Winchester Unitarian Society at their April luncheon Tuesday, April 9, at the Unitarian Church.

Mrs. Glowacki, who has traveled extensively in the Middle East on archeological expeditions has prepared her talk and slides with the Middle East crisis in mind to give to the audience an insight into national characteristics of the area.

She has stated, "I regret the American tendency to think of the Arab bloc as one nation when in reality there are great national differences of temperament, personality, and mental attitude among the several countries that compose the area." Mrs. Glowacki plans to show these differences in her sildes and lecture.

Mrs. Wilbert E. Underwood, president of the Women's Alliance, will open the annual meeting at noon. At this meeting, annual reports will be heard and the election of the new board will take place. Chairman of the luncheon at 1 p.m. is Mrs. Robert S. Westwater. Following luncheon, the group will hear Mrs. Glowacki.

En Ka Plant Sale At Mahoney's Prelude to Fair

Tuesday, April 9, is the day that EnKa welcomes spring and the Easter season when it holds its annual plant sale at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nurseries on Cambridge Street, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This pre-Easter plant sale is always the preliminary event leading to the long awaited Street Fair to be held on May 17 and 18.

EnKa considers itself very fortunate to be able to use the facilities of Mahoney's who have earned a fine reputation in the flower world. A percentage of the price of all plants purchased that day will go toward the over-all profit of the EnKa Street Fair. All money made at the Fair is distributed the following year to assist the many fine charitable and civic causes in Winchester.

Mrs. William Towner and Mrs. Warren Carley are co-chairmen of the plant sale. They report that all the spring flowers will be available on April 9 in time for Easter and are urging the public to come to the EnKa Plant Sale.

The Mahoney's have also promised EnKa all the money pitched in the colorful wishing well on our plant sale day.

Nonie Turville Joins Red Cross In Vietnam

Miss Nonie Turville, 22, daughter of Captain and Mrs. William C. Turville, of Rockville, Maryland, has joined the American Red Cross as a recreation aide in the supplemental recreation activities overseas program. She is the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. H. Turville, of 36 Central Street.

MISS NONIE TURVILLE

As a clubmobile worker Miss Turville will conduct recreation programs for American servicemen in South Vietnam. Clubmobile women may operate from a fixed center, where garrison type military installations are located, or from mobile units which travel to remote outposts near the front lines. In the latter case the women often travel by jeep or helicopter and set up their fast-paced audience participation programs in unit mess tents, motor pools or anywhere they can find adequate space.

Clubmobile women must be in perfect health and are usually between the ages of 21 and 24 when first employed.

At present some 115 recreation workers are operating Center-Clubmobile units at 20 locations in South Vietnam, including Da Nang, Nha Trang, Bien Hoa, and Di An. All centers are located on U.S. military bases.

Miss Turville completed her two-week training period at American Red Cross National Headquarters in Washington, D.C., recently and flew to South Vietnam for a year's tour of duty.

Players Ready "The Odd Couple"

The Unitarian Players are back at work under the direction of Robert Storer. The spring production, to be presented May 3 and 4, will be Neil Simon's comedy hit, "The Odd Couple."

As two men nature never intended to have sharing a bachelor apartment, Frank Thayer plays Oscar, the sportswriter, and newcomer Jim Dorsey is Felix, the newswriter. Their card-playing cronies are four favorite performers, Dick Barnard, Gene Pollard, Cecil Prest, and Dick Wilcox. The Pigeon sisters, neighbors who are supposed to brighten the lives of the would-be bachelor "odd couple," are delightfully portrayed by Ann Carrigan and newcomer Mary Klug.

Next Tuesday marks the opening of the baseball season, and with it speculation on the Sox' chances for another pennant. Will the rounds of the banquet circuit hurt Yaz's play this year, will Conigliaro recover from the effects of his beaning, and just how much bearing will Lonborg's injury affect prospects for another successful year?

Spring training has indicated that the rest of the team is not too much of a problem. The fate of the Sox rests in the hands of the above-mentioned three.

Taking them in reverse order our first subject is Lonborg. While we have refrained from commenting on the injury Lonborg suffered, at this time we are going to discuss a young man whom the Sox publicity department last fall built up in the image of the all-American boy. If Lonborg is the all-American boy, he is more in the tradition of Lil Abner—tall, well-built, clean-cut and handsome, and kind of stupid. As a matter of fact, we'd give the edge to Lil Abner, who never had the benefit of a college education. He might commit a stupid act because he considered it his patriotic duty, but never for mere self-gratification.

While Lonborg's injury has some effect on the Sox' chances this year, it is not as severe as some might believe. The rest of the pitchers can take up a considerable amount of the slack. The notion that a 20-game winner is essential to a team aspiring for the pennant has long since been shot full of holes by the Yankees. Walter Johnson should have helped bring the pennant to Washington now and then over his brilliant career, yet he never got into a World Series game until the brilliance of his career was becoming a memory. And Lou Fette and Jim Turner had twenty-game seasons the year the Braves could gain only a tie for fourth place.

Much more hinges on Tony's comeback. For if he fails, only only one man can take over his position—and who among the reserves in the Sox organization has even a fraction of Tony's class? Our contention has always been that a solid regular is more important than a star pitcher, and Conigliaro has been considered by the rest of the league as being a potential hall of famer.

As for Yaz, many a star spent his winters hanging around barrooms, the effects of which didn't show up until many years later, to cut short a fine career by a few years. So, in our opinion, Yastrzemski will have another good year.

Who knows, perhaps Waslewski will be the Lonborg of last year. We still pick the Red Sox to win by half a dozen games—provided Conigliaro can make a decent comeback. If he can't the Sox are in real trouble.

Whitey Allen Ends BC Hockey Career As 14th BC Player to Score 100 Points

Dave "Whitey" Allen has just completed his varsity hockey career at Boston College by joining a select group of 14 players in the fifty years of hockey at the Heights who have scored over 100 points in their careers. Whitey, a player under Frank Finigan at WHS and a star at New Prep in Cambridge before entering BC, has been the regular left winger for the Eagles since his sophomore year.

In scoring 102 points during his college hockey career, Whitey had 38 goals and 64 assists.

In his junior year, his best at the Heights, he tallied 17 times and assisted 33 times for 50 points. The 33 assists put him sixth high on the list for most assists in a season.

This season, as the Eagles won a trip to the NCAA Ice Hockey Championships in Duluth, Minnesota, Whitey accounted for 13 goals and 12 assists for 25 points on a team that featured a balanced offense. He provided the winning goal against Dartmouth in the opening round of the ECAC Boston Garden Tournament as the Eagles won 4-1. He registered two goals and an assist against Providence in a 13-0 Eagles win as linemate and captain-elect for 1968-69, Mike Flynn, registered the hat trick.

Last year in the Beanpot he scored the only goal against Cornell in BC's 6-1 defeat.

For several years Whitey was also active in youth hockey in town.

He is the son of Francis an Ann Allen of Winchester, and he, his wife Nora, and little daughter Brenda, also reside in town. He is a marketing major in the College of Business Administration.

Drop-In Plans Spring Events

The student board members and adult advisors of the Drop-In-Center met together on Sunday and decided that the group will aim to sponsor three big spring programs:

—on April 26 a Monte Carlo night is to be presented for adult townspeople;

—a second block dance will be scheduled for Manchester Field when warm weather sets in; and —another dance is to be held in May, most likely in the Town Hall.

The Center, a gathering place for high school students now every afternoon and on weekends—has received many useful gifts of furniture from many local persons here; but is still in need of card tables and straight chairs.

Easter Seal Swim Program

For the fourth year, Charles Gardner, executive director of the Boys' Club of Woburn, has made the club's excellent pool facilities available for free swimming classes for physically handicapped children of the Winchester-Woburn area in a cooperative program of the club and the Easter Seal Society.

An eight-week session of classes will begin on Saturday, April 6, from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for children between the ages of six and 16.

Qualified water safety instructors will direct the program and emphasis will be on individual instruction geared to the pace of each child.

Forms and further information may be obtained from the Boys' Club or the Easter Seal Society, 9 Newbury Street, Boston.

"Pinocchio" To Appear On Saturday

Enchantment is promised for the younger generation on Saturday, April 6, when "Pinocchio" will be presented at the High School at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Winchester Community School Association, the play is under the direction of Arthur Savage of Children's Hour Productions. This professional touring group has been widely acclaimed by young audiences around Boston. Tickets will be sold at the door; the morning performance, however, is usually less crowded.

Planetarium Gives Space Tour

For spring travelers Boston's Museum of Science offers a new kind of trip—a grand tour of the major planets of the solar system.

"Project Grand Tour," the new program in the Hayden Planetarium blasted off on April 2 with a glimpse of such astronomical phenomena as asteroids, comets, and the outermost planets of the solar system.

The lecture-demonstration takes its title from a U.S. space-probe mission tentatively proposed for 1977, when four giant planets will be alined so that one probe will fly past all of them. Planetarium experts estimate that the actual trip would take some ten years.

"Project Grand Tour" runs through June 23, and may be seen every day, including Sunday, and on Friday night. Times of showings are Monday, 11 a.m. only; Tuesday through Saturday, 11 a.m. and 2:45 p.m.; Friday night at 8; Sunday, 12:15 and 2:45 p.m.

Admission in addition to the Museum admission is charged. Children under five are not admitted to the Planetarium, but are welcome in the Museum.

Little League Tryouts This Week; All Managers Appointed for 1968

by James R. Stewart, Jr.

This Saturday, April 6, is the first tryout day for all old and new candidates for Winchester's Little League teams—for all 1967 members and for those who will also be trying to catch the eye of some minor or major league manager.

All Little Leaguers are asked to attend at least two of the tryouts, and as a matter of fact, are required to attend at least half of the tryout sessions by Little League rules. Those who did not play last year will be trying to impress major and minor league managers as to their skill with the bat and in fielding, while last year's minor leaguers will be vying for places on major league teams made available by others graduating to the senior league by virtue of becoming 13 year old, or having moved out of town.

Tryouts will be taking place morning and afternoon on Saturday, April 6, and April 13. Sunday afternoon, April 7, will be the third session. On Saturdays, the times are 9 a.m. to 12 noon, and 1:30 to 4 p.m. The Sunday period is from 1:30 to 4 p.m. only. The American League residents, Precincts 1, 3 and 5, will play at West Side Field, whereas the National League residents, Precincts 2, 4 and 6, will fill up Ginn Field. The senior league tryouts will all take place at Shore Road Field at the same times.

Henry Petrillo, 52 Allen Road, is player agent in charge, and will supervise the Senior American Leaguers; while Duane Belden, 50 Thornberry Road, is the player agent for the National Senior League. At Ginn Field, Jim Murphy, 8 Westland Avenue, will be in charge of the tryouts for major and minor league teams, and his counterpart in the American League tryouts at West Side Field will be Ed Sandford, 18 Clearwater Road.

Immediately following the final tryout day, Saturday, April 13, both the American and National Major Leagues will have their meeting and drafting session. The following evening, the minor leagues will hold their draft. The senior leagues will make their selections at approximately the same time. At about this time, also, all of the team members will receive two books of 10 donation "Bucks for Boys" each to offer to everyone who wishes to support Little League and have the opportunity to compete for the grand prize of a Magnavox deluxe console color television set.

New managers for Little League, to supplement those announced on February 29, were selected. This completes the roster for 1968. In the American League minor division, Joe Menowske, 8 Prince Avenue, will manage the Buffalos; Jim Grozier, 69 Wedgemere Avenue, will manage the Panthers; Dave Jeannette, 17 Chestnut Street, will manage the Whippets; and Jack Coakley, 1 Fells Road, will manage the Wildcats. In the National League, Fred McGrath moved from the minor league Lions and will manage the major league Red Sox. In the other minor league placements, Ed Fitzgerald, 15 Linden Street, will manage the Lions; Guy Blasi, 11 Clematis Street, will manage the Ponies; and Paul Guarente, 44 Church Street, will manage the Rams. Little League welcomes these new men.

Golf is defined as a long walk punctuated with disappointments.

Duplicate Bridge Club

Jane Renz, director of the ladies daytime duplicate, wishes to announce that this week's team game was their final meeting for the season. The group has presented Jane with a flowering plant in appreciation of her time and gracious hospitality.

The first warm weather brought forth not only the spring flowers but a veritable bevy of bridge players, on Wednesday, March 27th,—twenty-three tables full.

Section A North-South was dominated by Davises with Jane and John in first place, edging out Marion and Chet. And they were really battling for third place, four couples ending up in a tie. East-West two of our long-time Club members,—Ruby White and Jock Olmsted, had a clear win. Average was 84.

North-South

Mr. and Mrs. John Davis	102½
Mr. and Mrs. Chester Davis, Jr.	98
Lena Collins and Farida Rouchdy	91
Ruth Bibby and Ruth Hagan	91
Carl Galante and Guy Mingolelli	91
James Byrne and Clarence Woodward	91
Betty Slade and Bob Haskell	84

East-West

Ruby White and Jock Olmsted	109
Gerald Barrett and Stephen Haseltine	103½
Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth	93
Fredna Perkins and Ellen Schofield	85½

Section B was bursting at the seams with its thirteen tables. Norman Houlding and Leo Gonsalves posted a fine game to win North-South while East-West Dot and Bill Fuller had a really big 68% one. Average scorers were:

North-South

Norman Houlding and Leo Gonsalves	110½
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanderson	103
Eileen Brennan and Leonora Carty	102½
Steven Butcher and Gerard Walworth	99
Alice Kimball and Jean Hammacher	94½

East-West

Mr. and Mrs. William Fuller	122
David Littleton and Stephen Root	113
Michael and Paul Portonova	99
Mrs. Edwards and George Winters	98½
Pat Winters and Mr. Edwards	95½
Nancy Atkinson and Stan Behehulka	94
Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heyman	94

Steve Root, our editor for the hand this week, exemplifies the thinking bridge player, using logic well both in his bidding and playing style.

"One of the advantages of an established partnership is that you can play a wider range of conventions than you can with a strange partner. While these conventions may make no difference on most hands, they do help on a few. It could be these few make the difference between finishing second or third. Consider Board 4 from Section B of last Wednesday's duplicate. The East-West hands were:

West	East
♠ 9 5 4	♠ K Q 10 6
♥ K 9 7 4 3	♥ A 5
♦ 6 5	♦ A 3
♣ 8 4 2	♣ A K J 9 7

How would you and your favorite partner bid this set of hands (the opponents not entering the auction)? The final results of the auctions last Wednesday had a wide range,—a couple of one clubs, several partials in hearts, spades and no trump, and game in no trump and spades. The one club contract is certainly safe, but it is unlikely to score as well as a partial in a major. The same, however, cannot be said for three no trump, which has almost no chance. Two no trump is a little better but still not very good; after a diamond lead the clubs have to finesse and split (only about a one-third chance). A major partial is a good spot; in either a heart or spade contract, the trumps in the West hand can be used to help control the dangerous diamond suit. With this added protection it is reasonably likely that you will make three, which scores higher than either four clubs or two no trump. A major game is too aggressive considering the lack of solidity of both the possible trump suits.

But how do you get to a partial in either hearts or spades? Let us first consider East's problem in the bidding. His hand has four features,—great general strength but not enough to force to game, a club suit, a spade suit, and a hand somewhat suitable for play in no trump. But how can he expect to show all these different things about his hand? It would be nice to open a club, then to bid spades, then to bid no trump, with a jump thrown in on either the second or third round to alert partner to your strength. The trouble with this is that your partner is very likely to pull a dirty trick on you—he will pass before you have sent this rather complicated message to him. There are two possible ways to keep your partner from passing, but each has a serious disadvantage. If you open a strong two bid, you will keep your partner from passing, but you are very likely to get too high by the time you reach the proper suit (or no trump). If you open a forcing club, partner is forced to bid, but he no longer knows that you have any clubs. When you now bid your spade suit, he will tend to think that it is your primary rather than your secondary suit. You may now reach the right level in the wrong suit. What is the result of this long discussion? A single opening bid of two no trump (showing 21-22 points in our system). It shows the strength exactly. It slightly overemphasizes the desire to play in no trump. It completely hides the club suit. It allows partner to use Stayman to find out about your four card spade suit.

What has this to do with partnership agreements? Very simple—when you bid two no trump, what does a three heart bid by your partner mean? Is he trying to sign off, or is he trying to offer a choice between game in hearts or no trump? This sequence is ambiguous in standard American, so that with a strange partner you are on somewhat of a guess. Certainly, on this set of hands it would be nice to have three hearts be a sign off. Another very good solution to this problem (and, I would add, a number of others) is to play Jacoby transfer bids. After the no trump bid by East, West bids three diamonds which requires that East bid three hearts and shows that West has five or more hearts. If West wants to sign off he can now pass; if he wants to suggest a choice of game he bids three no trump. The other advantage of the convention is that the strong hand is concealed, rather than being exposed by the opening lead. It was by the use of the Jacoby transfer bid that my partner and I reached the contract of three hearts by East. (Editor's note—making four for an excellent board)

I am by no means saying that this is the only way to get to three hearts, but that the use of this convention made it much easier and much less prone to a wrong decision along the line. How about two spades by East? It is a fine contract but very difficult to reach.

Dr. Miller Shows Teacher Aids

Dr. George L. Miller, of 22 Thornberry Road, co-ordinated a demonstration for Wellesley teachers recently that showed how "micro-teaching" and video-tapes can be used to improve teaching and supervising techniques.

Dr. Miller is dean of teacher education at Lesley College in Cambridge.

In the "micro-teaching" sessions filmed prior to the demonstration, Lesley College student teachers taught a segment of a lesson to a class of four children. After watching a playback of the session with her supervisor, each student teacher then used the suggested improvements to teach the lesson to another class.

The supervisor's critique was also taped so that both teaching and supervising methods could be studied.

The entire session was presented on five TV monitors at the faculty meeting for evaluation and discussion.

According to Dr. Miller, the increasingly popular "micro-teaching" lends itself effectively to the technique of video-taping, because the abbreviated lesson allows the supervisor to zero in on one aspect of a teacher's technique, and the session can then be quickly played back for further observation and study.

IT WORKS

Candid and knowledgeable discussion feature by feature—positive and negative alike — with both owner and prospective buyer are essential to real satisfaction in our business.

Last week the owner of a "problem" house sought us and asked us to "take an exclusive" on the property.

We described it honestly and briefly in well-placed ads, went into more detail with many callers, eliminated the "lookers," arranged to show it twice, and were rewarded for our efforts when the second showing produced a buyer.

We think this is the kind of service to which people are entitled.

Girl Scout Diary

By Marie Began

Junior Troop 503 recently participated in a service project in behalf of wounded G.I.'s recuperating at the 121st Evacuation Hospital in Korea. They collected road maps of various states and mounted cartoons on cardboard. For the Korean Children's Ward in the same hospital they made puzzles by clipping pictures of animals, pasting them on cardboard, and then cutting them into puzzle shapes.

For the past several months members of this troop have been completing work on their cooking and sewing badges. As a grand finale each of the three cooking groups planned and prepared a complete meal. The girls working on their sewing badge have a new spring dress to show for their efforts. Other members of the troop have been working on individual projects.

On March 14 Senior Girl Scout Elaine Shiang visited Junior Troop 544 to tell about her life on the Chinese island of Formosa. Gathering the girls around her she showed them a painted Chinese screen, a Buddha "with a happy smile," and several booklets and Formosan calendars. Next Elaine passed out Chinese chopsticks and showed the troop how to eat with them. She then did a few steps from the Chinese chopstick dance and ended by teaching the girls how to say a few words in Chinese.

Also at this meeting the troop's fifth graders described and explained the meaning of the design in the World Association pin, how Girl Guides and Girl Scouts the world over wear this pin.

Brownie Troop 529 has had a busy year with a trip to the zoo, ice skating parties, and participation in the Brownie rally. Their projects have included trick or treat bags, Christmas soap decorations, and international puppets. For their service project, they made St. Patrick's day napkin holders for the patient's trays at Winchester Hospital.

Bedford Hospital Needs Volunteers–Course April 17

On Wednesday, April 17, an orientation course for new volunteers will be held at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Bedford. The day will be spent in presenting to the volunteer the services required and tours of the hospital.

The course is required for service at the hospital and is offered only twice a year.

The program will start at 9:30 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m.

The need for new volunteers from this area is great. How much time does it require? An afternoon, a day per month could give much assistance to the staff of the hospital.

If you can give time, any amount, please contact the Winchester Chapter of the National Red Cross at 729-2300. Transportation will be provided by the Red Cross Motor Service. Register today for your gift to tomorrow.

"Swingers, Squares" Into Action Saturday Night at WHS Auditorium

Swingers and Squares, Winchester High School Parent Faculty Association production is to be presented at WHS Auditorium this Saturday night at 8 p.m.

Tickets may be bought at the door for this annual fund raising event put on by local talent and faculty members and, for the first time, some of the high school students.

"Homework" a humorous skit, will include faculty members Bob Albright, Ed Burns, Tom Morse, Karen Truehart and Jack Waite; and parents Evelyn Hamilton, Marjorie Labedz, Bob Magnusen, Elva Raphael, Rosamond Wells and Warren Wells, combining their talents. This has been written and produced by Peg and Bob Magnusen, assisted by Martha Sauber and Marcella Smith; makeup by Marjorie and Nickie Labedz; sets and costumes by Peg Magnusen, Martha Sauber and Marcella Smith.

"Charismatics, Inc." is a student production entirely, written, acted and directed by: Sarah Chase, Janice Doherty, David Jobes, Scott Lindberg, Holly Martel, Charlene Monkiewicz, Susan Peckham, Robert Ross, Albert Thayer, Arthur Triglione and David Wood.

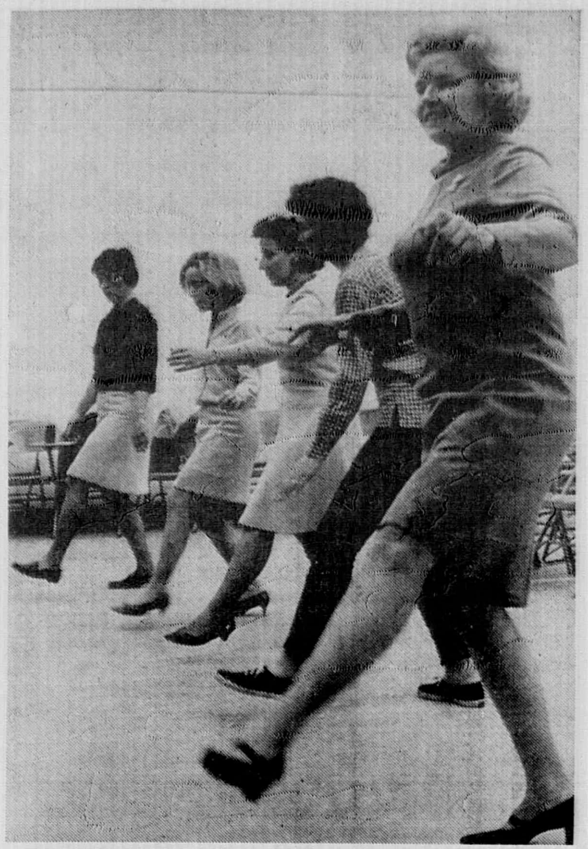
"Raccoon Ramble" the musical portion of the evening, created and produced by Byrd and Cal Herrala, includes faculty members, parents and students. Frank Thayer, the "Rambler" narrates musical interludes in the life of a raccoon coat. A Swing Band of faculty members led by Fred Murray, with George Dillon, Buddy Palmer, Dave Kontoff and Mil Dixon, will represent the big band era. Jim O'Hare and Jack Waite will do several songs and female members of the faculty who are participating: Mary Collins, Jan Collins, Karen Hopkins, Eleanor Thistlethwaite and Marcia Sewall will be seen in varied dancing sequences where they will share the honors with high school mothers: Betsy Ewing, Evelyn Hamilton, Maxine Kajander, Nancy Leslie, Dot MacDonald, Penny Olivadoti, Marty Prince and Betty Vallee.

Judy Millican as the "Poo Poo Pe Do" girl, Bill Jeffrey singing "Blues in the Night," Penny Olivadoti with "You Win Again" accompanied by Jim O'Hare; Pat and Bob Gentry, Nancy and Bud Snow as "Prancer" add greatly to the musical sketch. However an up to date picture of music and dancing can only be gained by bringing in the present and this is done with the inclusion of the student group "And Other Railroad Stories;" Scott Baerenwald, Matthew MacKenzie and Bill Thayer. Student dancers, as "Swingers" are Tony Gilberti, Mark Harrington, Jimmie Pazolt, Marie Petralia, Sally Platzoeder, Debi Renz and Karen Vinci.

Jane Renz, dance director, has put her considerable talents to work to make the dancing sequences a success. Stage manager for the production is Cal Herrala; Accompanist Mil Dixon; Strobe Light courtesy of F. and G. Electronics; Stage and Lighting, Paul Griffin, Bill Hoag, Tom Kelleher, Craig Knopf, Jack Vanderpot, Brooks Herrala.

Coordinating the entire performance and its many facets are General chairmen: Marie and Joe Cincotta and working with them: Faculty Chairman, Judy St. Jean; Ticket Chairman, Anita Martignetti; Patrons, Marie and Joe Cincotta, Dot Jackson; Posters, Ginny Allyn, Marci Sewall; Programs, Mary Simmons; Ushers, Jerry Hicks, Lynn Jones, Margie Millican, Paul Peterson, John Sawyer, Kathy Weaver; Publicity, Libby and Gil Morse.

Swinging Into It On Saturday



"RACCOON RAMBLE" is the dance number for which the above WHS faculty and parents have been rehearsing for the past two weeks. Here faculty members Jan Collins, Karen Hopkins and Eleanor Thistlethwaite keep with it along with parents Penny Olivadoti and Nancy Leslie. Curtain rises at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Funds Unavailable For Compensation

Official word has been received from Washington that unemployment compensation funds are temporarily not available to pay claims to former Federal employees and ex-servicemen only, J. William Belanger, director of the State Division of Employment Security, announced recently.

Mr. Belanger said that payments of these claims will be held in abeyance until supplemental appropriations for these purposes are voted by the Congress.

The Director urged that claimants continue to sign regularly for these payments at their local Employment Security offices. When funds are made available, claimants will receive retroactive checks for the full amount due.

The State Division of Employment Security acts as an agent for the Federal government in paying these claims to former Federal employees and ex-servicemen.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it's ugly, we can't help you.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you have eight kids and it isn't big enough, you have our sympathy.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it isn't fancy enough, that's for you to decide.

But if you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you're used to an automatic transmission, listen carefully.

Now you can drive a Volkswagen all over town without shifting.

We call this new option the automatic stick shift.

And in true Volkswagen fashion, a bug with an automatic stick shift will deliver up to 25 miles on a gallon of gas, use very little oil, and nary a drop of water or antifreeze.

But just because we've made it easy to drive, doesn't mean we're about to make it any prettier, or any bigger, or any fancier. So we imagine some people will still refuse to drive Volkswagens.

You can't win them all.

CONCERN Presents "Time To Talk" For Third Program

"It's Time to Talk!"

This is the program coming up Sunday, April 21, designed to bring adults and students together in a panel-led evening focussing on the drug abuse problem here but searching to look behind the surface at the causes of this and other problems.

"It's Time to Talk" is sponsored by CONCERN, the townwide committee which was formed in December and which this month has taken a name and has been voted the budgetary support of the Town Meeting.

CONCERN stands for Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs. And the 'R' in the name is in fact an 'Rx,' standing for therapeutic.

Sponsored by the Selectmen and under the leadership of Charles Doucette, the committee of 25 has organized "to stimulate a stable atmosphere of united concern and action among community agencies in order effectively to resolve sociological problems which threaten the physical and mental health of Winchester." It was voted a $2,000 budget at the March 28 session of the Town Meeting.

"We hope to involve the young people," said Mr. Doucette this week about the third program, on April 21. "Response so far has been very good, and this month's program has been designed to sustain the interest of everyone."

M.C. for the program is WBZ's Dick Summer. Judge Francis P. Cullen of the Woburn District Court; Bernard Harleston, professor of psychology at Tufts; the Reverend Everett L. Waters of the First Baptist Church—all residents here; and WHS students Andrea Blanch, Joseph Nazzaro, Donna Starrak and Neil Suneson, plus Harvard student Terry Golden, make up the panel.

"It's Time to Talk" has been set up to discuss the underlying factors which lead to drug abuse, alcohol, and other related problems here and to stimulate a wider range of understandnig and communication in the Town.

CONCERN is also announcing this week its intention also to rent a Post Office box in its name. The purpose of the box will be to offer a chance for persons to give, without too much personal involvement, suggestions and information which could help the committee better to achieve its goal.

The inter-agency and intergroup committee meets regularly, with representatives of the Police, Board of Health, School Committee, administration, and guidance, parents, Ecumenical Association, Council for Community Action, and WHS student representatives, and it includes medical advisors Dr. Donald McLean and Dr. Leo Cass.

Governor's Home Reported To Be Sold

Persistent rumors of the sale of the Everett Avenue lakeside home of Governor John A. Volpe were backed up this week by a report to the Star that the imposing red brick colonial with the handsome pillared couple was sold to a Woburn couple.

The Roger Whittemore office on Church Street, reported as brokers, would not answer questions about the sale, stating that in the Volpes' absence from the country they had no comment. The young Woburn father of two small children, said to be the purchaser, also requested his name be withheld and would make no statement as to an agreement.

The house has been on the local open market for the past three weeks or more, however, with all nine realty offices having a chance at the sale.

Reports are that Mrs. Volpe first informed brokers that the house would be available for rental; but subsequently, at the Governor's decision, put it on the market. Heads of offices here attended a morning coffee open house as an introduction to the house at this time.

Rumors of the house sale had been preceded by those that the Governor had cancelled his Country Club membership and anticipated leaving Winchester. It is expected that the couple, residents here for about 18 years, will move into their Boston apartment to stay until the 25-room, 21-acre Endicott estate in Dedham, purchased by the State as a Governor's mansion, is ready for occupancy.

Governor Volpe has been reported since then at one time as having no intention of moving, and at another as being anxious and happy to leave. He has many friends here and is a supportive member of the Winchester Sons of Italy and a former member of the Christopher Columbus Club. A daily communicant at St. Mary's Church, he is a familiar sight that will be missed as with his blue-coated aide, he takes his morning walk to church across the Common.

The Volpe home, built by Mr. Volpe for himself and family, has held the second highest valuation of any in town, that of $72,200. The Governor and Mrs. Volpe will be leaving at just about the time the results of the town-wide re-evaluation are made public. These started at No. 10 Everett Avenue in December, 1966.

AT HOME—WINCHESTER WALKS IN STEP WITH THE COUNTRY

Many Join March, Service To Honor Dr. King On Sunday

An estimated eight to nine hundred persons gathered on the Winchester Common at 3:30 Sunday afternoon and walked together up Mt. Vernon Street to the First Baptist Church for a memorial service to Dr. Martin Luther King, slain Thursday night in Memphis, Tennessee.

The ministers and priests associated in the Ecumenical Council met on Friday to plan the services and were at the head of the line and it moved quietly in the warm and sunny afternoon, as were representatives of the Town government. All churches in town had official representation excepting the Immaculate Conception Church.

The Baptist main church holds fewer than 500 persons, and before the attendants—young and old, dressy and informal—were squeezed in, every available space upstairs and down was in use.

Babes in arms and very small children came with their parents. Teenagers and young adults were conspicuous by their numbers. One young person was overheard to say, "The best thing about this is that I wasn't forced to come. I came on my own because I wanted to."

Host pastor the Reverend Everett L. Waters opened the service, and the congregation joined to sing the hymn, written in 1845 by James Russell Lowell, which starts, "Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide, in the strife of truth with falsehood, for the good or evil side."

Monsignor Joseph Lyons of St. Eulalia's Church and the Reverend H. Newton Clay of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church joined to read from the Old and New Testament respectively, after which James Reynolds, soloist at the First Congregational Church, followed with "Precious Lord," the late Dr. King's favorite hymn. A major part of the service was made up by readings from Dr. King's own written works, presented by Robert Magnusen, a Unitarian layman. This was followed by an offertory and a prayer by the Reverend Dr. Storer of the same church. And the service concluded with everyone joining to sing "We Shall Overcome," a capella.

WCCA Joins Effort

The offering at the Sunday service was announced to be taken for St. John's Baptist Church in Woburn, a small, integrated church which is, for the first time, about to have a full-time pastor. The offering came to just under $800, and reports are that contributions are still coming in.

By chance, the Human Relations Committee of the Winchester Council for Community Action had met on the night before the assassination to hear a report from the Reverend Ralph Ross, St. John's pastor-designate, who is presently associated with the Baptist City Missionary Society at Freedom House in Boston. Mr. Ross told of the needs of the parish and the current fund-raising campaign of $10,000 which it had just undertaken.

The WCCA brought this appeal to the attention of the Ecumenical Council in time to have Sunday's collection go to the church in the form of a Martin Luther King memorial gift. In addition, WCCA is continuing a collection for this fund. And citizens may contribute through this organization. Officers just elected for the group are, Peter W. Neurath, chairman; Mrs. Alexander Holdt, vice chairman; and Mrs. Jean O'Brien, secretary.

S.N.A.P.

WCCA has also taken over active assistance in an appeal which came directly to the Star this week.

A representative of Boston's South End Neighborhood Action Program visited the Star to tell of the needs of a new much-needed South End Homemakers Kitchen for teenage girls of the area.

The new program already has lined up two or three cooking teachers who hope to get about 200 of the young neighborhood lounge room "membership" into active participation.

The immediate need, which Winchester is invited to help fill, is for small but good cooking utensils, including pots and pans, mixing bowls, coffee pots, beaters, spatulas, aprons, and so forth. Cook books would be acceptable too.

Mrs. Neurath (729-3375) has offered to pick up any donations and will see that they get into S.N.A.P. headquarters on West Brookline Street in the South End.

Five-year-old "Cottontail" did his duty with an Easter-week public appearance at the Washington School kindergarten, where he met a large group of the more attractive of the homo species, among whom were, left to right, Patrick Murphy, Noreen Connell and Beth Ann Terpko. "Cottontail" is a full-fledged member of the James Johnson family at 8 Hinds Road, where he lives with three child siblings, one dog and one cat. His outdoor perambulations are restricted by a family leash law. (Photo by Ryerson)

Drive Opens, Trustees Named For Arts Center

Continuing its well-sustained and broad efforts to make a practical reality of plans for a town cultural center, the Winchester Art Association today announces three trustees as well as canvassers and reports on its special fund drive.

The Association, which proposes to locate the new Winchester Center for the Creative Arts in the Elk's home building at the corner of Vine, and Park Streets and Elmwood Avenue, has created a charitable trust to own and operate its enterprise.

Founding trustees are Mrs. George A. Marks of 32 Foxcroft Road, George B. Redding of 10 Cranston Road, and Harris S.

Easter Dawn Service Will Start At 4:45

The traditional Easter sunrise service is this year a true dawn service to be held at the Saint Eulalia Church beginning at 4:45 a.m.

The Ecumenical Council and its Youth Council invite all to attend a service designed with focus on a contemporary concept of the significance of the resurrection of life and the resolution of darkness into light.

Progressing in three parts, readings will symbolize darkness, dawn and daylight. Contemporary instrumental music with clarinets and trumpet will accent the mood, which is to resolve in a paean of triumph proclaimed by trumpet and organ as daylight comes in through the Church windows.

Easter breakfast is to be served in many churches in town.

Aberjona Facelifting, Four Parcels Of Land Bought By '68 Meeting

Tax Rate Today Looks Like $74.00; Conservation Up Again, Down Again

Winchester's 1968 Town Meeting plods on toward its ninth session, notching a record in longevity. It aims to conclude on Monday, just four days ahead of another well-known local area marathon.

The Aberjona River held the stage at the seventh session as the Meeting appropriated a total of $51,550 to increase its flow, refurbish its upper lagoon and rebuild the island in the Center Pond. The session also amended then passed the Park Department budget and bought the first Planning Board-requested land parcel, the house and land lot on Alben Street.

The eighth session concluded the purchases recommended by the Planning Board, giving its just re-elected chairman William G. Chapman, Jr., a final score of four accepted, two turned down and one scratched. Bought were lands on Marshall Road, Winchester Place and Johnson Road. Rejected were those off Washington Street and Grove Place; and indefinitely postponed was the request at Canal Street. This session also steamed up a little as it reconsidered but again closely defeated the Conservation article to buy land abutting the Lexington line; and it authorized the Water and Sewer Board to continue its relining and cleaning of water mains.

Ahead are 16 more articles, including those to name the "Tufts Road" School; rename Loring Avenue Playground; investigate the need for a Town Manager; and buy or lease portable classrooms for next year's elementary school overflow, and purchase land for conservation to the south of Johnson Road.

As of today, Winchester's tax rate is $74.00

Focus On River At 7th Session

Moderately paced and decisive action on six articles presented by the Aberjona Waterways Committee threatened to but did not lift the seventh session of the Town Meeting out of the hesitation waltz it has chosen as a tempo.

There was at least one tiny transistor radio in the gathering, brought in to hear, at odd moments, how the Bruins made out against Les Canadiens—but which in fact brought the heavy news about Martin Luther King to the Members.

With relatively few questions Members voted with near unanimity to install, with heavy Federal aid, four wells upstream of the town as an Aberjona river flow augmentation system; to dredge, fill and improve the river channel near Davidson Park; and to repair and improve the Mill Pond island.

Members Robert Bigelow and James Cullen asked a question in many minds about the Mill Pond — "Will they restore the bridge?" And they were told it was hoped so.

The ducks were given part of a blame for the deterioration of the Mill Pond island—"Even the ducks are digging holes in it," Chairman om Watershed David Turnquist dared to allow.

There was some sidestepping of naming names when it comes to neighbors to our north responsible for thermal and other river pollutions.

And the MDC sewer had the finger pointed directly at it as regards the "continuing odoriferous condition around Wedgemere station."

The Park Department went against the recommendation of Recreation Committee Member Richard Freeman, who wished it to rid the Leonard Pool area of weeds, particularly Elodea Canadensis, a weed which could in its accumulation lessen the safety of swimmers. But it was shot down.

Tax Base Rises

The Finance Committee chairman gave the "box score" of the taxe rate just before the only standing vote of the evening—that on Article 27, the first Planning Board land-taking article and last vote of the evening.

"The rate now stands at $73.12," he said. If all the Planning Board articles (seven) are voted, it will be $74.37—with $2.25 going on to the tax base and one dollar coming from Excess and Deficiency.

Nevertheless, Richard Dexter said, the Finance Committee recommendation was favorable. It felt that the Town should continue to pick up lands studied to represent answers to possible future need when available.

On Article 27, at least, this recommendation was not unanimous as made clear in discussion pointed up by Member Frederick LaTorella.

However, one of the last interjections before the Planning Article 27, vote (to purchase seven-plus acres of land on Alben Street,

Meeting's Eighth Session Spends $163,300 For Land

A few minutes of silence out of respect for Martin Luther King and a strongly worded invocation, pointed to the issues for which he stood, opened the eighth session of the Town Meeting Monday night. The Reverend Dr. Oliver Powell, who assumed the pastorate of the First Congregational Church in November, and was appearing at Town Meeting for the first time, gave the invocation.

A unanimous voice vote came quickly to pass previously postponed article 9 asking in the name of the Water and Sewer Board a $110,000 bond isue to finance, and the authority to continue, the cleaning and lining of water mains on Washington and Main Streets.

This followed a statement by Water Board Chairman John Blanchard that a mutual agreement had been worked out between his board and the Highway Department as to priorities of work effort, and a statement of support from the Finance Committee.

In a move that had been anticipated by both proponents and opponents, Henry Gerould arose next to ask reconsideration of Article 13, the conservation article asking the Town purchase of 10-plus acres of land adjoining the Lexington border. Speaking as an abutter he noted the closeness of the vote and said that some Members had been confused and thought they were voting on all articles.

Eugene Rotondi led off the opposition stating he felt the Meeting had been misinformed, that in fact the Town would be taking four frontal lots, not three. He said he had invited owners Anthony and Carmella Rosetti, of Everett, to be present and they were. Comparing price offerings with those announced for the Ericson property, he said he felt their land should be worth $20,000 an acre.

Barbara Hankins rose to support Mr. Geroulds request for reconsideration, and David Turnquist again showed for the Conservation Commission which he chairs, slide drawings of the area, pointing out that the plan was to leave the owner lots which are not in the swamp area which borders the stream, one, he said, which feeds Smith Pond. He reminded the plan leaves five lots and that three, not four, were asked for purchase; and that with Federal and State aid could cost the Town as little as $6,000. He told of attempts to negotiate over the past two years, and restated that of all the conservation requests this was the most important.

Harry Wildasin, raising point of order on discussion of the article prior to vote of reconsideration, was informed by the Moderator that discussion was in answer to Mrs. Hankins' request that the question be reviewed.

Mr. Rotondi repeated that he felt there were nine lots maximum in the layout and that there was a sewer betterment already there; and Mr. Turnquist replied by saying that the Commission had two separate appraisal firms assess the values—the same as had assessed that of the abutting land which the Rossetti's had sold to Lexington; that at least one was aware of the sewer betterment, but also of the gas main which subdivides the area and makes development more difficult.

In a dialogue initiated by James Cullen, Mr. Turnquist detailed that he had made "I don't know how many" phone calls to the owner, who had refused to discuss purchase price; that these had gone on over two-and-a-half years.

George Barbaro felt the offered price of $2,480 for 10 acres would not stand for it was too small.

Robert Armstrong, exhorting the Town to plan for those to come, answered that the Town Meeting has to pretty well accept the appraisals of two professionals and that they should rely on this judgment.

"There are some principles involved here," said Joseph Tansey as he rose next, strongly to object to reconsideration. Complaining that the majority wants to override the minority "just as elsewhere in the country these days," ("and I could have something to say here about METCO") he said he wished to stand up for those who own land and he decried what he felt to be "a division of action within the Town Meeting which seemed ' a throwback to the 20's and 30's."

Making his debut as a Selectman-electee, Ralph Swanson came forward to urge every voter to vote for reconsideration. He remindid that his pro-conservation stand had been stated in his recent campaign when he said that "obtaining open spaces is a must" and must be done before too late.

Police Obtain Arrest Warrant In Drug Case

Town police hold a warrant for the arrest of an 18-year-old Winchester boy on charges of possession of both narcotic and harmful drugs, illegal possession of a hypodermic syringe and needles, and being present where narcotic drugs were illegally kept.

The boy is presently confined in a private Boston hospital after treatment in Beth Israel Hospital. Police expect his arraignment in Woburn District Court within two weeks.

The youth has been hospitalized since March 27, when he became unconscious after what appeared to be an overdose of drugs. Home alone, he was discovered by a woman employed for part-time cleaning. She notified the office of a physician who was at a hospital at the time of the call. When he arrived at the home some time later he found the boy on the dining room floor.

He summoned police, who aided in transporting the young man to the Boston hospital. As they placed him on an ambulance stretcher, they observed puncture

Keep Winchester Clean

At 8th Session Of Town Meeting

Agreeing to the poins of economic analysis of the Star (which had challenged the validity of the fact that supporting homes and children is cheaper than buying open land) he reminded that the State and Federal governments are both in the conservation business and that the Town should also be.

In further discussion proponent John Harrington stated that "if we miss the bus now, there won't be another;" Stephen Moore, a Conservation Committee member, recalled that eminent domain had been used in obtaining the Middlesex Fells, reviewed the Committee's intent to try again to negotiate, and reminded that the Town settled out of court on the Whitten land and that with State aid would pay 50 to 75%. He then cited, in particular, the Library addition vote as an instance of the value of reconsideration.

Richard Murphy warned what would happen to prices if the Town waits a year; Richard Sampson, not able to understand the "heat" generated by this article when "last week we voted with little question $26,000 to augment the river flow, asked the Town to think again on the benefits. And Otto Schaefer, in reply to Mr. Tansey's earlier statement denied that the roll call had been called "to embarass" voters, and then pointed to the fact that actually what had earlier been called a swamp bordering the stream was "virtually a lake."

Mr. Tansey again condemned what he called the "pressure" brought and the number of calls made by proponents in the interest of reconsideration, and said he felt it had "already been considered." The Moderator stated the motion to be in order, that the roll call on the first vote was not a reconsideration.

Kenneth Donaghey wanted to hear the Rosetti's, but the Moderator suggested that this would be more appropriate if the reconsideration vote passed.

A standing count then brought 115 'yes' votes to their feet, 60 'no's' or three votes short of the two-thirds necessary to pass.

Back to Planning

The Meeting turned quickly back to where it left off a week ago tonight with Planning Board Chairman William Chapman taking the podium, Town Engineer Howard Ambrose taking the pointer on the stage and Assistant Engineer John Ciarcia moving to the front of the hall to be ready for discussion.

When the slide showing the relationship to the corner of Cross and Washington Street property to Leonard Field, Mr. Chapman described the short range need for land to be that of improving the area and offering off-street parking, and the long range one of looking toward general recreation adjuncts such as a skating rink. The price was $25,500.

Michael Saraco asked if it was the Board's intent to take land eventually down as far as Collamore Street and over on Nathaniel Road. Mr. Chapman replied not on Nathaniel, but that as land came on the market the Town would hope to take toward Collamore Street at least up to its right of way just west of the New Hope Baptist Church. Answering about the Church, he said that in the past few years it had not been functioning as such.

Mr. Dexter spoke Finance Committee support for the article. Joseph Riga said that the Town already owns quite a few pieces of property and suggested an amendment which would condition "renting to families with children above school age." But Mr. Chapman noted this would be discriminatory.

The Meeting then voted 106 'yes' to 58 'no,' which failed of the two-thirds necessary for acquisition.

'Yes' on Mystic Lands

The next slides showed the Mystic School and adjacent areas, with the 11,072 foot property of Richard Merrow at 10 Marshall Road and abutting the school land, the focus for Article 29—which was asking purchase at $30,800 for, according to Mr. Chapman, possible school expansion.

Earle Littleton, talking as chairman of the Elementary School Building Committee, carried the ball on this article. Speaking to the overall elementary outlook, he said needs for land at Washington, Mystic and Vinson-Owen School areas were needed because:

—the Town's size is increasing rapidly;

—it has been demonstrated to be less economical to run small schools, and therefore those without land possibilities in their vicinity—Wyman and Noonan—would be retired earlier;

—Mystic will have to have portable rooms and, eventually, classroom additions;

—and Vinson-Owen will soon need additional classrooms.

He also told the Meeting that the large Fontaine estate just to the east of Mystic could have been had some years ago at $32,000 and he allowed that his Committee must plan on the basis that "it is the spirit of the Town that we are not to take homes—that they are sacred."

He restated that to obtain State aid on school building the land was necessary. This brought John Sullivan to the front to argue that, though he was in favor of this article, he wanted the Meeting to "take a hard look at State aid," which, he figured, given the interest payments over 20 years comes in reality to about 28%. He emphasized this point later to remind that counting interest on the bond issue, the 10 million dollar WHS project would really take 14 million from local taxes.

Following a 'yes' oral support from the Finance Committee, the Meeting vited 166 to 2 to purchase the Merrow property.

'No' on Chefalo Land

The next Planning Board Article was defeated, the Meeting refusing (84 'no' to 69 'yes') to appropriate $45,000 to purchase 8.5 acres of land situated between Grove Place and the railroad, despite the strong urging of Sherman Saltmarsh to "get it, and convert it into park land." Mr. Saltmarsh spoke as the Town's representative on the MBTA planning group and said if the present bill in the Legislature passes, the MBTA will soon get 30 million to take over the rolling stock of the B. & M. "Parkland is the best buffer against unwanted use of this land," he exhorted.

Describing the land as marginal and a poor environment for development, containing easements its whole length, Mr. Chapman asked its purchase to replace parkland taken for the WHS project and admonished that if not taken it was not impossible that the MBTA take-over would lead to the establishment of a maintenance depot there.

The Finance Committee reported unfavorable on this one and stated that the Town is reclaiming a substantial piece of parkland taken for the High School (Shore Road Field) in its reclaiming and development of the WHS playing fields.

The Selectmen reported in favor of purchase, as did Robert Bigelow, who had polled abutters and spoke for them.

Green Light for Parking

The cause and effect relationship of healthy business and good parking facilities came under contention during the discussion of the next article—31, asking $31,000 to purchase about 10,636 feet of land at 13 Winchester Place for parking.

Mr. Cullen asked if the owner was willing to sell and was told 'yes.' Mr. Bigelow asked if the purchase price could be funded under the parking meter account and told 'no.'

Then Jeremiah McCarron inadvertently lit a fire when he next got up to say that "if Bonnell's is moving out, if the Converse is moving out and Filenes, then, the Center will soon be empty, as is Woburn Center," and if the Town waits long enough it won't need any parking places for businesses.

Republicans Here Invite Citizens To Hear Lindsay

Mrs. Robert Reynolds has announced that the sale of tickets to the "Republican Party" fund-raising event April 19 in Boston will feature the appearance of New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Mrs. Reynolds, finance chairman of the Winchester Republican Committee, said that this is a full-scale Republican effort across Massachusetts to elect more Republicans to the Massachusetts Legislature.

Mrs. Reynolds said that tickets for the "Republican Party" at $100 (which will admit two persons) may now be secured by calling 729-3334 or 729-8120. It will be a smorgasbord of "Food from Around the World," a menu served by members of the many ethnic groups here in Massachusetts.

Frank T. Brownell

Frank Thomas Brownell, a 50-year resident of Winchester, died at his home in Wilmington on April 3 after a long illness. He was 65.

An organ builder in Malden, he was born in Everett on November 2, 1902, to Albert A. and Isabella (MacCharles) Brownell.

Making his home in Town until three years ago, he lived on Vine Street and on Skillings Road. He was a student at Winchester High School.

Mr. Brownell served as a corporal in the Army during World War II.

He was a member of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church.

Funeral services were held in the Norris Funeral Chapel on April 6 with the Reverend Willis P. Miller, of Wilmington, officiating. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Mr. Brownell leaves a sister, Grace P. Kaizer, of Wilmington, two nieces, Marjorie Otis, of Winchester, and Beatrice Miller, of Wilmington, several grandnieces, and a grandnephew.

Mrs. Rose V. Nelson

Mrs. Rose V. (McGonagle) Nelson, a former resident, died suddenly in Long Beach, California, on April 8. She was 66.

Funeral services will be conducted on Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. at the Lane Funeral Home, with the Reverend Everett L. Waters, of the First Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery. Visiting hours will be today at the funeral home from 3 to 5, and 7 to 9 p.m.

Born in Boston, Mrs. Nelson lived here for 18 years before moving to California about eight years ago. She was the wife of the late Roy T. Nelson, who passed away in 1958 in Winchester.

Mrs. Nelson leaves six children, Miss Louise V. Nelson and Mrs. Elinor R. Dicus, of Long Beach, Robert F., of Riverside, California, Paul T., of Nanuet, New York, Mrs. Madelon E. Helme, of Cyprus, California, and Mrs. Katherine A. Gibbons, of Winchester. Also surviving are 11 grandchildren and several sisters and brothers.

SPCA Holds Silver Tea

The home of Mrs. James Jenks, of 12 Myopia Hill Road, provided the setting for the silver tea sponsored by the Winchester Auxiliary of the SPCA on Monday, April 8.

The program dealt with rescue and placement of dogs and cats in this area. The speakers were Mrs. Frederick Cardin, Club president, Mrs. George Connor, and Mrs. Arthur Adams of the Buddy Dog Humane Society. Each related several experiences she had had in finding homes.

Following the program members and their friends were served tea and refreshments. Mrs. William MacDonald, tea chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Norman Weeks, Mrs. Albert Thompson, Mrs. William Cannon, Mrs. Richard Cannon, Mrs. Park Hoyt, Mrs. Elizabeth, and Mrs. Dean Carleton. Mrs. Philip Boone and Mrs. Maxwell McCreery were asked to pour.

ICC Plans Party

On Tuesday evening, April 16, the Immaculate Conception Ladies' Sodality will sponsor a "Games Party" in the school hall at 8:30 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be served. Mrs. Louise Butare, the chairlady, invites the public to attend.

Girls to Compete On April 20th

Three more local contestants will be vying for the title of Miss Winchester 1968 in the Winchester Scholarship Pageant on April 20, at the High School.

Miss Karen D. Coleman, of 170 Mt. Vernon Street is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Coleman and a senior at Winchester High School. She plans to continue her education at Forsythe School of Dental Hygiene following graduation.

Miss Jeanne Marion Colgate, of 38 Edward Drive, also a senior at Winchester High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland K. Colgate. Miss Colgate has lived in Japan for six years. She plans to attend Salem State College after graduation.

Miss Ann Louise Deechan, of 10 Wildwood Street, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Deechan and attends Perry Normal School. She is a graduate of the Boston Dance Teachers Club and hopes to further her education at Boston University.

Tickets are available for the Pageant by calling Mr. John Hackett at 729-7422.

The height of frustration was Mrs. Demon telling Mr. Demon, "Darling, I'm at my wit's end. The children have been absolute angels all day."

Serving The Community For 87 Years

Editorials:

Lest The 'Choice Goes By Forever'

Everything was goodness and light Sunday afternoon at the Ecumenical Association-sponsored memorial march and service for Dr. Martin Luther King.

But believe it, neighbor, everything isn't.

Everyone present was well dressed, kindly, proud to be a part of a meaningful national gesture.

But remember, neighbor, everyone wasn't present.

Eight to nine hundred persons young and old gathered on the common and marched in quiet dignity up to the First Baptist Church. A lovely day, Palm Sunday. Many had been to church already and this was a thoughtful thing for people to do, something which, very likely, Winchester wouldn't have done before the advent and success of its Ecumenical Council and its Council for Community Action. And there were at home many others in sympathy who either had not heard of the march and service or could not attend.

But there are also many here who disapproved of it. Some had the courage to say so. Some just implied it.

"He was a trouble maker" was a not uncommon reaction. Though, to be fair, many persons until the death of Dr. King, were quite unaware of the scope and spirit of his influence and teaching.

Sure, it is more satisfying, more comfortable, to look at the flag at half mast; to march with those of like mind; to be lifted in spirit and re-directed in action by the good words from the pulpit of the Baptist Church and by the community of interest shared by the crowd which overflowed into the rooms. But . . . "he was a troublemaker." Is not the voice that persists in this, the voice we must listen to instead—the thinking we had better understand. Many well-intentioned people still believe that if things just hadn't been "stirred up" . . . if "they" had just known when "they" were well off . . . and had stayed in "their" proper place . . . in "their" less ambitious jobs . . . things would have been alright.

"I've known some very nice ones . . . but he was a trouble maker . . ."

Part of our trouble is that especially in the suburban or country areas of northern states, today's generation of adult Americans have a hard time feeling responsible for this situation. We do not see enough of the problem to have it sink in how serious it is. Or—we haven't until the past three or four years. But in these years things quiescent have become demanding and volatile. And now we must see.

No, we didn't start the trouble. And no, most of us haven't consciously perpetuated it. But while we were doing this nothing, a great, growing, undefined but monstrous thing has taken shape and become well known. The cancer imported and accepted by our slave-owning forbears—an inter-human relationship which would be intolerable to all of us at close quarters—this malignancy has spread throughout our systems. And only now do we so clearly realize that it is something which can and will destroy us.

This is a "blood, sweat and tears" situation. It needs articulation from the highest places in the strongest and most clear of terms. It cries out for dramatic teaching—of us all. It needs high powered advertising. Not just in admonition – but in the vain of helping the country's myriad but generally good citizens to understand the history of what has happened and why, we must, as the Star quoted Richard Cardinal Cushing in an August 3 editorial, see that "The need of the hour is total and all-out war on blindness and ignorance; blindness on the part of those outside the centre-city, to the hope and aspirations, ills and afflictions of those who dwell in what has been termed, 'The Other America.' "

Another related factor, over-accepted in our lives is the quality of violence which permeates life in America. "American the Violent," was the title of Saturday's editorial in the "Quincy Patriot Ledger." It was a good presentation for those of all political persuasions to read. For it pointed out that no matter whether it be Ghandi or Malcolm X, John Kennedy or Rockwell, Luther King or an extremist of any color, the violence is the same evil. It is, as H. Rap Brown so aptly put it, "as American as apple pie." It is, as anyone who turns on the radio usually knows, as popular as "Bonnie and Clyde."

Perhaps violence is not American. Perhaps it is, as it has seemed before, the freedom of the American culture which allows to show at the surface basic human characteristics which are there in all persons in any country. Perhaps America should consider itself lucky that it has had this quality surface so as to be better and more effectively dealt with. Whatever, it is just another signal that as a country we have a problem with us which will take the utmost effort of the greatest number of persons to overcome.

And shall we overcome? Or shall we be overcome by our own inadequacies? The words of the civil rights hymn were unfamiliar to a great number in the willing audience which gave it voice here on Sunday. It was the young-people in the Baptist Church who led their elders in this song, and this is prophetic, we believe, of what must happen in action. The young, idealistic, believing generation is called on now for one of the most staggering jobs in our history. Let us hope the rest of us can follow. For as the opening hymn Sunday proclaimed, in the words of James Russell Lowell, "that choice goes by forever twixt that darkness and that light."

Starred by the Star:

At Stake Right Now —
Everyone's Struggle To Be Free

Editor of the Star:

He had a dream.

And we proclaimed the eloquence with which he told us of his dream on that warm and glorious day in August, 1963, at the culmination of the march on Washington.

And we were deeply moved by his strength and his courage and his vision.

And we applauded this man when he said that a part of his dream was to see the day when his children, and all people, were judged not by the color of their skin but by the content of their character.

But though we proclaimed his eloquence, were moved by his vision, and applauded his hopes, we did not share his dream.

And so he died, and his dream died too.

But there are other dreams alive today. There is the monstrous dream that the Koerner Commission warns us is not very far down the road. This dream is the dream of many: that we are moving towards two societies, one black, one white, separate and unequal. This is monstrous, for the societies that result will not be societies at all; they will be jungles—jungles of degradation, jungles of oppression, jungles of self-destruction.

Then there is the equally monstrous and viable dream that Honkey and Whitey will be brought to their knees and that we will burn every blankety-blank thing down. This is monstrous because its master is hate, and hate has never won a lasting victory and hate can't win one now. This is a monstrous dream because it means the dreamer is consumed with hate, and to be so consumed is not to be a free person. If black America yields to the proposition that white America has taught him to hate and has made him hateful, then black America has already lost. For to be the slave of hate, no matter how valid the reasons to hate, is to be a man without a personhood. My sense of my person, and the sense of person of my family are too great, too precious to be sold or traded for the right to hate. Nobody is going to make me hate. Nobody is going to win the victory over me.

But the one who drives others to hate is no more free than the hater. For only hate of self can drive one to make another hate. What is truly at stake right now is everyones struggle to be free. In order to wage this struggle well one must keep the faith. One must keep the faith despite the fact that, today, he is most in peril of being thwarted and destroyed who would try to base his judgments and actions solely on his experiences. One must keep the faith, not because faith moves mountains, but because faith inspires thinking, and it is only if we are thinking that we can hope to come up with new and creative solutions. Perhaps to keep the faith means to pledge oneself anew to a particular commitment.

You who are young must lead your own fight for this freedom. Let me urge you to resist and defy the prejudice of your parents, elders and peers; let me urge you to develop a positive sense of self so that you won't need to exploit others, or project ones hate of self on others; let me urge you to seek out honest experiences with people who are different, experiences in breadth and variety; let me urge you to stand up in school, at home, on the bridge, at the Drop-In Center, for the simple principle of the worth and dignity of all individuals; let me urge you to make contact with and share in the life of the inner city in every way conceivable.

Just as white America doomed countless generations of black Americans to inferiority, personal degradation, and poverty, so now, black America is prepared to doom white America to the pit of distrust, contempt, and pity. So, though you are not known, you are rejected; though you are not known, you are despised. The very heavy burden on white America is to accept the reality of this and to change it. Only white America can today save white America from itself.

Contact must again be made with black America, but it must be done by changing white America. Not with tutoring programs in Roxbury; not by bringing little Negro kids to the suburbs for two weeks of instant sunshine, though these are relevant. Rather, you must, for example, confront the problem of police brutality in the cities; you must take on the real estate people . . . all in the interest, not of helping your black brothers, but in the interest of saving white America.

Much of black nationalism disturbs me deeply. But one consideration that the militant blacks repeatedly offer to whites is the following: Know your enemy. I would end this letter with those words. Know your enemy, that you may be free. Know your enemy, be he within you, be he your next door neighbor, be he your fellow parishioner. Know your enemy, that you can mount the best offensive to be free.

Bernard W. Harleston

which would connect through to Washington School) was one which probably helped put it over with a clear 104 to 46 vote.

George Barbaro, a Member not known for jumping to his feet in support of expenditures, rose to say he felt the purchase of the land adjacent to the Washington School on the basis of projection that it might be needed some day was indeed inconsistent with the stand of the Town in regards to not being willing to take homes in the Spruce-Holland Street area for the High School, which was known to be going to built.

Mr. Chapman couldn't have asked for a better opening.

"I agree," he joined with relish. "And I would like to remind you that . . ." And he went on with a pertinent recollection (one which might have caused some discomfiture to some Members) at the February, 1967, Special Town Meeting which voted to put the High School on Shore Road, the Planning Board had asked that they set it further north and take a few homes to do so in the best interest of the Town.

"For this suggestion we got eight measly votes. Eight measly votes," said the Planning Board chairman.

Moments later the Town members appropriated the $25,000 asked to buy the Alben Street lot and complete with home.

Meeting Opens

Moderator Harrison Chadwick opened the seventh session on April 4 with a prayer read after announcing the inability to attend of representatives from both Marycliff Academy and the Medical Missionaries of Mary, who had been invited together to say the invocation.

The Meeting quickly voted to accept the report of the Aberjona Watershed Committee and later to give it $5,000 to carry on its work, money which David Turnquist (who chairs both this Committee and the Conservation Commission) described as needed mostly for studies, water sampling, and preparation of documents for a river flow booster system.

Articles 20 and 21 authorizing the Committee to apply for aid and assistance to Federal and/or State agencies and to join with other towns to do so were voted quickly.

Mr. Turnquist Front and Center

In introducing these and the particulars of the booster system, Davidson Park and Mill Pond island requests, and in answers to questions along the way, Chairman Turnquist told the group these things:

—that even though heavy spring rains resulted in water conditions the summer of 1967 which precluded testing the Aberjona at its worst, the river reaches 85% on hottest days, and is always marginal in its low D quality rating by the State;

—that the Committee cannot rely on the State to enforce keeping it up even to the D rating (as legislated) as the State natural resources situation is so pressed that they have even refused to take samples when the AWC tracks down sources;

—that the AWC is working with Woburn to correct flow and identify pollution, which includes thermal pollution from sources which are putting hot water into the river; some which are polluting chemically and a few organically; plus suspected sewage leaks; and that three million gallons a day are being pumped from the river by industry;

—that the only way effectively to boost the flow is to set up, in cooperation with Woburn, two sets of wells, one up near Mishawum Lake, the other near the inter-town line, the wells to pump about two million gallons per day and thereby triple the flow rate during the worst (summer months); the first year the well system would be operated by the research program, but subsequently would cost about $3,200 a year to maintain.

—that buying the water from Woburn would cost more and that the best way is that the AWC is asking: to get the well system through one of two Federal research programs, one of which if available, would pay 100% of the $80,000 the job would cost, the other 75%; that Woburn will share costs and that the $26,800 asked is to see that lack of early aid from Woburn would not delay the project—$13,000 being the maximum expected need.

Davidson Park, Mill Pond

Going on to the Davidson Park and Mill Pond island improvements, both to be shared with the Park Department, he and Mr. Albert MacDonnell, Park chairman, told the Meeting:

—that plans call for a smaller lagoon with dredgings going to fill a larger play area to be grassed;

—that Davidson has been in a very poor state with decaying vegetation collecting and that if area odors are to be eliminated it must be cleaned;

—that the Mill Pond is in a state of erosion and that the suggested corrective plan calls for a concrete, pre-cast retaining wall with gravel fill (the top to come three inches below water level); and new fill and topping;

—that Chapter 91 Federal funds had not been requested on the Mill Pond as the last time the Town went for this, the job was "bolixed up."

The Town Meeting voted the $26,800 for the flow booster; $9,750 for the Mill Pond and $15,000 for Davidson Park, $5,000 of which would be transferred from the Park Department. These votes followed favorable recommendations throughout by the Finance Committee and Selectmen.

During the discussion Mr. Turnquist, noting "I was afraid Mr. Borggaard would ask me that," said that as to filling Winter Pond, the committee has formed a study group but has yet no good answer. And he autlined the sum of problems which relate to this area. He also said that the WHS playground area culverts and gradings have been so designed that the most recent flood would have just passed the culverts.

Weeds in Leonard

In the next order of business, Mr. Freeman asked about a weed problem at Leonard Pool "where there is good quality," which he wanted eliminated in the interests of water safety with an early season chemical treatment after which there would be a short quarantine against swimming but which was recorded not to affect plant or animal life—this treatment would add $300 to the Park Department budget and Mr. Freeman's motion to amend so requested.

Mr. MacDonnell rejected the proposition, saying his references had indicated the weed also has its good points, growing only in good water and by its depth signifying water quality deterioration; and that if the treatment was accepted he'd want a written guarantee to protect the Town against lawsuits. Board of Health Chairman Taylor felt that there should be no hazard and the treatment "offers a fairly good protection." The Meeting then voted the amendment and the amended Park budget.

John Bradley put on record at this point an exhortation to more thorough maintenance, coupled with imagination in the Park Board's area of responsibility.

Stephen Moore, Conservation Commission member, next moved to have Articles 16 and 17 asking to take the Cullen and Moss lands for a Conservation green belt removed from the table and indefinitely postponed, which was done.

Article 26, asking the Town to accept $47,332 in the "accelerated highways act" for resurfacing of Cross Street was passed after the Selectmen noted to Joseph Riga that there was not much they could do about heavy truck traffic in this area, it being legal; and to John Horn that they felt this is an instance wherein the Water and Sewer street digging for pipe cleaning and relining would precede the re-surfacing.

A motion to consider all seven Planning Board articles requesting the Town to take seven parcels of land, was followed by Mr. Chapman's introduction, emphasizing that in every case the land is for sale—that in most cases the owners had approached the Board. And he said that the $283,000 needed for all seven acquisitions includes fair market value appraisals and mutual agreements with each case.

With the aid of Richard Dutting of the Board, he then showed slides which illustrated the "continuity of planning" which the Board is aiming at and the fact that six of the requested areas directly abut existing Town properties. They are asked, he said, for these reasons:

—Article 27, 5,062 square feet of land and a home at 5 Alben Street (belonging to Pearl J. Larson) to augment lands adjoining the Washington School looking to possible expansion of that school;

—Article 29, 11,072 square feet of land and a home at 10 Marshall Road (owner Richard Merrow) to serve the same purpose for the Mystic School;

—Article 33, 7.6 acres off Johnson Road abutting the Vinson-Owen School;

—Article 32, 71,569 feet at 80 Canal Street, (owner Eastern Felt Company) to accomodate a new school if needed in that area;

—Articles 30, 8.5 acres off Grove Place (Harry Chefalo, owner); and 28, 5,540 feet at 488 Washington Street (Podgoro Iannacci) to replace park lands; —And Article 31, 10,636 feet at Winchester Place (owner Frederic Mitchell) an article designed to improve parking in the center.

"Are any of these to be taken by eminent domain?" he was asked. "No" came the quick answer.

"Mrs. Larson has been very patient," he said, turning back to a discussion of the Alben Street property and showing that by this acquisition the Town would join together the School property and land on Reservoir Street bought last year.

In ensuing discussion Mr. Chadwick informed Members that by itself the land could be used for playing areas or parking and that, in addition, it formed a link over to the Whitten land just to the north; that although there is an even greater need to acquire land without homes, this piece with a home which ultimately would be demolished and which is "a steep price to pay for land," should be moved for now; that Winchester school lands are getting down toward three acres per school and should be at nine to 10.

Opposition was voiced strongly by Frederick LaTorella of the Finance Committee who pressed Mr. Chapman on, the reasons why the Town had allowed the construction of the two new homes at the corner of Highland Avenue and Reservoir Street and was answered that poor timing entered into this problem and that the Board had to abide by decisions made by the Board of Appeal and by the Selectmen in this area.

Mr. LaTorella further chided the Planning Board, "if we have to acquire a piece of property, we should go ahead and take it...I happen to know the price on this Alben Street land is too high, and that there are a lot of repairs needed."

Robert Armstrong also opposed, pointing out that the Town is not a good landlord and that "$10 to $15 a square foot is expensive."

Before the 104 to 46 affirmative vote, Mr. Otto Schaefer reminded that each Planning article deals with land owners want to get rid of and that they are going to sell elsewhere and improvements will make costs rise. And Mr. Dexter repeated that the full amount should be on the tax rate and Mr. Leonard Mullen, counsel, stated that it does take a two-thirds vote when the Town is paying for it direct.

Mr. Chapman rose to the occasion first, saying, "If you for one minute think that this Town can live without a healthy business (community) you are much mistaken...I submit that the more you crucify the business area, the more you will weaken (the whole Town)." He asked rhetorically, if in 1955 the Town had taken the whole area behind the Police Station, then would Filenes be moving out?

Morris L. Snyder, a 38 year resident and proprietor of McLaughlin's Shoe took up the cudgels repeating, for all the merchants, the contention that people still come in from all around to shop but that they cannot find a place to park. "This piece of land is absolutely a must if you are going to keep business in Town."

Mr. Chapman answered Mr. Riga to say that about 30 to 42 cars could be accommodated. Mr. Rotondi answered him that "the exact cost of" refinishing the area for parking would be $5,000. The yes vote was unanimous.

$101,500 for Expansion

Before concluding the business of the Meeting with a 'yes' vote on Article 33, the Members voted Mr. Chapman's motion indefinitely to postpone Article 32 which asked for land on Canal Street, after the chairman said that negotiations were still open in this case.

Article 33, asking $101,500 for 7.6 acres bordering the Vinson-Owen School land to the east and north was said by Mr. Chapman already to represent to new owner Robert Johnson 12 lots. It was very necessary to the Town, he continued, to allow expansion to the school due to the very rapid rate which the area was developing.

Mr. Dexter, reporting his group "by no means happy" at the amount of money, urged acceptance saying there was no doubt of the potential expansion and putting responsibility of the high cost on "previous Town Meetings which have not acquired it earlier."

Mr. Littleton again pointed to the importance of Parkhurst and Vinson-Owen in a future accommodation of the burgeoning school population and, noting that it "may be too expensive to add" to Parkhurst due to surrounding homes and lack of land, that Vinson-Owen may therefore have to be even larger.

Mr. Rotondi asked if "we couldn't get along with half the land," and Mr. Chapman allowed that discussions might lead to some cutback in request.

The standing vote was 148 to 4 for acquisition.

Even Adjournment Contended

At this point Selectman Porter asked the Meeting to consider adjourning to Wednesday night instead of next Monday (Thursday, as a religious holiday, not being feasible) but this attempt floundered when Elizabeth Herberich asked how it could legally meet Wednesday when this did not assure enough time for Meeting Members officially to be notified and no one could answer, and was scuttled when Edward Hicks reminded Selectmen Porter that he was due at another meeting that night.

Monday night, April 15: ninth (last?) session.

THE VERSE BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD

by Frank Rowsome, Jr.

and

THE MAD OLD ADS

by Dick Sutphen

In the good old days (during the depression) while travelling by car on the roads in New Hampshire and Maine, you usually came across a series of signs that had all the kids in the car shouting and screaming at the end of them—"Burma-Shave."

What fun! Was the medium the message then? Anyone who can remember those old Burma-Shave signs will relish with nostalgia Frank Rowsome's little book. It has all of the 600 rhymes and jingles. The author traces the early development of the Burma-Shave product, how the first signs were put out on roads in Minnesota, 100 paces apart.

And what the author says is really true ". . . people soon developed favorites, reading them aloud with even more savor than the first time they were encountered. The entire carload would chant as if a litany: Beneath this stone/lies Elmer Gush/tickled to death/by his/shaving brush/Burma Shave." Or, "Henry the eighth/sure had/trouble/short term wives/long term stubble."

Reports have it that no phenomenon more reliably slowed down speeders than a set of Burma-Shave signs. This was reflected in the 1955 jingle: "Slow down Pa/sakes alive/Ma missed signs/four/and five." The signs became a familiar bit of Americana. Why, they have even appeared in Antarctica. During World War II, the U. S. Navy requested some signs to keep up the morale of the men stationed there. "The whale/put Jonah/down the hatch/but coughed him up/because he scratched."

But the day came in 1963 when the signs were taken down. Somehow they had lost their sales magic. Perhaps people were driving too fast to read them or maybe it was the super-expressways or something else. If you should go to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, you can see a typical set. And this writer saw one on a road in New Hampshire during last year's World Series games.

Have people always believed the ads they have read? Old ads do sound a bit fantastic, and, as Dick Sutphen says, "Today an individual with constipation, St. Vitus's Dance and the opium habit would have a real problem. But in the 1880's, according to the ads, all he needed was a Health Jolting Chair and Dr. Buckland's Scotch Oates Essense."

But here's a new twist that appeared in the New York Sun in the 1870's: "Tried friends the best of friends. Since the suspension of the H. C. Thorpe's advertisements, the number of deaths by consumption is truly astonishing; advertisements will now appear for the benefit of the afflicted."

That book, The Mad Old Ads, is really very you-know-what. An English ad for cook-housemaid had this warning: "Her character must be exceptional for sobriety, honesty and cleanliness. The sobriety, however, which consists in drinking deep without staggering will not do . . ."

The English can be considered far more famous for their eccentric ads than the Americans. Personal and matrimonial advertisements frequently appeared. An English paper printed one in the early 1700's when public combat between women seems to have been a routine.

"Challenge.—, Elizabeth Wilkinson of Clerkenwell, having had some words with Hannah Hyfield, requiring satisfaction, do invite her to meet me upon the stage, and box me for three guineas; each woman holding half a crown in each hand, and the first woman that drops the money to lose the battle."

"Answer.—I, Hannah Hyfield, of Newgate Market, hearing of the resoluteness of Elizabeth Wilkinson, will not fail, God willing, to give her more blows than words, desiring home blows, and from her no favor; she may expect a good thumping."

The quack electric craze and the patent medicines enlivened American newspapers. "Dr. Scott's electric curative appliances; hair brushes, cure headache in five minutes—$3.00; sleeping caps, all sizes, 30 magnet power—$3.00." And then there was the Edson electric garter and a remarkable invention—Dr. Scott's electric cigarettes—no matches required—light on the box."

Use Hop Bitters or Parker's Ginger Tonic. The Mad Old Ads is a bit of fun with illustrations—even of the old-time electric toothbrush.

Mr. Tansey Disagrees With Police — Fire Differential

Editor of the Star:

At the March 18 Town Meeting I was amazed to hear the chairman of the Personnel Board say "this year we have decided to grant the police a maximum salary of $7,800—$300 more than the fire fighters . . . a new and somewhat controversial position." My astonishment blended to incredulity when he defended the position "that disparity should be initiated for national and area police trends are leaning in that direction—that the total demand on the police officer in making arrests, court appearances, individual decisions on the beat clearly justify this conclusion."

A week later I read in the Star additional spacious arguments in the same direction. The editor of the local paper concluded "though the nation's fire fighters may be approaching a revolution the nation's police are already facing an entirely different situation—that changes not dramatic but multiple have so altered their jobs as to disqualify the criterion of traditional equality." The editorial continued in a burst of spontaneous local philosophy that "police must cope with the juvenile problem, must be sociologists, psychologists and even drug experts." And in a summation which still has me puzzled the article concluded on "the Personnel Board's step appears to be a responsible one in line with the main tenets of this year's President's Crime Commission and of the Governor's Committee on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice." This last statement, which contains little relevance to the local dispute, reminds me of Henderson, the Texas rancher who decided to enlarge his holdings by merging with Kempleton, Hosmer, and Hentvall as partners. Later on when a buyer desired to look over the stock the rancher replied, "They have passed on. Died from the branding."

Before I list some arguments for parity I would like to point out that it is not my purpose to object to increases in pay for the police department. This is a well-organized and capable group which is clearly entitled to an advance in pay. What I do disagree with is the policy established and its effects—the creation of a disruptive differential in pay which pits one department against the other, which has already impaired the spirit of cooperation and harmony that has traditionally existed between the police and fire departments in this town.

For years we have heard personnel boards in Winchester discuss the 18 comparable towns and cities and take a median position on salaries and working conditions from this base. We read the Charles Evans Associates report of 1965 in which a total study evaluation of all jobs represented the basis for assuming that parity of salary between fire and police should be continued. Then in 1968 we witness an amazing turn of events—a complete departure from the traditional comparison with the 18 comparable towns and cities, a position entirely inconsistent with former practices. I do not have information concerning salary trends in these 18 towns and cities but will wager that 80% of these communities have not created any disparity of pay between the fire and police this year. Why was this common bargaining ground ignored?

Job evaluation is extremely difficult when one examines fire services. If the claimed purpose of job evaluation is to find out exactly what each job is and to measure its true value in relation to all other jobs how can one arrive at the term "a true value in relation?" The requirements to qualify and hold a position in the fire department are so distinctively different from other positions that the most scientifically diagnosed method of job comparison would not substantially prove satisfactory. What points would one award to hazards? to responsibility? to experience?

What about hours of duty? Fire department employees are on duty some 300-400 more additional hours annually than police personnel. If this were figured on an hourly basis these could amount to a substantial differential in favor of police. When general employees were reduced to 40 hours and police were also reduced the town reluctantly reduced the 56 hour week to 48 for the firefighters. But one suggests that fire fighters sleep some portion of these 48 hours. Certainly fire fighters sleep while on the alert but on many nights they are called to rescue, to fight fires, to respond to false alarms. And each response requires hours of work in drying hose and getting equipment ready for the next run. The old days when a fire fighter sat in a rocker waiting all night for an alarm are gone. He needs sleep to perform at top efficiency. A turn out coat, boots and oxygen mask will weigh over 80 pounds. He hauls heavy hose up aerial ladders and is expected to carry stricken people to safety. If he doesn't get his sleep he won't last long under these conditions.

We hear the words "individual judgment" and "different skills" being used. Fire fighting always called for quick decisions. A fire fighter must have a practical knowledge of electricity and electronics, must be able to handle problems connected with water and electronics. In handling an aerial ladder, a pumper, snorkel and boat equipment he must exercise good judgment where seconds means lives. The complexities and responsibilities of the fire fighter have increased enormously in recent years. Today fire fighters face the possibility of nuclear materials in a fire, in a laboratory and face the same problem in industrial, hospital and warehouse fires as well as fires in accidents, planes, trains as they transit communities.

I didn't hear the personnel board mention hazards. If the board desired to justify the disparity of $300 why wasn't this subject mentioned? I remember quite a few hazards: toxic gases, building collapse, hernias, heart attacks, respiratory diseases, smoke inhalation, falls, burns, electric shock and chemical poisoning.

But why continue? We use the same educational and physical requirements when recruiting candidates; the examinations and testing procedures are practically the same. How can you draw a salary differential and separate the two departments on the basis of quality as a measure? And the Chief of the Fire Department? We make him a second-class citizen by reducing him $500 under the Chief of Police and then ask him to agree with this reasoning: "We realize you handle approximately the same number of men as the other department, that both operating budgets are practically identical, that you are responsible for the maintenance of expensive equipment and the training of raw personnel. But a start must be made and we now declare disparity!" And all of this in the face of an established fact—that with rare exceptions towns and cities throughout this country have visualized the disastrous effects that a wage disparity between fire and police departments can bring and have maintained equality of wages.

When this contract is negotiated next fall I hope the Good Lord will spare me the time to hear the fire fighters answer to this classic decision. It should be an interesting debate.

Yours truly,
J. Joseph Tansey

Registration Advertisement Is Protested

Editor of the Star:

As a registered Republican voter of Winchester I am compelled to protest the advertisement on Page 1 of March 28's Star urging Republicans to change their party designation before the April 30 primary enabling them to vote for Senator McCarthy on the Democratic ballot. Any candidate's name can be written in on a Republican primary ballot regardless of party designation by sticker or write-in techniques.

My protest is based on the wording of this advertisement which implies that only Democrats and Independents can vote for Senator McCarthy.

It is with deep concern that I note that neither the Republican Town Committee nor any other Republican organization foresaw the possibility of an attempt to mislead the registered Republican voters in view of the significant New Hampshire primary.

One should expect some clarification of the techniques of primary voting to be forthcoming from an authoritative source before April 30.

Our Legacy: "House for Sale"

Editor of the Star:

Shortsightedness triumphs again!

And only by two votes, according to last week's Star. That's all it took to deny our children and grandchildren a "green belt" across the top of the West Side Hill. Lexington was farsighted enough to preserve trees, flowers, brooks, and other signs of nature on their side of the line; we'll only have "House for Sale" signs on ours.

Let's hope we do better with Articles 16, 17, and 18. Let's not sell out again to that old cure-all for all tax woes, "broaden the tax base." Sure, developing every possible piece of land instead of conserving some of it does give more tax dollars—but don't forget the added burden on schools, roads, fire and police, sewers, and so on.

I'm willing to give up some of that pie-in-the-sky "tax base" in return for green grass, white birches and blue water that we and our descendents can enjoy. Or is it better that we leave generations to come only a legacy of endless asphalt roofing and aluminum siding?

Sincerely,
Ronald Clayotn

Thives Enter Home, Office

Two breaks occurred in Winchester during the past week.

On the morning of April 5 a Main Street firm reported to police the theft of $150 from a petty cash box. Entry was apparently gained to a second-floor office by using a painter's ladder leading to the roof, breaking a pane of glass to enter a hallway, and forcing a night latch from the office door frame.

During the afternoon of April 7 police were summoned to the home of residents who were out of town by a son checking the property. They found that one or more intruders went through drawers in bureaus, dressers, and desks in the living room, dining room, den, and bedrooms as well as the kitchen cabinets. A listing of missing property is incomplete. Entry was made by breaking a pane of glass in a front door.

Police are investigating both incidents.

Arts Center

Richardson, Jr., of 11 Ledgewood Road. Ralph W. Hatch of 2 Meadowcroft Road is serving as treasurer.

The Center will provide gallery space for exhibitions, meeting rooms, studios, rehearsal halls, workshops, and classrooms. It will be used by the Art Association and other Winchester organizations devoted to the arts as a place in which to give lessons in arts, crafts, music, and in other creative fields to young people and to adults.

The project has been nurtured through its formative stages by General Chairman Arthur S. Govoni of 16 Myopia Road, H. Rushton Harwood, Jr., of 30 Ledgewood Road, and Raymond N. Watts, Jr. of 4 Mayflower Road. A board of governors, nine strong, will assume day-to-day management and administration of the Center.

Initially, the nucleus of the program will be formed by Art Association activities. Regular meetings and shows will be held in the Center. However, as the Center's activities expand, and it is joined by other groups, new programs will be developed in music, ballet, theater, ceramics, photography and other media.

To make this possible, the support of the townspeople is being sought. A Special Gifts Committee is seeking substantial contributions; the Art Association is gathering donations from its membership. In addition, a town-wide canvass is being planned.

The Special Gifts Committee, under the chairmanship of Doctors Victoria M. and Leo J. Cass of 4 Myopia Hill Road, is currently taking the first steps in development of the capital required for purchase and renovation of the building. Those concerned with the creative arts are being encouraged strongly to make significant gifts to ensure the success of this most vital first phase. Any member of the Special Gifts Committee may be contacted for further details. Mr. Govoni is acting as assistant chairman of this activity during the period of Dr. Leo Cass' illness.

Separate fund raising activities are underway to meet the financial needs of the first year's operation. Among these are the June Champagne Ball announced in the April 4th Star, a silent auction to be held in the fall, and the current raffle of donated paintings.

The paintings to be raffled are "Early Snow," a watercolor by Joseph L. C. Santoro of Watertown and "Down East," an oil by George Carpenter of Ogunquit, Maine. Both were given to the Association by the artists to further the endeavor to establish an Arts Center in Winchester. The drawing will be held at the Art Association's annual Sidewalk Show, June 8th at Manchester Field.

The paintings have been on display at Purity Sav-more's Converse Market and Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nurseries. Next weekend they may be seen at the same locations; other Winchester stores will show them on subsequent weekends until June 8th.

The Special Gifts Committee, already at work includes: Frank T. Barnes, Jr., Mrs. Bradford M. Bentley, Allan T. Buros, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Cirace, Mr. and Mrs. David L. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Connor, Mrs. John J. Donahue, Mrs. H. Rushton Harwood, Jr., Mrs. Clarence S. Luitwieler, Jr., Mrs. Michael V. MacKenzie, Mrs. John D. MacLeod, Mrs. George A. Marks, Mrs. Robert W. Reynolds, Mrs. J. Warren Shoemaker, Mrs. Ralph M. Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Tunnicliffe, J. Henry Van Dyke, and Mrs. Rogers G. Welles.

Arrest

marks on his arm and nearby saw a pipe with what appeared to be marijuana encrusted on the sides.

The pipe led police to obtain a search warrant. Officers later found pills, capsules, and green herbs in the boy's bedroom which were then analyzed by the Food and Drug Laboratories. The herbs were found to be marijuana, which is classified as a narcotic, and the pills and capsules contained derivatives of amphetamine and barbituric acid, which are labelled as harmful drugs.

Mrs. Megna Seeks Committeewoman Post as Anti-War Candidate

Jacqueline A. Megna, secretary of the Cambridge Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action, recently announced her candidacy for the office of Democratic State Committee-Woman of the 6th Middlesex Senatorial District, including Arlington, Winchester, and wards 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 in Medford.

Jacqueline Megna lives with her husband, Vincent Megna, staff engineer at MIT Instrumentation Laboratory, and their two children at 20 Teresa Circle in Arlington. Aside from her activities in community and civic affairs, Mrs. Megna is also a playwright. She has had several plays produced by the Theater Company of Boston and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Mrs. Megna has stated that her candidacy is a response to the failure of politics as it is practiced on the local level in Massachusetts today. There is no large organized political force in the 6th Middlesex Senatorial District, operating within the party apparatus, which adequately represents the views of those committed to the ideas and ideals espoused by Senator Eugene McCarthy and Senator Robert Kennedy.

Mrs. Cusack's Second Book Wins Praise

As Marion Rudkin reviewed today's best-selling books at The Fortnightly recently, she highly appraised a new book by Betty Bugbee Cusack entitled "Collector's Luck—Giant Steps Into Pre-history" to be in the many bookshops by July.

Like the Winchester author's first book of a year ago, "Collector's Luck—A Thousand Years at Lewis Bay, Cape Cod," her second book has been written partly in response to desires to show fun, fact, and knowledgeable background in research and experience in the realm of the pre-historic.

For generations there has been much in the way of explorations and time-honored methods of interpreting finds of the prehistoric in our country, and it is here in the author's newest book that a splendid compilation of pictures and scientific descriptions have been illustrated. The review of the foreword has been written by Dr. Maurice Robbins, founder of the Massachusetts Archeology Society and director of the Bronson Museum in Attleboro. All through the book it is evident that the author has been surrounded by specialists in all branches of the study of archeology.

Mrs. Porreca Announces As Committeewoman

Mrs. Marilyn Catino Porreca of Medford today announced that she is a candidate for Democratic State Committeewoman in the Sixth Senatorial District, including Winchester.

The daughter of Representative Michael and Rena (McGlynn) Catino, was educated in Medford Public Schools, and earned a bachelor of science degree from Boston University's College of Business Administration in 1953.

A mother of three sons and three daughters, and a Notary Public appointed in 1963 by Governor Endicott Peabody, the candidate is active in a variety of civic, social and charitable organizations in addition to her political efforts.

President of the B.U. Alumni Club, and a member of the Board of Directors of the B.U. Alumni Association, Mrs. Porreca is a 15-year elected member of the Medford Democratic Ward and City Committee. She is also vice president of the Medford Democratic Womens Club of which she is a charter member.

During the State Democratic conventions in 1958-1962 and 1964, she was elected to serve as a delegate. At the 1962 convention in Springfield she delivered the seconding speech for Edward M. Kennedy in his bid to the U.S. Senate.

Widely known in the several communities for her volunteer work in fund raising drives as a neighborhood fund solicitor, Mrs. Porreca is a member of the Board of Directors of the St. James Womens Guild.

Mrs. Porreca, her husband, Gino F. Porreca, and their family reside at 10 Maverick Street, Medford.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

President Coolidge once said: "Insurance is the contributions of the many to care for the misfortunes of a few." Best of all, it is a private enterprise transaction, where you have considerable choice, rather than having to "pass the hat" in sympathy and charity, or having the government force you to contribute through taxes.

And while the number and size of losses are fairly predictable, no one can say just which people will need help. At any time, you can become one of the "few," rather than one of the many.

Naturally, if you were sure that you would never have a loss, you would never buy insurance. It is equally true that if the companies we represent were sure you would have a loss the same month you bought a policy, they would never sell it to you. But life is never that certain. As a result, Insurance is a modern necessity. It removes a great deal of the risks involved in owning property and in daily living.

One major thing is sure: The Program of Protection can be designed for YOU! May we explain this to you more fully?

Compulsory Auto Checks Begin

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin recently announced that spring motor vehicle and trailer inspections began April 1 and will continue through May 15.

"We have just been through a long hard winter—tough on motor vehicles—so, for safety's sake—have your checkup made early. Don't let the April 1 date fool you if you aren't registered on that date. The law applies to all such vehicles registered and operated in Massachusetts at any time during the inspection period from April 1 through May 15," McLaughlin said. "Failure to comply with the compulsory inspection will leave authorities no choice but to prosecute owners or persons in control of motor vehicles not displaying the white sticker after May 15."

The Registrar has set up a system of spot checking the 3500 official stations and 10,000 adjusters to weed out stations which are violating the law by not conducting a proper inspection.

The Registrar also directed attention to the seriousness of being involved in the illegal use or procurement of official inspection stickers. Fraudulent use or possession or illegal affixing to motor vehicles or trailers or any other improper act concerning inspection stickers will result in prosecution and immediate action by the Registrar.

Lions Club Gives For Eye Research

Winchester's Lions Club has received a note of thanks from the district coordinator of eye research activities, Edward P. Scott, for its contribution of $550 to the Massachusetts Lions Eye Research Fund, Inc., for the year 1967-68.

During a fall collection, State Lions Club groups collected close to a quarter of a million dollars to aid in eye research and sight conservation.

Family Wishes

AT OUR establishment we do not try to follow a rigid pattern in the funeral service. We are well aware that these are times of flux and that dignity and good taste are not necessarily confined to prescribed formal standards of etiquette. We will outline what is usual and customary, but in all details the family has the final word, for we believe that the funeral service should reflect their wishes. As the years roll by, it is they who will remember.

Thursday the Massachusetts group will arise early for a Capitol Hill breakfast with Senator Edward Brooke and his staff. From the Capitol they go to the airport to return to Boston on the 11:45 a.m. plane.

They will appear on the "New Hampshire Bandstand," April 13th at 11:30 a.m. and later in the day will appear in Plymouth, New Hampshire. Prior to this, they appeared on March 23rd.

Since winning the battle a year ago, the group has played at the Commodore in Lowell, "Where It's At" in Boston, "Westford Academy" in Westford through station WMEX. They also appear at many of the local colleges, Tufts, B.U., N.U. and M.I.T.

The group consists of a lead singer, Steve Ottariano, a student at Northeastern, studying pharmacy; Eric O'Brien, bass guitar, a student at Somerville High; Dave Covino, organist, a student at Austin Preparatory in Reading; drummer, Joe Bonasera, a student and football star at Winchester High, who will be entering college next year in a pre-med course.

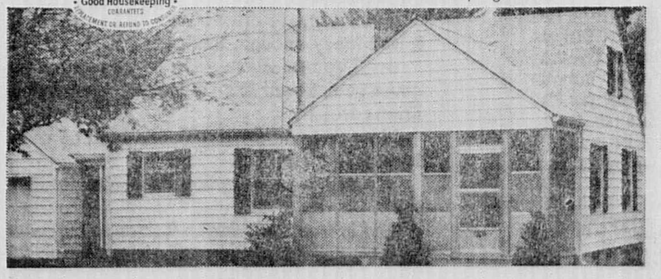
Geon VINYLS
These two homes are done in our warm, soft-white tone — not the cold, unappealing antiseptic white you see so often in other sidings. Living Vinyl Siding is made of famous B.F. Goodrich "Geon" vinyl that is forty times thicker than a painted surface. It is virtually indestructible because it is solid color all the way through!

Our T-LOK siding has been awarded the Good Housekeeping Seal.



First you'll have to mail us the coupon at the bottom of the advertisement so we can put aside a set for you.

Then you'll have to let our man deliver the set, and at the same time show you what Living Vinyl Siding will do for your home.

That's all.

You don't have to buy a thing.

Of course, there's always the chance you'll go crazy over Living Vinyl, and in that case we'd just love to take your order.

Fair enough?

NOW, READ ABOUT THE MOST AMAZING SIDING THAT WAS EVER INVENTED

Can any siding do all these things for your home?

Living Vinyl Siding can — and does! Because it's solid vinyl, and nothing else!

It never, never, never needs to be painted. It won't dent, blister, flake, peel, warp, corrode, rot or stain. It won't freeze or support fire. It won't attract termites or lightening. And the price is fantastically low compared to the cost of painting, and repainting and scraping and sanding and repairs, and more repainting. From the day we install it on your home you can forget it. You can even take up to seven years to pay for it. Not even a penny down. We'll attend to everything.

Parents, Teachers, Students Vie For Show Honors

"Swingers and Squares" was a real success from the entertainment and financial aspects as presented by the Parent-Faculty Association of Winchester High School Saturday night.

The three-part program started with a one-act play "Homework," in which a cast of parents and teachers gave their impression of a typical suburban household in those long hours after school and before supper.

The students then had their chance to get even. In a series of skits entitled "Charismas, Inc." they showed a few of the ways that they are "bugged" by their parents.

Music and dancing for both generations were provided in the final part of the show, the "Raccoon Ramble." A five-piece band played many favorites of the thirties, such as Cherokee, Stardust, the Dipsy Doodle, and others. Earplugs were at a premium as a student group countered with such modern offerings Foxy Lady and Good's Gone. Also featured were Charleston dancers, crooners, folk singers, jitterbugs, hillbilly singers.

The Volkswagen for people who refuse to drive Volkswagens.
© VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.
If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it's ugly, we can't help you.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you have eight kids and it isn't big enough, you have our sympathy.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it isn't fancy enough, that's for you to decide.

But if you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you're used to an automatic transmission, listen carefully.

Now you can drive a Volkswagen all over town without shifting.

We call this new option the automatic stick shift.

And in true Volkswagen fashion, a bug with an automatic stick shift will deliver up to 25 miles on a gallon of gas, use very little oil, and nary a drop of water or antifreeze.

But just because we've made it easy to drive, doesn't mean we're about to make it any prettier, or any bigger, or any fancier. So we imagine some people will still refuse to drive Volkswagens.

You can't win them all.

Cancer Crusade Names Chairman

Edward J. Sweeney, of Somerville, will serve as 1968 Cancer Crusade Area Chairman in Burlington, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn, it was announced recently by Robert P. Fitzgerald, ctate chairman of the April Cancer Crusade in Massachusetts.

In announcing the chairman's appointment, Mr. Fitzgerald said, "We realize that in the past the public has been more than generous. Massachusetts has traditionally been among the leaders in total contributions among the 50 states. But few people are aware that nearly a million dollars more than the $1,415,000 raised in Massachusetts last year returned to the Bay State in American Cancer Society research grants. I am confident that the 95,000 Massachusetts volunteer crusaders will accomplish their goal of raising $1,500,000 in Massachusetts."

The Cancer Crusade is conducted annually throughout the nation, seeking support of cancer research, public and professional education, and service to needy cancer patients. Congress has officially designated April as Cancer Control Month, and the Crusade will reach a climax on April 23, when local volunteers will canvass their neighborhoods. They will provide information about cancer's seven warning signals and give householders an opportunity to help the Society's three-faceted program of research, education and service.

Mr. Stafford Asks Planning Board Consider "Village in the Sky"

Editor of the Star:

The following is a part of a letter which I sent to the Planning Board in response to their request for comments on Winchester's need for more apartments:

March 24, 1968

The Planning Board
Winchester, Mass.

Gentlemen.

You have invited correspondence concerning thoughts of town residents as "Do we need more apartments?"

It would seem that the first place to start such discussion would be in calling attention to the wide variety of housing units which might be called "apartments."

As real estate brokers constantly beseiged by people who want "rentals" we face several truisms: 1) It is almost impossible—on any given date—to find an acceptable rental available in the Town of Winchester. 2) A large majority of the people who are looking are not looking, in particular, for this Town and have a very low monthly rental figure in mind. 3) Many of them could pay the price necessary if accommodations could be found but would not add to the over-all calibre of the present population of the Town and would not contribute greatly to the volume in the local stores or to the intellectual atmosphere.

To build more "apartments" which could profitably be rented to these people might make good sense to a developer but could be subject to considerable afterthought and second guessing—such as we have experienced in the past.

There is a completely different concept of "apartments" which might, in my opinion, be the one available answer to many of the problems of the Town.

If we can get a responsible developer to cooperate in building a "Village in the Sky" we can benefit immeasurably in many ways.

This is a luxury apartment—a mordernized and decommercialized and expanded version of the Longwood Towers and the Charles River Park. It offers amenities and aesthetics which appeal to the top-notch clientele who know that their wants and needs will be provided by a gracious host-guest management and are willing, able, and ready to pay the necessary cost.

It will provide limousine service on regular schedule to the Town center, to the hospital, to the library, to church, etc. It will provide different room arrangements to cater to the needs of different type family groups—big living rooms for the elderly who want to get away from the problems of big old houses but don't want to leave their furniture, town houses for those who insist on their own rosebeds, more compact units for young couples "just starting out," two or three (or more) bedrooms for professional nomads who can pay but simply aren't settled enough to buy.

These different types of units might well be in different buildings so that sort of an age interest grouping might grow naturally.

They might be served by a common dining room and also have commonly available reading rooms, reception rooms, card rooms, sauna baths, exercise rooms, etc. which will create an air of socialization. These buildings will be surrounded by acres of woods, lawns, and gardens, which are professionally planned and tended.

Such a complex might, very well, be the only feasible answer to many of the problems facing the Town of Winchester.

Benefits will be:

1. Tax rise control. (of course the most outstanding and important)

2. Aid in upholding the "image" of the Town.

3. Aid in attracting more desirable people to the Town.

4. Upgrading, throughout the Town, of older properties and neighborhoods.

5. A definite check to the (otherwise inevitable) loss of desirability and value of present properties within the Town.

(Ed. note: At this point Mr. Stafford's letter went into explanation of the thinking behind each of the five above points.)

The "Village in the Sky" concept of apartments will relieve the tax burden painlessly to an extent which, with a little research, could be very well predicted in dollars per thousand.

At the same time it will make a contribution to the image, desirability, and value of the Town and each piece of property in it while serving a very definite need.

No other suitable answer has come to my attention.

The above was written, after much thought, and with complete sincerity. I will appreciate any comments or questions.

Sincerely,
Norman S. Stafford
15 Ridgefield Road

"They Desperately Need Tools"

Editor of the Star:

We are writing this letter to the Star to ask the citizens of Winchester if they would please help us in the Just-a-Start program.

Just-a-Start is concerned with the rehabilitation of the South End of Boston. To clean up the South End they desperately need tools, such as hammers, sledge hammers, crowbars, and shovels, work gloves and trash cans. They have tried to buy these tools through the City of Boston, with what little money they have, but the program's requests have either been denied or put away to be filled at a much later date. We need the tools now, so please, if you can even donate an old hammer or beat up trashcan it will be greatly appreciated.

In order to save you trouble, we can pick the tools up at your house. If you have anything to donate will you please call 729-6217 or 729-3865 and give us your name and address.

Thany you very much,
Janet Harris

Town Meeting: "We Wrestled With a Gnat"

Editor of the Star:

I used to be a Charlie Adams fan; those famous cartoons of his were just astringent enough to tickle my perverted and distorted sense of humor. For instance, the one with the kids playing in the sand at the beach—all the kids but one are making castles out of sand. He alone, is doing something different; he is making a cemetery with grave stones in it. And the other one, with the whole audience at a movie crying their heads off, tears running down their cheeks; while, right in the middle of the group this one guy is laughing his head off, head thrown back and mouth wide open—really making with a guffaw. Well, to each his own, even in matters of humor.

I was thinking of this last night at Town Meeting. Talk about "straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel," well this is the way Town Meetings go. When it came to the matter of the biggest camel of them all, the largest single expenditure the Town has ever made, we swallowed it in one gulp—the proponents were given, in all, some two hours to state their case; the opponents, on the other hand, were cut down by the bell in five minutes. There were not very many of us, either, as it turned out. Who, in his right mind, would voluntarily face that avalanche, that stampede? Well, I am glad I did; let me not be blamed, some day, if it turns out that there is water to the ceiling of the cellar.

Speaking of camels, someone once defined a camel as an animal put together by a Committee.

Last night, on the other hand, we wrestled with a gnat and it strained us badly to get it down. We spent a long, long time trying to save a few measly dollars on hot luncheons for the kids. All I could think of was Charlie Adams and what he could have done with a situation like this one; kids sitting in their air-conditioned, picture windowed classrooms with their little bellies rumbling from hunger. Even one kid hungry, in such a setting—Oh Charlie, where art thou when we really needest thee?

Oh education, Oh schools! Oh learning! What follies are committed in thy name?

Sincerely,
C. S. Borggaard
22 Franklin Road

Make It a Big $15,705 for En Ka!

Editor of the Star:

The En Ka Society wishes to clarify one part of the Star article of April 4 in which it was reported that En Ka "had this year donated to local causes a record $7335."

The amount of $7335 reported was the sum of money which had been given since En Ka's last meeting in January, not what had been given for a 12 month period. The En Ka Society meets four times during its operating year: in October, January, March and June. While publicity is given to gifts approved at each of these meetings, it is following the Society's annual meeting in June that the total amount granted for the year is announced. You may be interested to know that gifts voted through En Ka's March meeting, i.e. those approved at the October, January and March meetings, total $15,705.

Museum Classes Attract Children

A class where attendance is never taken and children come because they want to...Sounds unlikely, but it may be found tucked beneath the marble halls of the Museum of Fine Arts.

The museum's Children's Room opens its doors to a throng of enthusiastic youngsters in grades 1 to 6 four times a week. No registration is required and all classes and materials are free.

Each year 3000 children participate in the program; half of them make up an army of regulars who come back each week, year after year.

Creative work related to the topics discussed encourages the children to use their imaginations. When the program called for the children to paint seascapes, they were given orange, pink, yellow and purple paint, but not blue.

The Children's Room schedule is: Tuesdays, grades 1 and 2; Wednesdays, grades 3 and 4; and Fridays and Saturdays, children in grades 1 through 6 who did not attend classes during the week. Sessions are held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and 10:15 to 11:45 a.m. and 1:30 to 3 p.m. Saturdays, September through May.

No advance registration is necessary, but capacity is limited to 35 children. Free admission tickets are available 15 minutes before each weekday class and five minutes before each Sunday class.

Coins Club

The annual auction of the Middlesex Coin Club will be held on April 25, at the I.O.O.F. Hall, 351 Main Street, Wakefield, at 8 p.m. along with the regular monthly events.

Cynthia Barone Outlines GOP In Campaign Talk

"The actual scope of the Republican State Committee seems to be generally not very clear in the minds of most lay people," said Cynthia L. Barone, vice chairman of the Winchester Republican Town Committee, and candidate for this position. "It is not at all complex but in order that voters may accurately evaluate a candidate's qualifications for the position, I will attempt to explain just what is the function of the State group.

CYNTHIA L. BARONE

"The State Committee person acts as a simple liaison between the State Committee and the Town Committees in the district (Medford, Arlington and Winchester), the members attend the local Committee meetings, act as advisors and, when necessary, take the town problems back to the State Committee for consideration," explained Mrs. Barone. "Because the members are supposed to be constantly on the watch for vigorous new candidates, they should be familiar with their district. For several years, I, personally, have been visiting the three Town Committees and feel I know their members.

"The State Committee members are not 'shining stars' but must be willing to do lowly tasks such as promoting voter registration, helping with headquarters, etc., and a common touch and friendliness with people from all walks of life is necessary to maintain good communications with the Committee people. You know, in Winchester, that I have been doing these things year after year and can continue to do them if elected.

The work does not involve great national or state policy making! It does not select the presidential candidates! It is just plain hard Committee work at the state level," said Cynthia Barone, "such as I have been doing at the town level for many years.

"I would like to work with Young Republicans and Older Republicans, Women Republicans and Men Republicans and help to unite ALL REPUBLICANS in District Six to work together for the good of the Republican Party!"

These statements were made in Winchester at a recent Coffee Hour for Mrs. Barone at the home of Mrs. H. Rushton Harwood, Jr., of Ledgewood Road. A member of the local Republican Town Committee noted that a large and significant percent of the Winchester Committee are behind Mrs. Barone's candidacy. She is known in all precincts of Winchester as one of the most active and effective Republicans, a reputation earned over a continuous period of years.

Dr. William D. Barone, husband of the candidate, is also known in Republican circles, having recently received an award by the oldest Republican Club in the country for "the one who has done the most for the Middlesex Republican Club during the past year."

"Initiating new Republican ideas to win friends for the party" constantly are a challenge to Cynthia Barone, and her record just in Winchester alone, for organizing and promoting important and unusual affairs, speak for her here and may be quoted in her favor in Arlington and Medford as well. Winchester still remembers the "Appreciation Party for Leon Smith" (Sexton f the First Congregational Church), the book NAVY'S JOE BELLINO written and published by Mrs. Barone in honor of a local Annapolis star, and the tremendous VOLPE RECEPTION for Winchester's first family which was initiated and headed by Cynthia L. Barone. It was the Barones too who introduced Edward W. Brooke to Winchester in 1960 and worked untiringly for him every year since that time. Hhe Primaries Election will be on April 30th.

Heart Fund Thanks Town

Appreciation of support given by residents of Winchester to the recent Heart Fund drive was expressed this week by Mrs. W. Gerald Austen, of 41 Myopia Road, and Robert J. Costello, of 179 Washington Street, local general community co-chairmen.

"The generous response from so many people in Winchester is dramatic evidence that they understand the seriousness of the heart problem," the local leader said. "It also demonstrates their strong conviction that the Heart Association's program of research, education, and community service is the most effective way to combat and eventually to control this leading health. menace."

Thanks to the many volunteers who responded, in addition, with contributions of time and effort was also expressed by the local leaders.

Other leaders in the local Heart Fund were: Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Neill, special gifts co-chairmen; J. Henry Van Dyke, Heart Sunday chairman; Charles W. Butler, treasurer; Lewis B. Snow, general business chairman; Albert S. Hovannesian, industrial chairman; and Mrs. Robert Costello, Mrs. John Doherty, Mrs. George Thompson, Mrs. Walter Johnson, and Mrs. Lewis B. Spring Show For Mrs. O'Malley In Cambridge

"The Color of Spring" an exhibition of paintings of nature by Elizabeth O'Malley is being presented by the Painting Box Gallery of Wellesley, continuing to April 20th.

Mrs. O'Malley, who lives here at 14 Emerson Road acquired her art training at the School of the Museum of Fine Art in Portland, Maine and the School of Practical Art in Boston as well as through private study with such well-known artist-teachers as Willard Cummings, King Coffin, George Dergalis and Carl Nelson.

Mrs. O'Malley has been a free lance commercial artist, illustrated fashion and text books and taught art. She continues to return to Maine to paint, often living in a tent, in order to recreate the wonders of nature which she loves so deeply. The O'Malley family, her engineer husband and two grown children have built their own houses, one in Penobscot Bay in Maine and one in Winchester where they now reside.

Tufts University Department of Fine Arts gave her a "One Man" show in 1966 as did the Canton Art Association in 1967. Her paintings have been conspicuous in the group shows of the Copley Society of Boston, Jordan Marsh Shows, South Shore and North Shore Arts Festivals, New Bedford National Show, Springfield Museum, Cambridge and Winchester Art Associations and the Institute of Contemporary Art Rental Shows. She is frequently called upon to act as judge in art competitions and exhibits. Her paintings are in the collections of Tufts University, Portland Museum, Techbuilt and in many private collections.

Elizabeth O'Malley's semi-abstract lyrical approach to form through a delicately assured use of color and line has become recognized and appreciated as the expression of an unusually sensitive personality. The paintings in this exhibit attest to her scope and depth and versatility as an artist.

Nurses Seek Legislation

The public is in danger of receiving unqualified nursing services, registered nurses told members of the State Administration Committee at recent public hearings, on House Bill No. 895, filed by the Massachusetts Nurses Association. This testimony, witnessed by hundreds of R.N.'s and students of professional nursing, was presented in Gardner Auditorium at the State House by spokesmen for the nurses' professional association.

The nureses' legislation, sponsored by Representative Paul C. Menton of Watertown and Representative Mary B. Newman of Cambridge, asks for a more clearly defined mandatory licensure law so that no one may practice professional or practical nursing without being duly licensed by the State Board of Registration in Nursing; it also asks for examination of nurses coming to this state from foreign schools of nursing, which may or may not meet the qualifications required of our own schools of nursing.

It only takes a day to live it up but years to live it down.

Wellesley Club Selects Speakers For 'Mornings'

A program of lectures that promises to interest a large audience has been selected for the 1968 "Winchester Mornings" which will take place on September 26, October 10, and 24. This lecture series will include lectures on theatre, education, and current events.

Sponsored by the Winchester Wellesley Club, the "Mornings" are in their 21st year. The lectures will be given in Hadley Hall of the Church of the Epiphany on the three Thursday mornings.

Members of the sponsoring club will be selling subscriptions by telephone starting on Monday, April 22. The ticket chairman is Mrs. Robert Mirak, of 12 Plato Terrace, who can be contacted for extra tickets. Mrs. Vivian Wheeler, president, Mrs. George Vrotsos, vice president, and Mrs. Kenneth Hudson, "Mornings" chairman, are other members of the board helping to plan the lecture series.

Opening the series will be Robert Chapman, director of the Loeb Drama Center and English lecturer at Harvard University. He will speak on the "Active and the Passive Theatre" trying to distinguish the traditional theatre from what has started to happen in the last 10 years.

In the years after World War II Mr. Chapman taught at Princeton and then at the University of California at Berkeley. During these years he directed plays and then briefly became involved with the commercial theatre. Disenchanted, however, with the commercial theater, he returned to academia at Harvard.

The second speaker will be Ruth Adams, president of Wellesley College. A specialist in Victorian literature, Miss Adams taught at the University of Rochester and at Dougass College. As a scholar she has spent a year gathering material for a biographical study of the 19th century philanthropist, Angela Burdett Coutts. As an administrator she has been headmistress at Radcliffe and has held the chief administrative position at Douglass College.

The third and final speaker is Geoffrey Godsell, overseas news editor for the "Christian Science Monitor." This will be Mr. Godsell's fourth lecture in Winchester. Previous subscribers may recall his analysis of the political situation in Latin America, his talk on China, and his penetrating comments on Southeast Asia.

Born in England, Mr. Godsell has served in the Royal Navy and later worked as a news correspondent for the BBC covering the UN General Assembly, then in Paris and New York, and later in the Middle East. In Cairo he joined the "Christian Science Monitor" and subsequently came to Boston.

A coffee hour precedes each lecture which all are welcome to attend. Proceeds are given to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and to Wellesley College.

IRS Explains Retirement Plans For Self-Employed

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1967 self-employed persons who elect to be covered by a qualified retirement plan will be permitted increased deductions on their Federal income tax returns, William E. Williams, District Director of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts said recently.

A self-employed person may contribute to a qualified retirement plan up to 10 percent of his earned income, but not more than $2,500. For 1968 the entire allowable contribution is deductible instead of only half as was the case for 1967.

The self employed taxpayer generally may treat his entire share of net profit from his trade or business as earned income. This applies even though both services and capital are material in producing the income.

Additional information on self-employed retirement plans is available in IRS Document No. 5592, "Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals." This document may be obtained free of charge by sending a post card to the District Director of Internal Revenue, John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Government Center, Boston, Mass. 02203.

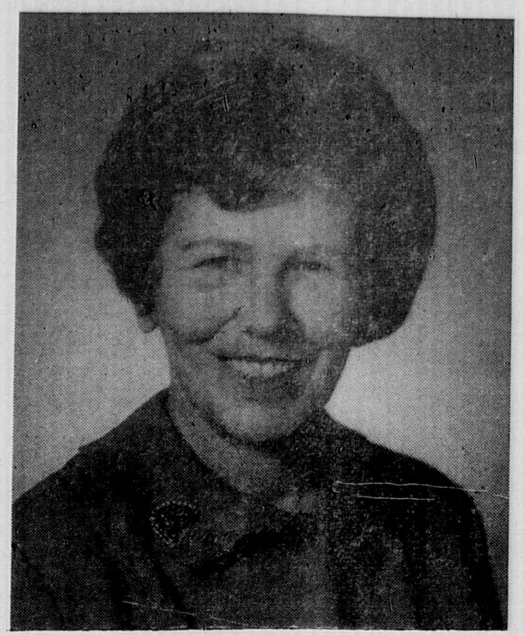
Mrs. Woodward Tells Republicans What She Can Accomplish for Party

"If you are concerned at the loss of Republican strength in the suburbs, if you are afraid that the Party is not attracting youth and new voters, then you should take action by voting on April 30th," Sara C. Woodward, candidate for Republican State Committeewoman, told a group of voters at a coffee held at Mrs. Ralph Tuller's home on 5 Lincoln Street, Arlington, Monday.



MRS. SARA C. WOODWARD

"This election is to establish the party's structure," she continued. "It is not a popularity contest, it is not a reward for service to the Republican Party; it is to select those who will develop the party policies and programs, find attractive and energetic candidates, and give leadership in making Republicanism a dynamic force."

Pointing out that the Republican State Committee is now being revitalized under the Chairman, Si Spaulding and Vice Chairman, Betty Amesbury, Mrs. Woodward urged the voters to support the Committee in its efforts to make the Party more effective.

"For twenty years I have worked on campaigns," she said. "I have raised money at local and state levels, I have rung doorbells to increase registration, I have spoken for candidates and for the Party, I have telephoned to get out the vote, served on the Town Committee and in the Winchester and Massachusetts Women's Republican Clubs. During the time I was a Federal Executive under Civil Service, I chafed at the law prohibiting me from political action, because I believe that every citizen should work for the party of his choice.

"This work, however, is not in itself justification for your electing me. I am asking for your vote, not for what I have done, but for what I can do on the State Committee. I can be an articulate and compelling speaker for the Republican cause. I can provide leadership to local committees and can present local views strongly to the State Committee. I can us my knowledge and experience of attracting volunteers to a compelling cause—that of restoring good government for the people through Republican leadership."

Mrs. Woodward, who lives at 13 Sheffield Road, Winchester, is a former member and Chairman of the Winchester School Committee, an Eisenhower apointee to Director of Women's Activities, FCDA, Region 1 and is currently serving as Mass. Chairman for the 16th Annual Republican Women's Conference in Washington. Last fall she received from the Assistant Chairman of the Republican National Committee an award for "Distinguished Service to the Republican Party."

A MEMORIAL TO DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING

"TO FULFILL HIS DREAM"

MY PLEDGE TO ACT FOR HUMAN DIGNITY AND EQUITY

I recognize that words are no substitute for actions long needed and long delayed to obtain dignity, equity, and justice for all. Nor are words alone adequate to atone for the evil of white racism which caused the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Therefore, I pledge myself to the following actions:

I WILL write or telegraph President Johnson urging his immediate endorsement of the REPORT OF THE NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMISSION ON CIVIL DISORDERS and call for executive action from him to implement immediately the recommendations of the Commission which call for a massive re-allocation of the nation's resources at all levels.

I WILL familiarize myself with the Report in order to more clearly understand how I and all white Americans — knowingly or unknowingly — are implicated in the evil of racism, so that I can prepare myself to act in my neighborhood, my community, my state and my nation.

I WILL seek action by my state representative and senator to appropriate funds for the construction of low-cost housing — especially H-3800 — by visiting, writing or calling them. (H-3800 would establish "The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.)

I WILL urge immediate passage of the Governor's "URBAN AFFAIRS DEPARTMENT BILL" — H-4129.

I WILL continue Dr. King's ministry of racial reconciliation through non-violence.

Tear off here and mail to WCCA, 25 Wildwood Street, Winchester.

Census Bureau Seeks Data On Migration

Information to help determine national migration patterns will be sought from local households by the Bureau of Census in its monthly current population survey the week of April 15, director James W. Turbitt of the Bureau's regional office in Boston announced recently.

Questions on household movements during the past five years will provide an insight into amounts and directions of population migration within the country and will be instrumental in forecasting future migration trends.

Other highlights of the April survey include inquiries on types of work during the previous year, and questions on family size and place of birth of household heads.

These special queries will supplement the regular monthly questions on employment and unemployment.

The monthly surveys are taken in a scientifically selected cross-section of several hundred areas throughout the United States, according to Director Turbitt. Survey questions are asked of more than 50,000 households in these areas.

In the crisis-packed first quarter of this year the stadium issue is almost forgotten. Yet, despite wars, racial issues and assassination and all the other troubles plaguing this country, progress in other fields should not be ignored, for often two seemingly unrelated situations have a great bearing on each other. We wonder how much violence we would have seen here in Boston last summer had not the Red Sox and their red-hot drive to the pennant taken the heat off the racial issue during the crucial hot summer months. Black and white were united in a common cause—cheering on their favorite team.

We made frequent trips last year to Fenway Park — and it was with a bit of wonder that we saw many instances of black and white, instead of eyeing each other distrustfully, engaged in a discussion of the events taking place during the ball game, or of the amazing performance of their team, burying their difference through a common bond of agreement.

Yes, we believe a vote of thanks go to the Red Sox for helping take the heat off what could have been a violent summer in Boston.

The power of diversified investment lies in the hands of the giant insurance companies, with their seemingly inexhaustible resources. If one of the companies feels dwarfed by the rise of a 50-story building put up by a rival, presto—it decides to build one 60-stories high. What a pity that the money going into a building in an already cramped area isn't put to use to build up Boston's disreputable waterfront with, naturally a sport stadium as the nucleus. We are certain the possibilities for development and profit are much greater in the South Station area than they are in a giant edifice built on a postage-stamp-sized lot. Some day investment money will see the possibilities in perhaps the only remaining land available in Boston for development purposes.

Little League Tryouts Provide Some Surprises

by James R. Stewart, Jr.

Last Saturday and Sunday, the first two days of Little League tryouts produced some aspiring baseball players that had the Major Leagues and Minor Leagues managers talking to themselves.

On Ginn Field, the National Leaguers put on their demonstrations of hitting and fielding, sparked by some surprising performances by boys new to Winchester as well as some of last year's crop who, up until now, seemed destined to remain in the Minor Leagues.

Player agent Jim Murphy had an excellent group of assistants who provided the opportunity for over 325 boys to show their wares to their prospective managers. Well organized groups gave every applicant ample opportunity to hit a few balls and show how well they could field in 1968. Many Major League managers are anxiously awaiting the player draft next Saturday night, following the third tryout session during that day, and each has indicated that "if I can get those two boys, I have the championship wrapped up."

Over on West Side Ed Sanford, American League player agent was amazed at the show of talent in his three sections of playing action. Ably assisted by managers and non-managers, the enthusiasm of almost 300 boys was obvious. The chilly breezes did not help those who were not actively engaged, but there were many long hits banged out and many boys made sparkling fielding plays. In some cases it looked like the middle of the season as the boys hustled around the fields and the supervisors did an outstanding job of keeping everyone as busy as possible. As at Ginn Field, it was gratifying to see many spectator parents at West Side Field, taking an active interest in their sons' performances and supporting the Little League activity.

At Shore Road Field, the Senior Leagues were going through their paces to the delight of the eagle-eyed managers. Under the direction of Henry Petrillo, American League player agent, and Duane Belden, National League player agent, the 13, 14 and 15 year old youngsters were doing their best to win marks as they sprayed both diamonds with some solid base hits. Though windy and cold, there were many dazzling catches in the infield and outfield that made many managers grab for their pencils to mark down a boy's number. There were about 90 boys participating, and when the end of the days work was over, many stayed in to get in some more practice. Some of the managers and coaches who did the pitching, however, were glad when 4 o'clock arrived and went home to the liniment botle!

On Sunday, the tryout sessions were pushed up 30 minutes and concluded at 3:30 p.m., so that anyone wishing could attend the memorial services for Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

This Saturday will be the last tryouts for the Major and Minor Leagues, following which all managers will meet at the house of the player agent of their respective leagues for the draft selection sessions. It is expected that all players chosen to fill the gaps in the present teams will know where they will play some time this weekend.

On Sunday night, April 7, following the final tryouts for the Senior League, player agents Henry Petrillo and Duane Belden held their draft sessions to complete all teams for the 1968 season. Graduates of the Major Little League and other boys 13, 14 and 15 years old were pitted against each other in the two fielding and hitting days with the following results and selections.

American League

Giants—Jeff Clayton, Dave Frongillo, Carmen Fucillo, Bob McGoldrick, and Brad Scott

Indians—Gary Cadigan, Bob Gill, Steve Hodgson, Peter Kent, Mark Laughlin, and Richard McLeary

White Sox—Dave Deninger, Bill Cannon, Peter O'Leary, Mike Siegfriedt, and Bruce Walters

National League

Track Opener Against Concord Set for Tuesday

Led by coaches Roger Rawden and Robert Albright, the co-captains Greg Cronin and David Carpenter, Winchester High School's track team will take on Concord-Carlisle at Concord next Tuesday, in the opening meet of the season.

The squad boasts of three defending Middlesex League champions: Cronin in the 100-yard dash, Carpenter in the 160-yard low hurdles, and senior Chris Halverson in the discus. Besides defending their present status in the League, each of these three Sachem trackmen will be trying to break the existing school record in his respective event.

Other returning lettermen who are expected to help the team are: Wayne Padula (2-mile), Ed Mccabe (high hurdles), Chris Izzo (100-yard dash), Tom Spang (mile), and Bob McLellan (880).

Although strong in most events, the team is admittedly shallow in the pole vault and the javelin. With good performances by the upperclassmen competing in these events, the squad should easily improve on its 1967 record of 5-5.

Various forms of tumbling then set the pace for the evening with the boys performing in mass calisthenics, gymnastics, rope skipping, rope climbing, peg board climbing, bamboo dancing, wrestling, unicycle riding, tug-of-war, and pyramid building.

Pack 511 Goes For Boats, River

Cub Scout Pack 511 met at Lincoln School last Friday night for its monthly pack meeting. "Rivers of the World" was the theme. Den 7 had the opening ceremony.

Cubmaster Tom Callahan introduced Robert DeBourke who with the aid of den fathers conducted the annual uniform inspection. A sharper, more scrubbed group of Cubs had seldom been seen, it was reported.

Dens 5 and 8 presented an informative skit together, depicting the founding and naming of our Aberjona River. The boys of Den 7 carried us on a magic raft to many of the important rivers of the world.

Den 1 had a display of wooden paddle boats which each Cub Scout had sawed, sanded, painted and shellacked, while Den 3's display was a large pirate ship which those boys had made. Interesting facts about rivers and river systems was presented by the boys of Den 6.

Mr. Callahan then awarded the badges for achievement to the following boys: Bobcat, Win Phinney; Bear, Raymond Brock and Robert Merenda; Gold arrow to the Bear badge, Anthony Staffiere; Silver arrow to the Bear badge; Anthony Maccinanti; Webelos Scientist, Robert Labedz, John Rallo, Joe Whitney and Phil Simmons; Denner bar for Den 3, David Harleston; Denner and Assistant Denner bars for Den 6, Paul Friot and Mark Percoco.

Pack 511 has had a most successful year under the capable leadership of Mr. Tom Callahan, Cubmaster. At the close of this meeting, Mr. Callahan turned over the reigns to Mr. Tom Knapp who will be Cubmaster for the coming year.

Winchester Rotary Auction Is On April 27

Auction-goers and bargain hunters this month are looking forward to the 16th holding of the Annual Rotary Auction at the Town Hall in Winchester—where this once a year event draws hundreds of buyers and turns over thousands of dollars in revenues to benefit charities.

On this one day of the year, Saturday, April 27, the Winchester Rotary Club service organization hires a professional auctioneer and sells-off everything from 10-cent bid children's toys to several-dollar household, personal and sports items, and even more expensive collectors' fancies and antiques.

The Annual Winchester Rotary Auction begins at 10 o'clock, following a 9 a.m. opening for browsing and sales of hundreds of donated books, always to a fully-packed auditorium of interested purchasers.

Uninterruptedly during the day until 7 at night articles donated by citizens throughout the preceding year—and amounting to a chock-full barn of usable objects—are put up to bid and auctioned off in rapid order.

Also during the day Rotary-Annes staff snack and food-sales booths for the benefit of auction-hunters who can't tear themselves away from the delightful atmosphere and bargains.

In the late afternoon, from 5 to 7 p.m., Rotarian chefs, assisted by members of the local Auxiliary Fire Department, turn out a magnificent Olde-Fashioned Bean Supper.

Rotary Club president Harry Chefalo said this week that the club looks forward to opening the doors on the largest auction yet, this year, and anticipates a large turn-out of visitors.

WGBH to Air Easter Music

Broadcast in stereo, the great Easter oratorio is performed by the Munich Bach Orchestra and Choir, and the Munich Boy's Choir, under the direction of Karl Richter, with soloist Ernst Haefliger, tenor; Irmgard Seefried and Antonie Fahberg, sopranos; Bertha Topper, alto, and Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau and Max Proebsti, basses.

WHS Lacrosse Opens Season At St. Mark's

Coach Eugene Bouley's lacrosse squad will travel to Southboro next Wednesday to take on St. Mark's School. The game is the first of a tough 13-game schedule, made up primarily of private school opponents, which lies ahead of the team.

Leading the team as co-captains Ted Webb and John Wisbach, both defensemen and lettermen from last year's squad. The only other returning letterman is another defenseman, senior Rich Kimball.

The defense should be strong, even with the loss of Wisbach, who will be out indefinitely following a bout with mononucleosis. Assisting Webb and Kimball at the defensive slots will be: Jim O'Donnell, Rico Hansen, Lou Pedi, and Jeff Lindberg.

Playing attack will be: Tom Kivney, Charlie Logan, Jim Barry, David Cincotta, Reed Corcoran, Bob Giamattei, and Tony Martignetti. Rookie John Pirani has been tentatively assigned the starting slot in the goal.

Despite the small number of returning lettermen, the team hopes to at least match last year's second-place finish in the special lacrosse league. Members of last year's junior varsity squad should contribute a great deal toward a successful season, as the 1967 J. V. club sported a fine 5-1 record.

St. Mary's Hears Rev. McFarland

Last Wednesday, April 3, the Reverend Francis P. McFarland was guest speaker at St. Mary's Mr. and Mrs. Club Annual Communion Supper. His subject was "Vatican Council, Marriage and You." Mr. and Mrs. Michael Harrington and Mr. Ed Ferrulo were chairmen for this affair which was jointly sponsored with the Holy Name Society.

The next meeting of the Mr. and Mrs. Club will take place Wednesday, May 1 and will feature a Strawberry Festival and Variety Show. Jim and Noreen Connell are chairmen of this event.

Fireside Guild 'Adopts' Boy

The Fireside Guild of the First Congregational Church has financially "adopted" Felix Veliz, an 8-year-old Ecuadorian boy, through Foster Parents Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10010.

FELIX VELIZ

Although "adoption" is financial not legal its truly personal. The $15 a month contributed by the foster parent provides for an exchange of a letter a month (original and translation). The same $15 (for a minimum of one year) buys a monthly cash grant, supplementary new clothing, and household goods, medical care when called for, primary education and family guidance and counseling from the North American director and a staff of trained local case workers.

The foster parent gets to know his child at once through a photograph and case history. The child in turn learns about his foster parent, country through letters, post cards and photgraphs.

A foster parent can be an individual, family, group, club or school. Currently Foster Parents Plan is operating in Greece, Hong Kong, Korea, the Philippines, Vietnam, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, and Peru. A child may be chosen according to country, sex, and age and PLAN will try hard to meet the specifications. Foster Parents Plan is a non-sectarian, non-profit, non-propaganda, independent, government - approved organization. "Adoptions" and contributions are tax deductible. For information write to Foster Parents Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10010.

Duplicate Bridge Club

It was a doubly festive evening on Wednesday, April 3rd,—the Mr. and Mrs. Championship for the Sittinger Bowl and a spring party ably produced by Peggy Cade, beautifully decorated by Polly Wheelock, and goodies by the members.

The winners of the Sittinger Bowl were Nancy and Ralph Atkinson, Club Secretary and Treasurer by title, workers par excellence, and unfailingly pleasant to meet at a bridge table. Nice to have Irene and Carl Sittinger down from New Hampshire for the event, scoring very creditably too.

There are many other familiar names among the top scoring couples in the Mr. and Mrs. Championship.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Atkinson	110½
Mr. and Mrs. Chester Davis, Jr.	106½
Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler	104
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith	102½
Mr. and Mrs. William Fuller	99
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanderson	93½
Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sittinger	90½
Mr. and Mrs. William Duryea	89½
Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cade	88
Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Symmes	87½
Mr. and Mrs. John Davis	84

Another large Section B—twelve and one-half tables—saw Joyce Wolf and Bob Haskell producing a huge 69% game to win North-South while East-West Dave Littleton and Steve Root barely held their usual first spot.

North-South, Average 101

Joyce Wolf and Robert Haskell	139½
Howard Wittet and Gerald Barrett	116
Leo and Frank Gonsalves	109½
Richard Raskind and Phil Simonds	105
Margaret Jackson and Barbara Shea	103½
Martha Ryan and David Miller	101

East-West

David Littleton and Stephen Root	112
Alan Leland and Wendell Holmes	109½

Board 13 from the Mr. and Mrs. Championship poses a perennial problem,—where to play the contract when there's a decision between no trump and a major suit.

♣ A 9 6

North-South is vulnerable, West is the dealer, and the board is rotated for convenience.

Look over the North-South hands and see where your bidding style would land you. First, let's assume that North opens one diamond, East does not bid his club suit, and you are sitting South with a nice flat no trump hand distribution-wise. Certainly a jump to two no trump would show points and shape, and yet, what's the hurry? Any bid by you is forcing, so why not tell partner about the four-card heart suit and maybe gain a little more information about his hand?

At our table, East did overcall two clubs after North's one diamond opener, so the heart bid by South is even more urgent, for you'll get a club lead at no trump. Also a jump now in no trump (it has to be three no trump) sounds like a sign-off. South, therefore, bids two hearts, North says three hearts, and after a pass by East, South can still bid three no trump, saying to his partner, "I have four hearts, a club stopper, enough points for game, and general no trump shape; what about you?" Of course North with two points more in hearts than no trump and the worthless singleton in the opponent's bid suit corrects to four hearts which makes five, losing just the Ace of hearts and Ace of spades, South's third spade being discarded on North's fourth diamond.

This hand was played eight times Wednesday night with the favorite spot no trump, being set all but once (there's always one lucky one). Just two North-Souths reached the heart game, making five, to share top score for the board.

Moral: Even if your hand seems to dictate one clear result, try to imagine varying possibilities for your partner's hand and allow for them.

WE'RE GREAT LISTENERS

Last week we drove to the Cape to show some people the beautifully located lakeshore lots we're so enthused over.

When it became evident that one buyer didn't want the detail that goes into building a summer home, we looked around and found the right one already built.

We looked up the owner-builder and acted as negotiator.

The owner made a profit.

We made a commission.

The buyer got what he wanted for immediate occupancy.

EVERYBODY IS HAPPY.

We enjoy finding people the key to happiness.

Absent Signatures Delay Refunds

Delivery of Federal income tax refunds to 1,519 taxpayers in Massachusetts is being held up because the returns were filed without necessary signature.

"Instead of refund checks, these taxpayers are getting their Forms 1040 or 1040A back to be signed," IRS district director William E. Williams for Massachusettts said recently.

As a legal document a tax return must be signed to be valid and to permit the IRS to process it and issue the refund, Mr. William said. Many missing signatures were those of wives required to sign joint returns, he added.

Another major reason for delay of refund checks, Mr. Williams said, is the neglect of taxpayers to include their correct Social Security numbers on tax returns.

Incorrect or missing Social Security numbers are delaying 1,286 refunds of Massachusetts taxpayer, he noted.

Mr. Williams reported that refunds also are being held up by other taxpayer errors or failures to comply with instructions that accompany tax returns.

Mistakes in arithmetic—causing delays in sending refunds—so far total 1,722, Mr. Williams said, adding that returns where the wrong tax table was used total 1,345.

The IRS Service Center in Andover as of last week had processed 93,063 refunds of Massachusetts taxpayers for a total of $15,388,612.50, Mr. Williams said.

Kiwanis Club Installs Members

Roy Fava and Joseph Cioni were installed as new members of the Winchester Kiwanis Club on March 27. Past president Ken Cullen officiated at the installation. Mr. Fava owns and operates the Fava Hair Fashion Center in town and Mr. Cioni is assistant treasurer of the Winchester Savings Bank.

The guest speaker of the evening was William Sayers, assistant director of public relations of New England Merchants National Bank of Boston. Mr. Sayers talked on the current gold crisis and dollar drain on the United States and the remedies undertaken to correct these problems.

This week's featured speakers at the Winchester Kiwanis Club were Police Chief Derro, Inspector Sergeant Cogan, and Lieutenant McHugh. They discussed the current drug problems on the North Shore. This meeting was held at the Lord Wakefield on April 10, which was ladies night.

Jr. Crittenton Dinner Dance Coming May 4

Jr. Crittenton plans a gala finale to top a year of hard work and accomplishment. The Colonial Statler Hilton Inn sets the stage for the May 4th dinner dance while Don Russell's group guarantees the most danceable strains this side of the Mystic.

Credits for planning and arranging go to Mrs. John Gonsalves, Ways and Means chairman, who says all is in a state of readiness; while ticket chairman, Mrs. Henry J. Curtis, Jr., (729-1570) has tickets available for interested Winchesterites.

The Circle has thanked all friends who have supported League activities throughout the year.

Happiness is oftener remembered than experienced.

Troop 525 Has Court of Honor

Boy Scout Troop 525 held its first Court of Honor for 1968 on Monday, April 8, at the Vinson-Owen School. Tenderfoot badges were received by Scott Howard, Randy Morsch, and George Zettler. In addition, the first second-class ratings of Troop 525 were presented to patrol leaders Paul Miller and Dale Wilson.

As part of the ceremony, Bill Krupsky, assistant district commissioner for Winchester, presented the Vinson-Owen Parents' Association, represented by Norma Zettler, with the 1968 Charter for Troop 525. The Parents' Association is the Troop's sponsor.

A recent example of Troop 525 outings is the deep freeze three-day campout in early March. Scoutmaster Jack Wilson and assistant scoutmaster Nolan Jones led a group of five boys, all of whom had previously participated in a two-day polar bear hike in near zero temperatures. Although schools were closed because of heavy snow, the scouts took advantage of the fresh fall to pass tracking and trailing activities. Temperatures dipped to 7 degrees but all were well equipped and thoroughly experienced in setting up equipment and surviving the cold. Despite over a foot of snow on the ground a seven mile nature hike was taken by the scouts. New tracks were abundant and several animals were tracked.

All meals were cooked by the scouts who are now experienced in all types of weather. Those participating were Mike Corf, Tommy Jones, Paul Miller, Steve Spencer, and Dale Wilson, who will receive deep freeze badges.

Another recent activity was the father-son bowling meet. Seventeen scouts and fathers participated in a team match won by the Eagle Patrol. High singles were scored by Walt Howard and Scout Steve Spencer.

Last Monday's Court of Honor meeting also included a slide presentation from the district commission on scout camping. Troop 525 will have a group at Parker Mountain Camp during the week of July 14. Grand finale of the meeting was a slide presentation by Scoutmaster Wilson on previous activities of Troop 525.

Troop 525 wishes to remind everyone that the 1968 Scouting in Action Show will be held at Manchester Field on Saturday, May 11. Anyone who has not purchased a ticket may do so from any Scout. Troop 525 will demonstrate signaling using towers built from logs.

On April 18 and 19 a district outing will be held at the Nashoba Sportsmen's Club in Acton to help celebrate Patriot's Day. Scouts will camp out on the evenings of the 18th and then march with the Concord Minutemen over the Isaac Davis Trail on Patriot's Day. In addition to meeting requirements for second class hiking, boys walking this trail will receive the historic trails trip award and the Isaac Davis Trail Patch and Scroll.

Also, another three-day hike is planned for April 26 through 28 at Camp Oak. This is the Spring Camporee for the Musket District and will include many activities for the 350 Scouts expected. Boys in the West Side area are encouraged to contact Scoutmaster Jack Wilson by calling 729-7204 for information on joining Troop 525.

Visiting Nurses Have New Member

The Winchester Visiting Nursing Association has appointed Mrs. Angela Walsh to the permanent staff. Mrs. Walsh, a native of Norwich, Connecticut, was graduated from the Massachusetts General Hospital School of Nursing and received her B.S. from the University of Connecticut. She has also taken courses in industrial organization and management at Brevard Junior College Extension at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

MRS. ANGELA WALSH

Mrs. Walsh's previous experience includes work in the operating room at the Massachusetts General Hospital and camp nursing at Camp Naomi, in Raymond, Maine. She was an instructor for four years at the William W. Backus Hospital School of Nursing at Norwich, Connecticut. She most recently served as an industrial nurse for the TWA support facility for NASA at the Kennedy Space Center.

Mrs. Walsh has a wide variety of interests, among them travel. Last summer she and her husband circled North America by air, visiting Mexico, United States, and Canada.

In addition to her regular duties as staff nurse with home visits, Mrs. Walsh serves as school nurse for the Parkhurst and Vinson-Owen Schools.

Show Business . . . And the Brothers Boodakian

We went to one of Mike's lectures the other day. Leo was supposed to give the presentation, but he came down with one of those "change-in-the-weather" sniffles. So Mike went in his place, and we thought we'd go along to watch the fun.

The show, featuring color slides and a talk entitled "Mosiacs in Wool," was hosted by a locally prominent ladies' social club. And the whole thing went off beautifully. Mike was pretty proud of himself when he finished, and the ladies all seemed delighted.

Now that Leo is feeling fine again, Mike is trying to convince him to turn the lectures over to him. Leo just smiles and says no; as far as he's concerned, Clark Gable is an amateur.

Harry, the brother in charge of the cleaning plant, doesn't really care who does the lectures. He claims his only connection with show business is in making people's rugs and carpets look like showpieces. He just wants us to remind you of his 20% discount on "cash and carry" items, and that the cleaning schedule still has plenty of room for everything from scatter rugs to wall-to-wall carpets.

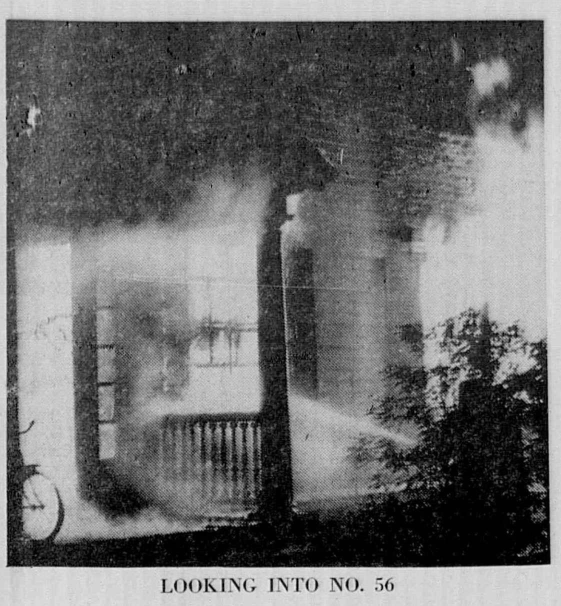
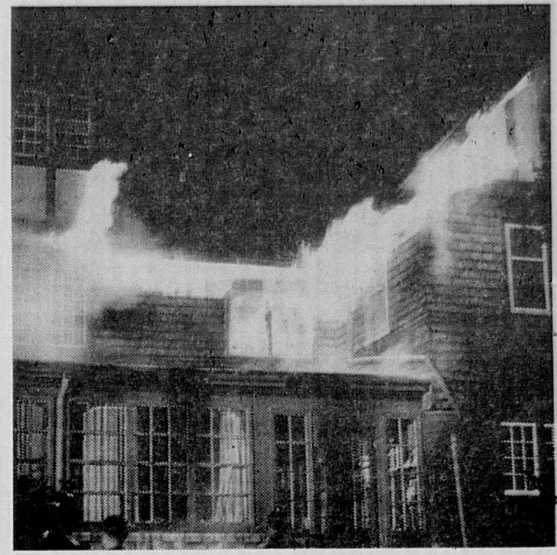
BETWEEN THE HOMES



LOOKING INTO NO. 56



FLAMES SHOOT FROM NO. 64

"Close to a Holocaust"

"If there had been a wind, we'd still be fighting this fire down somewhere beyond the tennis courts."—Fire Chief Amico on Sunday afternoon. The houses along Fletcher Street are all wooden, quite old, and quite close together.

"We could see a glow as we came up Church Street . . . (and we laid our first line at that corner) . . . "When we drew up both houses were fully involved,"—Captain Ernest Howard, whose official report also said that involvement was from front to rear and top to bottom and that "fire brands" were flying over to the adjacent house, to the north number 48 Fletcher belonging to the Edward Pattulo family, almost immediately.

"It looked like a movie set, with huge flames belching from the windows and roofs of the homes."

"It is extremely fortunate that no Firefighter was electrocuted as many wires were sparking and arcing dangerously in between both homes and sidewalk."

"The Firefighters were extremely courageous and it was very frightening watching them go into the burning buildings to try and knock the fire down."

"The frustrating thing was to watch the water—there didn't seem to be enough pressure and you wanted to do something to help."—Fire witnesses.

In addition to Red Cross offers to help, being tendered this time to Winchester Red Cross chairman Mrs. Jane Armstrong, husband Walter and their five children, as well as to the Haber family, their twin boys, and the Donald Searles and their two, neighbors offered the burned out families every kind of assistance. "We have been completely overwhelmed at people's generosity," said Mrs. Barbara Haber.

Police estimated more than 2,000 spectators converged on the Fletcher Street area in the three hours Saturday night that the fire raged. Cars were parked from Wildwood down to Palmer Street nearly to Lake and up and down Church Street. Sgt. William Haggerty was the first on the scene in the cruiser. Officers Reardon, Tranchita, Richardson, Morgan, Duffy and Perritano also policed the area and aided at the fire. Chief Joseph Derro and off duty Lt. Andrew Crawford at work. Officer Frongillo manned the ambulance, which made numerous trips to the Winchester Hospital.

Woburn's new Police Ambulance was also at the scene and at work as were the Woburn first aid truck, Civil Defense and rescue wagon. Red Cross Disaster Chairman Richard Norris received help from the Melrose Red Cross which set up a truck just south of the fire and dispensed food and soup to workers. The Winchester wagon was stationed just north of the fire with Mr. Norris and helpers giving out coffee and cocoa and cold water. In Woburn a first aid class had been in session. Instructor and students arrived at the scene to help and to observe.

Easter Eve Inferno Consumes Two Homes

Two adjacent Fletcher Street homes were engulfed in flames Saturday night within minutes after a fire started on the outdoor porch on one of them, a large Colonial duplex. The spectacular fire, the most extensive dwelling home fire in present memory, left three families homeless and almost completely without possessions. It caused damages estimated in the vicinity of $100,000.

Fourteen firefighters were injured. Many were treated at the Winchester Hospital; all have now been released. A Malden man assisting at the fire was seriously injured in the eye, and remains in the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston. Nine children live in the two homes. Four were out of Town when the fire started, the other four and six of the adult residents were unharmed. Navy Lt. Commander Donald W. Searles whose family rented the home where the fire started, was burned on the face and hands.

The cause of the fire is officially recorded as "probable." Chief Francis Amico, working with State fire marshals, has made several on-the-spot investigations and says it appears to have originated from a charcoal grill filled with hot coals, on which, about half an hour prior to its discovery, the family had cooked its dinner.

The fire started on the roofed porch at the south end of 56 Fletcher Street, a handsome, gabled home about 70 years old belonging to Ralph W. Swan of 91 Church Street.

The house is divided into two large apartments, each with six bedrooms. Commander Searles, his wife Barbara and their two children, Stephen, 14, and Pamela, 11, had lived in the south end for two years. Professor Herbert Haber of Lowell State College, his wife Barbara, and their twin boys aged six, had lived at the north end for about the same time.

The second home involved is a large 60-year-old English Tudor, brown-shingled house, number 64 Fletcher. Living there were Walter Armstrong, area sales representative of W. L. Snyder, Philadelphia industrial rubber and fire equipment manufacturers; his wife Jane, director of the Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross; her mother, Mrs. Bertha K. Miller; and their five children, Walter, 21, a U. S. Marine stationed in Memphis, Becca, 20, away at college, and Nancy, 17, Tim, 14, and Steve, 11, at home.

Fire Department reports of interviews with the Searles family are that discovery of the fire was made by Stephen just after 7 p.m., when he was at the rear of the house to check a second, open fire, for which the family had earlier obtained a permit. The commander was upstairs, Mrs. Searles and her daughter were out for a walk.

Stephen apparently raced back into the house and yelled the alarm to his father. But before either of them could do anything to stop it, the fire had engulfed the whole porch.

The Armstrong family were sitting in the kitchen of their home, which was on the side adjacent to the fire. Mrs. Miller was upstairs. Through the glass curtains at the kitchen window, Mrs. Armstrong suddenly became aware of a red glow and, looking, saw the porch next door burning fully.

She ran to get her mother downstairs. Nancy was sent to make a call for the Fire Department. Mr. Armstrong went quickly to the back to play his hose on his home. As he was just about to do this, however, his own home, just under 20 feet from the Searles' porch at its nearest point, caught fire. Realizing, he reports, that it was useless, he went back to get his family out.

The Haber family, on the north end of the duplex, were in Wellesley dining with friends. Neighbors did not know how to reach them, and their first sight of their gutted apartment was on their return at 9 p.m., when firemen were still fighting the blaze.

The first call to the Fire Station is logged at 7:01, a telephone call reporting a porch fire. Captain Ernest Howard and Lt. Bernard Stygles were in charge of the first contingent, which left the station with two engines, the rescue wagon and the ladder.

Upon rounding the corner of Church Street the captain radioed a general alarm fire, and responding and in a few minutes all call men and all auxiliaries, including many off-duty firefighters who appeared in mufti to aid. In addition the call brought engines from Arlington, Burlington and Woburn, Stoneham, and ladders from Medford and Arlington, plus other supportive equipment.

Procedure followed by both Captain Howard and Chief Amico, who took charge about four minutes after the first call, was that of a big fire, designed to contain the fire and prevent it from spreading.

Firefighters found the situation most dificult, as the fire seemed to be everywhere, and the intense heat and thick smoke made it hard to get a vantage point.

'It's Time To Talk' Scheduled Sunday

A lively student-professional adult panel is scheduled to start things off at 8 p.m. Sunday evening, April 21 when 'It's Time to Talk!" is presented at the High School auditorium by CONCERN, the Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs.

WBZ's Dick Summer will m.c. a panel exchange of ideas on drug abuse and other student problems which will include five students, a judge, a psychologist and a minister. This is designed as an effort to get the rest of the town into communication and talk, to look not only at the problems, but especially to ask the "why does it happen" behind each — and to share the answers.

As a follow-up, to see that the evening carries over into town-wide communication on this subject, the Council for Community Action is backing up CONCERN by preparing a questionnaire to be handed out that night. It will ask for comments on past programs and suggestions for future ones. But most especially it will encourage neighborhood discussion groups.

Discussion bringing young and old together is a main objective of CONCERN. The WCCA has already mimeographed, for those who wish to hold discussion groups, a two-page guide, including 10 typical questions which could be used as a framework for a group.

Feedback from such groups is particularly desired by the sponsoring groups in order that future programs may be more meaningful.

New Proposal For Car Wash Meets Attacks

For the second time in the past four months, opponents of proposed car wash establishments on Main Street are confronting Winchester officials.

In January the Board of Appeal turned down an application by a Cambridge businessman for such a business at 608 Main Street in action that carried over from the fall. Contention over car washes surfaced again this week as a result of the issuance of a building permit for a car wash at 783-785 Main Street, a heavy industry zone.

In efforts to prevent a car wash on the site recently purchased by George L. Whitten, an attorney for a group of merchants in the vicinity on Tuesday filed a claim of appeal with the Town Clerk.

Under procedure specified in the zoning by-laws objectors will get a hearing before the Board of Appeal to challenge the validity of the Building Commissioner's permit.

The attorney, Joseph Iovino, yesterday told the Star that his clients' claim calls the proposed car wash a menace to the public safety, health, and welfare of the neighborhood.

Similar objections to the car wash were voiced at the Selectmen's meeting on Monday night during a hearing continued from the previous week on a petroleum license application for the same location.

The hearing, marked by considerable acrimony as spokesmen against the car wash ignored repeated statements by Selectmen that the subject before them was limited to the gasoline storage permit, ended in the Selectmen's voting unanimously to reject the application.

Though he will not be able to sell gasoline on the site. Mr. Whitten, who took title to the land on Tuesday, reportedly plans to go ahead with the car wash.

At the Monday night hearing Police Chief Derro stated, "The car wash will create traffic problems, and placing gas pumps at this location will increase the traffic hazard on Main Street."

Selectmen Name John R. Oliver

Selectmen appointed John R. Oliver a permanent member of the police department as of April 8. A Winchester native, he had been with the department as a special patrolman since November.

Officer Oliver, the son of Mrs. Karl Oliver, of 14 Stevens Street, is a graduate of Winchester High School and served in the Navy. He lives with his wife, the former Pat Galvin, of Arlington, and two children on 70 Irving Street.

Town Meeting Ends at Last

Nine Inning Session Sets $72.85 Tax Base

The 1968 Town Meeting ended at 11:35 Monday night after nine sessions or about 20 hours of deliberation which included a 49 article annual warrant and those of two special town meetings.

The Meeting appropriated a total of $8,797,275. Richard Dexter announced the tax rate to stand at $72.85, or almost exactly $10 over last year. It will stay at that only until the Town's re-evaluation results are adjusted to it.

Tax rate projection half way through was for $74. Rejection or postponement of all of the Conservation Commissions land taking requests and of two Planning Board land requests cut this down, as did the last vote Monday night, to take $200,000 from general surplus funds and put them to reduce the tax level.

Monday's Meeting initiated an over-all study of Town Government to commence immediately. It authorized the School Department to rent for three years three portable classrooms to be used at the elementary level. It turned down a pedestrian control law. And it referred to the Names Committee the naming of the new elementary school on Tufts Road.

Moderator Harrison Chadwick gave the opening prayer Monday night for the ninth and last Town Meeting session, which convened at 7:55 p.m.

The pace was quickly set for action rather than discourse when Stephen Moore, speaking for the Conservation Commission, rose to move for indefinite postponement first for Article 14, asking the Town acquire a 6.4 acre parcel of land between Ridge Street and Hawthorne Road (just north of Johnson Road) and next for Article 18, asking the same for a 5.5 parcel between Ridge and Pilgrim Drive, which would have connected just south of Johnson Road.

By its action the Commission threw in the towel on conservation at this session, having postponed or lost all six of its land requests on the West Side hill. Mr. Moore reported, however, that it might return again, as it hoped to negotiate further on each parcel, its appraisers having indicated that on the first (owned by Ralph and Gertrude Thompson) the projected price of $34,000 might be too low and in the second (owned by Ruth Ericson) it might be too high.

Unanimous voice vote took action as it did on the next five articles:

—Article 34, a legality to allow the Town to pay Harry Chefalo $2,810 for back services to the Cemetery Commission;

—Article 35, to accept the gift of the private portion of Sawmill Brook Road;

—Article 36, to accept the layouts of new streets—Olive and Kirk Streets and Highland View, George, Charles, Bradford and Sawmill Brook Roads and appropriate $19,630 for drainage, sewers, and finishing;

—Article 37, to appropriate $21,000 for continuance of the renovation of the Town Hall, including improving the ladies' lounge, painting several rooms, and installing a second gas-fired burner, a new building directory in the front hall;

—Article 38, which had asked for about $58,650 for repairs, alterations, improvements, etc. to the Police Station, but was amended to ask for only $4,500 for further study and final plans for same;

—Article 39, to make restitution to Police Sgt. Mario Buzzotta for the price of a bicycle damaged by him while operating a Town motor car in the line of duty; and

Keith Oliver Receives Honor

PFC Keith R. Oliver, the 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Malven R. Oliver, of 22 Oxford Street, has been selected as the Ft. Monroe United States Army Garrison's Soldier of the Month for March.

PFC KEITH OLIVER

PFC Oliver, a chaplain's assistant at Ft. Monroe, completed his basic training at Ft. Knox, Kentucky and attended the U.S. Army Chaplain's School at Ft. Hamilton, New York, for advanced individual training.

A graduate of Andover High School in Andover, PFC Oliver has also attended Boston University and West Virginia Wesleyan College in Buckhannon, Virginia.

Visiting Nurses Hold Meeting

The Winchester Visiting Nursing Association met on Wednesday morning, April 10, at the Unitarian Church with Mrs. John F. Hutzenlaub, vice president, presiding.

Miss Gloria Pearson, executive director, reported that during the month of March the WVNA staff made 342 home visits, half of them to people over 65 years of age. Senior nursing students from the Newton Junior College are visiting the agency on a regular basis for the next eight weeks, she said, to observe the role of the public health nurse in the community and to see the preventive work done in the homes after the patients' discharge from the hospital. Miss Dianne Shorey, R.N., a graduate of the Mary Hitchcock Memorial Hospital in Hanover, New Hampshire, has joined the agency.

Miss Pearson presented for the benefit of the new members-at-large a series of pictures stressing the Visiting Nurses' three-fold service to the community. The pictures, taken by Mr. Richard Merrow, showed the members of the staff, views of the office at 20 Fairmount Street, the nurses receiving the assignments for the day, either in the homes or schools, as well as details of work with individual patients, with the school children, and at the well-baby clinic.

In the school, Miss Pearson said, the role of the public health nurse is to make the children aware of good health and good appearance. She particularly stressed the importance of the hearing and vision testing. Weaknesses in hearing which might impede the future progress of the child are found and corrected. As early as kindergarten the lazy eye can be detected. It is very important to catch this visual defect, she observed. If the child is not made to use the eye as soon as possible, there will be a visual loss for the rest of his life.

Through the Board of Health the public health nurse makes visits to homes where problems exist. Often there is much counselling to be done, sometimes to be handled at the local level, others times to be continued in referral agencies. The goal, Miss Pearson said, is to give not only physical care in the homes but broader help in family problems.

Let the Public Beware

ALTHOUGH many like to pretend that it isn't so, funeral service like any other service has to be fairly priced. No one could possibly supply the modern funeral which the American public demands unless his firm were soundly operated, with a reasonable profit margin. Therefore, it behooves the public to beware of "bargains in funeral service."

The Winchester Star
Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.
Serving The Community For 87 Years

Editorials:

It Did Happen Here

"It might be well for this community to make sure that this fire gets a very thorough study so that the same thing will not happen again."

With these carefully chosen words, Walter Armstrong, a sales representative of a fire equipment company and the wife of Winchester's Red Cross director, spoke his concern to the Winchester Star yesterday. Mr. Armstrong had owned for 10 years the brown-stained, three-story home at 64 Fletcher Street, the house that was totally gutted Saturday night by a fire which started on the porch of the adjacent duplex home at 56 Fletcher.

Observers of the fire were overcome by disbelief and shock to watch two big, expensive houses close to the center of town become, as Chief Amico said, "an inferno of flame." Everyone's thought was the same: it could be happening to me. Everyone is right.

The first lesson to learn is the presonal one of prevention, and the Chief is most anxious that no one misses it at the beginning of the outdoor cooking season. "Never leave a grill on a porch . . . Never leave one in a garage . . .. Always douse the coals, stir them, douse them again and keep checking them." In addition he reminds of the special danger of all lighting fluids and the need for strict family rules about them. They should always be capped. They should be kept away.

Not too long ago, a young Winchester boy was severely burned from a fire started in a home by cigarette lighter fluid. Just last summer a former resident cooking outdoors at his Cape home, accidentally set afire the lighting fluid. He was severely burned from head to foot. He died several days later in a Boston hospital.

It can happen here. It did happen here. For the most part the only way to see that it doesn't happen is to learn the rules, to instruct the young in them, to review everyone in them—over and over again.

That no one was killed in the Saturday fire here was remarkable. For the speed with which it spread, jumped and gathered momentum left all observers almost without words to describe it. The houses were old, they were big. But there are many more older and just as big homes in town—there are many places here, and had there been a little bit of a wind on Saturday, the loss could easily have been six houses instead of two. Supposing it had been at night, with people asleep?

The bravery and loyalty of the firemen has been spoken of by many. The dangers to them were multiple flames, heavy smoke, burning wires, falling parts, glass breaking with the heat were only some. Yet trained to go in close and get at the fire, they were seen over and over entering the buildings.

Always after a big fire, the Star offices attract those who have criticisms to voice. This one was no exception. Many criticisms have been heard but the most often was that of what seemed, to bystanders, to be inadequate water pressure. How the pressure at a given spot in town affects the force of water pumped through the fire wagons is not something we can assess. Whether the pressure in Winchester varies from a high of near 150 to a low of near 25 has been said, and we have not turned to authorities to check this so as to comment. Whether the initial steps of a firefighting crew at a fire here seem to those caught in or near the fire to be slow only because they are so agitated and because they do not understand the process, we cannot judge.

But we agree with Mr. Armstrong; with the inference of Ralph Swan in his letter in this column and with others who have appeared in this office, that there should be some study and report, or some hearing—or both—on this fire. The results could put together the observations, air the facts and bring those involved in every way closer together.

It just might help make Winchester safer.

Starred by the Star:

To The Editor—And To All Whom It Might Concern In Our Town Of Winchester

I am the owner of the duplex house on Fletcher Street which met such an ignominious death by fire in that holocaust of last Saturday night, which also destroyed the home of our good neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Armstrong.

First, Mrs. Swan and I wish publicly to thank the courageous men of our Fire Department, and those who came from our neighboring cities to be of assistance. Such outstanding courage and bravery as they evidenced in their untiring efforts to bring this fire under control merits our very deep appreciation, and that of others on the street whose homes were saved because of their unselfish performance. I do feel it the proper time to call to the attention of the citizens and tax payers of our Winchester certain facts.

The fire was started at about seven o'clock on Saturday evening by an accident which might happen to any of us. It started on or adjacent to the side porch—outside, not inside. The weather was summery—the wind was nil, and people were there to call the Fire Department. They were on the spot within a short time. The end result was that two beautiful houses—homes for 16 people—are standing over there on Fletcher Street, completely ruined, and by the grace of God there were no bad casualties.

My feeling and the feelings of our neighbors is that inadequate water pressure is, and will be in the future, the difference between a small fire and a disaster!

Sincerely,
Ralph W. Swan

1968 Town Meeting Appropriates $8,797,275!

—Article 40, to accept a law relating to the above kind of instance, i.e., to provide indemnity to an officer or employee for expenses incurred on duty up to "$40,000 on account of injury to or death of one person, or not exceeding $75,000 for any one accident and not exceeding $5,000 on account of damage to property—" after investigative determination of the case. (This had been a condition of the collective bargaining agreement with the Firefighters' this year.)

Nix on "Pedestrian Control"

With these votes quick action stopped, for on the next Chief Joseph J. Derro went down to defeat asking the Town adopt a pedestrian control law—or Chapter 90, Section 18A of the State's General Laws. The chief never used the word "jaywalking" but in fact, detailed the need to be more effective pedestrian assistance and control at such spots as the corners of Washington and Swanton Streets, Cambridge and Wildwood, Bacon and Church and Mt. Vernon and Washington, where he wanted "walk and don't walk" signals. He stated that at 4:45 p.m. an officer must usually be detailed to these areas.

Elizabeth Herberich rose quickly to ask in fact would the Meeting be voting for the whole law or just for the "walk and not walk" section; a second member asked for an interpretation; and Lewis Wadsworth, not content with Chief Derro's "the basic purpose is for the protection of pedestrians," finally insisted the law be read.

"You read it," said the Chief to the Moderator amid some laughter. And Harrison Chadwick, with an "I thought it would come to this," plowed through the technicalities of 18a Chapter 90 detailing the authority given to the town or city police to regulate pedestrian laws—with a good deal of definition of the system of fines for first, second, etc. offenses.

It would cost about $1,600 at each location for signs, but not ask a safety officer, the Chief answered Clarence Borggaard. Richard Dexter reported the majority members of the Finance Committee in favor, a minority against on the grounds that it would be just "one more unenforceable law."

The voice vote was heavy in the negative.

"Francis John Muraco" School

The article asking that the new elementary school on Tufts Road be named the "Francis John Muraco School" in honor of Marine Corporal Muraco, of 8 Irving Street, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muraco, who was killed in action in Vietnam on November 23 was a sensitive subject dealt with the firmness and thoughtfulness by both proponents and opponents.

George Barbaro, reminding that the 21-year-old corporal had been born and raised here within a stone's throw of the school grounds and that he was a good student and good athlete at the High School, told Members also that he was the son of a native born veteran of World War II, that parents and grandparents had resided in the immediate vicinity.

"A boy with a normal sense of duty—no draft card burning, no draft dodging here," he said. He enlisted in the Marines, he said, and then went off to Vietnam.

It would establish no precedent (to name a school after one not several honored veterans), he added, reminding of the Noonan School named for one of many who died in World War I; Leonard Field for Augustus Leonard, another of that War; the Lynch School for the two Lynch brothers killed in World War II and the Vinson-Owen School for the Town's famous skating family. He asked that the Meeting name the school "to enshrine his name in the hearts and memories of classmates, friends and neighbors."

Kendall Spencer rose next to say that he was sympathetic with Mr. Barbaro's suggestion, but he thought, "we can do no less than name the school after one town hero, the question is, can we do more?" He felt the school should have a name reflecting a larger perspective than that of one young man. He said that in line with the nationally angled naming of the Lincoln and Washington Schools, that it could, for instance, be named for the late Martin Luther King—or for someone whose name had this kind of broader connotation.

"Bond-Muraco" School?

John Horn came forward asking to amend the motion to call the school the Bond-Muraco School, after the first two Veterans who gave their life in this war. Mr. Horn, noting his 20 years of taking care of veterans' graves for the Town, said he was "only acting as a man employed by you to make the honors equal," and reminded that just three streets down from Francis Muraco, "a great boy in our Town who should have a great tribute," lived Richard W. Bond, also a 21-year-old corporal in the Marines. Lance Corporal Bond, he said, died in Vietnam March 8, 1966, the recipient of a bronze star, two purple hearts and four times decorated by the South Vietnam government.

"As we sit here," he went on, we have some 25 to 35 Winchester boys who are fighting in Vietnam tonight."

Michael Saraco, the author of Article 42, next gave strong endorsement to the Muraco name. Emphasizing the very strong neighborhood origins of the family he reminded the boy's mother was born there and that there are "three generations right there." "William J. Noonan was the 10th boy killed in World War I," he said, "but he was raised and born right there." And he cited Colucci Square named for Ralph Colucci as another example of the strength of meaning of the immediate neighborhood family concept.

Doris Emmons, at no time indicating what her choice of name would be excepting to suggest it "honor a Winchester educator," asked for an amendment to designate the School Committee to receive suggestions for its name. This was done after establishing, through Chairman Henry Porter of the Selectmen, that the Committee on Names, including the Selectmen's and Planning and Park Board chairmen, established by a March, 1930 Meeting, had been given authority to name streets, etc., but had no jurisdiction on schools.

School Committee Chairman Richard Schroeder said his group would sek judgment and recommendations as it had taken no formal action to name the Tufts School but would reconsider and seek recommendations. He suggested indefinite postponement, and he was followed by short, quick interjections:

Mr. Dexter: "I believe the School Committee does have the authority."

Austin Broadhurst: "The Vinson-Owen was named by the Town Meeting, also the McCall and Lynch Schools. I don't believe there is a statute on this."

Robert Winn: "How long has it been the School Committee?"

Mr. Barbaro: "If I remember, all names of schools have been Town Meeting Articles."

Moderator: "There's a gap here—regarding the Committee on Names."

Mr. Saraco: "Is there a statute which assigns to the School Committee the naming of schools?"

Town Counsel: "As far as I can determine, the Town Meeting can name a school."

Mr. Saraco: "Indefinitely postponing is one way for this Town to hide. If you do this, I'm telling you, you're going to come back here, because I'll make an amendment to vote it now." He added that no one had objected to the Article at the hearing and that no one had called him about it.

Herbert Lord: "Can I put in a motion that there is no such thing as a hero? You don't have to be a war hero to have a school named after you."

Mr. Horn: "I want it said that I did go to Mike Saraco on this."

John Bradley: "Could we have a secret ballot on this?"

Moderator: "This would take a two-thirds vote of Town Meeting."

The meeting voted down the motion to refer the naming to the School Committee, heard Mr. Borggaard suggest that the school be named for Mrs. McDonald and Loring Avenue Field for the athletic young men, and heard Mr. Spencer move that the naming go to the Committee on Names.

This last motion came to a voice vote which the Moderator interpreted as negative. But challenged, a standing count passed it, 101 to 66.

Mosquito Control

Immediately after recess, the Meeting took up Article 43, to ask the Town authorize a mosquito control program, with Emmanuel Iana of Bellevue Avenue speaking for groups of residents.

Mr. Iana cited academic authorities and listed pesticides in describing what he called safe ways to control the "serious situation in many areas—a real community problem."

Opposition to his program came most strongly from Dr. Robert Mobbs, who countered that research on toxicity of all pesticides named by Mr. Iana was still very limited; that there had been deaths recorded; and that in Woburn a child had suffered vomiting, headaches and other hallucinations which had been attributed to anti-mosquito spraying. "If the Town decides to do this," he said, "it should have an adequate liability insurance."

Kendall Spencer backed him up reading from Audobon Society data and asking efforts for prevention and control be pushed instead. The Finance Committee reported unfavorably.

Chairman Dr. Warren J. Taylor of the Board of Health appeared to be letting the Meeting settle the issue without a stand one way or the other, acting, he said, as a "referee." But when pressed for more opinion he detailed what could be done—1) join the East Middlesex control group at a minimum cost of $8,000; 2) train an employee in spraying techniques and purchase equipment, with the latter costing about $2,500 and each subsequent treatment about $600; or 3) contracting the job at about $670 a treatment.

The Meeting was told that there was no worry in the area about encephalitis and that it was late to try for the larvae, but not too late. It voted 88 to 62 to have the Board of Health initiate mosquito control.

Article 44, to re-name the Loring Avenue Playground the "Elizabeth C. McDonald Field," after the late Mrs. McDonald, was voted unanimously after Joseph Tansey reviewed the story of Mrs. McDonald's life here.

He related her graduation from High School at 14, and from Lowell Normal School summa cum laude; her highly regarded teaching career at the Wadleigh School, many years of extensive tutoring of local youngsters, and many years of work all over the area in naturalization education. He told that "her greatest contribution" was her constant playground and recreation interest, and how she fought hard to establish such areas as Davidson Park, the Town Forest and Loring Avenue.

Portable Classrooms

Article 45 was deferred to be considered with 48 and the School Department's request for portable classrooms with an attendant need of $57,000 to rent three "relocatable classrooms" for three years was presented by William C. Clark, acting superintendent.

Mr. Clark related that:

—Mystic School is in the most immediate need with 41 fifth and sixth graders presently bused to Tufts and 72 who cannot be housed expected next year;

—Tufts enrollment is such that the accommodation of these children there next year would put class sizes up to 34;

—at Wyman there are presently 162 students who cannot be cared for in their own school;

—busing costs are now $33 per day;

—the portable rooms would go first to Mystic to be used until the new High School allows present McCall students to move to the present WHS thus freeing McCall; and then they would be moved to Wyman.

In answer to questions he said that the Town Hall or Library space would likely be unacceptable for State approval and were not good learning environments; that all public safety criteria were answered by the portables; that the utilities were already in the school budget; that leasing was more practical than buying and then selling; that whereas the State would have picked up busing costs to a High School on the edge of Town, the Mystic to Tufts distances do not allow this.

He said also that the article was presented outside the budget as the Committee felt it a "kind of capital expenditure" and that the Town should have some say; and that if voted down, next year's busing would almost equal in cost that of renting the rooms. He stood firm against pressure that buying would be better than renting and was backed up on this by Mr. Dexter, who gave Finance Committee approval.

A voice vote carried the motion and the $11,130 needed for rental from September, '68 to Town Meeting, 1969.

The meeting next voted Article 47 appropriating monies for the Permanent Building Committee and also voted, at the behest of Philip Tesorero, chairman, that for the WHS project the members of the temporary Secondary School Building Committee be allowed to remain as working members until the construction is completed.

Chadwick Asks Town Study

Harrison Chadwick gave his moderating job to Town Clerk Elsie Nelson and came to the floor to argue Article 48, in the context of which he asked that a special committee of seven members be set up to study Winchester Town Government in all its aspects.

"I feel that the Town Government is operating under a 19th century aegis," he said. "It needs a new look." And he noted several conditions which make a study warranted, including the State's new Home Rule rulings putting each town more on its own; that adopting a Town Manager would demand a change in the charter and bring radical changes to local procedures; that the length of the 1968 Town Meeting sessions indicated something was wrong with them. He said that some towns have sessions that meet once a month, and have fewer members proportionately. "I feel a study in depth is needed," he concluded.

David Ashton, author of deferred Article 45, the Town Manager article, concurred, but noted that the study might well lead to the adoption of such an executive administrator. The Meeting voted the study, with a $1,000 appropriation.

BOOK REVIEW

THE THREE SUITORS

by Richard Jones

Lady Mignon Benson-Williams, widow of Sir Arthur, lives with her elderly brother, Freddie, in a crumbling Welsh farmhouse. Desperately needing money for repairs, Mignon cannot bring herself to accept money from a friend. Even though the friend is her niece's husband and the only member of the family to whom she feel close, she cannot lower her pride. Ashley, the would-be donor, is deeply hurt. And money Mignon must have. The long-dead Sir Arthur had been a Cabinet Secretary and had left reams of notes and diaries, mostly dull but so full of minutiae as to possibly provide sufficient scandal for the curious. A nephew suggeses she publish these and speaks to his editor about them. No one, except Mignon, expects the memoirs to be a success; but a young aesthete, Charles Milford, is sent by the publishing firm for a preliminary look-see. Mignon puts him up at the farm. He is her first suitor.

Into Mignon's household has dropped Nesta, her disagreeable daughter, with feckless son, Patrick, Nesta is much annoyed by the proximity of Rohama, her half-sister, Sir Arthur's by-blow, who has inherited one-half of the family property. Nesta is annoyed by almost everything.

Charles Milford is properly horrified by the diaries. "His papers are full of filth about people, you know. He's always naming lovers like an old brothel keeper." Charles refuses to feel that "bedroom stuff" may very well be the stuff of history and will not recommend them to his editors. Realizing his disapproval, Mignon writes to a newspaper with a view of having the diaries serialized, after which she will have her pick of publishers. Exit suitor No. 1. Nesta is very happy.

Mr. Jack Cappland of The Sunday Age is suitor No. 2 (actually Mignon is doing the wooing). However, he dresses sharply and has a "vile, coarse face." He finds no value in the diaries, either, but excerpts some signed letters from notables. Rohama attracts him. There may be real news in the life story of a great man's illegitimate child. He exerts his sexual appeal. Rohama sees through him and in her innate generosity continues to love her half-family, even the disagreeable, unhappy Nesta. The family ask Cappland to leave and there goes suitor No. 2.

And now comes Robert Couzens, suitor No. 3. He succeeds brilliantly where the others failed, and solves any number of attendant problems. Mignon is vindicated at last. She moves ahead into the future. Only the doubting, carping Nesta is left in a past which has always failed her.

Though The Three Suitors may sound Victorian, it is equally up-to-date. Mignon (brought up in a time when a girl's premarital advice from her mother was to "lie in bed and think of the British Empire") is not herself a very nice mother, though addressing Nesta as "darling!" while tearing her apart. Cappland is truly vulgar—on the printed page. But each individual stands out like a jewel, simon-pure in himself. Would God more writers has Mr. Jones' gift of personalization—and such interesting characters to personalize!

A Local Convention Delegate Speaks to the April 30 Vote

Many citizens, unaccustomed to voting in the presidential primary and unfamiliar with the new Massachusetts electoral law, have confessed to a feeling of confusion about the issues involved in the April 30 primary. Leaving the Republican ballot to others, I offer the following notes on that part of the Democratic ballot which deals with the presidency. They may serve to answer some of the questions which still beset the voters.

Massachusetts will be represented at the Democratic National Convention at Chicago in August by 82 delegates, 58 are members of an at-large slate consisting of prominent figures in the Massachusetts Democratic party. They will cast a total of 48 votes. This slate is unopposed and the names of its members, according to information received from the Massachusetts Election Commission, will not appear on the ballot or voting machine. In addition to the at-large slate, two delegates are elected in each of the twelve congressional districts. Two alternates are also elected in each district.

In several congressional districts, including our own 7th, two slates are entered. One of these is designated as "favorable to Senator Eugene McCarthy" and the other, selected by the State Democratic Committee and the congressman if he is a Democrat, is nominally unpledged. In those districts where there is a contest, position on the ballot has been determined by a public drawing. In our district, the slate pledged to Senator McCarthy drew first place. It is expected that the names of the candidates on this slate will appear immediately after Senator McCarthy's name on the ballot or voting machine. The delegates on this slate are Louis Kirstein of Revere, a former mayor of that city, and John Dixon Elder of Arlington, Dean of Students at Harvard Divinity School. Alternates are Ruth D. Terzaghi of Winchester, Research Fellow at Harvard, and John O'Brien of Malden, a high school teacher in Malden.

Massachusetts electoral law requires that all delegates cast their first-ballot votes for the winner of the presidential preferential primary, irreverently called the "popularity contest." In as much as Senator McCarthy is unopposed in Massachusetts, he will doubtless receive the 72 votes cast by Massachusetts on the first ballot. On later ballots, unpledged delegates are free to vote as they wish. If the President had not taken himself out of the contest, nominally unpledged delegates would doubtless have voted for him on the second ballot. Delegates pledged to Senator McCarthy will continue to vote for him until he wins or releases them.

This bare outline should help to reduce the confusion surrounding the selection of delegates and their roles in the national convention. It fails, however, to reflect the tremendous groundswell of popular interest in the electoral process. It also leaves untouched the current surge of determination to diminish the hold of the organization politician of the nomination of presidential candidates. The fielding of citizens' slates of delegates is a manifestation of this determination. In a time of crisis, we are all beginning to realize that politics is too important to leave entirely to the professional politicians.

Sincerely,
Ruth D. Terzaghi

"One Man, One Vote, One Buck"

Editor of the Star:

Now that April 15 has come and gone and many of us are still smarting from that little accounting to the Internal Revenue Department, let me rub a little more salt in the wounds. All of us are hurting, but some comfort themselves by believing that we're all in the same boat and we don't hurt much more or less than the next guy. Don't you believe it!! If you're the type of man (or woman) likely to read this page, you're probably paying most of the freight on this great society.

The Federal Bureau of Internal Revenue publishes annually a rather voluminous report called "Statistics of Income" which gives some interesting information compiled from Individual (not Corporate) Income Tax Returns. Since the government gets a little over 50% of its administrative income from income taxes, this document is pretty representative of who is paying what—if not by name, at least by category. It takes a while to compile this information so the latest available report only covers 1965, but a study of the trend indicates that the 1968 report will only show more drift in the same direction.

Let's take a look at what the "median" taxpayer pays. The figure is $376. There are just as many taxpayers paying more than this amount as there are paying less. Of course the taxpayers above this median line, as a group, pay substantially more than those below the line. In fact, they pay ten times as much. Those below the line pay only 9% of the total while those above pay 91%.

Most people think of averages, which is the figure you get by dividing the total dollars received by the number of returns filed. This figure is $922 but is really meaningless. 75% of the tax returns pay less than this amount.

If you're mathematically inclined, you can construct a graph from the data in "Statistics of Income" which will show you precisely what percentage of the taxpayers pay what percent of the tax dollars. The graph is most interesting even though discouraging. The top 10% of the tax returns account for 50% of the dollars. Of course you say these are the very rich who can easily afford to pay. Well, sir or madam, if you earn more than $11,000 per year, adjusted gross income, then you are a member of this select group of very rich and are expected to ante up accordingly.

While you are doing this, think of the 10% of taxpayers at the other end of the scale. They, as a group, pay less than one twentieth of one percent of the tax monies. That means for a neat little ratio of over 1,000 to 1 in tax contribution between the top 10% and the bottom 10%. Nice to know we're all pulling together in supporting our government—$1 from this man, $1,000 from another. Sort of like the famous recipe for stretching out a rabbit stew by mixing in an equal quantity of horse meat—one horse to one rabbit.

If you're one of those "rich" people who are getting pretty incensed at all this, don't take pen in hand and immediately write your congressman or senator. He couldn't care less about you and you're picayune 10% of the vote. HE's got his eyes on the 51% of the taxpayers (lower bracket of course) who also happen to be voters in the comfortable majority and they pay only 10% of the tax dollars. He can promise them all sorts of federal goodies at the low price of ten cents on the dollar. Who can resist that? He gets elected, the 51% get what they wanted at very little cost, and you in that upper 10%—well try whistling Dixie while you pay, and pay, and pay.

It all goes back to a very simple political formula worked out by FDR and his associates more than 30 years ago. The formula reads "spend and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect." It really wasn't new with FDR. The Roman politicians, just before the whole business collapsed, used it too only they called it "bread and circuses" or something like that. In this country the Democrats have polished this formula to a high degree of efficiency, but you can't get an exclusive patent on this sort of thing so the Republicans are getting pretty good at it also.

If thoughts of that old battle cry "Taxation without Representation" well up in your head—forget it. After all we do have taxation, and we do have representation so what difference does it make if some get all the taxes and the others get all the representation. As is so often heard these days, most people never had it so good. Never did so many get so much from so few.

Without any silly notion that it would revolutionize people's thinking, or even change their views significantly, I would suggest a slogan which might make a good bumper sticker (but not for any candidate I ever heard of). It would read:

ONE MAN—ONE VOTE—ONE BUCK

Maybe just a few people could be induced to put their money where their mouth is, and every little bit helps. You got any better ideas on how to make the USA financially solvent?

Very truly yours,
M. H. Nickerson

"Troublemaker?" Of Course!

Editor of the Star:

Thank you for your discerning editorial in last week's Star. May I comment on the charge of some that Martin Luther King, Jr., was a "trouble maker."

Of course he was a trouble maker! As an indictment this is meaningless until we ask, why? and, about what? He was not only immersed in modern sociology and psychology. He was steeped in the Bible, and this was the root of his ideology. He knew his Bible, he loved it, and, above all, he took it seriously, especially its sentiments about injustice.

He knew about Moses' leadership of a slave insurrection in ancient Egypt. He knew about Elijah's challenge to Ahab and Jezebel when they tried to steal Naboth's vineyard, and the subsequent attack of the prophets from Amos to Ezekiel upon materialism and superficial lip-service to God. He knew about Jesus' affront to the civil and religious establishment of first-century Judaism. He knew about the Apostle Paul's capacity to elicit the charge of turning the world upside down.

One has a right to disavow this heritage, tacitly to challenge King's conviction that in the biblical story God is saying something to our day about injustice and trouble making with respect to it. But, unless he can come up with a better precedent, the challenger might think twice before he does so.

If this is not enough, one might bring to the fore, with patriotic sentiments, the tradition of dissent within our history. Where would we be as a nation without the trouble makers? In the first place, there would have been no Declaration of Independence. Why say more?

Sincerely,
Donald T. Rowlingson

Disturbed At "Dove" Activity In Winchester

Editor of the Star:

I was very happy to receive a copy of the Winchester Star a few weeks ago. Even though I am now living temporarily in Long Beach, California and enjoying a winter far removed from the snow and cold of Winchester. California cannot match the warmth of the people of Winchester and of my beloved Massachusetts.

I was disturbed, however, to see a full page ad in the Star urging our government to halt the bombing in Vietnam and to take a more dovish stance in our foreign policy. The most disturbing part of the ad was not the message but the fact that so many prominent citizens and clergymen signed the ad as sponsors.

Surely Massachusetts is not forgetting the traditions of her noble history. We started, at Lexington and Concord, what the rest of the Colonials did not dare start. We were the first to answer President Lincoln's call for troops in 1861. Thousands of our sons have died and lie buried in hundreds of far away and strange soils. We have given our nation three native-born sons and one adopted son to be her presidents. And yet, now, when our country is going through one of her most agonizing struggles, we find some of our fellow citizens deserting her.

I am not satisfied by the reply that these people are in the minority or that they are sincere. The end result is the same—a prolonged conflict with more casualties. Where were these people when we bombed Berlin? Where were they when the Japanese fell by the thousands? Why is there more concern for the North Vietnamese than there is for the South Vietnamese innocents slaughtered by Viet Cong terrorists? Or for German civilians in World War II? Or for Japanese civilians? Or for their own American fighting men? What is happening? Do the communists have to launch an attack against Cape Cod before these people realize the danger to our very way of life? To everything these protestors' ancestors died for?

It is indeed unfortunate that people have to die in war but it is a fact. It is also a fact that the communists started this war. It may sound most inhumane but to me the entire population of Hanoi and Haiphong is not worth as much to me as the life or limb of one American soldier.

Of course now the war shall continue at least until after election. Ho Chi Minh would have to be a fool to give up when there is a chance that the American people will give him the victory he could not get from the American soldiers. I believe that from now until November the blood of every American casualty is on the conscience of every vociferous protestor who is prolonging the war. I could not sleep with that on my mind but perhaps that is because I am so inhumane.

Sincerely yours,
Joseph Albiani

By "Barge" To Kindergarten About 1900

Editor of the Star:

It was interesting to read in a recent issue of the Star that public kindergartens were established in Winchester 75 years ago.

I was one of those fortunate ones who attended in those days. When I went, about 1900, we were met at the old Rumford School by a horse drawn barge (from the Taylor stables) and transported to the old Washington School on Cross Street.

One very clear recollection was the day I ran back home across the field from the barge, crying. My mother never knew why I cried but she took me into the house and quickly changed my dress and put on my "best" one while the barge waited.

The late Miss Taylor was my teacher. She always rode in the barge with us. We carried bread and butter sandwiches in little baskets for our morning lunch.

I have always been proud to say that I was educated in the fine schools of Winchester from kindergarten through high school.

Sincerely,
Maude Gurney Dover

'Man Among Men'

Editor of the Star:

If it is possible and acceptable I would like very much if you would print this poem that I wrote in memory of Dr. Martin Luther King in your newspaper. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

A Man Among Men
by Mary Jo Hines

King shed his blood for his neighbor,
Through love and hard labor.
He tried to be like Christ the King,
By serving others like you and me.

A holy man whose words were true,
Whose eyes had seen the glory too,
Has met the death, the Saviour knew,
Because one man couldn't see him through.

I praise you, Martin Luther King
For having won blessings from Christ, the King.

Historical League To Gather in May

The Winchester Historical Society announces the quarterly meeting of the Bay State Historical League on May 4.

The Connecticut Valley Historical Museum will be the host society for the meeting to be held at the William Pyncheon Memorial Building in Springfield.

The business meeting starts at 2 p.m. followed by Miss Juliette Tomlinson's giving a talk on "Local History and the Museum."

Town Meeting

The last presentation of the session was that of Finance Chairman Dexter who asked two votes. Stating the Excess and Deficiency Fund to stand now at $859,000 he requested that $200,000 be taken from it and applied to reduce the tax level. And he asked $100,000 be appropriated by revenue to go into the Stabilization Fund.

He went on to describe that the measures were needed to protect the Town's "triple A" borrowing rating; that a drop to "double A" could cost it as much as $25,000 with the present bond situations; and that in the long term both measures would represent long term savings.

"I believe any action other than these will injure the Town," he said. And the meeting voted his requests.

Total tax outlook: $72.85.

Jeremiah McCarron moved the adjournment of the record 1968 session at 11:25 p.m. and the members made for the exits.

Ailing electrical appliances and fixtures should be given to professional repairmen. The Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company warns that amateur electrical repairing not only is likely to prove more costly in the long run, but also is a principal cause of home fires and injuries.

Fire

The fire at the Armstrong home was extinguished first. Then, as firefighters continued to pour water on both houses, others vented the fire on the roof of the white duplex house. Two aerial ladders were placed into position and soon the fire leaped to the sky. Lines were then brought to the roof over ladders and water poured down onto the fire, which had raced across an attic floor on which there was no wall separating the two apartments.

Soon after the Armstrong house was thought to be extinguished and the men had turned their attention more fully next door, fire reappeared again in the three-story brown house.

Work continued late into the evening, and Winchester firefighters were on duty in the area all night and throughout the next day.

Many spectators were drawn to the fire, were there on Easter also, and still come to see the burned-out houses. Furniture and belongings were saved in the Haber family's side of the duplex as the fire was brought under control at this point. A very few things were saved by the Searles family. Belongings of the Armstrongs were comlpetely consumed.

Dr. Paul Kelleher, a Church Street surgeon, rushed to the fire to assist and treated several of the firefighters. William Connell of Malden was taken to the nearby home of Dr. Warren Haley, orthomologist, treated for an eye injury reportedly from flying glass and then driven to the Massachusetts Eye and Ear.

Local firefighters injured included Robert Powers and Robert Sullivan, both overcome with smoke and taken to the Hospital; and Thomas McDonough, Robert Swymer, Douglas Rae, Norman Delorey, John Farrell, Jr., John McLeod, Vincent Benincasa, Lt. Stygles, and Captains Peter Galuffo and Howard. Also injured was Auxiliary firefighter George Thompson.

At about midnight that night State Fire Marshall Leo Walsh joined Chief Amico in the first investigation of cause. The next day Marshall Ralph Garrett also went over the porch area of the Swan-owned home.

Although they looked into other suggested causes, they agreed that the most likely start of the fire was from a circular, grill about 30 inches across, which had been positioned about halfway across the porch. Nearby the grill was a one-half gallon can of lighting fluid which had been, according to Commander Searles statement to them, about one-fourth full and with no cover. This was empty. Parts of the grill were found down below the porch, as it had burned through the floor. The porch had been heavily screened with dried, just budding, bittersweet vine.

Flames had raced from the porch into the Searles' living room, but at almost the same time, if not before, had jumped the area to the Armstrong home, attacking most quickly and thoroughly to the back of that house.

Don't let an electrical fire become a current event in your home. The Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company points out that many such fires originate from broken switches, dirty sparking motors, loose wiring connections, defective appliances, and frayed or bared cords.

James E. Connell, Jr., Winchester chairman for the 1968 American Cancer Society Campaign, has obtained the cooperation of the following local businessmen to coordinate the local fund-raising drive: Charles F. Student Council Starts Tutoring. "Work Search"

Winchester High's Student Council started work search and student tutoring programs during the past year.

The purpose of "the work search program" is to find part-time and summer employment for high school students. The committee has sent out letters to various stores, companies, and corporations asking if they have job openings. These job openings have been posted on a special bulletin board in the guidance office for the convenience of the students. Any employer seeking part-time or summer help should contact the Student Council Work Search Committee.

The student tutoring program enables students to obtain help from fellow students during study periods. This provides private tutoring to the student during school when teacher assistance is not available.

Lisa Spang, vice-president of Student Council, was the chairman of the work search project, while Lynne Jones, secretary of the council, and Greg Cronin, a council member, organized the student tutoring program.

Mrs. Woodward Discusses April 30 Election

"Who runs the Republican party? Who is responsible for its policies? Who selects its candidates and provides financial support for their campaigns? You do—you the voters, Republican or Independent, provide the answers to these questions every four years," Sara C. Woodward, candidate for Republican State Committeewoman, told a group of young Republicans from Arlington and Winchester, meeting at the Ronald Nigro home at 34 Forest Street, Arlington.

SARA C. WOODWARD

"On April 30th we elect the Republican organization to carry out this work," she continued. "It is, therefore, deplorable that so small a percentage of voters turn out for these elections. We will elect a State Committee, charged with establishing the Party policy, program and finances; the delegates to the National Convention, who elect the Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates and the members of the National Committee; and our City and Town Committee members, who, within the framework of the Party programs, carry out our local responsibilities.

"This year the voters have a choice at each level. I urge you to vote for those who believe in Active Republicanism, who lead, not follow, who can increase Republican strength in this District.

"In my home town of Winchester we gained 35 registered Republican voters in five years while the Democrats gained 1170. Is that Active Republicanism?

"I ask for your vote to strengthen the leadership of the State Committee and the links to the Local Committees. Choose a Republican organization that can win Republican victories."

Mrs. Woodward lives at 13 Sheffield Road, Winchester.

The Lesson-Sermon to be read this Sunday in all Christian Science churches is titled "Doctrine of Atonement." It includes this verse from John: "For God sent not his son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved."

Among passages to be read from the denominational textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following: "Every pang of repentance and suffering, every effort for reform, every good thought and deed, will help us to understand Jesus' atonement for sin and aid its efficacy; but if the sinner continues to pray and repent, sin and be sorry, he has little part in the atonement,—in the at-one-ment with God,—for he lacks the practical repentance, which reforms the heart and enables man to do the will of wisdom."

The program on April 21st at 10:40 in the church chancel will consist entirely of music from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and will have three choir members, Susan Adams, Betsy Ewing and Carol Leitch sing "Lift Thine Eyes."

The program follows:

"For He Shall Give His Angels," Contralto and Choir
"Lord God of Abraham," Baritone
"Cast They Burden Upon the Lord," Choir

The first anthem will be "He Watching Over Israel" sung by the choir and the second anthem "O Come Everyone That Thirsteth," sung by the Quartette.

The Organ Postlude "March of the Priests," from "Athalie" by Mendelssohn, will be played by Mary Ranton Witham.

Members of the Winchester Unitarian Quartette are: Estelle McNeely, soprano; Barbara Wood, contralto; William Jeffery, tenor; Sidney C. Blanchard, Jr., baritone.

Witnesses Plan Convention

Jehovah's Witnesses from Winchester will be actively participating in a 16-congregation convention at Fitchburg, April 19 to 21. Twice a year congregations tied together as a "circuit" meet for a three-day circuit assembly.

"The assembly program is not a business conference for religious officials," according to Paul G. Genaris, presiding minister of the Burlington Congregation, "but is a gathering of all Jehovah's Witnesses and interested persons to hear faith-strengthening Bible counsel. In addition to special talks and demonstrations, an opportunity is presented for those who have recently made a dedication to God to symbolize it by public baptism."

Preparations are being made for 1300 delegates to be at Fitchburg High School at 3 p.m. Sunday for the convention's featured lecture, "Why Does God Permit Wickedness?" by Paul R. Ruggles, New England district supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses.

Students Present Music Program

Elementary school age music students, under the sponsorship of the Winchester Music Club's teachers' committee, gave a varied program on Sunday, April 7, at the home of Mrs. Carl Thomas, 15 Oxford Street.

The success of the Music Club's programs, which include performances by junior and senior high school music students, prompted both parents and teachers to support an occasional program for younger students who will soon be eligible for Music Club membership.

Four members of the Winchester Music Club assisted with the April 7 program. Marjorie Sexton was mistress of ceremonies, Jenni Null was piano accompanist, and Douglas DeNatale and Margaret Cormack helped in planning the program.

Music teachers whose students took part in the program were Edith Bolster, Ruth Hayden, Doris Thomas, Marguerite Webb, Albert Horn, Edward Mitchell, Jr., and John Willis, Jr.

The following program was presented. The music was performed on the piano unless otherwise indicated.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

"Mr. Mercurio," a lady said on the phone, "this is Mrs. Lenning. As you know, my husband, Joe, is quite sick and I've had to take over our business for a while. Would you please come see me?"

"The reason I called you," Mrs. Lenning said, "is that I can't understand our insurance policies. They might just as well be written in Russian! They are just a lot of paper, thousands of words, and almost all of them confusing. Yet I know they're important."

"Would you like me to translate their technical language into everyday English?" I asked.

"Please do," she said. Carefully, I explained what the policies said and meant—in words she could easily understand.

"Thank you," Mrs. Lenning said. "Now I feel I have some idea of our insurance program. I won't worry about it anymore. If I need any more answers, I know that you are just as close as the phone. Believe me, that's wonderful service!"

May we offer our professional Insurance SERVICE to you as well?

What's Your Favorite Hymn

What's your favorite hymn?

If you've never thought about that question, you might want to turn it over in your mind now, because Winchester will be one of the towns Seventh-day Adventists of the New England Memorial Church will be making a sampling survey by personal calls or letters on Saturday afternoon, April 27.

The local poll will be part of a nationwide survey involving more than 1,000 other cities and towns explained Pastor Arnold R. Swanson.

"Through this poll we hope that people will be reminded of the beauty and strength found in religious music," said the pastor. "The 10 most popular hymns of this area will be announced locally, so that those visited will see how their choice rated."

The pastor said that in October two national radio and television programs, Voice of Prophecy and Faith for Today, will feature the most popular hymns across North America.

Program on Higher Education Set for May 1st at High School

Representatives from over 60 institutions of higher education—colleges, universities, secretarial schools, junior colleges, business schools, technical schools, and nursing schools—have been invited to participate in an educational workshop on Wednesday, May 1 at the Winchester High School.

This same program was held the night of the sneak November snow storm. Since much interest was shown, it is being repeated now so that those who were unable to attend at that time may do so now. The Guidance Department has arranged for the program and the Parent-Faculty Association urges parents and students to take advantage of the evening.

Although many high school seniors have already been accepted at schools for next year, there are still many who are undecided. This will let them question and explore further possibilities. All high school students, ninth grade students from McCall and Lynch Junior High Schools, and their parents are urged to attend.

The program will start promptly at 7:30 in the auditorium of WHS. Dr. Howard Niblock, WHS principal, will explain the procedure for visiting with the college representatives. The rest of the evening will consist of four 20-minute periods during which parents and students will go to classrooms to visit with the representatives of any four schools in which they may be interested.

Throughout the evening materials used by students and counselors in the guidance department will be on display in the gymnasium. These will include a student transcript, which is sent out with every college application, the College View Deck which provides a method identification of colleges meeting specific requirements of the student, and the College Pre-viewer, which gives information through pictures and tape about the physical structure and appearance of a school.

The Volkswagen for people who refuse to drive Volkswagens.

© VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it's ugly, we can't help you.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you have eight kids and it isn't big enough, you have our sympathy.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it isn't fancy enough, that's for you to decide.

But if you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you're used to an automatic transmission, listen carefully.

Now you can drive a Volkswagen all over town without shifting.

We call this new option the automatic stick shift.

And in true Volkswagen fashion, a bug with an automatic stick shift will deliver up to 25 miles on a gallon of gas, use very little oil, and nary a drop of water or antifreeze.

But just because we've made it easy to drive, doesn't mean we're about to make it any prettier, or any bigger, or any fancier. So we imagine some people will still refuse to drive Volkswagens.

You can't win them all.

Noonan Welcomes Haiku Author

"Communication, today, is of vital importance," began Mrs. Maueve O. Finley, as she spoke recently at Noonan, "and Haiku is one of the highest forms of communication available to us."

According to Mrs. Finley, Haiku (pronounced hi-koo), simply stated is a three-line poem consisting of 17 syllables; five in the first line, seven in the second, and five in the third. Subject matter is boundless —school, play, animals, nature, and space. "It is an outline only and lets the reader or writer draw his own picture.'

"Brevity is the life and soul of Haiku," Mrs. Finley continued, "and it is just this factor that makes it suitable and enjoyable for all, young, old, bright and not so bright."

Mrs. Finley is an elementary teacher in the Newton school system and author of the recently published book, "Haiku For You." Originally from Ireland, she became interested in this Japanese art form while working toward her master's degree in education at Harvard.

Mrs. Finley feels that by learning the basic literary format and using it as a jumping off place, the creative girl or boy will be stimulated to find new outlets for restless imaginations and be motivated to discover new adventures with words. "To find synonyms," added the author, "I introduce the children to the thesaurus; something most of us were not familiar with until we were in college."

During her talk, Mrs. Finley displayed many examples of what children's (including kindergartener's) young and uninhibited minds can create. Especially enjoyed by the audience was one in which a very young student was asked to substitute a third line to one of Mrs. Finley's original works. The result, showing much practicality was:

Going to the moon
Will not be much fun unless
Return trips are planned.

Refreshments were served as the audience viewed a display of some of the many hand-crafted articles which will be featured at this year's spring festival on Saturday, May 4, from 10 to 2.

Miss Roseanne Bowen's third grade class was awarded the monthly attendance banner.

Bettie Donald's To Celebrate 12th Anniversary

The Bettie Donald Corset and Maternity Shop at 5 Winchester Terrace is observing its 12th anniversary this April.

The proprietor, Bettie Donald, received her early training in the women's wear field in a Boston specialty shop. She became buyer of corsetry and foundations and continued in that capactiy for several years before being made buyer of lingerie.

A graduate of the Camp School of Surgical Garments, she opened her own corset shop in the Waterfield Building in 1956.

Mrs. Donald has been gratified to have so many customers, now living far from Winchester, in all parts of the states and Europe.

In addition the shop has a department of fine lingerie and a selection of better robes.

A complete maternity department of quality dresses, sportswear and undergarments makes for convenient local shopping.

Easter Seal Seeks Funds

Mail contributions to the Easter Seal appeal from generous friends of crippled children and adults in the Winchester area were reported today at $1,328 by Richard Ingersoll, area treasurer for the annual appeal. The local goal is $1,900.

U. S. Senator Edward W. Brooke is general chairman of the $430,000 statewide drive.

In making the announcement, Mr. Ingersoll said that " . . . if crippled children and adults are to continue to receive the multiple services they need to overcome their disabilities, a generous public must be counted on to meet the modest goal."

"Returns to date are encouraging," he said, "but I urge everyone who is concerned about the future of our physically disabled citizens to contribute what they can as soon as they can so that this work may be continued."

Gifts may be sent to the Easter Seal Society in care of Richard D. Ingersoll, Winchester Trust Company, Winchester.

1,000 Women Have Coffee With Cynthia L. Barone

Davis Photo

CYNTHIA L. BARONE

One thousand women in Arlington, Medford and Winchester should be drinking coffee at Coffee Parties this week from empty cups! That is, unless they want to make their own coffee and pour it for themselves.

Cynthia L. Barone of Winchester explains it this way, "For a busy housewife, too many coffee party invitations can become really hard to fit into a weekly schedule," said Mrs. Barone, "So I dreamed up the idea of 'Silent Coffee Hours' for which my friends need not get 'dressed up' or move out of their own kitchens!"

Mrs. Barone, a well-known Republican worker of many campaigns and valuable helper to many candidates, has recently become a candidate herself, running for Republican State Committeewoman in the Sixth Senatorial District including Arlington, Medford and Winchester. She is solving some of her communication problems by her ingenious coffee hours.

Approximately 50 of Cynthia's friends have been busily addressing letters to their friends during the past two weeks until the number of letters has hit the 900 mark and is growing all the time.

The letters state that the writer would like to have a Candidate's Coffee Hour for her friend, Cynthia L. Barone, but really doesn't want to take Cynthia's time or the time of her own busy acquaintances.

"Consequently," says the letter, "I am having a 'Silent Coffee Hour' today for my friend Cynthia Barone, via mail! I am sending you her list of activities, each one of which meant many continuous hours of labor for the Republican Party.

"Cynthia is seeking a spot on the Republican State Committee which is a step up from the Republican Town Committee work she has been doing for many years. She is already known in the Committees of Arlington, Medford and Winchester; the groups with which she would work if elected.

"Will you take the time (which you might spend going to a Candidate Coffee Party) to read over and consider this blue sheet then call me if you have any questions? AND DON'T FORGET TO VOTE ON APRIL 30TH!"

Regarded as a real "instant coffee" hour by her friends...the idea caught on immediately and much good-will and fun went along with the whole project.

The letters are being dumped into the postal bins at the various Post Offices this week and a thousand women, come-as-you-are, will be opening their mail in hair rollers, house dresses, slacks, or ready-for-the-street wear and find that, without warning, they are in the middle of a Coffee Klatch!

By the time the last letter has been postmarked in Winchester, Cynthia Barone will be off campaigning somewhere else, and Cynthia Barone doesn't drink coffee anyway, she takes milk, thank you!

The candidate is married to Dr. William D. Barone, Winchester physician also interested in government, and the mother of two grown children, Debby, 20, a Junior at Springfield College; and Greg, 17, a Senior at Winchester High School.

League to Study Fiscal Policy

The League of Women Voters invites citizens to attend their monthly units, to be held April 23, 24, and 25, to understand better the dollars and sense facts of public life.

This month's League study item will be state fiscal policy. The study will include a general look at the distribution of state funds, revenues, and expenditures, augmented by an examination of the budgetary procedures of the executive and legislative branches of state government. The goal is to learn what the current situation is to discover what is involved in financing a state government. In essence, the point is to learn where the money comes from, where it goes, and who says so.

In fiscal 1959 the governor's recommended budget was for $418 million; for fiscal 1969 it is for $1.2 billion. Why the great rise in public spending, not only in the past decade, but in the past 25 years? Is it an alarming development of runaway bureaucracy, or does it signify a healthy increase in the quality of our lives?

The meetings will be as follows:

Tuesday, April 23, 7:45 p.m. home of Mrs. Lewis L. Wadsworth, Jr., 54 Wedgemere Avenue; Chairman Mrs. John C. McPhail, 729-2993.

Wednesday, April 24, 9:15 a.m., home of Mrs. John F. White, 16 Sheffield Road; Chairman, Mrs. A. S. Goldin, 729-4629.

Wednesday, April 24, 1:00 p.m., home of Mrs. William E. Spaulding, 379 Main Street; Chairman, Mrs. Donald L. Puffer, 729-1737.

Thursday, April 25, 9:15 a.m., home of Mrs. Winfield Knopf, 223 Main Street; Chairman, Mrs. John H. Sandbo, 729-6325.

The chairman of each unit will arrange transportation for those requesting it.

Simmons Club To Meet Tuesday

The Arlington Winchester Simmons Club will hold its next meeting at the home of Jean Robinson of Winchester on Tuesday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m.

The speaker will be Dr. David Miller, of Winchester, who will discuss his experiences in South America on the USS Hope.

Graduates LPN Pilot Program

Mrs. Maria Sterling of 41 Warren Street, West Medford, wife of Winchester Star employee Ed Sterling, formerly of Winchester, was one of a class of 56 graduating from the Commonwealth Center Practical Nurse Program at exercises held in the auditorium of the Chelsea Soldiers Home on April 9.

MRS. MARIA STERLING

The program, the first of its kind in the country, was for those who were licensed under the waiver law of 1958-60 and was conceived by the Bureau of Vocational Education, Mass. Department of Education, in connection with the Mass. Division of Employment Security, with the assistance of the U. S. Department of Health and Education to help alleviate the shortage of qualified nursing throughout the country.

The program consisted of an intensive six-months' course for qualified students of Middlesex County and was split into two groups, one in training at the Chelsea Soldiers Home, the other at Choate Memorial Hospital, with affiliation with other hospitals in the area.

The success of this experiment is expected to give impetus to similar programs throughout the country to fill a real need in the nursing profession.

Mrs. Sterling expects to resume her duties at Mt. Auburn Hospital in the near future.

Cooley's Anemia Month Is Noted

Governor John A. Volpe has designated April as Cooley's Anemia month in Massachusetts and asked citizens throughout the Commonwealth for their wholehearted co-operation and support of the Cooley's Anemia drive.

The year old Massachusetts Chapter of the Cooley's Anemia Blood and Research Foundation for Children, Inc. was established to help fight Cooley's Anemia, an incurable childhood blood disease which often requires blood transfusions every three weeks to keep its victims alive.

This April an intensive blood donor drive will be conducted throughout Massachusetts with the aid of the Massachusetts Blood Program of the American Red Cross in an effort to increase the blood reserves for Cooley's Anemia victims.

Cooley's Anemia, first described in 1925 by Dr. Thomas B. Cooley, is an hereditary disease, primarily affecting children of Mediterranean descent and especially prevalent in children of Greek and Italian ancestry. The disease is also known as Thalassemia and Mediterranean Anemia.

The School Department Division of Instruction under Assistant Superintendent Walter Gleason has announced that dismissal of all elementary and secondary school pupils in the public schools will be noon on Tuesday, April 23.

These visitations have been prepared for in earlier released time workshops.

Venezuelan Native Acts on Desire For More Communication With U. S.

A newcomer to Winchester has brought with her a wish for greater friendship and communication between South America and New England. And with the wish comes a determination to take concrete action to effect this.

Mrs. Mercedes de Meyer has already presented Governor John A. Volpe with a plaque commemorating the founding of Caracas 400 years ago. A native of Venezuela, now living at 145 Cambridge Street, Mrs. Meyer sought to highlight the friendship between Boston and Caracas. She observed that both cities were deeply involved in the beginnings of independence movements.

In her meeting with the Governor, Mrs. Meyer, who is a public relations specialist with offices in Caracas and Boston, conveyed greetings from the Federal District Municipal Council in Caracas to the people of Massachusetts.

The wife of Edwin A. Meyer, an Oklahoma native, who is in the international sales department of the Badger Co. in Cambridge, Mrs. Meyer entered public relations about three years ago with another Venezuelan woman. By running their own firm in Caracas they joined the very few women in South America who hold managerial positions. Presently they plan to work to increase tourism between this country and Venezuela.

Before moving here from Caracas last fall. Mrs. Meyer had her own television and radio programs. She has also written articles on economics using her educational background obtained as a student at Ohio Northern University. She attended high school in Ohio after early schooling in France.

Mrs. Meyer is the mother of four daughters including Shirley and Julie, who are students at Winchester High School, and Patricia Isabel, a pre-schooler. A married daughter is studying in Oklahoma.

Citizens' Group To Combat Crime With Programs

A group of special programs to "combat the continuing deterioration of moral values as reflected in the growing tolerance of law breaking and uninvolvement on the part of citizens," was announced recently by the New England Citizens Crime Commission.

Dr. Edward B. Benedict, president of the NECCC, said the projects have been designed "to alert the private citizens of Massachusetts to the perilous situation and to rally them into citizens action groups."

He said the Commission is already working with local service organizations ranging from Chamber of Commerce, church groups, League of Women Voters, community agencies, veterans and fraternal organizations, and student and golden age groups.

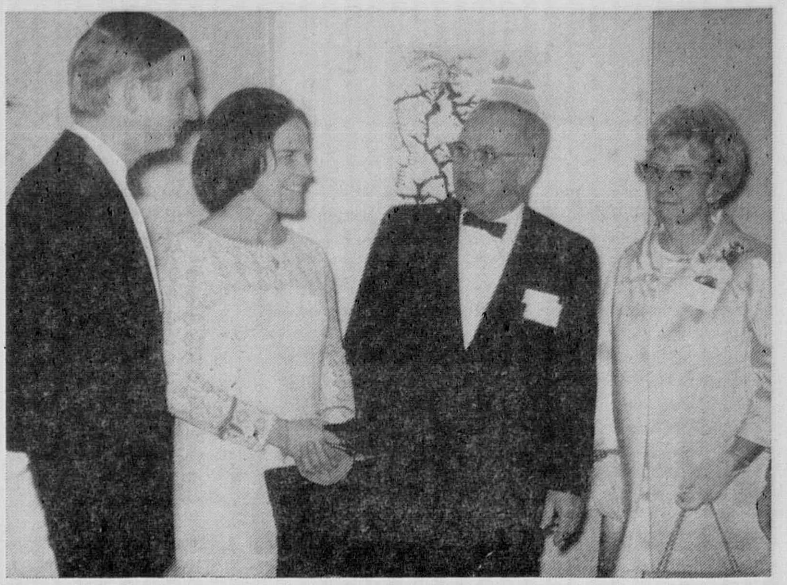
The programs dealing with strengthening state and local police forces, preventing juvenile delinquency, improving the correctional system and attacking the auto theft problem, were outlined by Dr. Benedict in a special release from the Commission's offices.

The Commission is launching a state-wide "Lock your car" campaign in May in an attempt to improve Massachusetts' record for car thefts—now the worst in the country.

The Commission's program to strengthen the polic calls for higher salaries — "commensurate with the risk police take for our safety" and for a cadet program for high school seniors who desire to become police officers.

Qualified cadets will receive scholarship loans to the University of Mass. or a community college. Upon graduation, 20 percent of the loan will be eliminated for each year they spend in police work.

In furthering the prevention of juvenile delinquency, the Commission will assist Massachusetts communities in establishing Youth Resource Councils to guide troubled youngsters referred by police, schools and parents.



WINCHESTER COUPLES recently attending the exhibition "Great Ideas of Western Man," sponsored by the Container Corporation of America at the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln, were (from left) Mr. and Mrs. Ruut Van Den Hoed and Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Rauch. Mr. Rauch is general manager of the corporation's Wakefield plant. Mrs. Van Den Hoed is director of design for the corporation, but tomorrow he will be attired a little differently and will have his attention directed more on the design of the Prudential Tower than on abstracts. He is entered to run in Boston's M.A.A. Marathon Race.

The League of St. Apollonia will hold its annual spring luncheon and fashion show at Anthony's Pier 4 on Thursday, April 25 at 12 noon. Children's fashions will be featured by Cara Lisa Designs, Ltd. Proceeds will benefit the missions in dentistry. Mrs. Thomas Powers, of Winchester is co-chairman of the affair.

"The most effective State Committee members are those who have a recent background of grass roots Republican Work".—Worker's Manual Through working with voters at their level, Cynthia Barone has become known as an effective Republican leader. Both Dr. and Mrs. Barone know and are known by the top Republicans in the state.

If elected, Cynthia Barone can skip the "getting acquainted period" and immediately:

1. Continue to look for new candidates for positions now held by the opposition (especially Legislature). Republicans and others are eager to work and vote if they are given good candidates!
2. Continue to promote better communication and public relations between all state and local Republican organizations and the voting public. Voters should be informed, not confused!
3. Continue to work as she has always done—asking NOT "What can I Co-Planner for Arlington-Medford-Winchester successful joint meetings get out of the Republican Party?" but rather "What can I do for the Republican Party?"

Cynthia Barone's abbreviated list of WHAT SHE HAS DONE and can continue to do for the Republican Party include:

Vice Chairman of Winchester Republican Town Committee
Delegate to three Republican State Conventions
Six Republican State Committee Dinners (raising millions of dollars for candidates)
Worked at Republican National Convention
Seven National Republican Women's Conferences
Active campaigner for Saltonstall, Brooke, Nixon-Lodge, Herter, Morse, Hatch, Richardson, etc., with citations from same.

Ted Shasta of 52 Grove Street pitched well for Belmont Hill during his stint on the mound against Rivers, giving up but two runs. However, the rest of the staff didn't fare so well, and the Hillers dropped a 15-5 decision.

The Patriots are wasting no time in drumming up publicity for the coming football season, having issued an excellent prospectus to press, radio and television even before the opening of the baseball season. They have done an excellent job in recording last seasons statistics, highlights, and a preview of what to expect come next fall. This has been followed up with weekly bulletins giving information on new players drafted and signed. About the only benefit resulting from their poor finish last year is a chance to get some of the better draft choices. They should do much better next fall. We'd like to see the smile back on the face of their number-one booster, Charlie Freni, genial proprietor of the Winchester Meat Company.

Since Manager Dick Williams seems intent on giving Dalton Jones every opportunity to nail down the third-base job, how about trying to convert Joe Foy into a catcher? Outside of Elston Howard, who still has the savvy, but has long since gone over the hill as a hitter, the Sox don't have a catcher of big league stature in their organization. Gibson and Oliver aren't much help as receivers. Our first choice, Scott, is destined to play first base for the Sox forever, but Foy, in our opinion has much of the equipment to develop into a solid catcher, with a heavy bat. What a shame to keep Joe on the bench!

Governor Volpe stated last year that definitive plans for a stadium would be developed in the year 1968, that it was his solemn promise to the Sox. Well, so far this year all we have heard about the Governor is his national political aspirations. Good luck to you, Governor Volpe! but remember, a promise is a promise.

On Wednesday night, April 24 the annual kick-off meeting will be held in the McCall Junior High Auditorium. All managers are requested to have all of their players present not later than 7:30 p.m., in their assigned areas in the hall. The meeting will be highlighted by a showing of the color movies of the 1967 World Series. Prior to the movie, all teams will be introduced by name, and each coach will receive his team's baseball caps. There will be a minimum of speeches, and the Dads' Club, who is running the show that night, have made a special request that as many fathers of Little Leaguers as possible come with their sons for the session.

Opening day is April 27 with a short ceremony at Ginn Field, followed by an exhibition game between the Athletics and the Yankees, winners of the Major League Pennants in 1967. This affair will start at 10 a.m. and the regular season will start with four double headers that afternoon.

Last Wednesday night saw a switch in teams, but June still leads. Despite the valiant efforts of Rose DeTeso, June lost all eight points.

April flew from sixth place to third place and leads January by one point.

Emma Provinzano did well with two strikes in a row and ended up with a 112 for high single.

Talk about photo finishes! We didn't take pictures of the first four front-runners in Section A on Wednesday, April 10th, but when the four top places are within two little points, that's a mighty fine race. Board 12 from Section B was played in only two spots,—three no trump and six clubs by North-South, and in each case the outcome depended entirely on the opening lead,—whether the defense found the best lead of a spade.

Usually when there is a chancy slam in a minor suit, the best policy is to play in the no trump game instead, and five of the seven North-Souths chose this path, leaving East on lead, with North having bid the red suits and South the black ones on the way up to the three no trump by North. What would your choice of lead be, sitting East?

There's no point in leading hearts or diamonds around to the North bidder in those suits, and there's always a slight partiality toward the major suit when the opponents end up in no trump, so probably the ten of spades, showing top of nothing, is the best. Not an easy lead to find, though, but a profitable one, for it holds them to five no trump when a low spade is played from South and to four if the Ace is put up. The hand made six no trump twice.

Now for the risky six club bid. It was bid twice and made twice. And unless my logic is out of kilter this morning, that means West with that perfect King of spades lead, didn't lead it. So the six club bidders tied for the top score North-South!

Bruce C. Jordan, a Bowdoin College sophomore, has been elected president of the College's Student Union Committee for the 1968-69 academic year. Parkhurst 6th Graders Set Off On Safari Trail

by Lois Carr

Four land rovers are making their way across Kenya with a party of 6th graders on African safari from Parkhurst School. At least that's what one would believe after spending 45 minutes on Tuesday mornings in the reading unit taught by Mrs. Eleanor Shaughnessy.

The student bwanas dress for the conditions of Africa in pith helmets and various esoteric forms of broadbrimmed headgear. Seated around their tables pushed together to serve as land rovers, they are equipped with maps, binoculars, cameras, walkie talkies, elephant guns, and their journals.

One vehicle bears the American flag and acts as lead rover each week. The tables are surrounded by various forms of Africana hung on the walls of the classroom including wood carvings, beads, ivory, clothing, and a native purse graciously shared by a missionary aunt and uncle.

The trip is inspired by the book "A Glimpse of Eden" by Evelyn Ames, (a Christmas gift to the teacher from one of the party). The vivid descriptions of animals, rolling valleys, lush green hills, mountains, and jungles are read aloud to the youthful safari members by Mrs. Shaughnessy. They pause to explore especially beautiful similes and metaphors which abound in the book. Questions on traditions, unfamiliar events, and ideas are answered. Vocabulary lists are studied prior to the week's encampment.

Through the safari the sixth graders work toward word growth, listening growth and increased powers of imagination and appreciation. No television or slides project images for the safari members. Their impressions come from word pictures of such depth that one can "see" the action described by the author.

Mrs. Shaughnessy makes the events of the safari more personal by using "we" instead of "I" and inserting names of class members in place of those in the narrative.

The group spends each night under canvas after listening to tales of the jungle told by the safari leader around the campfire. Stories are often accompanied by steel band music provided by their "boys" (and at Parkhurst the help of a phonograph record). When the music ends the jungle noises described and read with expression seem both beautiful and frightening to the students.

Meeting Lions

The Parkhurst party has met and learned to greet in the native dialect the Masai tribesmen with ringed earlobes, and they were advised to offer snuff and chewing gum in a gesture of friendship. A pride of lions encountered provided vivid and somewhat gruesome details about the role of the lioness, "lion's share," and the kill. When they likened the lions' activity to the gnawing of bones done at a summer barbecue or to eating "chicken in the basket" the class decided that the lions weren't quite as gross as it would appear.

Hunting the wild beasts proved to the students that animals too have their gentle moments as they watched the lions frolic and play while enjoying the shade provided the party's land rovers. As long as the members remained in the vehicles the lions ignored them and continued their pastimes. Several of the hunters expressed amazement at the apparent docility of the lion reputed to be so vicious.

Each safari member is keeping a journal in which he records events of particular significance to him and personal, introspective thoughts brought out by the experience in the veldts. On their return, the safari party will visit other classes at Parkhurst in order to share experiences with those unable to accompany them.

Rather than the customary elephant tusk or animal hide over the fireplace these Parkhurst students will have as trophies from this imaginative safari improved reading, spelling and language skills and new understandings of a far-off culture.

Girls Compete In Badminton

by Lesley King

The finals of the girls' intramural badminton doubles were held in the High School gym recently to determine junior-senior and sophomore champions.

In the sophomore division the finalists, out of 30 competing couples, were Anderson-Null and Smith-Brett. Out of 35 junior-senior couples the finalists were Kajander-Irwin and Dignam-Sexton.

These couples competed in a 2 out of 3 series for their class championships. Sophomores Anderson and Null teamed-up to capture the series in their first two games, with scores of 18-4 and 15-9.

In the Junior-Senior division both couples competing in the finals were seniors and the only juniors to reach the semi-finals were Niles and Swanson. Kajander and Irwin also played very well and won their first two games with scores of 15-5 and 15-4.

The other teams which reached the semi-finals were: sophomores, Nash-DeConto and Doyle-Ober. juniors-seniors, Alba-Armstrong.

100 Head to Fenway Today

Three Fenway Park-bound buses marked "Winchester Recreation Committee" head out from the Town Hall at 12:30 today.

Aboard will be 100 vacationing students who answered the parochial and public school announcements put on last Thursday inviting a group to go.

"A sort of a Winchester Youth Day at Fenway," says Rec Director Don Spinney, who is going to have to tear himself away from Winchester long enough to chaperone the group.

Is it all ball players? Definitely not—More girls than boys are going in to see the Sox play this afternoon.

Plans Under Way For En Ka Parade

Plans for the En Ka parade which officially opens the street fair each year are getting under way at this time. Parade chairmen, Mrs. Richard B. Cannon and Mrs. K. Paul Chase, invite any and all organizations and businesses in town to enter a float in the parade and thus assure the success of the fair's opening.

The street fair parade has always served as an opportunity for the various organizations to which En Ka contributes through the years to show their appreciation to the En Ka Society by entering a float in the parade. The theme of the fair is "The Gay Nineties," which offers a wide selection of float possibilities. Prizes are awarded to the float most in keeping with the theme of the fair and for the most original.

Mrs. Cannon and Mrs. Chase would be glad to hear from any group interested in finding out more about entering. The date of the parade is Saturday, May 18, at 9 in the morning.

Auxiliary Makes Plans for Season

On Monday board members of the Little League Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Helen Hodgson for a discussion of coming events.

Under the direction of president, Mrs. Ruth Carroll, the members were informed of their duties and specific assignments.

Other officers for the coming season are: Mrs. Helen Hodgson, executive vice president, Mrs. Jeanne McGoldrick, American Senior League vice president; Mrs. Elaine McPhail, American Major League, vice president; Mrs. Ginger Maggio, American Minor League vice president; Mrs. Anna Pierce, National Senior League vice president; Mrs. Cusi Fiore, National Major League vice president; Mrs. Barbara Allen, National Minor League vice president; Mrs. Pat Gonyea, secretary; Mrs. Bobbie Ungaretti, treasurer; Mrs. Grace Ashton, chairman Ginn Field stand; Mrs. Sandy Stillman, chairman West Side stand; Mrs. Ann Peterson, social chairman; Mrs. Dorothy Cullen, publicity; Mrs. Claire Keene, float chairman; and Mrs. Rita Dunn, dance chairman.

The annual dinner dance will be held at the Woburn Country Club on Friday, May 10 at 6:00 p.m. Parents are urged to buy their tickets early, from the wives of the managers, since this event has been a sellout in the past.

Mrs. Rita Dunn heads the dance committee.

Sachem Batsmen in Opener Saturday As Young Team Goes vs. Woburn

Winchester High School's baseball squad will open its regular season this Saturday, April 20, versus Woburn High at the Tanners' temporary varsity field in North Woburn.

Under the leadership of Coach Bill Colella, the Sachems have come on strong in exhibition games with Browne and Nichols, defending private school league champs, and Concord High of New Hampshire, after starting slowly in earlier practice games against Lowell and Danvers.

The 17 varsity squad members who will take the field Saturday have been picked from over 50 candidates. Every position on the team was up for grabs, as junior short-stop, Tom Flaherty, and senior center fielder, captain-elect Toby Harvey, were the only returning lettermen from the 1967 squad.

Coach Collella has already had a shake-up in his starting line-up, when sophomore Mike Gilberti—slated for a berth as starting third baseman—injured himself sliding during one of the pre-season contests. Junior Pete Knight has been temporarily moved in to the hot corner from his normal position in left field.

Although the team for the most part is inexperienced, the outlook for the season is bright. The pitching has been excellent, and if hustle and desire have anything to do with baseball success in the Middlesex League, this young Sachem squad will win its share of ball games.

Hockeytown Starts Program

For the next two months, Hockeytown, U.S.A. will include a new League in its hockey programs—the Squirts.

This program is for boys ages five to nine, and will be held every Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. and Wednesday from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

The program provides an opportunity for boys in this age category to learn the fundamentals of stick handling and skating.

At the present time, there are several college and high school players interested in conducting the Leagues but more boys are needed to fill out the teams.

Anyone with a boy in this age group is asked to call Hockeytown, U.S.A., 80 Green Street, Melrose. The number is 245-7070.

Teenagers Working Hard To Sell McCarthy Here

In George and Betsy Pattullo's basement at 48 Fletcher Street some 30 teenagers are working hard for a political cause—the campaign of Eugene McCarthy.

The students thought they had a pretty hot political thing going anyway. But last Saturday evening their basement workroom became nearly incendiary with more than enthusiasm in danger of catching fire.

The Pattullo home is that immediately north of the large duplex which was completely consumed by fire. And family and friends, ready to vacate, watched with awe the inferno next door.

Calling themselves Winchester Students for McCarthy, the student group works after school and on week ends, into the late hours. One recent Saturday they had to split into shifts because of space limitations.

As of yesterday the students have processed two-thirds of the 14,000 index cards bearing voter information for the local McCarthy organization. Coke supplies are running low.

Canvassing voters on a door-to-door basis, they have covered part of Precinct 4 and are busy in Precincts 1 and 6.

After school on Primary Day—April 30—they will be telephoning voters, driving them to the polls—even babysitting.

The boys and girls admit to being political amateurs. They stumbled over a town ordinance prohibiting public distribution of literature earlier than 14 days before an election, and one of the group had to do some explaining at the police station.

Also posted on their headquarters bulletin board under "Wounded in Action" are numerous paper cuts, lost sunglasses, a rubber band in the eye.

Why the enthusiasm? What sparked the fight?

"At first," said one of the boys, "it was anti-LBJ—when he withdrew we lost some people."

They believe they must take responsibilities and see this effort as "a lawful way of changing the structure."

RFK is resented by some, not all. However, the feeling is that since he is not on the ballot in this state he is not a present consideration.

As for McCarthy himself:

"We all went to the Woburn rally. We saw the good Senator and he really impressed us," they said.

For Husbands Only

The Boodakian brothers really thought they could put one over on their wives last week. It was all set for Sunday, and when Leo's wife overheard him talking about birdies and traps, he told her he had to go to a meeting of the Audubon Society.

Then the big day came. When Leo pulled the car out of the garage, Mrs. Leo had his golf clubs waiting for him. And he was the lucky one. Harry was home cleaning out the attic, and Mike ended up raking the lawn.

The lesson is simple; the best time to go golfing is right after you've done the wife a big favor. And that's where Harry, Mike and Leo can help you out. What better excuse to get out for a day on the links than to take the rugs and carpets to be cleaned? With a 20% "cash and carry" discount on everything from scatter rugs to room-size carpets, and with their usual one-week service, the Bookdakian boys offer you still another opportunity to swing the clubs when you pick up your clean rugs the following week.

P.S. Mike is hatching another foolproof plan for next weekend, but, knowing his wife, it'll never work.

Homes Sought For Vacations For Ghetto Youth

In an effort to stimulate and brighten the summer of Negro youths of the Roxbury, North Dorchester, and South End communities, the Commission on Human Rights in cooperation with Exodus, Inc. is sponsoring "Operation Hospitality." This is an area summer vacation placement program for Negro children to enjoy a minimum of a two-week vacation period in a suburban setting.

Suburban families are encouraged to offer a vacation experience for these children so that this program may be realized. Operation Hospitality trusts that it will be a pleasurable experience, a learning experience, and beneficial to black youths and white family participants. It is hoped that this program will help to expunge racial myths, promote understanding, and enrich the summer of participants.

Interested families should contact the Commission on Human Rights at 41 Tremont Street, Boston, or call 227-7488.

Racing Special To Continent

Racing fans and other serious students of the Sport of Kings have the opportunity to take in some of Europe's great races this fall and meet with some of the Continent's noted breeders on a special 31-day tour announced by Alitalia Airlines.

Leaving New York on September 12 for Dublin and some of the magical stud farms of the Irish countryside, the tour will move on to England, France, Germany and Italy ending up in Rome.

"Last year," according to Betty and Hugo Larsen of Bergen, New Jersey, organizers of the program, "we were able to spend considerable time with prominent horsemen in all the countries visited. For professional horsemen the trip can be counted as a legitimate business expense.'

Among the races on the itinerary are the Irish St. Leger, September 14; the German St. Leger, September 22; the Queen Elizabeth Second Stakes at Ascot, September 28; and the renowned French race, the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe at Longchamps, October 6.

"All My Sons" Nears Production

The Parish Players' spring production, "All My Sons," is rapidly rounding into shape, according to director, Glenne Grant.

The weeks of hard work are beginning to bear fruit, even to the half finished but already impressive set, designed by Roger Foskett.

Principal roles in the Arthur Miller play are taken by Irving Rothman, Nancy Dorsey, Elizabeth Hoxie, and Richard Schreadly. The first three are well known to Winchester audiences for their first class performances in earlier Parish Players productions. Dick, a Lieutenant Commander in the Navy studying at Tufts this year, plays in his first local production. They are making the powerful play come alive and local theater goers will find the theme particularly poignant in view of the tragic events of the past few weeks.

"All My Sons" will be presented at Chidley Hall, First Congregational Church on April 25, 26, and 27. Tickets are available through Ruth Albee at 729-5844.

Selectmen, Schools Elect As Chairmen Doucette and Walsh

The Board of Selectmen on Monday night elected Charles T. Doucette, Jr. to be its chairman and the School Committee last week elected Mrs. Barbara M. Walsh to head its year. John A. Dolan will be vice chairman of the School Committee.

Mr. Doucette is starting his third term as a Selectman. He is a former chairman of the Finance Committee and member of the Insurance Committee. In private life he is an executive of a flooring contracting business. He lives at 6 Upland Road with his wife, the former Elizabeth O'Donnell and five children, the oldest 14.

CHARLES T. DOUCETTE, JR.

His board also includes Edmund A. Williams, Paul Amico and John J. Sullivan and Ralph M. Swanson, just elected last month.

"One of the most urgent things the Selectmen must do," said Mr. Doucette when asked about the job ahead, "is to hire the Town's first executive secretary."

"The work of the office is really too much for a five-man, part-time board of Selectmen. And the Town will be better served if there is someone to give closer attention to the many details of its business—and, also if the Selectmen are more free to concern themselves with the broader aspects of municipal problems... The rising tax rate and what can be done to control it and to protect the interests of older persons here in Town is another major concern."

Mrs. Walsh is serving her fifth year on the Town's education committee which this year added two other women, Mrs. Harriet H. Dieterich and Mrs. Mary A. Mears. In addition to Mr. Dolan, Lawrence E. Beckley is a member of this board.

In looking to the year ahead Mrs. Walsh had this to say about her group, "The School Committee has three major goals for the coming year:

"1) to give each child the education best suited to his needs and within a budget which equitably compensates our employees and which does not unnecessarily burden the tax rate;

"2) to accelerate progress in providing adequate space and modern teaching and administrative methods in our educational system; and

Booster Course For Grades 3, 6 On Big Program For Summer Schl.

New "interim semester courses" will be introduced at the 1968 session of the Summer School this year, designed to give tuition-free special help to elementary students with some academic difficulty.

They will be part of the regular Summer School session announced by the School Committee this week to run from June 27 to August 9 at the McCall Junior High School and to include about 20 courses.

Interim Semester Courses, so called, will be introduced for certain students in grades 3 and 6 only. Experience gained in the Winchester Public Schools through the years, according to Thomas Morse, coordinator of special programs, has shown that weaknesses in critical areas of study develop at the end of grade 3 and 6. It has been felt that special help should be given to pupils whose difficulties may hinder their progress in the next stage of their education.

Two teachers with skills in language arts and mathematics will be assigned this summer to Grade 3 and Grade 6 students, identified by the teachers and principals of the eight elementary schools as needing additional work to insure success at the next grade level.

Parents of these students will be notified and strongly urged to take advantage of this special summer program. Attendance will be invitational and the courses for these special courses for grades 3 and 6 will be tuition-free.

Other new courses include: Theatre Workshop, which is designed for young adults and adults having an interest in drama. The course is being given in cooperation with the recreation department of the Town, and will meet three evenings a week. The course will combine instruction and production under the leadership of an instructor/director. It is planned to produce two plays which will be open to the public.

Kevin Sullivan Is Wounded In Vietnam

The family of Marine Private First Class Kevin F. Sullivan heard from Marine Corps personnel on Sunday that he was hospitalized in the Da Nang area from gun shot wounds received in action on Wednesday, April 17, while on patrol in the vicinity of Quang Nam.

MARINE PVT. KEVIN F. SULLIVAN

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sullivan of 18 Glenwood Avenue were told by the same Marine Sergeant who had recruited their 19-year-old son in October that he had been injured in the right upper leg. They also received a telegram from General Leonard Chapman of the South Vietnam forces assuring them that he was receiving the best of care.

As yet they have had no direct word from Kevin, a young man well known in Winchester, who had been attending the High School before he left to train at

Party Ballots Tuesday List 79 Local Names

Voters at Tuesday's so-called Presidential Preference Primary here will find a total of 79 local names on the ballot. Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the six precinct polling places where the 34 voting machines are expected to be more than adequate to accommodate the turnout. Republicans and Independent voters choosing that ballot will find resident John A. Volpe of 10 Everett Avenue, the Governor, the only one whose name is listed for Presidential Preference and as far as can be established the first citizen here to have his name so honored. His decision to run as a "favorite son" candidate has precluded, as is traditional in both parties, the name of any other prominent candidate entering.

The same ballot finds two Winchester women, Cynthia Barone and Sara Woodward in contention with one from Medford, Marion Phillips, for the one spot open to a woman on the Republican State Committee and 36 local men and women are after the 35 places at the grass roots level of Republican national politics, that of Town Committee member.

Winchester is represented on the Democratic ballot by Ruth D. Terzaghi, candidate for alternate Congressional District delegate to the Democratic National Convention. Local registered Democrats, and Independents who choose their ballot on Tuesday, will also vote for a Town Committee of 35. Voting here may be by slate or individuals, with a total of 39 names listed.

Town Clerk Elsie Nelson expects a large number of write-in votes to be tallied on both ballots for the top spot, particularly on the Democratic ballot with three avowed candidates in the race.

As in 1964, when a "Goldwater" group ran for Republican Town Committee, party division in the presidential race is reflected this time in Town Committee campaigning. This year with McCarthy backers taking the iniative to go for places on the local group.

Mrs. Nelson would like to see the Town's women voters make an effort to vote before the end of the afternoon. This would make things easier on the many men who vote at the end of their workday.

Sgt. Nickerson With SAC Near Vietnam

The sergeant, a member of the Strategic Air Command, is permanently assigned to the 509th Bomb Wing at Pease AFB, N.H.

He served during the Korean War.

A graduate of Woburn High School, Sergeant Nickerson also attended Lowell State Teachers College. He started his service career with four years in the Navy on submarines.

Being "for Cynthia Barone" won't help her unless Winchester voters get out and vote!!! Voting is the only way to show your appreciation for the work she has done as well as your confidence in her political ability.

We Love Winchester — Let's Keep It Clean

Small Audience Listens Sunday To Student-Adult Panel Discussion

Fewer than 200 gathered last Sunday evening for a student-professional panel entitled, "It's Time to Talk." Sponsored by CONCERN, the Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs, the program was the third public meeting for the presentation and discussion of problems concerning the Town's youth brought to the fore by reported drug abuse.

Unlike previous sessions which focused in depth on drugs, Sunday's two-hour meeting touched briefly upon wide-ranging topics.

Six or eight panelists opened the session with five-minute remarks before moderator Dick Summer, of WBZ radio, turned to the audience for questions and comments.

Speaking first was panelist Terry Golden, a Harvard junior, who voiced sharp criticism to those present of those not in attendance. He declared, "Look at the number of people here. It is typical of this community. It is disgusting. Why isn't the community here to talk . . . ?"

Subsequent speakers did talk to the audience. Tufts Professor Bernard Harleston offered a psychological description of the suburbs. He pointed to escapism, a commitment to homogeneity, the denial of the relevancy of "where the action really is," and forced dependency.

The resulting lack of diversity and insensitivity to concepts differing from those in which suburban dwellers are familiar may end up, he believes, with the suburbs' being more deprived and less effective than the inner city.

Suggesting "what is happening here may be a peculiar sickness in the suburbs," he stated, "we may watch the death of the suburbs as the inner cities build up."

Next came Neil Suneson, a High School student, who succinctly identified four subjects—race relations, drugs, sex, and religion—as criteria for telling whether parents and children are communicating. He emphasized, "If parents don't know what their kids think about these topics, there is a communications gap and consequently a morality gap."

Another High School student, Donna Starrak, turned to the guidance available to the young and their parents. Saying she saw no one here equipped to handle problems presently existing, she called for a force of counselors and specialists who could work on the personal development of each student rather than simply guiding him into college or a job.

The Reverend Everett Waters of the First Baptist Church concentrated his remarks upon the need "to face the realities of life in terms of faith. In so doing the church might come to solutions rather than to contribute to problems."

Judge Francis Cullen of the Woburn District Court described treatment of those brought before them as juvenile delinquents. He told that the court has latitude in dealing with youthful offenders and tries not to incarcerate them. Though giving statistics revealing that the number of youths appearing in court from Town is very low, he observed, "it is hard to see real problems with drugs and liquor in statistics, but we do know these problems exist."

Those participating in the audience included a mother who stated that she found parents often use permissiveness as a way of freeing themselves from guiding their children and refuse to teach their children to handle their independence responsibly. Another mother noted the importance of developing rapport with one's children when they are young—not when they suddenly become teenagers.

Among the questions were ones on Vietnam and drug laws, and challenges came on whether parents really were failing to communicate with their children.

When Moderator Summer asked whether similar sessions in the future would be considered beneficial, the affirmative show of hands was nearly unanimous, though several attending were later heard to comment that more clearly defined topics would lead to a greater unity and depth in discussions.

New Chairmen Head Week's Meetings

"3) to broaden and deepen in the community the understanding of our educational objectives and the current problems of achieving them."

Mrs. Walsh is the wife of Thomas D. Walsh and the mother of two children, the oldest 24.

Mystic Meeting

The School Committee met on Monday night at the Mystic School in the first of a series of meetings planned to take place in different schools so that parents in those neighborhoods may more easily attend.

About 70 persons heard the group review plans for the portable classrooms just voted by Town Meeting and planned to be installed first at Mystic; other Mystic problems; the Tufts School program and Curriculum Council planning.

Questioning highlighted the feeling of many parents that bringing older elementary pupils back to Mystic after a year of the very different curriculum at Tufts would represent a hardship. Enthusiastic about the new Tufts program, several preferred the children stay in that school.

Selectmen Hear Incinerator Report

The Selectmen on Monday night heard Robert O'Brien superintendent of streets and highways review many aspects of his job including the Town incinerator which has been causing trouble with recent breakdowns shutting it down during the last two weeks. The Board has asked for a closer look and recommendations from both Mr. O'Brien and supervisor, Andrew Connolly and it has authorized them to go ahead and do what has to be done to get the apparatus working properly.

They also voted to add to the Police Department personnel structure the office of Safety Officer and voted Roland Roy to this job; and they voted Daniel Pearson to be a second fingerprinter and photographer.

In action taking the first steps into borrowing for the new High School project they authorized that the bid of the New England Merchants National Bank at 3.10% be accepted for a bond to finance the taking of lands at Summer and Winter Streets; $35,000 was the figure.

And after hearing a presentation from Howard Ambrose, Town engineer (with augmentation from Mr. O'Brien) they turned down a request to add a second, but second-hand vehicle for his department's use—needed particularly right now in the Highland Avenue project inspections. Members suggested that the engineers continue instead to rent a car when necessary and that they submit their request as a budget item next year.

They voted and signed the contract for Town Hall renovations to be carried on under the direction of architect Arthur Rand.

Taxi Trouble

In the most heated exchange of the evening they heard the appeal of Roger M. Ralphs of Francis Circuit that his taxi license be renewed over the objections of Chief Joseph J. Derro, who appeared before them.

Represented by Attorney Arthur Brogna of Boston, Mr. Ralphs, purchaser of the Greel taxis which he has renamed to be the Aberjona Taxi Company, was on the mat due to complaints from neighbors claiming him to be running his taxi business from his home, a non-business area and to lack of cooperation with the Board.

Records appeared to show that Mr. Ralphs applied for his license from a Cross Street, business-zoned address, but subsequently moved from there to Francis Circuit without notifying the Town.

Chairman Doucette stated that the Board had "bent over backwards for this individual," and his feeling was reinforced by expressions from Selectmen Amico and Williams who were disturbed by what seemed to them complete lack of cooperation of Mr. Ralphs with the Town officials.

At the end of the meeting the Board, however, granted the taxi license, noting in their letter to Mr. Ralphs that it is revokable at any time, and warning him that undue going and coming from his home will be construed as use of it as business.

Pond Loses Water For Island Study

Since the beginning of the week the Mill Pond has appeared mud-bottomed and debris-filled. The mud banks have resulted from the draining of the area so that engineers can take grades for the eventual rebuilding of the island just north of the Town Hall side of the pond in accordance with a vote by the recently-ended annual Town Meeting.

The debris—as counted by one Town Department head—includes 10 shopping baskets, a bicycle, two Town litter baskets, and a park bench dumped in the waters by unknown persons during an unknown period of time.

A spokesman for the Park Commission indicated that the pond will shortly be re-filled. When it is later drained for the actual reconstruction of the island, the debris will be removed.

JOHNNIE'S FOODMASTER SUPER MARKETS INC.

WE SALUTE 5 OF THE "BEST" AT OUR BIG MANAGER'S Sale

SHOP THE FOODMASTER NEAREST YOU AND HELP YOURSELF TO SOME WONDERFUL VALUES

Tired of Being Pushed Around? Disgusted Because No One Says "THANK YOU"? Feeling Unwanted Because No One Asks "MAY I HELP YOU"?

It seems that business today has lost sight of the most important person in the world — THE HUMAN BEING — who also happens to be our customer.

It further seems that the words SERVICE and COURTESY, somewhere along the line have fallen into disrepute and it's our feeling that we should reverse this thinking in the market place. We believe the rendering of SERVICE and COURTESY does not result in high prices; in fact, the lack of them merely results in undeserved increased profits for someone.

We believe SERVICE and COURTESY merely reflects the appreciation by the businss man for having had the opportunity of making a sale which eventually results in a profit to him.

We believe that the "DO IT YOURSELF" idea has been carried just a little too far in business and that the customer, being a human being, should never be required to perform services which are the normal function of the employees of a retail outlet.

We believe a friendly "hello" a "smile" and a "thank you" adds nothing to the price of merchandise but certainly does add to the well being of a customer.

At the annual initiation of Delta Chapter of Sigma Kappa sorority, nine seniors were initiated into the Boston Alumni Chapter. In honor of highest scholastic achievement the Sigma Kappa Scholarship Cup was presented to Dianne Bernadette Celia daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent J. Celia of 52 Winford Way.

Miss Celia is currently teaching in the elementary schools of Winchester as a permanent substitute. She will receive her bachelor of science degree from Boston University this May.

Concert Artists To Appear in May

Winchester concert artists, Keith and Elizabeth Phinney, will appear as soloists in the Kiwanis Pops concert with the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra at the Lynn Armory, South Common Street, Lynn, Sunday evening, May 12 at 8 p.m. A soprano, Elisabeth Phinney, was the winner of the regional Metropolitan Opera auditions in Boston a few years ago.

The North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra is composed of seventy musicians from North Shore cities and towns. The Kiwanis Pops charitable fund will benefit from proceeds of the concert.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

When people think of saving money on the purchase of nearly anything they usually think only about the initial cost.

We sincerely believe that we might SAVE you plenty of money, but not necessarily in the cost of your insurance premiums. Our guiding philosophy is to "save" our client's money at the time of a loss! Ben Franklin's famous advice should be reversed in buying insurance. A modern version would say: "A penny paid to you is a penny saved." If you are forced to replace property after a loss, or to pay damages to someone you have injured, the whole object of insurance is to see that you are spared expense right then. We try to see that insurance carries out this role.

The uppermost thought in the mind of a person who carries insurance — and experiences a big loss — is simply this: "Am I covered?" The only way this question can be answered "Yes" is for an insurance expert to spend time and thought on your insurance needs, and design a proper and personalized "Program of Protection." Such personal attention is available from us — but on a competitive, not a cutrate basis. After a loss, you'll learn the advantages of properly designed and ample insurance coverages. This is when the "big savings" come about.

May we discuss these real Savings with you?

Wanted: Fertilizer for the Grass Roots

Compared to other cities and towns in the Commonwealth Winchester went to the polls in the 1964 Presidential Preference Primary with a higher than average percentage. But looked at for itself the 22% vote last time was weak. This vote, which includes one chance in four years to help constitute Town and State party Committees, is the real grass roots political vote. The grass needs to grow stronger and thicker. It needs the fertilizer of your vote on Tuesday.

If the Star office is any bellweather, interest and competition this year is far greater than usual. The Star sells front page space only for political ads. Take a look this week.

The fact than an act of the State Legislature decreed that this year for the first time the "preference" expressed by the voters will be binding on the first party convention vote makes this year's a more realistic one, however qualified by the lack of candidates at the top.

Town Committees are the business of everyone—even the Independents who enjoy the dubious privilege of standing above (or below) the political working level only due to the hard work of those listed on these two and the State Committees. In 1964 the Lodge-Goldwater fight (it came out 1,901 Lodge to 574 Goldwater) was reflected in candidates for the local Republican Committee, with some of a group of Goldwater challengers winning one or more spots. This year the local Democratic "regulars" are being challenged for a Town voice by McCarthy backers, and an individual vote may put some of these on that Town Committee.

The Republicans have this time eschewed the slate approach for their Committee with Chairman Lawrence Smith leading the effort in this direction out of his belief that a large group has an unfair advantage over a small list of challengers and that greater participation and stronger democratic action occurs if the individuals each go before the public on their own. His second reason is one relating to another of the new Legislative rulings this year: that any listing of candidates having a number equal to or less than the committee make-up will not appear on the ballot but instead declared "elected."

This ruling, also new this year, accounts for the fact that the list of delegates-at-large and their alternates to the national conventions do not appear on any State Ballot this year. The number is different for each party and is determined by the way the State voted for president in the last presidential election. But no voter will have a chance either to vote for them or see on his ballot who they are. And we quote Cornelius Dalton in Tuesday's Herald Traveler on the results of this:

"This is an insidious erosion of the democratic process, but no one seems disturbed or even concerned. Actually, hardly anyone is aware of the situation. Massachusetts will have 72 votes at the Democratic convention. Forty-eight will be controlled by the hand-picked delegates at large and by the national committeeman and commiteewoman, and only 24 by the elected district delegates. Of the 34 votes at the GOP convention allowed Massachusetts, 10 will be cast by delegates at large and 24 by district delegates . . .

"On its face, this provision for declaring candidates elected when they are unopposed appears innocent. But it is part of the growing trend toward political bossism in various new laws enacted by the Legislature in recent years . . .

"The real danger, however, is that the process of 'electing' candidates whose names never appear on a ballot is so mysterious to the average person that the politicians will be tempted to extend the practice. Some day we might find governors being nominated, if not elected, without anyone ever voting for them."

Mr. Dalton makes a good point. But correcting this and other wrongs in the political process will be done only by those who really involve themselves. The front line of this army of workers for Winchester is its Town Committees. Tuesday's vote will tell how many people care.

Editorial Comments

Rotary Auction is Saturday—an occasion not to be missed. Many's the philanthropic fair or sale put on each year by the women of the Town but Rotary auction, among the fewer male-sponsored days, is special. The men kill themselves collecting, lifting, carting, and selling. The women can come to look, listen and buy. If you've been once, your a regular. If you've yet to attend, there's no chance like Saturday.

Saint Eulalia's Church celebrated a Passover supper for the first time this year, with parishioners and friends joining in symbolic sharing with their Jewish co-citizens. It happened in Holy Week. It seemed a wholly appropriate thing to do.

Tim Horgan, speaking in the Herald Traveler in the opening week of Red Sox baseball: "Somebody is sure to demand to know what's so sane about grown men chasing around in knickerbockers playing a little boy's game? Also, what's so important about a baseball team when so many cataclysmic events are raging around the country? Okay, but what's so sane about grown men crawling around a jungle taking potshots at each other? Or running through the city streets lugging somebody's else's television set?"

Water and Sewer Board Describes Pressure System

Editor of the Star:

With respect to the comments in the last issue of the Star the Water and Sewer Board would like to point out that the water pressure in the low areas of the Town is regulated by the elevation of the reservoirs. This is a low pressure gravity system. The Town is also served by high pressure systems on both sides of the Town.

The Water Board has always pursued the policy of making available large volumes of water for fire protection purposes. To this end we have installed additional large mains in order to augment the flow and have undertaken a program to improve this flow by cleaning and cement lining existing mains.

The gravity system is fed from both the North and South Reservoirs so that water supply at any fire is fed from both reservoirs simultaneously and maintains the pressure normally available at that point.

The recording pressure gauge at the Lake Street office indicates that the water was used on the April 13 fire from about 7:05 to 8:50, and during this time the maximum drop in pressure was about four pounds out of an available 50.

The flow measurement meters indicated that total water consumed on Saturday, April 13 was approximately 250,000 gallons above the normal flow for previous days in the week and the Board assumes that this water was used to combat the fire on Fletcher Street.

The fire protection in Winchester in the areas served by the reservoirs is provided by the fire pumpers operated by the Fire Department.

Local Party Chairmen Urge Big Grass Roots Voice Tuesday

Mrs. Mary V. Sericka, chairman of the Winchester Democratic Committee and Lawrence T. Smith, chairman of the Winchester Republican Committee have this week answered a Star questionnaire designed to inform local voters of what will be on the balloting machines Tuesday in the six precinct voting places.

The Town will vote by party ballot for: 1) its preference for President; 2) delegates to the national convention chosen from the Seventh Congressional District (that into which Winchester has been redistricted by a Legislative act and court ruling this summer; 3) men and women members of the party State Committees; and 4) members of the party Town Committees.

In any one of the four voting categories, local voters may write-in a candidate by pushing up the slot immediately above the listed candidate whom they wish to replace and writing in the name of their designee with either pen or pencil. If this slot is raised, however, it is then not possible to register the vote of a name listed on the ballot below.

Balloting by group is done to the left of the regular ballot listing where, with knobbed levers which open from left to right and listed vertically opposite the categories, are group numbers where a group vote applies; on the national convention delegates for both parties and on the ballot for Democratic Town Committee.

Election officers at polling places will be ready to answer questions or to demonstrate procedures to any voter.

1) In the Presidential Preference:

The Democratic ballot lists only the name of Senator Eugene McCarthy.

The Republican ballot lists only the name of John A. Volpe.

2) Delegates to the National Convention from the 7th Congressional District:

Democratic Ballot

Group I — Delegates — Louis Kirstein, Revere, John D. Elder, Arlington

Alternates—Ruth D. Terzaghi, Winchester, John A. O'Brien, Malden

Group II — Delegates — Walter J. Kelliher, Malden, George V. Colella, Revere

Alternates—John J. Slater, Jr., Chelsea, Patrick J. Skerry, Medford

Republican Ballot

Group I — Delegates — Fred Lamson, Malden, Janet Starr, Belmont

Alternates—Belden Bly, Saugus, Paul Buonfiglio, Revere

Group II — Delegates — Gregory Khachadoorian, Arlington, Elwynn Miller, Medford

Alternates — Ward Cramer, Medford, Ellen Brown, Melrose

These delegates will cast their first ballot at their respective conventions for Eugene McCarthy or John Volpe unless a write-in candidate on either ballot should draw more votes than either man.

3) Each of the State's 40 senatorial districts will elect one man or one woman to serve on the State Democratic or State Republican Committee.

Republican Ballot

Male member: William Barnstead, Arlington (unopposed)

Female member: Cynthia Barone, Winchester, Sara Woodward, Winchester, Marion Phillips, Medford

Democratic Ballot

Male member: John J. McGlynn, Medford, John J. Buckley, Medford, Charles T. Cronin, Arlington

Female member: Frances D. Murphy, Medford, Eleanor M. Campobosso, Arlington, Jacqueline A. Megan, Arlington, Marilyn C. Porreca, Medford, May F. Serson, Arlington

4) Membership in Town or City Ward Committees are made up of no fewer than 10 nor more than 35 registered voters, the number to be chosen by each local Committee. At present in Winchester both Democrats and Republicans have 35 member committees. Ballot law in Massachusetts requires that groups appear first upon the ballot and candidates running as individuals appear last, even though balloting is done either by group or by the separate slot to be pulled for each name. Write-in votes for candidates not appearing on the ballot are permitted.

On the Democratic ballot this year, 35 candidates will appear first who chose to run together, or be elected as a group, their names appearing in the order in which they were received on the nomination paper. Below these 35 are listed four additional names, making a total of 39. A sum of 35 will be elected.

On the Republican ballot there are 36 persons running for 35 places. All candidates are running as individuals since this group decided this year to eliminate a slate, i.e. each individual took out his or her own nomination paper.

BOOK REVIEW

by Eleanor F. Sirrine
Winchester Public Library

FIFTY WORKS OF ENGLISH LITERATURE WE COULD DO WITHOUT

by Brigid Brophy and others

The title implies that this book is an assault on "bad" literature, and it certainly is. In collaboration with Miss Brophy is her husband, Michael Levey, and Charles Osborne, an English critic, who proceed to strike down 50 esteemed classics of literature with considerable brilliance and irreverence.

The tone of most of these essays would suggest that Miss Brophy had the greater share of responsibility. It might be conjectured that she needed the two men for support of the tenet, "Literature we could do without."

Time magazine has called Brigid Brophy "the British Intelligentsia's newest high priestess:" Novelist, playwright, social and literary critic, in her recent collected views, don't never forget she proved to have a refreshing and splendid wit.

In the authors' "Address to the Reader" they explain why they are acting as condemnatory judges and ask the reader "do you really like, admire and (most important criterion of all) enjoy the works in question, or do you merely think you ought to?"

Justifying their iconoclastic attitude, the authors state that students are forced to read the accepted classic, which more often than not they find utterly unreadable, with the result that they turn against English literature as a whole. The purgers have weeded out the "worst" writings to expose their deficiencies. Several American works are given the bloodbath as well.

Beowulf is the first classic to do without. "Admiring comment on its poetry is about as relevant as praise for the architecture of Stonehenge." The Englishman's veneration for the older above the new—regardless of value is illustrated by the fact that modern criticism takes the York Cycle of Mystery Plays so seriously. "The York plays were crude, religious propaganda . . . written by a committee of drunken monks at St. Mary's Chapel, York, in 1350 . . . the plays, consequently had to abound in alliteration since alliteration is most frequently resorted to in intoxication."

Each pithy essay has its own sting. The Criticism of Faerie Queen is quoted from Spenser's own verdict of the poem "tedious and confused." Hamlet: "The prototype of Western literature's most deplorable and most formless form, autobiographical fiction." On Pilgrim's Progress "no book that is morally so warped can in any real sense be aesthetically satisfying." Tom Jones "has become the accepted epitome of red-bloodedness. Literary persons entertain about it the same superstition that Fielding himself and his friend Hogarth entertained about beef: that to consume it with conspicuous gustiness has the magic property making you both very robust and very English."

The debunkers keep flailing away at one after the other chosen works in short order. The Scarlet Letter "a case history of hatred of the flesh." Moby Dick "Melville's white elephant." Adventures of Huckleberry Finn "canned huckleberries in the unnatural juice of homely humour, with the added coloring matter of sentimentality." The Sound and the Fury "ostensibly so advanced in subject matter as to be shocking to the bourgeoisie, but really pandering to conventional and even retrogressive ideas of morality and religion."

The last work to be disposed of, A Farewell to Arms, is summed up as "the half-literate vocabulary of a Victorian provincial sporting journalist."

The authors have indicated throughout their critiques "which the blooms are for whose sake we want to clear the weeds." Notably, John Donne, Jean Austen, Robert Browning, Scott Fitzgerald, among others who they consider are truly the greats of literature.

Sometimes the glittering diatribes become a bit too much to swallow, but on the whole the book is a provocative indictment.

Formerly Of 54 Fletcher

Editor of the Star:

Our sincerest thanks to the police and courageous firemen who assisted at last week's fire. Without their help and the help of our friends and neighbors, our losses would have been much more severe and our difficulties compounded.

Deplores Making Fire A Spectacle

Editor of the Star:

April 13, about 7:30 p.m. I was walking down Fletcher Street. Cars lined both sides of the road, and fire trucks did their best to edge between them. In the front yards old friends met and made conversation. Men sat on the grass and drank beer while they gazed, fascinated, at the flames. Neighbors brought their families and made an evening of it. Cars and bicycles were abandoned in the streets during the mad exodus to the scene of a disaster which had instantaneously become the social event of the season. I went home and fell sick to my stomach.

Citizens of Winchester, we set ourselves up as the social leaders of the world. We own industries, set styles, and manage business enterprises. We discuss world problems with utmost seriousness. Many of us are active in politics on the local, state, and national levels. We set the moral standards and expect our children to follow in our footsteps. Do we then have any more reason to take our children to witness a fire that became a public spectacle than we would to take them to a public hanging? I dare any of you to give me case that a society that must turn to pain and destruction for its entertainment is not the sickest, most depraved society man is capable of creating.

Sincerely yours,
James A. Sauber

"Hats Off Along the Street, There Comes..."

Editor of the Star:

On April 19th, Patriots' Day, along with thousands of others, I watched the fine parade in Lexington, complete with bands floats, marching units, dignitaries, and firefighting equipment. And accompanying almost every unit was an American flag.

As a child I was taught, as we all were, that the flag commands respect and that one, if nothing more, stands as it passes by. We learned a poem by Henry Holcomb Bennett called "The Flag Goes By," the last verse of which is as follows:

"Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums;
And loyal hearts are beating high:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!"

Public Law No. 829—77th Congress, Section 5 states that "during the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention, and salute."

Perhaps we have forgotten the salute—the hat or hand over the heart is enough. It was obvious on Friday that thousands had either forgotten or were too lazy or self-conscious to make the effort.

In a world torn by internal and external strife perhaps this is a minor point to bring up. But the flag is a symbol of all that we hold dear to us—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Let us at least give it the respect it deserves and begin now to stand, salute, and without embarrassment and self-consciousness, to teach our children to do the same. Don't leave it to the teachers alone, after all, it's parents who take their children to parades. Let us teach the young that the flag is the "symbol of the land we love, the home of the free and the brave" and perhaps the fight for a better world in which to live will be a bit easier.

Fair Housing Seeks Support In Rights Bill

Editor of the Star:

The violent and disturbing events of the last weeks were climaxed by the speedy passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1968 with its provision for fair housing, which ultimately will cover 80 percent of the nation's private housing. Discrimination in the sale or rental of many types of housing has been an offense in Massachusetts for some time. It will now be a federal offense, also.

It is too easy for many white persons these days to condemn the black man for his rioting and looting and to use these acts of violence and terror, perpetrated by a very small percentage of Negroes, as an excuse for their own disinterest or failure to help in a situation which affects both black and white. The reasons for the discontent in the ghettos are often not fully examined.

The passage of the fair housing measure is a forceful reminder to the white American of his duty to insure freedom of choice for all citizens. This law is only a step in the direction of justice in the sale of housing and it cannot be interpreted in any way as the final solution to all racial problems.

While housing in the price range that exists in Winchester is still far beyond the reach of a vast number of the urban poor, it is quite attainable for a growing number of urban Negroes. By denying a place in suburbia to those Negroes who are economically able to move, we are proclaiming to the others who riot that their anger is entirely justified. The rioters will continue to see their ghetto and its afflictions as a prison from which there is no escape, however hard they may toil. Their frustrations will erupt in new violence.

Congress and the President have taken this step—the next and more important one must be taken by every private citizen.

The Winchester Fair Housing Association seeks your support in pursuing the goals which made the passage of this Act necessary. Information about membership may be obtained by phoning Membership Co-Chairmen, Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Chipman at 729-6260. There is much more that can be done.

Aid and Comfort

Editor of the Star:

We wish, through the Star, to express our deep gratitude to our many, many close friends and neighbors who have given us so much aid and comfort in this very trying time of our lives. The warmth, kindness and generosity of everyone has overwhelmed us and helped sustain us through this ordeal. Truly, we are deeply grateful and can never express in words the feeling within our hearts.

We also want to thank the firefighters for their brave and courageous efforts in fighting the fire which destroyed our home at 64 Fletcher Street.

We thank God for the safety of our family and for the comfort given by our friends. May He bless you all.

Pvt. Sullivan

Parris Island. Marine Sullivan completed training at Camp Lejeune in North Carolina before embarking for Vietnam, where he had served for about a month.

Private Sullivan was a drum major in the Immaculate Conception Drum and Bugle Corps and is well acquainted in the Center where he has worked for Hevey's Drug Pharmacy. He is one of five children and his brother John of Woburn, is also a Marine, presently with the South Weymouth Naval Air Station Reserve unit.

A letter received by the Marine private's family last week had told of patrol action in which the Winchester soldier had been in action and had given first aid and remained in the field with a buddy who had been severely wounded. The Star of April 4 printed a verse written by him and sent to a friend from Vietnam.

Marine Kevin Sullivan is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Collins of 20 Glenwood Avenue and of Thomas P. Sullivan of Woburn.

Auto Insurance: Keeton's Views On TV April 30

Robert E. Keeton, of 45 Everett Avenue, co-sponsor of the controversial Keeton-O'Connell Bill, will debate pros and cons of auto insurance on Tuesday, April 30 at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

A teacher of law at the Harvard Law School, Professor Keeton is opposed on "Opinion in Conflict" by attorney David Sargent, a member of the American Trial Lawyers Association.

"Should Negligence Continue to Decide Auto Insurance Claims?" both men are asked. Professor Keeton replies with a resounding no, explaining why he believes the insurance company of a car owner whose vehicle has been damaged should pay the claim without waiting for the courts to determine who was at fault.

Attorney Sargent takes the opposite view, insisting that the Keeton-O'Connell Play would cost just as much as the present system and would not be fair, since the driver who caused the accident would no longer be required to pay all damages.

Host for the program is Brown University Professor Scientist Lyman Kirkpatrick. Joining him to question Professor Keeton and Mr. Sargent are attorneys Paul Sugarman and C. Peter Gossells.

Professor Keeton has lived here for 10 years. His views on this bill were presented in his own words in the Star issues of August 24 and September 7.

Friends Fete Cynthia Barone

"It is people like Cynthia Barone who already know and are known in their district through their Republican work, who can be a special value at the State Committee level," said Frederic "Buck" Dumaine, former Republican State Committee Chairman at the home of the candidate for Republican State Committeewoman on Sunday evening.

CYNTHIA L. BARONE

"Cynthia needs no introduction to Republicans of Winchester or to Massachusetts in general, and has become known by grass roots workers in Arlington and Medford because of her interest in Town Committees and through her role as Convention delegate and campaigner for many candidates."

With the usual echoing thunder missing, but a warmth and sincerity in his words, "Buck" told of the political help given by Dr. and Mrs. Barone in the past and Cynthia's organizational ability and uncounted hours of tireless work on Finance Dinners, Conventions, rallies, etc., before and during his term as Chairman.

The affair was enthusiastically sponsored and served by approximately 30 hometown friends of Cynthia Barone as their part in helping her candidacy. Many had offered to give individual parties for the candidate but decided to combine forces and concentrate on one party at the Barone home in Winchester. Many comments were made about the colorful rock garden of hyacinths, tulips and jonquils (Mrs. Barone's hobby) in timely display in the out-of-doors area where her friends were serving punch.

A large gathering of voters from Medford, Arlington and Winchester met at the Barone's home. The candidate spoke briefly about political party organization, pointing out an unfortunate misunderstanding of the scope of the position of State Committee. "It is not a national policy-making body, nor does it elect presidential candidates," said Mrs. Barone. "It is advisory work with the Town Committees, a step more advanced from the local committee work I have done for the past 12 years."

She introduced three men who came to represent different levels of party organization; Lawrence T. Smith, Chairman of the Winchester Republican Town Committee (of which group, Mrs. Barone is Vice Chairman), William A. Barnstead of Arlington, present State Committeeman for this district, representing Arlington, Medford and Winchester, and "Buck" Dumaine, speaking as a former Republican State Committee Chairman.

Chairman Smith told of Cynthia's contribution and help on the Winchester Republican Town Committee, mentioning her popular election as Delegate to three State Conventions, her rise to the top woman's office of Vice Chairman, her work in organizing the Medford, Arlington and Winchester joint meetings and her continuous activity in Women's Republican Clubs and Director of the 7000 member Republican Club of Massachusetts.

"Without her continuous work behind the scenes," said Chairman Smith, "Our committee would have been much less effective."

State Committeeman Barnstead told of Cynthia's work for many candidates in the area and, from a personal point of view, her effort for him throughout the summer and fall of 1966 in his try for State Senate.

"It is vital" said Mr. Barnstead, "That people who are interested in politics and who work diligently at the grass roots level and in many other areas of Republican work, are encouraged in their attempt at running for such offices as this.

"If they are not," he continued, "if they are ignored and others who have not been in the local picture can supplant them...how then can the Republican Party expect to attract workers year after year?"

He mentioned that many State Committee people already know Cynthia Barone and urged those present to reach those who could not attend and get out to vote for her and give her an opportunity to join the State Committee and share with it her already proven political skills."

In closing, Mrs. Barone thanked her family and friends for their help and understanding. She mentioned that her listed qualifications were already in the hands of the guests, that no collections for financial support had been taken, nor pressure of any kind had been used to secure any workers or supporters.

"I am eager for the chance to continue my political work at the state level," said Mrs. Barone, "and hope that my continuous years of Republican service will speak for me at the polls on April 30th so I can speak for you on the State Committee."

Miss Winchester

In winning her title, Miss Deechan placed strongly in the three categories of talent, gown and swimsuit, which is patterned after the National Miss America pageant held in Atlantic City in September. Ann was awarded a $250 scholarship and she will compete for the title of Miss Massachusetts to be televised in color over WHDH-TV from Attleboro this summer.

The Jaycees, sponsors of the event, indicated about 3000 man hours of work was involved in the production of the show which included Jim Runyon as master of ceremonies, Miss Massachusetts, Marie Lynn Chaffee, the Winchester Double Sextet, the Mystic Glee Club, and Miss Winchester 1967, Lynne Cochran.

John A. Hackett, of 43 Robinhood Road, director of the pageant, thanked all the contestants for their cooperation and the local merchants for their financial backing in this annual scholarship pageant.

Special thanks also went to the Selectmen and School Department, the Winchester Conservatories, Bonne Bell Cosmetics, Mahoneys Rocky Ledge, B. & L. Carpet Company, and the Winchester Jaycee-ettes without whose help the pageant could not have produced.

An accident involving a car allegedly stolen in Somerville occurred at Symmes Corner on Monday morning at 8:50 a.m. following a chase at high speeds after the car by Somerville and Medford police.

Arrested at the scene of the accident was a 17-year-old Somerville boy. Driving a 1962 Chevrolet, the boy reportedly was travelling north on Grove Street when he entered the rotary at Symmes Corner from the left. A front end collision with a vehicle heading south on Main Street resulted.

Mount Holyoke Offers Spring House Tour

With Spring's early arrival, the Mount Holyoke Club of Winchester is particularly delighted to announce that its annual tour of Winchester homes will be held on Wednesday afternoon, May 8th from 1:30 to 5 p.m. This popular event is for the benefit of the Mount Holyoke Scholarship Fund.

Five lovely Winchester homes highlight this year's tour offering spectacular kitchens to inspect, original approaches to the problems of decorating and renovating, and creative ways to make a "house beautiful." In addition The Armenian Cultural Foundation is opening its beautiful white pillared Colonial "mansion" for all to enjoy. This house, located on a choice section of the Mystic Lakes, just over the Winchester line in Arlington at 441 Mystic Avenue, contains a fabulous collection of rare books, autographed by thousands of well known authors. One can hardly believe that such a collection could ever be found in suburbia. In this attractive library also is found an amazing collection of Tiffany lamps and Persian rugs. Mr. Topalian, the expert in charge of this marvelous collection, has kindly consented to explain in detail to those interested visitors the origin of some of these works.

One of the original prefabricated homes, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hill, 5 Agawam Road, will represent the West Side of Town. The spectacular view of Boston seen from their attractive woodland setting explains why this home was once a summer retreat for a well known Boston social worker, who had it moved from Highland Avenue to its present location. Inside, the many trips to India by the Hills are reflected in a fascinating display of treasures including a fireplace made of Indian tiles and a huge paper hanging depicting Indian mythology.

Two very typically "Winchester" styled homes are those of two Massachusetts General Hospital doctors and their families, Dr. and Mrs. Roman de Sanctis and Dr. and Mrs. Leslie de Groot. The de Sanctis home, at 5 Stratford Road, demonstrates how one can modernize an older home and use colors to great advantage. Mrs. de Sanctis has created her own dream kitchen and it is spectacular. The predominant use of blue throughout the house and the delightfully personalized rooms of a family of four girls make this home truly charming.

The de Groot home stands high on 332 Highland Avenue. With their large young family, the emphasis is on casual relaxed living. Outstanding in this Victorian home is its beautiful wood paneling, dramatic staircase, flagstone floor in the dining room, and an antique and foreign doll collection.

Historical interest predominates in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hartley Curtis at 5 Myrtle Street. This attractive bright yellow house is the duplicate of the better known Cutting House located next to the library. Famed as the "gingerbread house" because of its decorative trim, this "restrained Victorian" is furnished with antiques collected by Mr. Curtis's seafaring Maine ancestors. The home has been modernized, but visitors will be delighted to discover the charm of original days of more than one hundred years ago, is unmistakably in tact.

At 24 Clearwater Road, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McVicar have solved a problem perplexing many homeowners, how to add space to a small home without sacrificing its beauty. To their basic Ranch design, the McVicars have added a second story, providing two new bedrooms and a bath and a spectacular semi-cathedral ceiling, creating a marvelous feeling of space in their livingroom. By enclosing the breezeway, they were able to have a panelled breakfast room, and to enhance their view of the Fells, they built a stunning redwood sundeck, visible the moment you step inside the front hall. The architectural features are enhanced by the charm of their furnishings, a choice collection of clocks and art objects found throughout their home.

With Spring and this fabulous 1968 House Tour in the air, the time to buy tickets is now. They are available at Bowman Real Estate, Spaulding Bookshop, or from Mrs. Charles Greene, Jr., (729-6197) or Mrs. Keith Russell (729-5962).

Town Post Office Explains Pandering Advertising Law

Mail patrons offended by pandering advertisements can now take steps to curb such mail, Postmaster Charles R. Hill said today in announcing plans for administering a new law which gives each family the right to decide that an ad is "erotically arousing or sexually provocative."

When an advertisement sent through the mails is offensive on these grounds, a postal patron can now ask the post office to direct the mailer to send no more mail to him and to remove immediately the patrons name from all mailing lists he owns, controls, or rents.

To assist patrons, the Post Office Department has published a brief pamphlet—How You Can Curb Pandering Advertisements—which is now available at the Winchester Post Office. In addition to explaining how the law works, the pocket size leaflet contains a form letter one can use when sending his complaint to the post office.

The pamphlet explains that when a patron receives an advertisement which is, in his opinion, pandering, he must send the ad, its envelope, and the form letter, or one which includes its language, to his post office with the words, "request for prohibitory order" on the face of the envelope.

Postmaster Hill said: "This new law should give some protection to American families offended by advertisements they believe to be morally harmful, particularly to their children.

"Last year the Post Office Department received some 140,000 complaints from those offended by pandering advertisements. While in most cases the ads were not legally obscene and were therefore mailable, they often were offensive and are usually not the type of material one would want his children to read," Postmaster Hill said.

He added that "because the law gives a mail patron the sole right to decide what is offensive, and does not deny others the right to receive the same mail, the Congress felt it does not violate Constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech."

While the patron's complaint will only be directed to the sender, Postmaster Hill believes that one or two complaints will provide substantial protection because "the great bulk of this advertising comes from fewer than 20 so-called 'smut dealers' who are frequently swapping mailing lists."

If a mailer does not strike a complainant's name from this mailing list, and the patron receives a second mailing 30-days after the firm has received the prohibitory order, he may bring the matter to the attention of the postmaster issuing the initial order by writing him and enclosing the second pandering ad with its envelope. If the mailer still fails to respect the order, the Postmaster General may ask the Attorney General to apply for a Federal Court order directing compliance. Failure to observe the order may be punishable by a fine or imprisonment.

"Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of the darkness."

This verse from First Thessalonians is part of the Responsive Reading from the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches Sunday. The subject is "Probation after Death."

Among passages included from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is the following: "The divine demand, 'Be ye therefore perfect,' is scientific, and the human footsteps leading to perfection are indispensable. Individuals are consistent who, watching and praying, can 'run, and not be weary; . . . walk, and not faint,' who gain good rapidly and hold their position, or attain slowly and yield not to discouragement. God requires perfection, but not until the battle between Spirit and flesh is fought and the victory won."

Set up rigid family smoking rules for safety's sake, advises the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company. See that they are obeyed. Thoughtless family and guest smoking habits account for the largest number of residence fires each year. Rules should include no smoking in bed, and safe disposal of cigarettes and matches.

Ticonderoga Story To Be Told Sat. At the Library

Fort Ticonderoga will be brougt alive on Saturday, May 4th at the 2:30 p.m. meeting in the Public Library, sponsored by the Winchester Historical Society, when Colonel Edward P. Hamilton, its director tells the story of the Fort in words and with colored slides.

Colonel Hamilton is also a member and a director of the Massachusetts Historical Society, has authored many articles and books on pre-Revolutionary history, and has researched histories and records in foreign lands to assure the authenticity of the Ticonderoga Restoration which was started by the late William Ferris Pell in 1908.

Fort Ticonderoga was originally Fort Carillon built by the French in 1775-7758. General Jeffrey Amherst captured it for the English in 1759. In 1775 it was captured by Ethan Allen "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." In 1777 the Fort fell to the English and was abandoned the same year and it was never again garrisoned but it has served its purpose.

Today it is maintained as a museum which reflects all the history of our war for independence and all lovers of history are invited to join the meeting and hear its history. The new room displaying the Society's books and historic treasures will be open for inspection after the meeting.

Course Available For Travelers

The International Institute of Boston, a United Community Service agency, will offer a comprehensive orientation course to help travelers get more out of their trips, at its headquarters, 287 Commonwealth Avenue, for six weeks beginning the end of April. They will take place for each group once a week. Some will be offered during the day, others at night.

Groups will be formed according to registrations. Tentatively the following countries are scheduled for discussion; Mexico and South America; Scandinavia; the Mediterranean countries, including Greece, Italy, and Israel; and Central Europe, mostly Austria, Germany and Switzerland. If there is sufficient demand for other countries, additional groups can be formed.

Registrations will be acepted at the Institute, Tel. KE 6-1081.

Mrs. Nelson Lauds Voting Machines

"You cannot compare voting machines with a computer or anything els," says Mrs. Elsie M. Nelson, Town Clerk.

Mrs. Nelson's opinion is based on her experience with 34 automatic voting machines in Winchester since March, 1965. She feels use of machines has eliminated many trying, tiring and expensive headaches for the Town, her office and her election staff. She welcomes their use next week.

The first benefit of the machines is the elimination of the ballot boxes, the counting process and the transportation involved in the use of paper ballots, according to the Town Clerk. Machines also permit the elimination of voting booths in each of the Winchester precincts.

"Most important," Mrs. Nelson adds, "the machine simplifies the paperwork while eliminating human error in over-voting or in interpretation of what the voter really meant, which is quite often most difficult to ascertain in paper ballots. The machines make recounts a routine chore instead of the tedious task they were when paper ballots were in use."

Mrs. Nelson also stresses the great saving in time after the polls have closed, compared to that required when counting paper ballots in blocks of 50 and cites as another most important advantage "the immediate totals given to the public and the press when machines are used."

Town Clerk Nelson estimates that unofficial returns are complete within 15 minutes after the polls close and adds, "this you cannot beat with a computer or anything else." They are absolutely fraud-proof," she says, adding that there have been no machine breakdowns in Winchester.

Broadloom Adds Style At Chitel's

BRIGHT NEW RUGS provide a background as salesman John Martin displays a summer suit at Chitel's Clothing at 6 Mt. Vernon Street. Shoppers will find the light-olive-and-blue floor covering in the men's department accented by a thick shag gold rug in the women's section. Jack Chitel, owner of the store started by his father Philip Chitel as a tailor shop in 1911, points out the store is designed physically for a casual atmosphere and that its policy in dealing with customers carries out the same principle. Shoppers for spring and summer clothes can select from fashions by John Meyer of Norwich and London Fog featured in the ladies' department and all major advertised lines in men's wear. Chitel's also specializes in many unusual items designed and carried under its own label. The store's colonial design is highlighted by many pieces of authentic antique furniture and a cathedral beamed ceiling. Associated with the shop are Sheldon Alman, store manager, Lucille Auclair, ladies' department manager, Kay Higgins, saleswoman, Joe Cullen, office manager, and Frank Antico, tailor and fitter.

A Fire-Safe Home Asks a Clean-Up

This is the basic message of spring clean-up, in Winchester, Fire Chief I. Francis Amico announced today.

"Clean-up makes good sense for a lot of reasons," says the chief. "But most important of all is that it helps make the lives of you and your family safer from fire.

"According to the National Fire Protection Association, which has been gathering and analyzing fire records since 1896, more than a half million homes in this country were hit by fire last year. About 6,500 people died in those fires.

"Rubbish is one of the top causes of building fires, the NFPA records show.

"So what it comes to is this: clean up our homes—as well as our places of business and all other buildings—and we'll cut the number of dangerous, killing fires. So our goal for Spring Clean-up is to make every home in this community safer from fire."

Brandy is a distillation of fermented mash of fruit or fermented fruit juices. Its materials are, in order of importance, grapes, raisins, apples and peaches.

Vinson-Owen Plans Fun Night

The Vinson-Owen Parents Association plans a special Fun night for all to swing with spring. The stage will be set at the Vinson-Owen School Auditorium on Saturday evening, April 27 at 8:30 p.m. for an evening of fun with town and country dancing and entertainment.

Well-known folk-tune caller Bob Burwell will feature square dancing as well as provide instructions for those not familiar with these dances. Casual dancing, from the old and familiar to the new and hep tunes will also be featured.

Special credit for the plans and arrangements go to Mrs. William Zettler, ways and means chairman, who says the evening should prove to be a wonderful time of fun and entertainment, and everyone is welcome to join in. Tickets are currently being sold at a very minimal price and anyone interested may obtain them from ticket chairman, Mrs. Jack Wilson (729-7204).

Proceeds from the affair go directly to the benefit of the school children through the Parents Association which provides special treats and activities for the youngsters as well as special scholarships.

Refreshments will be available and a door prize, donated by Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery, will go to the lucky ticket holder. Everyone is welcome to come.

G. O. P. VOTERS ARE VOCAL, SAYS SARA C. WOODWARD

My coffee hours have been anything but silent. In the past thirty days I have been given coffees or teas by more than thirty hostesses in Winchester, Arlington and Medford, and our conversations on politics have shown that YOU the voter want YOUR questions answered, YOUR ideas advanced and YOUR convictions expressed to party leaders.

One of the great opportunities of this campaign has been to educate the voters on the importance of the April 30th election which establishes the Republican Party machinery for the next four years. I have welcomed the opportunity to explain to the voters the three categories for which they will vote:

1. Delegates to the National Convention who choose the Republican candidates for President and Vice President and elect the National Committee members.
3. A State Committee Woman and Man.
3. The 35 Town Committee members.
4. In addition, voters may write in their preference for President.

At these coffee hours we have discussed all levels of politics; I have talked with young voters, new voters, and mature voters, all of whom are concerned with making Republicanism more active in the community.

I believe that if elected to the State Committee I can:

1. Strengthen the local-state Republican ties through increased liaison and communications.
2. Find, inspire and help qualified Republican candidates to run and win.
3. Speak out clearly for the local views at State Level.
4. Encourage local Republican activity on a year-round basis.
5. Use my years of experience as a campaigner, a volunteer worker on Republican and community causes, a former Town Officer and a Federal and State Executive to serve the voters of Arlington, Medford and Winchester as an unbiased, articulate and informed State Committee Woman.

More Programs For the Police Are Supported

Five residents participated in the recent Tufts Assembly on Massachusetts Government which favored sweeping support of increased police power and immediate modernization of law enforcement equipment and methods.

Gilbert H. Hood, 6 Everett Avenue, Richard V. Kiley, 70 Fletcher Street, Leo L. Laughlin, 9 Everett Avenue, Commissioner of Public Safety, Mrs. John J. Mahoney, 8 Everett Avenue, and State Representative Harrison Chadwick, 24 Everett Avenue, were the representatives from the Winchester area.

The recommendations of the 100 citizens gathered for the two-day conference will be presented to state lawmakers for possible legislative action.

In an effort to attain more effective police action, the Assembly called for state funds to finance college scholarships for police officers; modern communications to combat organized crime's computerized agencies; and the use of police cadets and citizens to handdle routine clerical and traffic duties.

Library Extends Welcome to All

Bright orange posters around Town featuring a languishing young lady of the twenties and the question "When was the last time you visited your library?" signify the Winchester Public Library's invitation to all townspeople to come and get acquainted during National Library Week.

A recent announcement reports that librarians and library trustees have been doing everything possible to improve continually services and facilities. New books go on display each Thursday and the latest newspapers, magazines, and recordings are available.

Librarians are willing and able to help, not only by giving suggestions for reading but also, for example, by telling where to look for information on schools and colleges, or on doing home repairs, planting a graden, or cracking a tough research problem.

There is a good reason why even the most isolated communities can provide these facilities. It's called the Eastern Regional Public Library System. It was formed a short time ago by a small, medium-sized, and large libraries joining in a co-operative venture to bring better and more efficient service to their patrons.

Winchester's regional headquarters is the Boston Public Library. The system works this way: if the library does not have a book wanted it will send the request to the Boston Public Library; and if they don't have it, they will acquire it.

Also, any organization in Eastern Massachusetts can borrow films from the Boston Public Library, any resident can have a borrower's card from the Boston Public Library, and all libraries, large and small, will soon be providing their patrons with professionally-designed reading lists on a wide variety of subjects, for all ages. All of these services are being provided free of charge. The local librarians can give further information.

The library says, "the appearance of this poster will remind you to visit your public library and experience a new concept in library service. If you have doubt: did you ever expect your public library to publish a poster like this."

Biomedical Group Invites Students For Workshop

Winchester High School students with a career interest in science have been invited to apply for the second summer workshop sponsored by the Institute of Biological and Medical Sciences of Retina Foundation in Boston.

Dr. Richard L. Pharo, assistant to the president of the Institute, said that those seniors selected will spend eight weeks at the Institute during July and August working with scientists in the laboratory on actual research investigations. Each student will receive a $400 stipend.

"The workshop will give the students an opportunity to do creative laboratory work while exposing them to the process of scientific inquiry," Dr. Pharo said. "It is the aim of the program to provide a motivation towards science by enabling the students to share the everyday experience and work of biomedical scientists."

He said the workshop is designed for students who have shown outstanding performance in their high school academic careers, particularly in the science courses.

Detailed information on the workshop is available from Mother Elizabeth Farragher, of Marycliff Academy, and W. Howard Niblock of the Winchester High School.

Few Fewer Pussycats?

With spring bursting upon us, there will be a flood of unwanted animals. I would like to urge your readers to have their female pets spayed. Ten thousand puppies and kittens are born every hour in the United States and only one out of five will find a permanent home. Destroying the rest is the main occupation of most humane societies.

Friends of Animals Inc. was founded 10 years ago to make people aware of the necessity of spaying female pets and to aid financially those unable to afford the regular veterinarian fees. Through the efforts of 200 volunteer representatives and 300 cooperating veterinarians, 50,000 pets have been spayed, thereby preventing the birth of billions of surplus animals.

Massachusetts alone has two dozen representatives and over 3[illegible] veterinarians who accept reduced fees to facilitate this humane program. Anyone needing aid may call a local repersentative at 254-[illegible]851, 776-5729, or UN 4-0180. Others who would like to donate to this worthy cause may send tax deductible checks to: Friends of Animals Inc., 17 West 60th Street, New York, N.Y. 10023.

Tufts Pupils Turn to Bookmaking

by Lois Carr

Although it may sound alarming, some of the students in Winchester are bookmakers. Tufts School 11 and 12 year olds are printing a book.

Using a matchbox printing press on loan from the Children's Museum for a month, the neophyte type setters, plate cutters, press men, and proofreaders are designing, writing, illustrating, and printing their own book.

With sheets of the manuscript in hand, small groups of children work at racks of type selecting the letters needed to set the type for use in the small press. The "art department" cuts plates for the illustrations and inks to see the end result. The press operator in blue apron carefully inserts one sheet of paper at a time, lowers the lid of the waffle iron-like press and exerts the correct amount of pressure for a specified period. He removes the printed sheet which is passed on to another student and clipped to a clothesline strung for drying the proofs. Collation and binding operations will follow.

"Doomsday"

As the "Blue Unit," the 5th and 6th graders in the "ungraded" program, chose to write a tragedy entitled, "Doomsday." It is a sad tale about two Mexican boys who hitchhike to Winchester to try ice skating which they have seen during the Winter Olympics on television. They are attracted to the ice-covered Aberjona, and unable to speak English they ignore the "danger" sign. The unfortunate pair plunge to a watery grave and a tragic ending, "Bubble, bubble, bubble, bubble..." The story was written and illustrated by the students in conjunction with study in the language arts.

Following publication of "Doomsday," the Blue Unit has a field trip planned to tour the printing operations of a newspaper to see larger applications of the principles of printing they have learned and used. The trip will also provide information about the reading program used by the Blue Unit, since, instead of a conventional reading textbook, the unit reads from the Boston Herald Traveler in reading groups each day.

Printing operations are conducted in one of the carpeted 175-pupil classrooms of the newest elementary school in Winchester. The students at Tufts School work at tables which permit rearrangement of the room for different purposes. The rooms can be partitioned in one place and the six teachers in charge of the Blue Unit have a glassed-in room for their desks, supplies, and their clerical aide.

The printing press was secured through the efforts of Miss Joan Banning, writer in the language arts for Tufts School. Writers are employed to write self-instruction materials for use by single students and students in small groups and to evaluate such materials by observing student use of them. They also write curriculum materials for the system-wide councils to assure coordination of efforts.

The publication is under the supervision of one of the Blue Unit teachers, Mrs. Henrietta Dombey, who is in Winchester for one year from London, England. Although Mrs. Dombey teaches in a self-contained classroom in England she finds that the flexibility of the Tufts School program and design encourages experimentation with projects requiring space and small interaction and activity such as the printing press has provided.

Missionary Soc. Auction Backed By Cong. Church

First Congregational Church is cooperating to plan an annual old-fashioned country auction for the benefit of the Summer Camping program of the Boston City Missionary Society, Saturday, May 4th, at the Farrington Memorial property in Lincoln, located on Route 2 about 1/4 mile north of the Route 128 intersection.

Mrs. George C. Smiley of 232 Highland Avenue is in charge of the collection of articles here, among which are antiques of all kinds, furniture, fireplace equipment, garden tools, pottery, glassware, electrical appliances, musical instruments, bicycles and sports equipment.

A snack bar will be a popular feature and the auction will be held rain or shine.

Monte Carlo At Washington

Washington School parents urge not to travel all the way to Las Vegas to try their luck—to save money and spend it at home.

Specifically, they suggest attending the Monte Carlo Night at the George Washington School on Saturday, May 4 at 8:30 p.m. Planned as a fund raising event, it is sponsored by the George Washington Mothers' and Dads' Associations.

Many prizes will be donated and many and various games of chance are planned.

$921,000 Goes To War Vets

How are Winchester's war veterans and their families making out financially?

How much did they receive in the past year from the government in the form of cash benefits and services?

By virtue of new and expanded benefits voted by Congress, they collected more than in any previous year.

According to an estimate based upon a state-by-state breakdown released by the Veterans Administration, veterans in Winchester and their dependents received a total of over $921,000 during the fiscal year.

It went to some 660 living veterans and families of deceased veterans in the local area.

Throughout the State of Massachusetts, where the overall benefits amounted to more than $342,325,000 in the year, it was equivalent to $1,404 per veteran.

In some communities it amounted to more than this and in others less. In the United States as a whole, where more than $7 billion was spent on veterans programs, the average came to $1,607.

The figures are contained in the annual report of the Administrator of Veterans Affairs, just issued.

Although there are more than 25 million war veterans living today, including 72 who served in the Spanish-American War and two who were in the Indian War, only about 3 million of them are receiving cash benefits.

In the new Federal budget, as in most previous budgets, there are recommendations for additional outlays in behalf of veterans. The Administration proposes expanded programs for higher education and job training for the 800,000 servicemen now being discharged each year.

Of the $921,000 that went to Winchester veterans and their families last year, approximately $589,000 was in the form of pension checks for totally disabled veterans and compensation checks for disabilities incurred in military service.

To G.I. insurance policyholders and their beneficiaries went some $98,000 in dividends and indemnity payments.

Other distributions were for vocational rehabilitation, educational assistance, housing grants, direct loans, and for miscellaneous other purposes.

Mr. Mardulier To Give Address On Switzerland

A principal speaker at an international conference on industrial standards to be held May 31 in Zurich, Switzerland, will be Francis J. Mardulier, president of the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM).

FRANCIS J. MARDULIER

On hand for the event will be officials of standards-setting organizations from throughout Europe.

Mr. Mardulier is general manager of rock products chemicals for W. R. Grace & Co.'s Dewey and Almy Chemical Division, Cambridge. Throughout his presidency of ASTM he has emphasized the need for voluntary standardization by industry to avoid the necessity for government intervention.

The conference is the highlight of engagements throughout Europe for the ASTM officials who will meet with, and address, other organizations for industrial standards in Germany, Holland and Italy.

Mr. Mardulier, of 37 Woodside Road, will also address several groups on the chemistry of rock products, principally cement. He has pioneered this field with Grace's construction materials for more than 30 years.

En Ka Plans For 34th Fair

May is En Ka Street Fair time in Winchester. Its been that way now for 34 years.

This year May 17 and 18 is the time for fun, laughter, and frivolity when all of Winchester helps En Ka earn the money it uses during the next year to aid and support a large sum of worthwhile civic and social service causes in our Town.

The En Ka Society was first organized as a high school sorority back in 1902. It has undergone some changes through the years, principally to become a senior organization dedicated to the service of the Town. The Society meets four times a year, and following each meeting, a list of the contributions which have been voted on by the group is published in the Star so that the townspeople may see where the money raised at the Street Fair is to be spent.

A Gay Nineties Fair is to be the theme of the 1968 Street Fair. Mrs. David Choate is the chairman, and Mrs. Henry Gerould is her co-chairman. They have been planning ever since the 1967 fair ended for an even better one this year. They are assisted by a group of directors whose hard work and good ideas assure everyone of a wonderful time at the fair.

The first fireplace lighting of the fall is a remembered event. Much more than the second, after you've remembered to open the flue.

Home and Garden Holds Meeting

The members of the Winchester Home and Garden Club opened their meeting with a refreshment period while enjoying the artistry of the tea table centerpiece entitled Desert Song. Created by Mrs. Joseph Georgis, this arrangement featured orange and white flowers circled with a beautiful scarf from Bagdad.

Introduced during the business part of the meeting was Mrs. Willian W. Towner, horticulture chairman, who described a forthcoming field trip in June to the Stevens-Coolidge Place in North Andover.

Mrs. Harwood Boynton, ways and means chairman, displayed tickets for the House and Garden Tour on Wednesday, May 22, from 1 to 4 p.m. and listed the following six houses and two gardens open to the public on this day: Mr. and Mrs. Park Hoyt, 60 Lorena Road; Dr. and Mrs. Alexander P. Aitken, 26 Myopia Road; Mr. and Mrs. William F. Morton, 38 Arlington Street; Mr. and Mrs. James L. Jenks, Jr., 12 Myopia Road; Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. Pearl, 1 Wood Lane; and Mr. and Mrs. John Hosmer, Jr., 9 Rangeley Road. The two gardens open will be those of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice T. Freeman, of 11 Lorena Road, and Mr. and Mrs. John Chipman, of 19 Lorena Road.

Mrs. Henry R. Delaney, Jr., program chairman, then introduced the speaker for this meeting, Mrs. Wilhelmina Feinberg. She enumerated the elements of design in landscaping—balance, scale, rhythm, and contrast—which coordinate to produce unity and harmony. Mrs. Feinberg gave a short lecture on these principles and illustrated them with slides of her landscaping efforts from homes in Beacon Hill and Marblehead to the windswept countryside of the Cape.

Smile,
if you're an investor:
Because we virtually eliminate the chance of logjams in handling orders.
And mistakes in transmission and/or confirming.
How? With the new IBM 2702 Tele-Processing FINAC System. (Affectionately called "our little black box" by its co-workers.)
Immediately upon receipt of your order from any of our 42 branches and correspondents, the 2702 transmits it to the Floor. Confirms execution. Transmits back to the originator. And many times does it all by the time the trade is reported on the Exchange's own ticker tape.
Say! Did anyone ever tell you you've got a beautiful smile?

Scowl,
if you're a broker:
Because "our little black box" is one of the first of its kind on Wall Street.
But don't worry, you can get one too. And we won't mind at all.

Now you can drive a Volkswagen all over town without shifting.
We call this new option the automatic stick shift.
And in true Volkswagen fashion, a bug with an automatic stick shift will deliver up to 25 miles on a gallon of gas, use very little oil, and nary a drop of water or antifreeze.
But just because we've made it easy to drive, doesn't mean we're about to make it any prettier, or any bigger, or any fancier. So we imagine some people will still refuse to drive Volkswagens.
You can't win them all.

Tentatively scheduled for the evening program are brief presentations by each representative to be followed by two sessions for individual meetings with officials.

Let the Public Beware

ALTHOUGH many like to pretend that it isn't so, funeral service like any other service has to be fairly priced. No one could possibly supply the modern funeral which the American public demands unless his firm were soundly operated, with a reasonable profit margin. Therefore, it behooves the public to beware of "bargains in funeral service."

Tommy Martin of Albamont Road has earned a starting spot at second base on the Williams College freshman baseball team. Tom played the same position with the Sachems.

John Martin, Tommy's brother, has been elected co-captain of the Bridgton Academy lacrosse team. John will be remembered by Sachem football fans for his great work at end on the '66 team to help give Henny Knowlton a winning season in his bow-out as coach. John made a couple of last-minute catches for touchdowns which made the difference between a winning and losing season for the Sachems. He enters Northeastern in the fall.

Tony Silvestri is another ex-Sachem who has earned a starting role, on the Tufts lacrosse team as goalie. Tony was a three-letter man at WHS—soccer, wrestling, and lacrosse. Another Winchesterite, Robert Farrar, was all-New England choice last year as a member of the Jumbos. Still another local resident, Rocky Carzo, Tufts head football coach, is serving as assistant coach on the lacrosse team.

We note that John O'Leary, printing supt. at the Star, is equipment manager for one of the Little League teams. We can't think of anyone in town better qualified for the job, having had years of experience in outfitting boys—six of his own.

We enjoyed Clif Keane's column in Tuesday morning's Globe. One thing about Keane, he isn't afraid to stick his neck out, even at the risk of getting it hacked at—such as in stating over a year ago that the Celtics were dead (He'll probably never live that down), or in sticking to his judgment in scoring a play on the baseball field while under heavy bombardment by the Sox owner. In his column on headhunting in the American League, with the other Boston sportswriters screaming that the Sox are being ganged up on, Clif shows how other teams in the league feel about it. If you take a sock at the other guy, there's always the chance that he will hit back. If you missed the column, dig up Tuesday morning's Globe. It is well worth reading.

It's time the American League clamped down on the situation, and if it doesn't, the baseball commissioner should start earning his salary.

Little League Opens Saturday With Ceremony at Ginn Field

Winchester's Little League season opens this Saturday with a ceremony at Ginn Field, at 10 a.m. followed by an exhibition game between the champions of the American League, the Athletics, and the champions of the National League, the Yankees.

At the kick-off meeting last night at the McCall Junior High School Auditorium, Donald C. Van Roosen, of 12 Woodside Road, president of the Dads' Club presided. The administrators of Little League were introduced to the players, managers of all Major and Minor Leagues, and other interested spectators.

James R. Stewart, Jr., of 7 Winslow Road, president of Little League, made a few remarks, and then the managers were brought up on stage to receive the caps of their 1968 team players. Following was the color film of the 1967 World Series.

On Saturday after the exhibition between Bill Paglia's Athletics and Dave Deshler's resurgent Yankees, both Ginn Field and West Side Field will see three doubleheaders initiate the 1968 Little League season at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. At Ginn Field, one set of contests will have the National League Rams vs the Tigers followed by the Ponies vs the Lions. At the other Minor League diamond, first, the Bulldogs will oppose the Bears, then the Beavers will battle the Greyhounds. On the Major League field, there will be contests between the National League Braves and Twins, followed by the Red Sox battling the Dodgers.

Over at West Side Field, starting at one o'clock, the Major League field next to Mahoney's will see first the American League's Pirates vs the Reds, and then the Mets vs the Cardinals. On the other fenced-in diamond, the Minor League Badgers go against the Buffalos, and the Jaguars contest the Leopards. On the Minor League Field, the games will be the Whippets vs the Panthers and the Wildcats vs the Wolves.

The Senior League season starts Sunday with Manchester Field witnessing two contests. The first game will be between the White Sox and the Giants, followed by the Indians vs the Senators. At Shore Road Field, the first game will be between the Angels and the Cubs, then the Phillies will battle the Orioles.

Lacrosse Team Bows in Opener 17-4 to St. Mark's

"This has never happened before, and it will never happen again," commented Coach Gene Bouley after his varsity lacrosse squad was trounced 17-4 in the opening contest of the season by St. Mark's at Southboro.

Starting slowly, the team was on the defensive from the start. The attack and midfield did not come alive until late in the game, and by then it was too late.

The defense was hampered greatly as two starters, Jeff Lindberg and Co-captain Ted Webb were injured in the hectic first half and left early in the game. In the goal the two rookies had a tough day. Sophomore Mark Stabile, playing most of the game, let in 14, while John Pirani, seeing only limited action, allowed three St. Mark's tallies.

Junior Jim Barry posted a hat trick for the Sachems. Of his three goals, one was unassisted, one was assisted by sophomore Cliff Letty, and the third came on a pass from senior Bob Giamattei. The fourth Winchester goal was scored unassisted by Letty.

Tennis Team Moving Again

Definitely hurt by the graduation of four top players, the Winchester Sachem tennis team begins action today at home versus Reading. The Sachems have a long road ahead of them if they are to equal the outstanding years of 1966 and 1967. Last year's Winchester entry won the Middlesex League for the second straight year, became the first Winchester athletic team of recent times to qualify for a state tournament berth, and reached the quarter-finals of the state tournament before before being edged 3 to 2 by Newton North High School. The accomplishments were on the way to a 14 and 2 record.

This year's team has the benefit of two of three singles starters returning. Mike Hills is expected to play number one for the third straight year. Captain Dick Kadesch is the choice to play number two. Kadesch was 15 and 1 at third singles last year. Moving into Kadesch's old position will be junior Brad Lindgren. Lindgren played mostly doubles on last year's championship team. Although the strength of the team is with the singles men, the graduation of Doug Carlson is sure to hurt. Carlson had an amazing 32 wins against only 4 losses during his three years on the varsity level.

The doubles teams need work badly. Last year's first doubles team of Barry Blanchard and Brad Lindgren will not be matched. It will be even more difficult for Coach Stangel to mold a second doubles combination to match the graduating team of Chuck Lisberger and Bruce Abbott. Despite the problems at the doubles positions, the team looks good enough to cop a third straight league crown, and as for the states, time is to tell.

Tennis Team Opener Today To Defend Title

Led by Coach Donald Stangel and Captain Dick Kadesch, Winchester High's tennis squad will open its season today against Reading here in Winchester at the Palmer Courts.

The team is the only defending Middlesex League champion this year out of all the sports in which the Sachems compete. Last year, the squad went undefeated in capturing the League crown, marking the second consecutive year that a Stangel-coached tennis team had posted a perfect record.

Although the squad lost three starters with graduation last year, four lettermen are returning: Kadesch, senior Andrew Hills, and juniors Brad Lindgren and Barry Gibson.

Starting in the three singles spots will be Hills, Kadesch, and Lindgren, but their exact positions on the ladder are as yet undetermined. Three teams are in contention for the two doubles slots: senior Steve Pritchard and Barry Gibson, juniors Bruce Stebbins and Dave Gibson, and juniors Leo Lauretano and Paul Peterson.

Richard Fahey, former WHS runner, ran the three-quarter mile leg in the Freshman Distance Medley Relay (time—3.07) last Saturday as the Holy Cross freshman relay team outclassed the field in this event at the B.C. Relays. Dick has been running the mile with consistently good times this spring for the H.C. Freshmen.

WHS Batsmen Drop Opener To Tanners

Silent bats and erratic fielding spelled an 8-2 defeat for Winchester High's baseball squad in its season opener played Saturday afternoon at Manchester Field against Woburn.

The Sachems could muster only six hits off Steve Bevins, the Tanner lefthander who went the distance for the victors. Bevins struck out six and walked only four en route to Woburn's third win in three starts.

The Tanners, meanwhile, tapped Winchester's pitching for eight hits, seven singles and a double. In the field, Woburn committed three errors to the Sachem's five.

Winchester's two runs came in the sixth. Junior third baseman, Pete Knight, and senior center fielder, Toby Harvey, stroked back-to-back singles. Junior first baseman, Jack Papadinis, then walked to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Joe Maspero fanned, leaving right fielder Tom Wolfe with the bases jammed and one out.

Wolfe hit a grounder toward third, and the Woburn third baseman fired to second base, forcing out Papadinis. The Tanner second baseman then overthrew first base, allowing Wolfe to go to second. Knight scored on the fielder's choice; Harvey reached home on the wild throw.

Melrose Takes Sachems 4-1 In League Start

Once again failing to produce an effective offense, Coach Bill Colella's baseball squad was limited to four singles and one run in bowing to the visiting Melrose Red Raiders 4-1 in their opening Middlesex League baseball contest.

The Sachems' only run came in the third inning. Tommy Flaherty reached first on an error by the Melrose short stop. He was then moved to third on a single by Joe Fiumara. Fiumara then stole second, leaving Billy Wolfe at the plate with men on second and third.

Wolfe singled Flaherty home, but the rally ended before the next batter was thrown a strike, as the Melrose pitcher picked Fiumara off at third base.

As if the loss was not bad enough, the team—already hit hard by injuries to Tommy Riley and Mike Gilberti—lost the services of left fielder Pete Knight for an unknown period of time. Knight broke a rib while making a spectacular diving catch of a first inning fly ball. The durable junior athlete managed to bat in the Sachem half of the first, and singled sharply to left center before giving in to the injury.

Trackmen Defeat Stoneham With 65-61 Sachem Win

Coach Roger Rawden's track squad posted its second consecutive victory last Friday, outpointing Stoneham 65-61.

Both teams were obviously primed for the contest, as the times and distances in 11 of the 15 events reflected improvements over the performances in the season opener.

Once again co-captain Greg Cronin set the pace for the Sachems, as he took first place honors in the 100 and 220. And co-captain Dave Carpenter contributed 9 points, as he did in the first meet, placing in all three of the events in which he competed.

Senior Chris Halverson, defending League champion in the discus, posted his first double victory of the season—winning the shot-put and the discus.

Track Team Takes Concord Opener

Paced by co-captains Greg Cronin and Dave Carpenter, and seniors Bob McClellan and Chris Halverson, Winchester High's track team defeated Concord-Carlisle in the opening meet of the season 79½-51½.

Cronin placed first in the 100 and 220, contributing 10 points to the winning effort. Carpenter and McClellan proved to be the squad's most versatile performers, as each of them placed in three events. Carpenter took a first in the low hurdles (the event in which he is defending Middlesex League champion), a second in the javelin, and a third in the broad jump. McClellan meanwhile placed first in the javelin and the 880, and ran the anchor leg on the victorious Sachem relay team.

Halverson was the big man for Winchester in the field events, winning a first in the shot put and a second in the discus.

Big League Calls Boys To Meeting

A brief meeting will be held at 9 a.m. this coming Saturday, April 27, at the Manchester Field diamond for all 16, 17, and 18-year-old young men who want to participate in the new Big League Baseball program this year.

Purpose of the meeting is to decide on the color of the new uniforms, team names, team colors for caps and socks, and the days on which players prefer to play games.

The new program will get underway as soon as the High School schedule ends. Plans have been made to have four teams play 18-games each during June and July, plus play-off or tournament games leading up to National World Series play.

Applications will be passed out at this meeting and questions about the activity will be answered.

The meeting will not take more than 30 to 45 minutes. This is not a tryout, so equipment is not needed.

WEEI Plans Fishing Derby

From April 20 through May 31 through May 31 WEEI Radio will hold "The WEEI Fishing Derby." In cooperation with the Massachusetts Fish and Game Department, dozens of fish with special WEEI metal tags, have been dumped into area ponds and rivers during the normal stocking of fishing areas.

Any artful angler, with the good fortune to reel in one of these "WEEI Prize Fish," just has to bring the tag to the WEEI studios. Awarded will be an anodized-aluminum tackle box.

The WEEI fish are scattered in many ponds and rivers in the Eastern Massachusetts area.

Frances Murphy Seeks Re-Election

Democratic State Committeewoman Frances Murphy, in her campaign for re-election, has placed special emphasis on the formation of Senatorial District Councils, as outlined in the following statement:

This year, more than ever before, there is a need for unification in the Democratic Party. While a cohesive county group can be practical and effective, regional grouping might well begin in the Senatorial District. When these districts become active as units of the Democratic Party, stronger political organization will follow.

The Democratic Ward Committee Members in cities and towns, generally make up the core of the district council, and all interested Democrats are encouraged to praticipate. Periodic meetings are held with Democratic State Committee Members to discuss the specific needs and problems of the communities within the district. The State Committee Members point out ways in which local leaders and workers can aid in accomplishing the objectives of the state and local organizations. The district council then serves as a "clearing house" for plans, suggestions, and ideas for the promotion of progress in political activity. Thus the channels of communication are kept open between the local and state committees.

In the past eight years, I have worked for unification in local organizations, and have invited members to attend and observe our State Committee meetings. In the future, I plan to work for better understanding, more cooperation, and unified effort through Senatorial District Councils.

Duplicate Bridge Club

On Wednesday, May 1st, there will be a doubly special event at the Club,—the Men's and the Women's Pairs Championships. Chitel's, that well-known Winchester clothing store, is the donor of the Challenge Bowl for the Men's Pairs, and Anderson's Jewelers for the Women's Pairs.

There was a record breaking crowd of bridge players on Wednesday, April 17th,—twenty-seven tables worth, plenty both of members and guests.

North-South in Section A, there was one big game by Betty Slade and Bob Haskell, while in the East-West direction, it was a real battle with Ed Mansfield and Sam Burwen tying for first place with Carl Galante and Steve Haseltine.

The hands were distributional in Section B, interesting but difficult to bid and play. A good example is Board No. 4. West is the dealer with both sides vulnerable.

When each side has a good fit in a suit,—clubs for North-South and hearts for East-West,—it's a battle of both nerve and judgment to see where the bidding will stop.

It was generally a draw on Wednesday. Five North-Souths played in a club contract, making four or five depending on the defense. And six East-Wests played in either four or five hearts, both doubled and undoubled, all making. In fact, there wasn't one set on the board, although six clubs would have been an excellent sacrifice rather than letting them make five hearts.

Obviously, when you look at the East-West cards with their combined fifteen high card points, you have to throw away the rule book to reach a five-heart contract. I have no censure, therefore, only commiseration, for the five East-Wests who let North-South win the contract away from them.

Girl Scout Diary

By Marie Began

Maple Sugaring—A real taste, real honest to goodness "maple sugaring" was enjoyed last month by Junior Troops 484 and 517 at the home of the Charles W. Bacon family in Jaffrey, New Hampshire.

Members of the Bacon family have run their maple sugaring operation for three generations and under their expert guidance the girl scouts learned how to tap a tree, place the buckets, gather sap, evaporate it to syrup, then boil and beat it to sugar.

They were taken into the sugar house which is like a large barn, with a dirt floor and holes in the roof for the vapor to escape through. This is where all the sugar operations are done as someone said "it has the aroma of three generations of maple sugaring."

At the suggestion of Mr. Bacon the girls poured their hot maple syrup onto snow where it turned sticky. They quickly twisted the "batter" around a popsicle stick until it was the size of a taffy apple, and ate it. They also enjojyed making their own maple sugar candy which is known as sugar cakes. They boiled their syrup beyond the soft sugar stage letting it evaporate until it was considered done enough to beat and mold into candy. In true maple sugaring tradition, a gallon jar of dill pickles was consumed by the girls as they discovered a bite or two of pickle enabled them to go back and eat more maple sugar.

Home-made doughnuts and coffee were supplied by the Bacon family after which the 40 girls were driven home by Mr. and Mrs. John Eaton, Mrs. Richard Dexter and Mrs. Anthony Pelletier.

Splash Party

Last Saturday morning 150 Junior Girl Scouts went swimming in Tufts University pool, 50 girls at a session. They had a wonderful time going off the diving board, practicing their strokes and just plain having fun. Overheard in the locker room "Can we do it again?" "I feel sorry for those that missed a real good time."

Many thanks to Mrs. Percy Hill for making all the arrangements.

A Big Thank You

Scout thanks go to Edward Berndt, owner of Parkview Apartments on Swanton Street, who aided in the recent Girl Scout Cookie sale by purchasing several cases of cookies and donating them to the Home for the Aged here in Winchester.

The Scouts had camped out overnight in 40 degree temperatures. They got up at 3:00 a.m. to be on hand for the early morning ceremony at the Isaac Davis House prior to the hike. The scouts who attended were: Michael Varley, Phil Tavares, Francis Wankowics, C. Fletcher, Mike Lawton, D. Doherty, G. Oravetz, G. Kakatsakis, Z. Der Hagopian, G. Hopkins, B. Danley, G. When your youngster's homework is even harder than yours, you'll be glad cooking is so easy.

It is when you cook with gas.

Because the new gas ranges give you smokeless infrared broiling. All the while your meat is broiling, the door stays closed. While the gas flame actually consumes smoke and splatters.

Any wonder the best cooks in the world insist on cooking with gas? Shouldn't you?

WE DID IT AGAIN

A lady with pretty definite ideas of what she wanted in the way of a house (who has done a lot of looking with other brokers) decided to call "the new broker with the interesting ads."

She's buying one that wasn't on the market yet. We knew that it would be as soon as the present owners found the bigger house they are looking for.

Now we're working on a "double-header."

It's Fun

Where To Go, What To Study

Next Wednesday, May 1st, the Guidance Department of Winchester High School has planned a program which should provide concrete help for those students and their parents who are questioning what to study and where to go after high school.

The representatives of over 50 institutions have accepted the invitation to come and meet with the students of the Winchester schools to talk about their institutions: what they have to offer, what their requirements are and most important to answer questions. Each student will have the opportunity to share in four presentations.

The program will start in the auditorium of WHS at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Niblock will explain arrangements for the evening so time may be fully utilized.

All high school students, and their parents, as well as ninth grade students and their parents from Lynch and McCall are encouraged by the Winchester High School Parent Faculty Association to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

Representatives from the following schools are expected, as well as from Babson Institute, McMurray College, Northeastern University and Chamberlayne Jr. College.

VFW Social

Monday, April 29, is the date for the next social to be held at the V.F.W. Post Hall, White Street, sponsored by the V.F.W. Auxiliary to Post 3719. Kay Dempsey is chairman and invites the public to attend.

William Tobin Named Captain Of MDC Police

William J. Tobin has been promoted to the rank of captain in the Metropolitan District Police. A resident of 200 Swanton Street, he will continue his present assignment as head of planning and research. He also teaches at the MDC Police Academy.

A member of the Metropolitan District Police for 21 years, he was awarded a bachelor of science degree last June, the first MDC officer to receive a degree in the field of law enforcement. He earned the degree by attending evening classes at Northeastern University while carrying on his police duties.

A native of Lexington, Captain Tobin was in the Army Air Force during World War II, serving in the China-Burma-India theatre as a staff sergeant. He joined the MDC Police in 1946 and was promoted to sergeant in 1956 and lieutenant in 1962.

He is married to the former Ann A. Hogan, of Somerville, and is the father of two sons, William J., Jr., of Winchester and Gerard W. Tobin, who is serving in the U.S. Navy. He is a member of Kappa Phi Beta Chapter, Lambda Alpha Epsilon, a professional law enforcement fraternity.

ELLIE MEARS has been active this year on the campus of Colby Junior College in New London. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Mears, she is president of the Student Government at Colby as well as being a member of the Concert Choir and the Blue Feather Organization. She is a senior in the liberal arts program.

Friendly Town Needs Families

Winchester families have the opportunity to act now in reaching across distance, racial and class lines by participating in Friendly Town, a two-week summer vacation plan for deprived city children sponsored by the City Missionary Society, Boston.

The trust and friendship gained by the city children experiencing the benefits of suburban living are reported by sponsors to be matched by the new insights and understanding of families who open their hearts and homes to these children.

Participants are between eight and 12 years of age and are selected according to need. City parents pay for life and accident insurance, and each child has a medical check-up before arrival. Winchester families may indicate preference for race, sex, and age of the guest.

Coordinating plans with Friendly Town in Winchester is the human relations committee of the Winchester Council for Community Action (WCCA). Interested families are urged to contact the Reverend Michael Jupin, Church of the Epiphany, 729-1922, for further information.

Mrs. Porreca Asks Your Vote On April 30

Dear Fellow Democrats:

There's little time left for us as Democrats to decide what direction our Party in Massachusetts is going to take.

Election Day—the Decision Day—is Tuesday, April 30, 1968.

Is the Party going to attract NEW, BOLD, and FORCEFUL leadership to make it a winning Party in the State again or is it going to continue its splitting ways until it's too weak to even be considered seriously.

The choice is ours on April 30, 1968.

I've tried to reach as many Democrats and "Independents" as I could in the Sixth Senatorial District to tell them of my qualifications, and my desire to be their spokesman, to reflect their opinions, in the meetings of the State Democratic Committee.

I feel strongly that the Democratic Party still has the ideals and purposes that has caused people to join it over the years.

I feel each of us must do all we can to encourage and develop the membership and leadership in the Party. My qualifications as a long-time Democrat, active in Party affairs, my participation in the many activities of my community as a citizen, mother and housewife, and my strong feelings on government all guarantee you that I will serve you and not have any interest in higher office.

Won't you allow me to serve in your behalf on the Democratic State Committee. You can help yourself, you can help your voice to be heard by voting and urging your family and friends to join with us in the task ahead.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Catino Porreca

Saturday Workday For Forum; Group To Hear Niblock

This Saturday, April 27, is the second part of Forum's Workday for Christ. There will be a car wash in the Church parking lot from 9 to 3 o'clock, and Forumites will do other jobs upon request. Help with spring cleaning or raking leaves may be had by contacting the Forum Office.

The Senior Forum welcomes Dr. W. Howard Niblock, principal of the High School, as speaker at its chapel service Sunday, April 28. Dr. Niblock has just completed a three week tour of high schools in several major European cities, and his original topic, "Don't be Too Reasonable," may reflect some observations of his journey. Chaplains will be Nancy Curtis and Ernie Crabtree, and the deacons and ushers are Chape Whitman and Richard Bennick, and Carl Smiley and Dan Strout.

CAROLYN BEST, of 83 Grove Street, a freshman at Colby Junior College, recently spent her two week spring vacation helping to build the El Guacio model farm and community center project in western Puerto Rico.

Ah, Sweet Spring!

There are many ways to tell when Spring has finally arrived . . . flowers are blooming, trees are budding, would-be golfers are out in force, and bermuda shorts reappear from the long winter hibernation.

We have another way of telling when Spring arrives . . . we watch Harry. When he starts to develop that far away look in his eye and every other conversation concerns fishing and camping, we know it's Spring.

The only way we can control this longing for the out-of-doors is to keep Harry busy. That's where you can help. We know that the arrival of warm weather and fair skies signals the start of Spring cleaning . . . and one sure way to brighten up those winter weary rooms is to have your rugs and carpets cleaned.

Our on-location cleaning crews are standing by ready to tackle those wall-to-wall cleaning jobs and the rest of the crew is anxious to put that like-new look back into your other rugs and carpets.

You may call for pick up and delivery or take advantage of our 20% off on cash and carry rug cleaning. But please, call today, Harry was outside the plant this morning, showing the boys how his fly casting rod works.

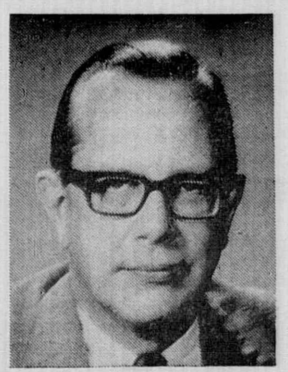
Diplomats Review U.S. Foreign Policy Here Tomorrow

Department of State officials will arrive in Winchester tomorrow for a day-long series of meetings with the community. All citizens are invited to an open session with the officers on Friday evening starting at 8 in the High School auditorium.

Three members of the team, David McKillop, Howard Robinson, and Norman Ward, will make brief presentations. Each will then go to separate areas of the school for two periods of briefings with smaller groups of people.

Mr. McKillop, who is currently serving in Washington, D.C., as the country director for Scandinavia, Iceland, and Finland, will be in the music area, Mr. Robinson, a labor adviser to the Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs, will remain in the auditorium, and Mr. Ward, presently assigned as agricultural economist with the Office of the War on Hunger in the Agency for International Development, will meet Townspeople in the cafeteria.



DAVID McKILLOP

Those attending will select two of the three men to meet in the more informal meetings. The first period will run from 8:55 to 9:40, while the second briefings will be from 9:45 to 10:30.

According to Thomas Morse, coordinator of special programs in the School Department's division of instruction and curriculum, who arranged for the program, the officials plan question and answer periods during the individual briefings as "an important part of the program."

During the afternoon the officers will appear before civic groups. At 1 p.m. the League of Women Voters has scheduled a workshop at the home of Mrs. Richard Thuma on 2 Allen Road. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Ward will be present for introductory remarks to be followed by questions from League members and their guests.

At 1:15 the senior citizens will hear Mr. McKillop in the Rich Room of the Winchester Public Library.

From 3:15 until 4:15 the Winchester Teachers Association will sponsor a tea at the High School cafeteria for the schools' staffs. Home economics department students will prepare and serve a luncheon for the party at noon.

WHSR-FM plans a live interview with the team from 4:15 to 5 in the afternoon.

The three officials will begin their day in Winchester at 8:15 a.m. with nearly four hours with students at the High School. Joining them for the morning will be a fourth officer, Richard Parker, who acts as country director of United Arab Republic Affairs in the Bureau of Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs.

Little League Over 1,000

Opening ceremonies and games started the 16th session of Winchester Little League this weekend with a new Big League enrollment bringing the total of boys playing to 860 and adults involved to 271.

Tomorrow's Monte Carlo For Drop-In

Sponsored by the Drop-In Center students and their adult advisors, but open only to adults is a town-wide Monte Carlo night tomorrow starting at 8 p.m. and including black jack and dice tables, roulette, chug-a-lug and others.

Just in case their prowess is rusty, some 40 or 50 men are meeting tonight at the Drop-In Center to learn how to run the tables for the entertainment benefit of customers—all actual receipts come from the very moderate entrance fee. Joe Cincotta is teacher. Ed Hicks is in charge of manpower for the evening.

There are to be a number of gala prizes on hand.

Students report that the Center, busy now every afternoon as well as on weekends, is well equipped for pool, ping-pong and has a snack bar and a juke box. Funds are needed now for a TV room—and materials come high for sound proofing and the structural work needed.

The Winchester Youth Organization, which includes the adult advisors as well as the students, had a meeting this week of its eight-member advisory board. It reminds that as of yesterday this year's ninth grade students are eligible to become members.

Drop-In students who have taken full responsibility initiating and supporting their own Center, are to do all the work in setting up and cleaning up tomorrow night. But they have enlisted to work in their stead during the affair, representatives and helpers from the American Legion, Art Association, Christopher Columbus Society, College Club, Elks, Council for Community Action, En Ka, Kiwanis, K. of C., League of Women Voters, Lions Club, Little League, Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes, Masons, Mystic Glee Club, Rotary, Sons of Italy, V.F.W., and Winton Club.

Appeal Board Sets Hearing On Car Wash For May 23

The Board of Appeal will conduct a public hearing on May 23 on a permit granted by the Building Commissioner to George D. Whitten for the construction of a car wash at 785 Main Street.

The scheduling of the hearing follows separate appeals from the Winchester Planning Board, and eight businesses in the vicinity represented by Joseph E. Iovino, a Boston attorney.

Joining in Mr. Iovino's appeal were Deeb Homsi, Sano Cleaners, Twombly Associates, Inc., Appalachian Electronics, C. H. Symmes Co., Lane Funeral Home, Kelley & Hawes, and Winchester Brake and Wheel.

The Board of Appeal, whose chairman is Lane McGovern, will hear the case the evening of the 23rd at 7:30 in the office of the Building Commissioner in the East Room of Town Hall.

This will be the second car wash proposal before the Board within less than a year.

Summer Theatre To Give Comedy By Hart-Kaufman

The Hart-Kaufman comedy, "You Can't Take it With You" has just been announced to be the new Summer Community Theatre's first production—scheduled for July 22 at the High School auditorium.

Community Theatre's director, Judith St. Jean made the selection with the group's Steering Committee. The popular show has a cast of 19, and try-outs will be June 17 and 18 at WHS with sponsors already urging that many turn out those nights.

August 12 has been picked for the second production in Summer Community Theatre's first season, with an evening of one-act plays. The Steering Committee reports the group off to a good start with a place to work, a play, a director. Its next need is for actors and production workers for the first show. Set designers, costumers, lighting experts and make-up, sound effects and set workers, ticket and publicity people are all on the list of wanted persons just published. Anyone interested is invited to contact Roger Foskett, chairman (729-6203); Doris Bryant (643-9529); Peg Magnusen (729-7197); Margaret Labedz (729-7516) or Beverly Spinney (646-7012).

More information concerning the course in theatre, the other half of twofold Summer Community Theatre program, can be obtained by contacting Tom Morse, coordinator of special programs, Winchester School Department 729-8130. As it is set up, the course will run twice weekly for six weeks on Monday and Thursday evenings from 7:15 to 8:15 beginning Monday, July 1 and ending Thursday, August 8. Rehearsals will follow each class with an additional full rehearsal on the Tuesday of each week.

LANDMARK IN POTTERY AND PASTA, created by third and fourth graders at the about-to-be-officially named new school on Tufts Road. The First Congregational Church, done in broken china and colored macaroni is only one of a group of works in the same medium put together as permanent decorations for the entrance halls and corridors under the supervision of teacher Mrs. Judith Ann Hawkes. A red fire station is under way by the school's "Green Unit," the ungraded combination of fifth and sixth grades. Broken marbles, tile, dyed rice and bits of broken glass are also used. Craftsmen above are Donna Sullivan and Mike Fitzgerald, seated, and Sara Morgan, Francis Sarnie, Nancy Ciampa and Mike O'Leary, standing. (Lois Carr photo)

THESE HAVE WENT. In the background the auctioneer keeps up his staccato filibuster for sales at Saturday's Rotary auction in the old Town Hall. Foreground, however, sees wares held tight by purchasers who had already succumbed to the "going, going . . .." Hundreds of items brought a good amount into the Rotary coffers, and buyers from here and all around poured in and out of the area all day. (Ryerson photo)

Lt. Gardner Gray Wins Flying Cross

Lt. Gardner Bradlee Gray, United States Naval Reserve has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for "heroism and extraordinary achievement in aerial flight" over Vietnam.

The award was made to the 1960 WHS graduate in the name of the President of the United States for combat action on October 5, 1967. It was presented to him aboard his carrier, the U.S.S. Intrepid at the Miramar Navy Base, just north of San Diego, California.

Lr. Gray is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Gray of 18 Wildwood Street. He has served in the Navy for four years and, after a short leave, on Monday rejoined the Intrepid in Florida for his fifth year of service. A Colby graduate he received basic training at Pensacola and intermediate and reconnaisance flight training at Beeville, Texas and Miramar, respectively.

The citation reports that Lt. Gray a lieutenant junior grade at the time was leading a two-plane reconnaissance mission to obtain bomb damage assessment photography of the Haiphong Highway bridge "in the center of that heavily defended city" and of the Kien Bai ferry crossing to the northwest.

"Lt. Gray meticulously planned his mission so as to deny the enemy optimum use of its formidable AAA defense system. Just as the strike group retired from the target area, Lt. Gray unerringly led his flight towards the ferry crossing (where he was) subjected to intense and accurate AAA fire. Undeterred, Lt. Gray pursued his run. After obtaining the coverage of the crossing, (he) proceeded towards the primary target in the city of Haiphong. The enemy fire became extremely intense. Courageously and skillfully maneuvering his aircraft,

Assessors Working On Property Review

"We are not only revaluating the Town's property, but we're establishing for Winchester a new assessment system," said Windsor S. Carpenter this week, in answer to Star queries about the progress toward the Town's "fair cash value" assessment, the results of which will be for the first time the basis for the 1968 tax bills.

Mr. Carpenter, chairman, and Ernest B. Dade, speaking together for the Board of Assessors on which Marshall R. Pihl also serves, told the Star they are about one-third through their own reexamination of the extensive property reports done by the revaluation firm of Cole-Layer-Trumbull, and completed this winter at a cost of $58,000.

In a change of emphasis from its anticipated procedure, the Board, once it had received the list of individually documented cards on the 6,300 pieces of local property, embarked on its own review of the outside valuation findings before final determination of assessed values.

"For the first time this office has documented reports on all properties which will work toward a more fair distribution of the tax load," said Mr. Carpenter. "But in order to assure fair and equal treatment which will include local judgment factors, we have decided to review all the cards prepared by the mass valuation techniques of Cole-Layer-Trumbull.

"To our knowledge no other town has followed this procedure," he continued, stating that he and Mr. Dade were now working evenings and Saturdays and Sundays in this effort. Their review is done from the exterior of the home only.

McCarthy Polls 982, Volpe 614 On Tuesday

1,680 Write-in on Machines

Governor John Volpe's fellow citizens, who have in the past given him from moderate to huge pluralities, voted for him as a presidential preference candidate in what can only be called a very moderate way.

To be sure with a total of 611 Republican and 3 Democratic votes he led in Republican top-of-the-list votes. Rockefeller won a Town total of 465 and Nixon one of 342. But Eugene McCarthy, an upstart senator from far-off Minnesota polled 982 in Volpe's home town and Harrison Chadwick, running for Republican Town Committee was top local vote getter with 1,322.

The sharpest local contest was between Cynthia Barone and Sally Woodward for Republican State Committeewoman in this senatorial district. Official three-town outcome was in doubt when the Star went to press due to the fact that the Arlington computers had rejected votes in one category (voters had voted for more than they should have) and the Arlington vote was being re-done. Mrs. Barone, however won handily in Winchester, 1,046 to 676 for Mrs. Woodward. Marion Phillips polled only 22 votes here, but won the Medford vote handily with 354 to 285 Barone and 277 Woodward. Mrs. Barone was projected to win.

The total Winchester vote, all unofficial, was 3,483 or 21% of the voters—poor over-all but good against State-wide estimate of 10 to 12%.

Write-in votes totalled 1,680 or enough to defeat the contention that it's too hard to do on a machine. To be sure election officials here reported many requests for assistance and found that voters had done little things like write on the metal and lift the celophane to write in a large blank area under that. They also asked for help on group voting.

Write-ins here needed no "X" as in some towns where computer-machines are used. All legible were tallied.

Town Clerk Elsie Nelson reports her continuing satisfaction with the Town's voting machines and that timing Tuesday was very good. The crew of workers locked up the Town Hall at 12:15 Wednesday morning. She is highly complimentary about the assistance she and the voting staff received from the schools and school custodians and from all election officers.

Home Politicos

In the Democratic balloting for Town Committee the slate vote went in easily with the four, non-grouped, McCarthy - supporting challengers running well behind. Top vote getter here was Barbara Joslin with 612, followed by Selectman John Sullivan with 608. The highest non-slate contender was Theodore Webb with 239.

In delegate voting for the Democratic National Convention, however, Winchester went for the McCarthy delegates and alternates and despite the Arlington snafu, computer predictions gave this slate the 7th District vote yesterday noon.

For State Committee on the Democratic Ballot John McGlynn led with 453, Charles Cronin (for McCarthy) 264 and John Buckley 234 Winchester gave Eleanor Campobosso of Arlington top vote putting her well over Frances Murphy, running for re-election, 307 to 252.

Republicans had 36 persons running as individuals for 35 places on their Town Committee. Defeated was Margerette Bauchspies. Next to Harrison Chadwick, Cynthia Barone drew 1,171 Republican votes and Sherman Saltmarsh was third with 1,086.

These committees will organize in the next three weeks with the Democratic Committee having 23 women to 12 men and the Republicans 17 women and 19 men.

On the Republican ballot, Presidential Preference write-in votes less than ten were for: Johnson, 8; Volpe 5; Romney, 3; Percy, Henry Cabot Lodge and Mark Hatfield, 2; and one each for Arthur Goldberg, Winthrop Rockefeller, Ed Brooke, Thomas Parsons and Fred Lawson.

Written in on the Democratic ballot were 6 votes for George Wallace, 4 for Nixon, 3 for Volpe, two votes each for R. C. Sullivan and Thomas Parsons and one each for Stokely Carmichael, Ronald Reagan, Peter Lawford and Joseph J. Derro.

Board of Health Starts After Mosquito Eggs

At a meeting on Monday night, the Board of Health, chaired by Dr. Warren J. Taylor, voted to initiate immediately an anti-mosquito program, authorized by the 1968 Town Meeting.

The first part of its program will be a larvacide effort which it will do within the next two weeks. The second is a town-wide fogging—comparable to last year—to take place probably in June.

Prior to leading his flight to the safety of the Tonkin Gulf, Lt. Gray, beyond the point impelled by duty, gathered additional coverage of the Haiphong harbor and the nearby Cat Bi airfield."

The citation concluded by reporting the outstanding quality of the photography and of its large importance and noting "Lt. Gray's heroism in the face of grave personal danger, determined devotion to duty and his courageous and professional airmanship."

Food Tour For Wyman

The third grade classes of Wyman School visited the New England Produce Center in Chelsea recently in conjunction with a social studies unit on food.

The children were given a guided tour and learned that the produce center is the third largest in the world. They discovered that fruits and vegetables from all over the world are distributed from the center to the New England area and Maritime Provinces.

Let the Public Beware

ALTHOUGH many like to pretend that it isn't so, funeral service like any other service has to be fairly priced. No one could possibly supply the modern funeral which the American public demands unless his firm were soundly operated, with a reasonable profit margin. Therefore, it behooves the public to beware of "bargains in funeral service."

In Memory Of Larry Occhinto

I BELIEVE

He started as a rose bud, and a happy child, then sorrow knocked at the door.

But he wasn't afraid to go the path he did not know, he took death without fear, and to the promised land, where our souls can find sweet rest.

For Gods plans are many things one cannot understand, but we must trust his judgement.

I love to think of my child whom God has called to himself as away at school, at the best school, in the universe, under the best teaching, learning the best things, in the best possible manner.

For yesterday is already a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision.

But what I think or write is not mine or mine alone.

Lovingly remembered,
By Mother, Father,
Sisters, and Brother

Fire Chief Urges Practice Drills By Families

"Everybody takes a new lease on life when spring rolls around. And that lease on life—for you and your family—will be more certain if you've planned and practiced a family fire drill," says Fire Chief Francis Amico.

"This is another kind of spring clean-up action—cleaning up any misunderstandings about what to do if fire should strike your home," he continues. "National Fire Protection Association records show that more than eight of every ten lives taken by home fires might have been saved if people had planned and rehearsed ways to escape.

"So plan and practice today—for a safer tomorrow.

"Here are pointers to help you plan:

1. Carefully figure out at least two routes to the outside from every room in the house, especially bedrooms. Allow for blocking of stairways or halls by fire.
2. Particularly for nighttime fires, remember that closed bedroom doors will hold back flame and smoke and allow extra time for escape and rescue.
3. For upper floor escape use any available porch and garage roofs, ladders and trees as ways down to safety. Be sure exit windows work easily and that they are low and large enough to get through.
4. Pick an outside assembly point where the family will meet for a roll-call and be sure everyone knows the rule 'once out—stay out.'
5. Know how to call the fire department by street box or neighbor's phone and do this as quickly as the house is cleared of people.
6. Plan who will look out for infants and the infirm and how."

Once plans are made, urges Fire Chief Amico, it is important for all the family—including children—to rehearse them carefully and regularly.

Retarded Assoc. To Elect

The Mystic Valley Association for Retarded will hold its regular membership meeting on Tuesday, April 30th at the Training Center on 19 Campbell Street, Woburn, at 8 o'clock.

This is a very important meeting as the election of officers will take place and the constitution and by-laws will be discussed, says Richard E. Gilgun, president. Every one interested in helping the retarded is invited to be present.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Psychologists say that jokes and humor often contain a kernel of truth. A quip seen on the wall of a motor vehicle bureau may be in that vein: "By 1975 there will be more than 200 million automobiles. If you want to cross the street, you'd better do it now."

Pursuing that same thought, the Wall Street Journal humor column contained this message, "At the conclusion of a two-year foundation study, a safety expert delivered his findings: "There may be some uncertainties in a few areas, but one thing is proved conclusively—automobiles are not afraid of people!"

The automobile problem is serious. An auto insurance company executive opened a speech to a group recently with this remark: "One in six of you will be involved in an automobile accident by the end of the year. One in two of you will one day be killed, or seriously injured, on the street or highway."

These serious and semi-serious observations point up one thing: You should have well-planned insurance coverages on your Automobile, as well as the proper kind of Accident and Income protection. May we SERVE you?

Editorials:

Not Even In His Own Back Yard

Winchester did two things at the polls on Tuesday. It looked the other way when its own favorite son, Governor John A. Volpe, appeared to stretch out his hand for a boost toward the Republican vice presidential nomination. And it demonstrated that you can beat the machine in politics—the mechanical voting monster that is, not necessarily the professional pros.

Governor John Volpe has always been very popular in his home town and he still is. A majority of his fellow citizens feel he has done a fine job as governor. But running as a favorite son in the Presidential Preference primary—a meaningful and binding one this year for the first time—is a different matter.

Many factors seem to have combined to account for the showing Volpe made here Tuesday, a poor one in view of the fact that his name was the only one listed on the Republican voting machine ballot. The first factor may well be that in 1968 voting for a favorite son is a luxury that the voters who care the most—those who vote in primaries—feel to be too nebulous to satisfy. Serious and desperate issues are before the United States of America right now. Voters want to maximize the effect of their vote to nominate a candidate for president. Although there is much to be said for the favorite son procedure in that it does not too early commit local State delegates to hard support of any major candidate and thereby can act to keep things open, this same factor also seems to say, "leave it to John" to decide. The voters didn't want to do it.

As for the Governor's reported aspirations for the vice-presidency, these are, of course, conjectural. Yet in politics it is hard to hide one's hand and Mr. Volpe has given every indication of being quite ready to say yes. Across the State the desire of some voters to give him a good push in this direction seems clearly to be far less than a strong contender for this job would want.

The Governor has appeared to favor Nixon over Rockefeller and it is possible, therefore, to read into his moderate vote a local anti-Nixon feeling. But Nixon supporters could come back to this one by saying that to get the accurate Nixon feel of the Town and State one should take the Nixon write-ins and add to them about two thirds, say, of the Volpe vote.

Are some citizens piqued because the Volpes intend to leave town? We should think not—much more likely saddened. They are popular here and add a definite interest and glamour to the Town. They'll be much missed whatever they do.

The hard story of the vote here is highlighted by the fact only three Democrats crossed over to write in the Governor's name—whereas 201 Republicans went the other way for McCarthy. The Governor is a realist, he must find this a disappointment. One hopes that he doesn't also take it as a rejection of his administration of his State, a separate record and one of which he should be very proud.

The small band of McCarthy die-hards who attracted such a large band of volunteers to their cause in Winchester must certainly feel recompensed. Their man owes them a tremendous thank you. And, we say again what we've said before, that members of both parties owe the man McCarthy a thank-you. His was the bold step which became the lever which loosened all the interest and expression on issues which is the healthy thing in 1968. Win, lose, or draw he has played a very important part.

As for the 1,680 total Winchester write-in vote for President. This has a lot to say. We may be slow and it may seem hard to do—but local voters are certainly getting the hang of the machine—no matter how much some of us may pine for the good old days of a simple paper ballot and a pencil to chew on to help along the thinking. This dilatory approach to the ballot is exactly what the election officials do not miss at all. The machine forces a closer before-hand study which in turn speeds up the whole process. At this writing it is reported that the Secretary of State is about to journey to Arlington to undo the computer machine snafu there so it appears that Winchester can also be grateful that though it is mechanized, it is not computerized.

Everything points to a good test run for November. Next big act for Winchester—the August TV shows—scene one, Miami, scene two, Chicago.

Saturday Special?

It's bad running out of toothpaste. It's rotten when the electricity goes off. It's frustrating when the family uses the last piece of bread just before Sunday supper. But it's all three when the incinerator breaks down on Saturday and the hundreds of duty-done householders gathered for that satisfying and social act of dumping the week's trash, instead have to wait in a bumper-to-bumper line to get rid of their morning's cleanup results. This happens rarely and it's still better than having the Town's streets disfigured for one day out of seven by trash cans and piles.

We have only one wish of the friendly incinerator authorities who hold such power over the weekend mood of so many—that one or two Saturdays each spring and fall they open up the cage for the burning of tree limbs and trash over the three foot limit. Without this, the tired homeowner must choose between laboriously breaking up sometimes impossible piles into measured lengths—or asking a permit to burning them himself in his own back yard—thereby annoying his wife and neighbors with the smoke and, very likely, creating a fire hazard.

To Feed The Soul—It Takes Money

"Whereas the activity of the Winchester Art Association is a demonstration that when man seeks a sense of accomplishment and a creative experience to express his individuality, he can turn to the arts for fulfillment; that through his experience with the arts, whether he is a viewer or an active participant, he gains appreciation and understanding of the gifts of mind and spirit; and that such involvement with the creative process can play a vital role in the humanization and well-being of the community; and

"Whereas it is apparent that there is in the Town of Winchester a need for the establishment and maintenance of a home for the arts for the use and benefit of the inhabitants of said Town, in order to bring together facilities for the creative and performing arts, to encourage, nourish, foster and promote among those inhabitants a more meaningful participation in such cultural activities and enjoyment thereof, and to assist in the education and development of native talent and taste . . . "

For these reasons, so eloquently expressed by lawyer George B. Redding in drawing up the trust for the new Winchester Center for the Creative Arts, determined supporters of this effort are canvassing the Town in many ways including sponsoring a concert, a ball and a painting raffle to help finance a home for the Center—the old Elks home on Vine Street.

We wholeheartedly recommend their support—for the benefit of and generations to come.

Editorial Comments

While the Selectmen and the Fire Chief are taking proper steps towards protective and controlling action in the case of summer riots (see Selectmen's story), the Town appears to be falling down on its face relative to one of the simplest and most direct ways of giving positive aid to Boston's Negroes. Testimony to this is contained in a letter on "Just-A-Start" in the adjoining column. It is not too late to recoup and to make a better response. There comes to our minds the words of many at last year's May hearing on METCO. "We aren't ready for this yet—there are lot's of other things we can do," said those who felt METCO to be too much. Clearly this is one of the "other things."

Our letter columns today also offer a direct way to help in Vietnam. It's a long way and the distance has aggravated the frustration. But here, as above, is something concrete that can be done. The writer was a guest in Winchester as a result of the Congregational Church Forum's International Weekend. He was invited here on other occasions and came again and again. Now he turns his mind back to Winchester to tell of the need of his countrymen. Mr. McClennan and the Red Cross are the intermediaries. There are plenty of shops in town which sell the goods. Can we respond to this one?

Where Are Those to Help?

Backer Says Town is Failing In its Support of "Just-A-Start"

Editor of the Star:

Last December a marvelous project was undertaken by The Winchester Ecumenical Youth Council. It was a project designed to enable concerned Winchester young people and adults, to roll up their shirt sleeves on free Saturdays and travel to the South End Community to aid other concerned people in the Just-A-Start program. It was hoped in the initial stages of the project that participation from the Winchester Community would be an indication of sincere concern and positive action regarding a very pressing local and national issue.

Last December and throughout the first three months of this year, much interest was focussed on the project by a small, hard working minority of young people and adults. It appeared then as though Winchester had finally become concerned enough to act after many years of sympathetic verbalizing.

The Just-A-Start program consists of helping other concerned community action groups of young people and adults from the South End, Lexington, Newton, and Cambridge in rehabilitating slum classified dwellings, with the subsequent goal of sub-leasing these dwellings to families in the South End who are in desperate need of clean, efficient, healthy low cost housing. The job of rehabilitation is not an easy one. It entails spending five to six hours every Saturday working with other volunteers who have the same concerns, energy, and seriousness of purpose.

The project was a success in the beginning, with many young people and a few adults regularly taking part in the weekly programs. The opportunity to interact with people of ones own age group was always present during these Saturday work projects, and many participants experienced a new sense of communication and understanding with people who, a few short months earlier had been nameless unknowns with different values, religions, and skin colors.

Five weeks ago The Winchester Ecumenical Youth Council asquired the use of the Winchester High School Auditorium and sponsored a meeting with the young people and adults of this community who might be interested in working for the Just-A-Start program this summer on both a paid and voluntary basis. A front page article appeared in The Winchester Star one week before the South End leaders came out to Winchester. It was hoped that the plea of the Just-A-Start program for financial aid, tools, and community interest might stimulate a large turn out of concerned town residents. The afternoon of the meeting came and 28 young people and five adults were able to tear themselves away from their hectic suburban schedules just long enough to hear the request for community assistance and volunteer support made by the South End leaders. The turnout was disheartening, disgraceful, and yet quite typical for the Winchester Community.

At the Winchester Common on April 7th, over 600 people gathered on a grim Sunday to pay their respects to a man who had given his life for a cause. Quite a few people didn't understand what that cause was, or what it meant; others understood but didn't agree; others were there because they really felt a great loss in their lives, and knew what his fight had been about. Many of those who gathered there were shocked. Many were left at that moment without adequate words to express their feelings, and many were frightened about the prospects of what might happen next. It appeared as though everyone who gathered at the Common that afternoon did, however, have a common concern. They may not have been able to verbalize it as well as they might have wanted to, but they were there together to show their concern and respect.

Six hundred plus, gathered at the Winchester Common last April 7th, but where were these people when the South End Just-A-Start program came to Winchester on Sunday, March 31st? Where was the Community, both young and old, when the South End leaders came to Winchester to plead for Community volunteers and support for their program of urban rehabilitation? Where was the Community when appeals for basic tools, financial support, and Community action were placed in The Winchester Star? Where are these people now, when the Just-A-Start program is faltering from a lack of funds and a lack of interest and concerned volunteers? Are we concerned enough to do something or is Winchester just concerned enough to talk about what has to be done?

This summer the Just-A-Start program has asked interested adults and young people to lend a helping hand in the rehabilitation of the South End. Many parents feel that the South End is a dangerous and dirty place for their children to work in, and that disaster lurks within every shadow and behind every building. South End leaders have assured The Winchester Ecumenical Youth Council that these fears are unfounded myths and are not relevant to the atmosphere of the Community.

The time for action is not tomorrow, or the next day, but now. Now is the time for concern. Now is the time for active participation. Now is the time for the rebirth of one helping hand reaching out, touching, then grasping the hand of a faltering dream.

If you feel that you can meet the challenge presented us by the Just-A-Start program, The Winchester Ecumenical Youth Council would like to hear from you now. For further information please contact Miss Marjie Cunningham, 729-3351, or John Chane, 729-3261.

Candidate To Voters: Thank You

Editor of the Star:

Win or lose, I would like to thank the many, many Winchester people who endorsed my candidacy and/or volunteered to work long hours for me during my campaign for Republican State Committeewoman.

This year, contests such as this one have created a much-needed stir of interest in the primaries and in the Republican districts involved. Al Smith used to say, "Let the record speak" and, although the position of State Committeewoman may not always be a "reward for past services rendered," in my own case it was through my many years of hard work that I gained the support of so many local Republicans. My thanks to them all and especially to my family, who have withstood the many inconveniences of such a campaign.

League Asks Support to Reduce Mass. House

Editor of the Star:

House Bill 3766 to reduce the size of the Mass. House of Representatives by one-third, to 160 from 240, is scheduled for debate by the joint session May 7 at 1 o'clock. This date will interest many in Winchester, as 2500 residents signed this petition last fall.

Representative Harrison Chadwick has long favored the change and for many years filed bills to this effect.

This bill — a Constitutional amendment — will effect a reduction in the size of the House to 160 members, each to be elected from a separate district. These to be redrawn as contiguous and compact districts every 10 years by a 15-member commission: one-third appointed by the General Court, one-third by the Chief Justice of the Superior Court, and one-third by the Governor. At present, many districts are very large, with two or more representatives. Gerrymandering originated in Massachusetts and present redistricting procedures still make it possible.

A smaller, more streamlined legislature with adequate staff to aid the legislators will bring its structure into the 20th century and increase its efficiency. Only the New Hampshire legislature is now larger.

This bill must receive an affirmative vote by 70 legislators in two successively elected sessions to be put on the ballot in 1970.

A constitutional change is a long, slow process. The first 160-member House would be elected in November 1974 and serve in January 1975.

Those who favor this bill should contact: Senator Philibert Pellegrini, 17 Cheswick Road, Arlington, 648-3747; or Representative Harrison Chadwick, 24 Everett Avenue, Winchester, 729-0631.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth M. Freeman

'How Can I Become Involved?' Part 10: In Mental Health Ctr.

This is the last of a series of articles prepared by the Human Relations Committee of the Winchester Council for Community Action to highlight specific and organized ways of volunteering help. It shows the way our young people are helping the mentally ill while pointing the way for those interested in a career in the field of mental health. A summation article is to follow.

What is a Mental Health Center? Five young people from Winchester are discovering this through personal experience every Wednesday, when they go by private transportation to the Massachusetts Mental Health Center at 74 Fenwood Street in Boston. This is a State hospital, financed by the Commonwealth with additional support from the Harvard Medical School.

For two hours every week, the volunteers are essentially learning-by-doing. Before being introduced to the patients with whom they will work, the students have spent a few weeks of orientation consisting of question and answer periods with various members of the staff. The staff includes social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists, occupational therapists, and psychiatric nurses. In this way, the volunteers are being taught the various aspects of mental illness which they might face.

Each student is then assigned to a ward which consists of approximately 50 patients. The resident psychiatrist of each ward introduces the young person to the patient with whom he or she will work in the weekly sessions. The job of the volunteer is to establish with this patient a one-to-one relationship.

The patient may or may not feel like talking and may discuss his or her illness or not. The volunteer's job is to listen. All they can do for the patient directly is to show that someone cares enough to come week after week to listen. Each session ends with an hour of open discussion with Dr. Peter Riley. Mrs. Robert Berke, a volunteer social worker, works side-by-side with Dr. Riley during this discussion. Here the students talk over with the whole group what went on in each service and whether it was just a talk session or whether they felt they had faced a particular problem.

The volunteers have found the hospital unique in its general atmosphere. There are no locked wards and physical restraints are never used. In each ward there are men and women of various ages and a wide range of problems. It is more like a social center than a hospital ward. Not all the patients live in the hospital. Many go home each night. Those who do live in share a dormitory. Many of the patients continue working or going to school within the hospital itself during their stay there.

On the whole, the hospital takes patients with any kind of problem. It makes no difference how sick an individual is or whether he has been in a hospital before. Those who are very confused or upset have extra personal attention and extra medication, yet they remain on the ward with the other patients.

The Mass. Mental Health Center is essentially a learning institution, not only for the volunteers involved, but for the whole staff, many of whom are working for advanced degrees in the field of mental health. This approach is also helpful for the patient who never loses close touch with his fellow patients by being physically isolated.

For young people interested in careers in the field of mental health, this program started about three years ago, is a unique way to learn by helping and listening. The many forms that mental illness can take are vividly illustrated for them. For additional information about this program please contact Betty May Irwin at 643-8739 or Kathy Ryan at 729-4934.

BOOK REVIEW

THE HIPPIES

Edited by Joe David Brown

This report like almost everything else to be read about the hippies is not written by an insider. Apparently they do not write about themselves, so our information must come fron observers. The observers in this case are Time magazine correspondents, nineteen of them, so we do get several viewpoints. Each one has written about a different aspect of hippie culture, or a group in a particular city.

Necessarily there is some overlapping and likewise some disagreement. However, certain points of similarity among the reporters should be mentioned. They see the hippies as young, white, usually fairly well educated, often having done graduate work, and from a financially secure background. The stereotype of grimy long-haired youths indulging in drugs and wild sex orgies is not always accurate. Some of them bathe, some eschew drugs, some even have responsible jobs. They do feel however that people should be allowed any of these so-called "vices" as long as they are not harming anyone.

Hippies in general have turned against the middle-class values of their parents. "Straight" society, they feel, is materialistic and hypocritical and impossible to change. The thing to do is leave it. They see themselves as crusaders dedicated to love and freedom. According to one reporter, if they had a code it would be based on these flexible rules:

Drop out.
Do your own thing.
Blow the mind of every straight person you can.
Turn on, if not to drugs then to beauty,
love, honesty, fun.

The single aspect of hippie culture that perturbs parents most is this use of drugs. These young people are not convinced that something as pleasant as marijuana is harmful, and they are willing to experiment with all drugs. This book has a chapter which will do nothing to soothe agitated adults, called The Drugs They Use. To quote one of them, "If someone who is turned on turned on someone new every day of the year, the universe would be a flower of understanding." Many of them are amused by society's rule against using and possessing narcotics. The older generation uses liquor in the same way, they say, and what is the difference?

There are chapters on the hippie groups in different cities of the United States and of foreign cities. We are inclined to think of the hippies as a strictly American phenomenon, but there are centers in most major cities of Europe. Although they don't call themselves hippies they are the genuine article according to the Time correspondent who covers this section of the report. It is interesting to note the student mood of rebellion and the rioting which recently took place in Germany and compare it with Berkeley and other universities in this country.

Probably many people in Winchester are familiar with Harvard Square hippies and have read the controversial newspaper Avatar which is published there. It is reported in this book that an interest in astrology is an important element in Boston hippiedom. One of the first questions they ask each other is, "What is your sign?"

In general this report deals gently with the movement, bringing out the genuine virtues and explaining what the establishment sees as faults. Perhaps those who belong would not agree with their opinion in all cases, but I think it tries to be an honest assessment.

letters to the editor

From Vietnam:

"Did I Ask Too Much?"

Editor of the Star:

I have been corresponding with a South Vietnamese friend since his visit to our home in Winchester about five years ago. Recently, I received the letter printed below, an appeal for help for the million or so people who were left homeless as a result of the Tet Communist offensive.

I have contacted Mrs. Armstrong at the Winchester Red Cross, and have learned that they can accept donations of money, yard goods—for clothing, and new cotton shorts and T-shirts and that they have the means to ship these to the disaster area. At present, the Red Cross, now located at 39 Church Street, cannot accept used clothing. Nor can it, of course, handle the "food and medicaments" mentioned below.

The thing that is important here is speed—since the people affected are the ones who are trying to rebuild their homes rather than move into refugee camps.

I would appreciate the help of the Winchester Star in publishing this cause, as I am sure there are many people in Winchester who will wish to respond to the urgent need.

Very truly yours,
John H. McClennan
32 Central Street

Dear Mr. McClennan,

Thank you for your letter dated 24 Feb.

It was a kind of fresh wind blown into this land of permanent tension. It was a great comfort for my family and myself.

I was tempted at first to ask you to provide me with the New York Times weekly magazine which we cannot find here at any price and which I think is usually full of matters for good reading. But there is something more important that I am going to tell you.

That is the great poverty of more than one million of my fellow countrymen who became homeless since the VC New Year offensive. A relief campaign is underway, everybody here is cooperating but it is far from sufficient.

I have written, as the secretary general of the Vietnam Journalist Union, to the International Federation of Journalists in Brussels (of which we are a member) and the American Newspaper Guild in Washington, D.C. which is very close with the VJU to ask for help.

I think I can do the same thing with you.

So I ask you, a prominent citizen of Winchester, to appeal to your town folks to come to our assistance. We accept everything: cash, old clothes, food and medicaments. And the quantity does not matter.

As for how to send the gifts to us, I think the best is to forward them to the Vietnamese Red Cross Association, which is ready for such a work, through the American Red Cross. You only have to mention: on the request of the Vietnam Journalist Union.

Did I ask for too much? If I did, please excuse me, but I think I have to do that and I hope I am appealing to the right side.

I have a big chance to attend the Mexico Olympic games next October and I am looking for a fellowship to visit the U.S. including Washington, D.C. and Winchester. I will confirm when the trip is close.

All the best to you and your family.

Thanks for A Wonderful Night

Editor of the Star:

I wish to thank relatives, neighbors, friends and the brothers of the Knights of Columbus for the wonderful tribute given to me and my family at the Knights of Columbus Home on Saturday evening, April 27th.

To the committee who worked so hard and sponsored the affair, I am most grateful.

Many thanks to all for a wonderful night.

Big Blazes From Little Campfires Could Grow

Editor of the Star:

We who live in Winchester are fortunate enough to have pleasant, green yards and gardens, and even some small woodsy, wild areas where birds, squirrels and children may do some growing up. But if we are to let our children enjoy these natural play areas, there are some "rules of the game" that we adults have known for so long that we perhaps forget that our children may not know them. We do have a responsibility to let them in on some of these rules.

Do any of us have any family rules about when and where it is safe to light a fire? Do the Boy Scouts know about safety with fires? Or does their handbook only tell them how to light a fire? I wish all fathers and brothers of little boys and perhaps, best of all, someone from the Fire Department would teach the rest of us what the laws are about starting fires and what is "common sense" about it.

My concern about this is particularly poignant right now because I suspect that the little "campfire" surrounded by stones that I just happened to see when my hose was in my hand might have quickly become an uncontrolled blaze in its particular location among dead twigs and branches. The boys concerned said that they were practicing for Boy Scout overnights.

Selectmen

thur F. Carr, of 40 Pickering Street, and Albert McDougall, of 11 Rangeley Ridge, were appointed for one-year terms.

Selectmen agreed to hear residents of Churchill Road at 7:30 p.m. on May 6. The appointment came after the Board rejected demands by several of the residents that they be heard during the meeting in progress. Selectman Paul Amico explained that the Board established a rule last year whereby it must be notified of business to come before it by the Thursday prior to a Monday meeting so that members will have time to study problems and questions.

Fire Chief Francis Amico informed Selectmen that he had received a letter from the fire commissioner of Boston suggesting a mutual aid agreement in view of potential riot problems in the city. Mutual aid firefighters would work outside of the riot areas.

The Board instructed the Chief to attend a meeting on the subject today to obtain further information, but cautioned him against indicating a position on the proposal. Selectman Edmund Williams is accompanying him.

Members received a letter from the Planning Board informing them that at its April 15 meeting its members voted unanimously to recommend that the Town move to acquire properties at 56 and 64 Fletcher Street, which were severely damaged in a recent fire. These properties are near Wyman School.

Selectmen came to no decision on the Planning Board's advice. They intend to meet with the Board for a discussion on the matter.

At the Monday meeting Selectmen also had Joseph Nastasi appear before them to answer questions on his taxi service procedures and number of hours of operation a day.

Theatre

listed above. A mailing list is being compiled so that each new development can be made known to those interested, and a brochure is being prepared to go out very soon.

"Community Theatre means community participation and support," reported Mr. Morse, "and any thoughts or ideas concerning the new Winchester Summer Community Theatre will be welcomed. We have a good start with the enthusiastic support of the School and Recreation Committees. Now we need you."

Assessors

"In addition, we are putting together in loose leaf form, and with photographs, data on 200 comparable sales of typical properties in the past three years. We believe that by being as thorough as we possibly can be, we will also be better prepared to stand behind our assessments." He also pointed out that the Board is setting up a system which it hopes to implement and keep updated over the years.

The two men told the Star that in many of those towns which have not initiated their own revaluations toward "fair cash value" assessments court decisions have dictated that they get them done. Arlington, Belmont, Beverly, Dedham, Marblehead and Peabody are among those about started or about to start. Massachusetts has 210 towns which have been reappraised to this end, 89 of them by outside appraisal firms.

"There is a strong possibility that some property owners will blame the effects of the $10 rise in the tax rate on the revaluation," reminded Mr. Dade, allowing that the factors in the picture could easily be confused. "It looks as though there are going to be some people hard hit this year, and among these are likely to be older persons with fixed incomes," Mr. Dade continued, going on to say that those over 70 with fixed incomes will be affected if their homes have gone from below to above a $20,000 assessment—the point at which they are or are not eligible for old-age-income abatement as defined by State law. The men are trying to be as fair and careful as possible in these instances, he averred.

"When will the bills be out?" On this one both Mr. Dade and Mr. Carpenter are unwilling to predict. Entering into this picture are the plans for Winchester's new computer system through which the 1968 tax bills will be the first major job to be processed.

Last Effort Needed For Scholarship

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation reports the need for a final generous effort on the part of Winchester citizens, businesses and organizations.

As the annual fund drive draws toward its conclusion, treasurer Charles Butler says returns are about equal to the corresponding time last year. However, there are about a dozen more seniors requesting aid this year.

Scholarship committee chairman, Mrs. Arthur Hills, reports a total of 36 applications from Winchester High School seniors. This greater number of students requesting aid plus increased tuition costs places a demand on the Foundation to come up with more funds than ever before.

In addition, there are to date 14 students already in college who have applied for further aid in order to continue their educations begun with the assistance of the Foundation. Mrs. Hills predicts that the financial requirements of these qualified students will exceed the $6,450 awarded last year for further aid.

Any interested citizen has a real opportunity now to help meet the challenge of educating our qualified young people by contributing to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation. Donations may be sent in care of Mr. Butler at the Winchester Trust Company.

Foreign Policy

The High School program will follow a format similar to that of the evening session. Students will have an opportunity to attend individual sessions with three of the four officials of their own choice.

While the team visits the High School, Miss Sally Shafer, also of the Department of State, will be available for student conferences on careers in the foreign service.

This is the second time a series of community meetings on foreign policy has been held in New England. The program began in 1963 to meet increased public interest in world affairs and is designed as an opportunity for residents to discuss foreign policy directly with professional diplomats.

At the invitation of the Winchester school system the team also visited Reading, North Reading, and Woburn earlier in the week. Mr. Morse began arranging the meetings a year ago when he heard about the program while attending a Department of State media conference.

Local alumnae are involved in working for a drive for $17,000,000 to benefit Smith College.

En Ka Directors Summon All To 1968 Street Fair

The directors for the 1968 En Ka Street Fair are calling on everyone to remember the annual event which will be held this year on May 17 and 18 at Manchester Field.

According to the directors there are plans made to have booths that will appeal to everyone. They remind, "Of course, the midway with its thrilling rides and fabulous games of skill will appeal to the young in years and young in heart. There will be a wonderful garden booth and food table to appeal to the homemaker and her boss. For the reader, the book booth is always a source for that rare book."

They added, "The jewelry table and the bargain box will have some real treasures to offer. The old fashioned penny candy at the candy table will fit right in to the Gay Nineties theme of this year's fair."

The usual good cooks of En Ka are in charge of the annual bean supper which will be held Saturday night in the Unitarian Church and which affords the entire family a dinner out while resting from the busy day at the fair.

Studio Guild Holds Meeting

The Studio Guild held its 30th annual meeting at its studio on Mt. Vernon Street last Wednesday, April 24. Members plan to celebrate the organization's anniversary with an open house on May 23.

At the annual meeting, Margaret Bailey was elected president for the coming year. Other officers selected were Ann Bannister, secretary; Pauline Hall, treasurer; Beth MacWilliams, assistant treasurer; Gertrude Irving, studio keeper; Chuck Detra, studio housekeeper; and Betty Vallee, publicity.

A member, Dorothea Jeffery, and a former teacher, Elizabeth Lobingier, presently have paintings on exhibit in the Jordan Marsh Show in Boston.

The Studio Guild owes its origin to the Fortnightly. In 1935 Dorothy Howard was the Fortnightly's art chairman and was instrumental in organizing a painting class, with Elizabeth Lobingier as the teacher. The group continued as a Fortnightly project for two years.

In April 1938 it was decided the group needed a constitution, officers, and a name. Thus, "the Studio Guild of Winchester" was born, with Dorothy Howard as is first president. Elizabeth Lobingier remained the Guild's teacher for 18 years.

Since 1963 the well-known artist and teacher, King Coffin, has filled the position.

Two of the charter members, Pauline Hall and Dorothy Howard, are still with the group.

Bake Sale Sat.

On Saturday, May 4, the Spanish Club of Winchester High School will hold a bake sale in the Purity Save-Mor super market. All proceeds from the sale will go towards helping the exchange program at WHS send two students to South America.

Did you work your way through school? Millions of youngsters are trying the same thing today. Help them help themselves. Give them a job this summer. Call your local State Employment Service today.

Care Unit Hears Les Troubadours

A surprise birthday party was held at the Winchester Hospital Continuing Care Unit on April 23, to celebrate the 85th birthday of William Petkewich, of Reading.

The party was planned by Mrs. Thelma Lawrence, of the Occupational Therapy Service. Mrs. Eleanor A. Thistlethwaite, a member of the foreign language department at the High School and also a music specialist in the Winchester schools, was in charge of the entertainment. She directed "Les Troubadours," from the Winchester High School whose program included many French songs.

Soloists were June Clark, Jane Curtis, David Baird, and Sue Jeffery; accordion players were Janet Carlson and Sue Swanson; guitars, Rita McCleary and Dave Dutting; singers were Margie Millican, Carl Galante, Richard Hill, Martha Thompson, Charlene Jason, and Danny Strout. The mistress of ceremonies was Susan Jeffery.

Refreshments were served by two junior volunteers from the Winchester Hospital, Mary Odin and Claire Murphy.

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of this week's Bible Lesson to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

The Golden Text from Psalms sets the theme: "Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness: . . Surely he shall not be moved forever: the righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance."

The Bible Lesson also includes passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, among which is the following: "Mortals move onward towards good or evil as time glides on. If mortals are not progressive, past failures will be repeated until all wrong work is effaced or rectified. If at present satisfied with wrong-doing, we must learn to loathe it. If at present content with idleness, we must become dissatisfied with it."

Minuteman Camps To Open in June

The Minuteman Council of the Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters in Stoneham, operates two summer camps for the benefit of boys in the 20 cities and towns served by the Council. Camp Sachem, located at Gregg Lake in Antrim, New Hampshire, and Parker Mountain Scout Reservation in Barnstead, New Hampshire, are both located on lakes with ample acreage for scout camping.

Both of the Minuteman Council Camps will officially open on June 30 and it is expected that more than 2500 boys will participate this summer. Most scouts will live in troop sites under their own adult volunteer leadership.

Scout Executive Daniel P. Johnson of the Minuteman Council reported that a pre-camp inspection committee of six persons will visit both camps the first of June.

In a thorough analysis of the Minuteman Council Camps last August, using the "Par 100 Plans" it was found that both camps achieved an average score of 93 points. The pre-camp inspection is based on the use of the campsite, operating practices, health, safety and sanitation.

Camp Sachem and Parker Mountain Scout Reservation offer a vigorous program of Scoutcraft, giving training in pathfinding, star study, living in the outdoors, pioneering, and rope work, nature lore and conservation, use of wood tools, and such field sports as target archery, .22 caliber shotgun shooting, fishing, orienteering, and rifle marksmanship.

Instructions in trail, outpost, and patrol-site cooking are provided for all troops and boys. The troop program experiences include teaching the second and first class requirements, and qualified counselors are provided for all outdoor merit badges applicable to camp.

Donald Horley Gets Patent

Donald W. Horley, of Winchester, and his partner at Boylston Research Association in Boston, Donald R. Korb, were recipients in March of a U.S. patent entitled "Lighting System for Facilitating the Diagnosis and Treatment of Eye Disorders."

In the system there are ten sources of light arranged so that a pushbutton control enables them to be energized at fixed levels of intensity in different combinations to provide comprehensive accurate lighting conditions for the examination and treatment of eyes.

In the treatment and diagnosis of disorders and defects of the human eye, use is made of a variety of instruments which supplement visual observation by the doctor making the examination, diagnosis and treatment. In addition, these examinations often involve the evaluation by the doctor of the response of the patient to external stimuli and the sensing of the patient of particular shapes of characters.

Messrs. Horley and Korb have devised a novel and improved illumination system which, it is claimed, facilitates the diagnosis and treatment of eye disorders. In particular, they provide an illumination system which reliably produces a variety of reproducible lighting conditions which may readily be selected by an easily manipulated control unit so as to allow the doctor to effectively examine the eyes of his patient while at the same time having maximum freedom and facility for the use of appropriate instruments.

The lighting system of this invention of Messrs. Horley and Korb is arranged for suspension from the ceiling over a vertically adjustible patient's chair. As described in detail in the specifications and drawings of their patent, it includes five fixed 40 watt, 48 inch fluorescent bulbs, three of which produce black light for use in fitting contact lenses and are focused at the same point on the patient's eyes. The fourth fluorescent bulb provides direct white light and is also focused at that same point, and the fifth provides three levels of indirect white light. The lighting system also includes a group of four 20 watt, 24 inch fluorescent lamps and a 3 watt incandescent lamp that is mounted behind the patient.

—Toastmistresses Observe Twentieth Anniversary

Governor and Mrs. John A. Volpe honored the Winchester Toastmistress Club by being present at its 20th anniversary celebration held at the Hotel Somerset on April 19.

The program opened with a social hour when the Governor presented a citation to the club. Mrs. Charles W. Tyner, of Medford, president, accepted the award for the club and then was given membership in the "Order of the Paul Revere Patriots" by the Governor.

Miss Hilda Hope, of Winchester, a charter member was toastmistress of the evening and also chairman of the occasion. She introduced the speakers: Mrs. Lauri Wirenius, of Indianapolis, vice president of International Toastmistress Clubs, and Dr. Theresa Jessup, supervisor of the Colonial Region of I.T.C. Mrs. George Trodella, of Winchester, was hostess to Mrs. Volpe.

Skits were presented by groups of members depicting the past 20 years and a trio of violin, cello, and piano, composed of members of the club, played two groups of pieces by Frank Bridge.

Mrs. James F. Armstrong and Mrs. Roger D. Foskett, both of Winchester, were among those in the skits. In the trio were Leader and violinist, Mrs. Carl Thomas, and pianist, Mrs. James Papadinis, both of Winchester; and cellist, Miss Elinor Hodgson, of Medford.

Mount Holyoke Spring Fever Tour

Got that old Spring Fever, there's a perfect cure, Mount Holyoke has the answer, why not take our tour? Put away your dust cloth, how dull it is to clean, Spring's the time to visit, there's houses to be seen. All you need's one afternoon, one dollar and some change, May 8th's the date to circle, the rest we will arrange. First, nestled in the woodlands a retreat's awaiting you, with Indian treasures inside, outside there's quite a view. Or if larger homes you favor, we've two that will delight, four daughters brighten one and its kitchen will excite. Casual living's the other's joy, relax, be at your ease. Its handsome woodwork and lovely stairs will definitely please. Now's the time for culture, with a library that's a gem, with Tiffany lamps, exotic rugs, it's found in Arlington. History lovers will favor this, 'tis the Gingerbread House you know, sea captain's treasures sought over the years, set time gone by aglow. A ranch is the last, but not the least and we've got the perfect proof, to add some space and steal the show, the owners raised the roof. Spring fever aches will fade away, how grand to spend your dollar, to benefit not only you, but some deserving scholar!

Specialist In Pollution Joins LTI Staff

An internationally known expert on air and water pollution, Dr. Bela M. Fabuss of 21 Sawmill Brook Road, has been added to the staff of the Research Foundation of Lowell Technological Institute, it was announced today.

DR. BELA M. FABUSS

Dr. Fabuss will serve as technical director of the Environmental Pollution Division which is being organized at the Foundation, and will draw heavily on the chemical engineering faculty at LTI for staffing.

"Our division will be involved with air and water pollution problems through contracts or grants," Dr. Fabuss stated. "We are very hopeful of obtaining the support of all people interested in these problems.

"In the very near future we plan to submit proposals regarding pollution control to community, state and federal agencies, as well as private corporations. We are sure we will be able to help them conquer pollution problems which have increased to alarming proportions in recent years."

A native of Hungary, where he served as a chemistry professor and conducted research at the Technical University of Budapest and the Institute of Physical Chemistry in Veszprem, Fabuss came to this country in 1960. For the past eight years he was associated with Monsanto Research Corporation as senior research group leader of chemical engineering and physio-chemical research.

He lives here with his wife, Martha, also a chemical engineer, with their five-year-old daughter, Judy, and son Leslie, 17, a senior at Winchester High School.

He is the author of more than 25 books and pamphlets, many in collaboration with other well known scientists, covering a wide range of chemical fields.

The Malden Stamp Club will hold its Annual Philatelic Show on Saturday, May 4 and Sunday, May 5, at Odd Fellows Hall, 442 Main Street Malden. Malden Hospital Affiliates With B. U. Med. School

The Malden Hospital has become affiliated with the Boston University Medical Center, its trustees have just announced.

In speaking for the trustees, Bertram E. Green, president of the Hospital said: "We are proud of the type of medicine we have at The Malden Hospital and the great progress made through the years. However, this affiliation with a leading medical center will make it possible for this community hospital to keep pace with the constant medical advancements and newly developed techniques. The results will benefit the people of the entire area."

The Hospital also announces the appointment of Stanley W. Krygowski as acting director. Mr. Krygowski has been assistant director of The Malden Hospital for the past year and a half. Previous to that he had been associated with the Lynn, Winchester and Salem Hospitals.

The 291 bed Malden Hospital was founded in 1890. An active development program conducted during the past several years has resulted in greatly expanded facilities. The hospital has a school of nursing, a school of medical technology and a school of x-ray technology.

Safety Device Gets Patent

Paul W. Douglass, of Winchester, and Joseph E. Koehler, of Norwell, were the recipients on April 2 of U. S. patent No. 3,375,577, entitled "Safety Razor Magazine.'

In recent years, there has been developed a safety razor which employs a continuous ribbon-like blade that is arranged so that successive lengths of the blade may be advanced into shaving position by the user. The blade is contained within a magazine or cartridge that is mounted removably on the razor structure. The use of these safety razors is widespread.

It frequently is desirable to provide a safety razor of the foregoing type which is of such design that the user may adjust the "shaving geometry" to suit his individual preferences or shaving requirements. By "shaving geometry" is meant the relationship between the exposed sharpened edge of the blade and the shaving guard.

However, the adjustment of the shaving geometry of a ribbon-type razor presents a number of unique problems. Fore example, the adjustment mechanism is included primarily in the magazine and it is essential that its cost be at a minimum in order to successfully meet the competition of other razors. In addition, the adjustment mechanism should be operable easily and satisfactorily throughout the useful life of the magazine and should permit a wide range of shaving geometries without creating any hazard for the user of the razor.

To meet the foregoing and other the invention of Douglass and Koehler have devised a novel ribbon-type razor blade magazine which, it is claimed, is easy and safe to use and permits precise adjustment of the shaving geometries over a wide range of values. As additional advantages, the adjustment arrangement is compact and is adapted for inexpensive manufacture on a mass production basis.

The adjustment arrangement of the invention of Dougles and Koehler includes such parts as a shaving platform upon which the ribbon-like blade is supported in the shaving zone, a guard bar that is secured to the platform by a flexible hinge of special design, an adjusting lever, and an adjusting device in the form of a disc with a helical camming groove, all of which parts function, as described in detail in the specifications and drawings of the patent, to achieve the desired results.

This patent has been assigned to The Gillette Company, Boston.

86% in Area Are Home Owners

Home ownership is high in Winchester. In contrast to the situation in many communities across the country, in the local area a large proportion of families now own the houses in which they live.

The ownership rate has been going up in recent years as a growing number of families, who had been living in rented quarters but wanted homes of their own, accumulated the wherewithal to satisfy that desire.

The net result, according to the latest findings, is that approximately 86.6 percent of all dwelling units in the area are now owned by their occupants.

This compares with 63.4 percent in the rest of the United States and 60.6 percent in the New England States.

The extent of the gain that has been made in the last few years may be gleaned from a look at the 1960 Census of Housing. At that time, only 84.5 percent of the dwellings were found to be owner-occupied.

The new estimates are based upon the official figures, updated to reflect the changes since 1960. The extent of these changes is brought out on a national basis in studies and surveys made by the Life Insurance Institute, the National Association of Home Builders and others.

The growth of home ownership in the last eight years is ascribed to rising family incomes and to the fact that mortgage money has been available at favorable rates during much of that period.

More recently, inflation has also been a motivating factor. Many people have turned to real estate as a hedge against inflation. Some have traded up, selling their former homes to buy better ones.

With regard to modern household conveniences, homes in the local area appear to be well equipped, according to a Department of Commerce survey.

The study was based upon the percentages of homes with food freezers, air conditioners, clothes washing machines, television sets, telephones and automobiles.

All six percentages were added together to arrive at an "index of home equipment."

Middlesex County is listed with an index of 356 out of a possible maximum of 600. It is a higher rating than is shown for many localities.

The average in the United States is 349 and, in the New England States, 348.

"Stop-Smoking" Program Again To Go In Stoneham

"Want to kick the smoking habit? Have you tried before, but found you could not do it without moral support?" The next Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking at New England Memorial Hospital, Stoneham, is to go from May 5 to 9, 7:30 p.m.

"Here you will be surrounded by people with the same problem you yourself are facing—a desire to stop smoking, but a lack of willpower sufficient to conquer the habit without the help of others," says the Hospital.

Walter E. Kloss, Five-Day Plan Director, with a hospital physician, will be on hand to point out the hazards created by smoking.

Many smokers subconsciously believe that they are endangering their lives by smoking, but it somehow seems more believable when medical evidence is presented backing up this theory.

The Five-Day program includes talks by those in the medical profession, comments by the director, and films pointing out the results of smoking.

Participants find encouragement in their endeavor to give up the smoking habit as well as suggestions concerning diet, etc., for the trying first days of the program. Those attempting to kick the habit will know that the many others who started on the Five-Day program with them are going through the same agony elsewhere, trying to control their urge to reach for that cigarette.

The meetings are informal affairs with no pressure brought to bear by those conducting the program. They are there to encourage participants to give up the habit by yourself, not through force but through your own desire and willpower.

Curiosity seekers are also invited just to listen, even if they don't feel smoking is a habit they wish to give up. Also being encouraged to attend are those who have already given up cigarette smoking for the cigar or pipe.

Marycliff Pupils Win Art Prizes; Receive Rings

Recently the students of Marycliff Academy entered prize-winning art pieces in the Archdiocesan art competition. Winchester students receiving awards in the upper school were Mary Ellen Piantedosi, who was given a first prize, and Martha Nowell, Jane Cannava, Joanne Martignette, Cynthia Ross, and Dale DiMarzo, all second prize winners.

In the elementary school Patricia Brock merited a second prize.

The work of all first and second place winners was on exhibit at McHugh Forum, Boston College, April 25 through April 28.

The award ceremony took place on Sunday April 28.

Recently the Class of '69 received the Marycliff Academy ring at a special assembly. The Reverend Francis McFarland blessed the school rings. Mother Mary Bullock, superior at the Academy, presented a ring to a senior who in turn gave it to her junior sister. The members of the Class of '69 pledged loyalty to the school and its ideals. The program closed with the singing of the school song.

Parents and friends of the juniors attended the ceremony and participated in a social hour which followed the formal program.

Marriage Rate to Climb In Town in Coming Year

Winchester may be witnessing a sharp increase in its young adult population in the next few years, with a consequent rise in the local marriage rate and in the number of new household formations.

It is not idle speculation. It is based upon solid, statistical evidence.

The latest Census Bureau figures show that approximately 1,877 young men and young women in the local area are now in the 20 to 25 age bracket—the young adult category.

This is a big increase over the number that are normally in that age group. In 1960, for example, there were only 783.

Why the sudden increase? It harks back to the second World War and to the extremely high birth rates in the years just following it.

The babies that were born in that period have now reached adulthood and are in the prime marrying ages. They are going to work, getting married, and forming families of their own.

All of this could be sweet music to local retail merchants. Each new wedlock means a new household and each new household represents thousands of dollars of consumer business.

On the basis of surveys that have been made of the bridal market, an estimated $1,500 is spent by a couple, with parental assistance usually, in connection with their engagement and wedding.

Another $3,000, on average, is spent within the first year in equipping their home. Some of it is paid for in cash and the rest is bought on credit.

At this rate, the amount of potential spending in Winchester from this source would come to a healthy $4,140,000. This assumes that nearly all those in the young adult age group get married during the next few years and that some 920 new households result.

All segments of the local economy stand to gain from the zip in business that this new spending will produce. Marketers of furniture, rugs, dishes, draperies, blankets, clothing, electrical equipment, and other household necessities will all benefit.

These initial outlays will be followed by others, as family income increases, enabling the newlyweds to acquire homes of their own, buy new cars, and add to their furnishings.

Wheelock Club Plans May 14 Fashion Show

The Longview Club of Wheelock College, including members from Winchester, is planning its second dessert fashion show for the benefit of the College Scholarship Fund on Tuesday, May 14, at 8 p.m. at the Thompson Country Club on Route 62, North Reading.

Mrs. William Towner, Winchester Longview president, urges all to come for the evening with Charlotte Barker as commentator for "Summer Fashions with a Flair" by Grad's Town and Country Shop of Northshore.

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Ernest Leavitt at 729-4524 or Mrs. William Towner at 729-0663.

The boutique will be located off of the auditorium along with the baked goods so as to afford adults a quiet and relaxing atmosphere in which to shop and leisurely enjoy coffee and doughnuts.

Set up in the auditorium itself will be the following tables: plants, white elephant, grabs, balloons, candy, including home-made fudge, and the Mother's Day table. Hot dogs and punch will be available also.

Games, relay races, and other outdoor contests are planned and will be run by Noonan dads, weather permitting.

The Volkswagen for people who refuse to drive Volkswagens.

© VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it's ugly, we can't help you.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you have eight kids and it isn't big enough, you have our sympathy.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it isn't fancy enough, that's for you to decide.

But if you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you're used to an automatic transmission, listen carefully.

Now you can drive a Volkswagen all over town without shifting.

We call this new option the automatic stick shift.

And in true Volkswagen fashion, a bug with an automatic stick shift will deliver up to 25 miles on a gallon of gas, use very little oil, and nary a drop of water or antifreeze.

But just because we've made it easy to drive, doesn't mean we're about to make it any prettier, or any bigger, or any fancier. So we imagine some people will still refuse to drive Volkswagens.

You can't win them all.

Survey Shows Aide Services Unavailable

A survey showing inadequate and non-existant Homemaker - Home Health Aide services in the 14 cities and towns in the North Central Area of United Community Services has led to further explorations of possible administrative arrangements by which these services can be made available. This action is the result of a recent meeting in Malden of the North Central Area Planning Committee of United Community Services headed by Oliver T. Bergstrom, of 19 Sheffield Road.

The informal survey conducted by members of the area committee indicated that in six of the 14 communities closest to Boston where homemaker services are provided by the Homemaker Service Department of the Family Service of Greater Boston only about 30% of the requests for service were met. In the eight other communities, more distant from Boston, no organized homemaker services are available.

Next steps will focus on ways to make homemaker services available to these latter communities which include Winchester, as well as Stoneham, Woburn, Burlington, Wakefield, Reading and North Reading.

No news about Winchester boys in college and prep school this week. Our contributors didn't come through.

* * * * *

An article sent in by a contributor decrying the lack of enthusiasm and fanfare at opening day Little League ceremonies would have been published in this week's Star had the contributor signed his name to the article. As for circus effects, as far as we are concerned, the less fanfare the better. Winchester has behaved itself admirably with respect to LL baseball and has in the years during its inception concerned itself with providing more and more opportunity for boys to play ball, and contenting itself with, for the most part, raising the necessary funds to see that every boy gets an opportunity to play, and with handling the administrative end.

There is one thing that does gripe us though, and that is turning boys into peddlers of lottery tickets, although that isn't as bad as sending them out with tin cans and placing them at busy traffic intersections to wheedle money from passing motorists. We, personally, in our automotive perigrinations, have contributed to Little League in Medford, Revere, Everett, Wilmington, Billerica, Chelsea, and just about every town in the Greater Boston area.

How about the grownups taking care of the finances, and the kids doing the ball playing?

New Orleans is the latest of the cities to have completed final plans for a sports stadium—and it will be a honey, with a rollback roof and adjustable seating to accommodate 70,000 for baseball (N. O. doesn't even have a baseball team) and 80,000 for football. Cost will be about $35,000,000.

1968 will probably be the Patriots' last season here. Pressure by other American Football League owners, plus extremely attractive offers by other cities will be too much to resist on the part of the Pats' owners. It will not be the end of big league football in Boston, for eventually, perhaps in the next five or ten years, Boston will build a stadium. But it will mean going through another agonizing period of waiting more years until a new team builds itself up to big league standards.

First there were the Redskins, then the Yanks, followed by the Patriots. Who will be the next? And how many of us will live that long to see pro football in Boston after the Patriots leave?

* * * * *

We're happy to see Bill Monbouquette off to a great start. Bill has a 3-1 record, having given up but 17 hits in 31 innings of ball and sporting an under-1.00 ERA. That's some pitching! Too bad a pitcher with plenty of baseball left in him, and the only bonafide Bostonian on the team, had to be traded for two guys by the name of George ? and George ?.

WHS Track Takes Belmont 80-50

Bouncing back from their first defeat of the season, Winchester High's track squad trounced the Maroon Marauders of Belmont High School 80-50.

Three Sachems posted victories in two events, in pacing Winchester to its biggest victory (by point-spread) of the year.

The first of three, co-captain Greg Cronin, posted his fourth consecutive victories in both the 100 and 220. His 23.6 seconds in the 220 represents his best effort of the season in that event. The other two Sachems won their double victories in the field events: co-captain Dave Carpenter in the javelin and broad jump, and senior Chris Halverson in the shot put and discus.

The Sachems took all three places in two events—the javelin and the shot put. Seniors Bob McClellan and Scott Baerenwald followed Carpenter in the javelin, while another senior, George Cross, and junior Les Fabuss placed second and third behind Halverson in the shot.

Lexington Tops Sachem Trackmen

Coach Roger Rawden's track squad suffered its first defeat of the Middlesex League season, 78-53, at the hands of visiting Lexington High. The Minutemen captured nine of the fourteen first places as well as the relay in halting the Sachem's two-meet winning streak.

Co-captain Greg Cronin led Winchester in scoring, with ten points, as he remained undefeated in both the 100 and 220. The Sachem's other co-captain, Dave Carpenter, lost his first race of the year as he tripped during the 160 yard low hurdles while leading the pack by nearly five yards. Earlier in the meet, Carpenter had contributed 5 points to the Sachem cause by placing first in the broad jump.

Senior Chris Halverson paced Winchester in the field events, posting a first in the discus and a second in the shot put. Junior Rick Mobbs continued to show his mettle in the high hurdles, taking first place with a time of 16.3 seconds.

Batsmen In Post League Taking Reading 3-1 Thurs.

Paced by the four-hit pitching of senior Mark Fitzgerald and clutch batting on the part of Tom and Billy Wolfe, Coach Bill Colella's baseball squad upset defending League champion Reading High by a 3-1 margin in a game played last Thursday at Reading.

Fitzgerald pitched six and two-thirds innings, striking out eight and walking seven en route to his first varsity victory. Senior Al Ingraham relieved Fitzgerald in the seventh and halted the rallying Rockets, saving the game for Fitzgerald.

The first Sachem run came in the second inning. Toby Harvey reached on an error by the Reading shortstop. Junior catcher Steve Swanson sacrificed Harvey to second.

The Rockets tied the score in their half of the third, but Winchester scored twice in the fifth, going ahead to stay. Tom Wolfe started the rally, singling sharply to right. The Reading pitcher then booted a John Clair bunt, sending Wolfe to third and Clair to second.

Fitzgerald then helped his own cause, batting in Wolfe with a fielder's choice. Tommy Flaherty then popped to the third baseman, leaving sophomore Billy Wolfe at the plate with Clair in scoring position at third. Wolfe came through, rapping a single to right, sending Clair home with the third Winchester run.

Fitzgerald and Ingraham combined to hold the Rockets hitless for the next three innings, and the score ended with the Sachems on top 3-1.

Stoneham Bats Home Errors Beat Sachems Here

Plagued by wildness on the mound and docility at the plate, Winchester High's baseball squad dropped a 5-1 decision to league-leading Stoneham Monday afternoon here in Winchester. The defeat drops the Sachems' record to 1-2 in Middlesex League play.

For the third consecutive game, Winchester's batters produced only four hits. And catcher Steve Swanson's triple was the only base hit to go for extra bases. The team's fielding was no better, as five errors were committed by the Sachem defense in the course of the game.

The sole Winchester run came in the sixth inning. With one out, Toby Harvey singled down the left field line. Swanson then stroked his triple, scoring Harvey. But the Sachem rally ended there, as Billy Wolfe grounded out, pitcher to first, and Swanson was thrown out at home, attempting to score on the fielder's choice.

The Stoneham pitcher, Charlie Gardner, struck out five Winchester batters, without walking any, on the way to his four-hit victory. The victory upped the Spartans' record to 3-0 for the still-young Middlesex League season.

Tennis Association to Field Five Teams for Suburban League

The Town will be represented by the Winchester Tennis Association in the Suburban Tennis League. It will field one "A" Team, captained by Tom Raleigh, of 41 Wildwood Street, two "B" Teams, captained by Adolf Alla, of 50 Winford Way, and Richard Kadesch, of 15 Mayflower Road, and two "C" Teams, captained by Leroy Lindgren, of 3 Fairview Terrace, and James Aylward, of 52 Oxford Street.

The League began its 33rd year of club competition on Tuesday. It is the oldest and most active Tennis League in the U.S.A. Its purpose has been to provide organized men's doubles competition. This year the league consists of six divisions, one Class "A," two Class "B," and three Class "C." Each "A" and "B" League fields ten teams; each "C" League fields 8 teams, and each week 54 teams compete.

The competing clubs for 1968 are Framingham-Sudbury River Tennis Club, Lexington Tennis Club, Needham Tennis Club, Newton Squash and Tennis Club, North Andover Country Club, Waban Neighborhood Club, Wellesley Country Club, Wellesley Tennis Association, Weston Golf and Racquet Club, Winchester Tennis Association Dover Tennis Club, Lakewood Tennis Club, Newton South Tennis Club, Concord Tennis Club, West Newton Neighborhood Club, Quincy Tennis Club, Arlington Tennis Club, Lincoln Tennis Club, Wayland Tennis Club, Melrose Tennis Club, Burlington Tennis Club, Needham Pool and Racquet Club, Cedardale Tennis Club of Groveland, and the Brookline Country Club.

Tennis Team Opens Season With Two Wins

Paced by the number one singles man, Mike Hills, and captain Dick Kadesch, Coach Don Stangel's squad began its season with two impressive wins: 5-0 in the season opener versus Reading, and 4-1 over Lexington.

Rounding out the three singles slots, behind Hills and Kadesch, was junior Brad Lindgren. Playing in the number one doubles position were senior Steve Pritchard and junior Barry Gibson. The number two doubles pair was composed of juniors Leo Lauretano and Bruce Stebbins. The Lauretano-Stebbins duo suffered the one defeat at the hands of their Lexington opponents.

The two victories proved once and for all that the Sachems, defending Middlesex League champions, are front-runners once more this year, and that they are—for the third consecutive year—the team to beat in the Middlesex League.

The team faces two non-league teams, Newton South and Boston Latin, before meeting their high M.L. opponent, Wakefield High, next Monday here in Winchester at the Palmer Courts. The way the squad members are playing now, they should have no trouble in making the Warriors their third victim on the way to another League crown.

1968 Little League Opens 16th Consecutive Season

by James R. Stewart, Jr.

At 10 a.m. on Saturday ceremonies at Ginn Field opened the 1968 Winchester Little League season with the traditional throwing out of the first ball by President James R. Stewart, Jr., and opening remarks by Donald C. Van Roosen, president of the Dads' Club. A contest of 1967 champions came next, and the National League champion Yankees defeated the American League winners by a score of 10 to 2.

Winchester Little League, Inc., has been providing opportunities for boys from 9 through 12 to play baseball since 1953. From a small beginning, the number of teams has increased steadily.

In 1966, the Babe Ruth League was incorporated with Little League and designated Senior Division, covering boys from 13 through 15. In 1968, further expansion will be effected with the formation of four teams in what is known as the Big League. The latter League will field teams of young men 16, 17 and 18 years old.

Winchester is purported to be the only town in the country to be authorized more than one team of this nature and expects to be closely watched by Little League's Williamsport, Pennsylvania, headquarters as a pilot program to other towns.

In 1968, to accommodate the increased number of baseball-interested boys from 9 through 12, the Minor League teams will be carrying more than the former limit of 15 players, while the Cap League, for those unable to make Minor or Major League teams, will operate, again, on week-ends starting on May 12. This first call will be at 2 p.m., and, under the direction of George Tello the boys well be separated into teams for active games. Each boy will receive a baseball cap to be worn at games each week-end. All fathers with boys who want to play in this league are urged to attend this first meeting with their sons and be a part of this most enjoyable endeavor.

In 1968, counting the Cap League (about 250), the 16 Minor League teams (total 280), the 10 Major League teams (total 150), the eight Senior League teams (total 120) and the four Big League teams (total 60), Winchester Little League will host at least 860 boys and young men between the ages of 9 and 18.

Adult help in the form of volunteer managers coaches, Dads' Club members, Women's Auxiliary members and umpires, plus the administrative staff will total some 271 persons.

Each minor, major, senior and big league team has a contributing sponsor to assist in defraying the large expenditures necessary to provide uniforms and equipment for the 38 teams, while local organizations such as En Ka also contribute to help absorb costs. At present, the Little League's annual fund drive in is progress as an additional crutch.

The Mothers' Auxiliary has charge of refreshment stands at Ginn and West Side Fields, and sponsors the annual parents' dance as well as providing the brains and beauty of the Little League float for the En Ka parade. The Dads' Club runs the Cap League and helps ferret out coaches, managers and other assistants for future operations.

Winchester's Little League feels it has always been a source of pride for the town and a point of envy for other towns. With the continued cooperation of Winchester people and business, it will continue to grow and continue to provide recreation, fun, healthy exercise, and enjoyment for a great many Winchester boys and young men. Volunteer workers are always welcome, and if any Winchesterite, man or woman, has not been asked to help, the Little League would appreciate his coming forth with an offer of his services, no matter how little it may seem. The main point is that Little League is and will always be for the boys, first, last and always.

Everybody talks about what's wrong with our young people but what are you doing about it? Here's your chance. Put them to work this summer. Call your local State Employment Service and hire young workers for summer jobs.

East-West two of the club couples who always provide a pleasant atmosphere at the bridge table (one reason people like to play in Winchester),—the Duryeas and the Cincottas,—were first and second respectively.

The long suits were still there this week in Section A. Board 10, East the dealer and both sides vulnerable, is a lesson in temptation. Obviously everyone will be bidding furiously with a good fit North-South in diamonds and East-West in clubs. And when five makes game, it's difficult to refuse the temptation and stop at four. But just four is there in either diamonds or clubs. In diamonds North-South has to lose the Ace of diamonds, the Ace of clubs and the King of hearts. The losers in clubs East-West are Ace and King of spades and Ace of hearts.

Five of the nine tables playing the board stopped at the four bid, two in clubs and three in diamonds. The other four tables couldn't resist the temptation, however, and went on to five. The interesting part is that when North-South can make four diamonds, five clubs East-West is a good sacrifice, going down one, unless you are doubled. Here is where logic retreats while gambling instinct and knowledge of your opponents' bidding style take over. Surely there are some players you'd risk bidding five clubs against with the East-West cards and some you wouldn't. Right?

Of the two five club bidders, one wend down only 100 points (against the 130 for North's four diamonds) and won the gamble, the other down 200 for a poor board. Likewise with the two five diamond bidders. One went down and one made. (Editor's note: If you figure out how much to make five diamonds North-South, please let me know.)

Moral: Despite all your higher mathematics and figuring whether to bid or sacrifice, it often boils down to personal judgment of what your opponents will do.

Hills Sparkles; Sachems Extend ML Win Streak

Led by the much improved play of senior Mike Hills, the Winchester varsity tennis team ran its unbeaten streak of Middlesex League matches to 18. The Sachems overwhelmed a strong Lexington outfit by a score of 4-1. Winchester is now a strong favorite to capture its third consecutive League crown and an automatic berth in the 1968 Massachusetts State Tennis Tournament. Winchester has not lost a League match since Melrose beat them way back in the spring of 1965. Coach Donald Stangel's complete record as the Winchester mentor now stands at an amazing 21 victories against only 2 defeats. The losses came against state champion Newton South and State silver medalist Newton North one year ago.

Monday's victory over arch rival Lexington was highlighted by Mike Hills' straight set victory over Dick Hinchcliff. Dick Kadesch went three sets to set back Lexington's Seaman. Winchester underclassman, Brad Lindgren, easily disposed of Clark 6 to 3, and 6 to 1. Winchester clinched the match with an easy win at the first doubles position. Both Barry Gibson and Steve Pritchard looked strong at the important first doubles position.

The Sachems cannot relax. Yesterday they met Newton South and now must meet a very strong Brookline team. Both matches are out of the league, yet should be a good indication of how Winchester might fare come state tournament time in early June.

Lacrosse Team Ties Newton 2-2

Winchester High's lacrosse squad, led by co-captain Ted Webb and paced by seniors Henry Cushman, Dick Kimball, and Bob Giamattei, fought to a 2-all deadlock with Newton High School in a contest played last Friday at Newton.

The Sachems jumped out to a 1-0 lead early in the game on a goal scored by Cushman. But from that point on, Newton controlled the ball and dominated the action throughout regulation play. Only outstanding play by defenseman Webb, Kimball, and junior Jeff Lindberg and a tremendous performance on the part of goalie Mark Stabile prevented the opposition from scoring more than one goal in the regulation time period.

In the first overtime period, Newton scored what seemed to be the winning goal with only 35 seconds left on the clock. However, attackman Bob Giamattei came through for the Sachems and tallied the game-tying goal with less than five seconds remaining. With the score tied at 2 all, the teams went into the second overtime. But the second extra period ended with no goals being scored for either side, despite inspired efforts by Sachems Bill Allard and Ernie Guarino whose shots were repulsed by fantastic saves on the part of the Newton goalie.

The Sachems will have another chance against a Newton squad, as the team is scheduled for a meeting later on in the season—this time versus Newton South here in Winchester.

Lacrossemen Top Ipswich 10-0

Following a disappointing loss to St. Mark's School last week in the season opener, coach Eugene Bouley's Lacrosse squad bounced back with a big 10-0 victory over Ipswich High. Although this is the first year that Ipswich has fielded a varsity lacrosse team, and the resistance which they offered was slight when compared to that of the other teams which the Sachems have scheduled, substantial improvements were evident in all phases of Winchester's game.

The Sachem attack and midfield controlled the ball for most of the game, and the defense was exceptionally strong. In fact, the defense, composed of co-captain Ted Webb, junior Jeff Lindberg, and seniors Dick Kimball and Jim O'Donnell, kept the ball on the attack for more than 90% of the game.

Seven different Sachems contributed goals, with three players posting a pair of tallies. The hometowners who scored twice were Jimmy Barry, Cliff Letty, and Mark Collins. The other Sachems who scored goals were seniors Henry Cushman and Bob Penna, and juniors Donnie Daniels and Ernie Guarino.

Youth Concerts Series Planned

The tenth season of Youth Concerts at Symphony Hall will again present 60 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Harry Ellis Dickson in two series of three programs, scheduled for November 9 and November 16, January 25 and February 1, and March 1 and March 8. The concerts will be presented on successive Saturdays, at 11 a.m., in Symphony Hall, and are planned to last about an hour.

Since both series are usually sold out by the fall, young people who wish to attend the concerts are urged to subscribe now. For information contact Mrs. Leo M. Pistorino, 44 Myopia Road, at 729-3989.

Girl Scouts Hold Arts Festival

For the third consecutive year the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council presented the Cadette Arts Festival on April 6 at the Lynch Junior High School.

Over 400 Cadettes throughout the Council participated, either as individual exhibitors or troop project exhibitors, in the arts and crafts exhibit and the fashion show. The show was divided into 16 categories, and each category was judged separately for creativity, originality and skill. In the fashion show, the cadettes modeled costumes that they had made, and these were judged for dressmaking skill. The fashion show was a troop endeavor, and the troops were judged for poise and originality of the presentation and the description of the Cadette commentator.

Cadette Susan McDonald of Troop 491 was awarded first prize in painting. Awarded second prizes in Troop 506 were Cadettes Martha Lewis for decorative needlework, Cathy Jeannette for decorative needlework, and Ann Scandura for painting.

Others winning second prizes were: Mary Jo Hines of Troop 440 for painting, Donna Waszak of Troop 491 for kit kraft; and Linda Rawding of Troop 509, and Kathleen Goss of Troop 591 for painting.

Second prize was awarded to Troop 491 in the fashion show, with Mrs. Thomas L. Raleigh, Jr., leader. Anne Longo and Lucille Piazza were announcers, and the girls participating were Deborah Bowker, Linda Britton, Barbara Donovan, Robin Doughty, Lisa Fitzgerald, Jill Hallisey, Lissie Lempert, Cathy Lorenzetti, Susan McDonald, and Deborah Yavner.

The judges included Robert Lowry and John L. Lobingier, of Winchester. Exhibit arranger was Mrs. Donald van Roosen, also of Winchester.

Airman John A. Buzzotta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Buzzotta, of 84 Nelson Street, has completed basic training at Amarillo AFB, Texas. He has been assigned to the Air Force Technical Training Center at Chanute AFB, Illinois, for specialized schooling as a vehicle maintenance specialist. Airman Buzzotta is a 1966 graduate of Winchester High School.

The Parish Players' "All My Sons" Marked with Good Acting, Directing

by Harriet Connor

When playwright Arthur Miller wrote "All My Sons" in 1947, Americans were deeply concerned with World War II. Perhaps the ensuing decades have made us immune now to the hideous face of war and its price tags. But somehow—the impact of "All My Sons" now seems not as staggering as it was 20 years ago . . .

Yet the Parish Players chose this for their important spring play, daring to remind audiences that war is still going on, and along with it the greed of many concerned. They selected an excellent cast and they chose a top-notch director. For putting across this play so strongly much credit must go to the director, Glenne Grant. In working with her capable cast she knew exactly how tense to maintain a situation, when to hold emotions down for sharper effect, and the result was one of professional calibre.

The setting itself created a neighborhood mood, and Roger Foskett's touch of real greens for a hedge added realism. One meets the characters in Act I in an ordinary backyard of an ordinary home, with ordinary neighbors and people. Then the story begins to unfold.

During World War II the shipment of defective cylinder heads has caused the death of 20 combat fliers. Joe Keller, the manufacturer, has been exonerated by the court—but his partner is still serving time in prison for the deed. Keller has two sons, Larry who is a pilot missing in action for three years; Chris, returned from combat, now in business with his father. We then meet Ann Deever, once engaged to the missing Larry, and the daughter of Keller's jailed partner, who has come here to marry Chris. Mrs. Keller still believes Larry is alive and cannot face the idea of Ann marrying anyone else. Behind her faith in Larry is the certain knowledge that her husband is guilty in the defective airplane parts incident. Even Chris finally admits this truth, unable to blind himself any longer to his father's wrong.

It is a highly dramatic moment when Chris forces his father to confess that he did know of the defective parts—and that he did deliberately stay away from the plant that day so that Deever might shoulder all responsibility. Joe Keller is on the verge of giving himself up—when he takes his own life instead. One hopes there are no Joe Kellers in this country today—but the play is believed to have been written around an actual news story.

Irving Rothman, last seen here in The Deadly Game, was superb as Joe Keller. Irving played the right lines with good humor and bluster, and others with a quietness that was powerful. His son Chris, ably played by a newcomer to the Players, Dick Schreadley, was with the Dock Street Players in Charleston, S.C., and the Pelican Playhouse in St. Petersburg. His was a gift of sincerity that carried deep into the audience. Nancy Dorsey as Ann was a glamorous addition and fortunately is not only lovely to look at, but is a very good actress, as we who saw her in Pygmalion know well.

Robert Magnusen made an excellent Dr. James Bayliss, and vivacious Betty Vallee played his wife. Small Rhys Schreadley, for a small boy, had wonderful diction.

But to this reviewer Elizabeth Hoxie made the play complete. She has been seen in many and varied roles, and always is a trouper. We once enjoyed her in Weston, Vermont, Playhouse, in a beautiful job in "Solid Gold Cadillac." We saw her in Arlington Friends production of "Death of a Salesman" and will never forget it. As Kate Keller who knew her husband's guilt, Miss Hoxie gave a star-studded performance.

It may have been a "heavy" play for a spring evening. But in listening to the comments, it was a play that is making people think— and be concerned.

ONCE MORE

. . . we quickly found people "The Key to Happiness."

Last Saturday night at a dinner we renewed acquaintance with a lady we hadn't seen for several years. She hadn't "gotten the word" on our present efforts to serve the public (she still remembered Stafford's as quality caterers).

When it appeared that we might help her in her present problem she outlined her frustration over all the "lookers" who were being paraded through her house without result.

Tuesday afternoon we brought her the "earnest money" that spelled the end to her problem—and to that of the out-of-state executive who had entrusted us with finding a suitable home for his family to move to when school closes.

Such results aren't guaranteed.

They take a little luck.

A lot of knowledgeable listening and general know-how (and wide-spread contacts who trust us) are very helpful, though.

Again we say, "If your house isn't listed with us it isn't really on the market."

Arts Center Champagne Benefit Ball To Draw For Local Painter's Seascape

Joseph R. Corish, of Lawson Road, well-known local artist and prominent lawyer in the Boston area, recently donated one of his fine seascapes to the Winchester Art Association to be used in conjunction with their program to support the new Winchester Center for the Creative Arts.

Mrs. John A. Volpe, honorary chairman of the Champagne Benefit Ball sponsored by the Art Association, and Mrs. Joseph R. DeSimone, of Cardinal Street, chairman, formally accepted Mr. Corish's painting at a recent meeting in Mrs. Volpe's home.

Valued at $300, the painting will be spotlighted, flanked by potted palms, and displayed at the Champagne Ball, in the Sheraton-Plaza Ballroom, Saturday evening, June 15, during which time guests may purchase tickets entitling them to participate in a drawing for the painting. At the end of the evening a ticket-holder will win the valuable work of art, currently on exhibit in the Gift Shop of the Winchester Hospital.

Reservations for the ball are being made at a fast pace and many pre-ball dinner parties are planned.

Among those who have made early reservations are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cirace, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Connor, Dr. and Mrs. George Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Pontone, R. D. Pauley, the professional golfer from Des Plaines, Illinois, who will be in the Boston area for a tournament in June, and Mrs. Pauley.

Mrs. Volpe and Mrs. DeSimone, on behalf of the Winchester Art Association, have extended a cordial invitation to the ball to everyone. For information and to make your reservation call 729-3174.

Positive Self Concept Stressed By Dr. Harleston

On Tuesday evening, April 23, in the Lincoln School Auditorium the Lincoln School Parents' Association presented the last in a series of lectures entitled "Factors Affecting Learning." The speaker for the evening was Dr. Bernard Harleston, associate professor of psychology at Tufts University. His lecture covered the field of social and environmental factors as they affect learning.

Dr. Harleston pointed out that a very necessary part in the development of the learning situation is to create a strong motivational environment for the child. Most important in this is the development within the child of a positive sense of self.

Attainable Goals

This self-concept, he stated, is developed by providing the child with numerous successful experiences. Parents should foster and even reward expressions of independence in their children's behavior. Attainable goals should be set for the child. Immediate gratification of every need tends to weaken this sense of self as do too many unsuccessful experiences.

Dr. Harleston stated that the school also plays an important part in developing motivation. He feels strongly that goals in school, as well as at home, should be set in regard to the individual rather than the group. He commended the method of reporting reading progress to Lincoln School parents in lieu of letter grades and stated that the Lincoln School method should serve as a model for evaluation in all areas.

Dr. Harleston also feels that the individual teacher-student relationship is most important since the child emulates the teacher and reacts in proportion to what the teacher expects. In this regard, particularly in the area of identification, he stressed the need for male teachers in the elementary level.

A question and answer period followed Dr. Harleston's talk, and refreshments were served by Mrs. Richard Knight and her committee.

High School To Present Pops Concert

During the two intermissions, light refreshments will be served. Reserved seats at tables and unreserved balcony seats are available at a small fee.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Magnetic games, color forms, rub-ons, card games, 29c each. Paper dolls for children and adults. At the Winchester Star.

Washington Sets Saturday Affair

Monte Carlo Hawaiian Night at the Washington School Auditorium will be May 4 at 8:30 p.m. Prizes will be on hand and those present can try their luck at the various games of chance. This evening is being co-sponsored by the Washington Mothers' and Dads' Associations, who say:

"The mom and dad who break the bank at Vegas games of chance Might rather see Hawaii and a hula-hula dance.
To do the two at once might never happen as a rule,
But now you can, on May the fourth, at our own
Washington School.
We won't promise any roast pig or poi but do come.
And plan to have lots of fun."

Scout Show Saturday Starts With Parade

Ever boil an egg in a paper cup over an open fire? Or assemble a landship? Or need to signal by semaphore and not know how? The how of these things and many more will be demonstrated on Manchester Field Saturday by more than 1,000 Boy Scouts from Winchester, Arlington, Stoneham and Woburn.

This year's Scouting in Action Show will be the largest ever with 38 units of Musket District, Minuteman Council registered to participate. Working with the boys in this public demonstration will be more than 200 adult volunteer leaders.

The day's action begins with an all-Scout parade at 11:30 from Manchester Field, through the business district of town and back to the field. Immediately following opening ceremonies at the flagpole on the field, demonstration booths will be in action from noon to 4 in the afternoon.

This annual event is a unique opportunity for the public, and particularly boys approaching Cub Scout or Boy Scout age, to see what makes Scouting the popular and increasingly important youth movement it is in the four towns represented. For all campers and sportsmen there is something in it too.

Winchester will have the largest representation, with 12 units participating. The units and their sponsoring institutions are:

Cub Scout Packs:
503 — First Congregational Church
508 — Noonan School Parents Association
509 — George Washington School
511 — Lincoln School Mothers' Association
524 — Parkhurst School Parents' Association

Barone Wins, Terzaghi Loses In Late Final For Primary

It was Monday night this week or six days after the primary before the Arlington election officials would give the official tally for that Town and before Cynthia Laraway Barone—Mrs. William—of 1 School Street could accept her victory as Republican Committeewoman from the 6th Middlesex District comprising Arlington, Winchester and Medford.

The same vote record signified the defeat of Winchester's other area contestant, Mrs. Ruth Terzaghi, of 3 Robinson Circle, who was running as a McCarthy alternate delegate in the 7th Congressional District which includes also Belmont, Medford, Stoneham, Everett, Revere, Chelsea, Melrose and other towns. The male members of this McCarthy slate were voted in; but Mrs. Terzaghi, despite her strong Winchester win and a very strong showing throughout, will not be going to Chicago in August for the Democratic Party. Patrick J. Skerry of Medford, not officially committed to any candidate, defeated her by only 275 votes with 10,127 to her 9,852.

It was Mrs. Terzaghi's first area run for any elective office. Mrs. Barone, who has about 12 years of elective office in the local Republican Committee of which she is vice-chairman, had also been defeated in a run for District Convention Delegate.

Mrs. Barone's total vote was 2,068 to 1,685 for Mrs. Sara Woodward, of 13 Sheffield Road, Winchester's other contender, and 537 for Mrs. Marion Phillips of Medford. She will serve the district with Committeeman William Barnstead of Arlington, running unopposed for the job this year, and she will be filling the spot vacated by still another Winchester Republican, Mrs. Charlotte Greer of 82 Arlington Street. Mrs. Greer has also been serving as social secretary to Mrs. John A. Volpe, the Governor's wife.

Selectmen Mediate North End Rhubarb

At the conclusion of a hearing before the Board of Selectmen on Monday night, Eugene Rotondi indicated that he would complete oil and gravel surfacing of Churchill Road from Sunset Road to Churchill Circle within a month.

The hearing had resulted from the complaints of Churchill Road homeowners on Mr. Rotondi's failure to comply with a Superior Court order to complete the Road in the late 1950's.

At the time of the court order Mr. Rotondi owned the Churchill Road property some of which has been subdivided and sold.

As his major objection to completing the Road at the present time, Mr. Rotondi, said that several owners on the Road are landscaping their properties and that the heavy trucks used to bring in equipment and rocks would damage an oil-surfaced road.

One resident questioned the validity of this by pointing out that fuel and fire trucks would use the road in the future.

Mr. Rotondi refused to consider oiling the section of Churchill Road between Churchill Circle and Forest Street, for according to him, he never owned the land and has no right to claim it.

Responsibility for a segment of Sunset near Churchill Road is also under question. The Selectmen agreed to check on the ownership of this land as well as that on upper Churchill Road near Forest Street. The Board will also look into drainage in the area.

Also discussed was whether and when the Town would accept the Road.

Speaking in support of Mr. Rotondi's position was Albert Joseph Rotondi, who lives on Churchill Road.

Well over ten residents of the area were present and many spoke during the hearing which was marked by its length, complexity of detail, and conflicting interpretations of events and documents.

Boston Firefighting

Following a discussion with Fire Chief I. Francis Amico on Boston's request for a mutual aid agreement with Winchester, the Board decided to continue to study the proposal and to contact communities presently included in mutual aid agreements with the Town to determine their positions.

Water Board Elects Phillips

Ernest A. Phillips, Jr., of 52 Yale Street was elected chairman of the Water and Sewer Board at a meeting last week.

ERNEST A. PHILLIPS, JR.

Mr. Phillips was elected to this Board in March of 1967 and prior to that served three years on the Finance Committee. He has lived in Town for 20 years and has served terms as a Town Meeting Member.

Serving with Mr. Phillips are Parker N. Blanchard, retiring chairman, and Richard J. Donovan.

Medford Five-Year-Old Drowns Here On Friday

Joel Leitner, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Philipp Leitner of Wyman Street, West Medford, drowned near the east bank of the Mill Pond at about 3:30 on Friday afternoon.

The little boy had come to the area with his mother and six-year-old sister for a special outing to feed the ducks. He slipped into the water in a manner unwitnessed and unknown, while his mother's attention was apparently on his sister. The accident happened in clear view of busy Mt. Vernon Street. His body was recovered about 50 yards in from the bridge, in very murky water by Firefighter Norman Delorey.

The first alert came when Mrs. Leitner walked into the Fire Station and said with a foreign accent that the men later reported heavy enough to be hard to understand, "I want to report my little boy missing. I cannot find him anyplace."

Mrs. Leitner's manner was one of large concern, but not panic, the men remembered. She had looked all over the area, she said, and described him to be wearing a white shirt and green dungarees.

The firefighters, more keenly aware of the danger spot, went immediately to the river, while sending Mrs. Leitner to the Police Station to further report the boy missing. Firefighter John McDonough searched first to the north of the Mt. Vernon Street bridge, Captain Michael Connolly went toward the island area to ask questions of the boy's sister, with Firefighter John Zaffina following.

It was Firefighter Delorey who, though he reported seeing nothing suspicious in the water on first look, suddenly had his eye caught by something white about 10 feet out. He jumped in immediately and remembers going down over his head and groping up from under to get the boy out of the water.

Meanwhile Police Officers Joseph Perritano and Joseph Amico came running from the Police Station, followed by Donald Spinney, who had been with them when the mother came in to report. Officer Perritano immediately applied mouth to mouth resuscitation and Mr. Spinney worked with him to try and empty the boy's lungs, with both in turn applying mouth to mouth resuscitation. The Rescue truck arrived almost immediately at the scene and the resuscitator with oxygen was next used. But the men reported that when taken from the water the boy showed no signs of life. And after about 12-15 minutes of work Officer William Nash drove them, still working on him, in the ambulance to the Winchester Hospital. There Dr. William Hickey also tried to revive the youngster but subsequently pronounced him dead.

Reconstruction of the story makes it appear that the boy was in the river at least 10 minutes before he was discovered. Officers Perritano and Roland Roy drove Mrs. Leitner to her home and stayed with her until her husband arrived home from work. She told them at this time that she had taken the day off from her work at Tufts College to take the children on an outing; that both children had been feeding the ducks; that she had moved momentarily from the pond bank to follow her daughter and that when she returned her son was missing. She did, she said, at first look along the pond and river bank—but seeing no sign of the boy next went to her car, parked nearer to the Library, to see if he had returned there. And then walked around the whole area before turning to the firefighters for help.

The boy's father is an electronics engineer working in Lawrence. He leaves, in addition to the sister he was with and a second sister, 10, his grandmother, Mrs. Matilda Leitner of Brazil and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Meir Bartel of Israel. Services for Joel were held on Sunday afternoon at Temple Shalom, Medford. The memorial week is being observed at the late home.

In the past few years several accidents involving children have occurred at this spot but none has been fatal.

Hydrant Opening Disturbs Officials

Officials of the Fire, Water and Police Departments have expressed extreme concern this week over the vandalism early Sunday morning which resulted in more than 20 hydrants being opened and left that way by an unknown person or persons.

"This action jeopardizes the safety of everybody in town," stated Fire Chief Frank Amico. "The water was gushing from hydrants simultaneously in many areas of town."

"If apprehended, those responsible for this or any further acts of this sort will be prosecuted to the limits of the law," said William Conlon, Water Department superintendent, who explained that as a result of the several concurrent openings, water pressure was down seriously in many parts of Winchester.

Ask Aid For Service Here

Commuters' S. O. S. Adds To MBTA Din

"People think that the present commuter service is very high. But what will it cost us if we don't have it?" asked Ralph Zeiba, co-chairman of the "Save our Service Committee" (S.O.S.) of Boston and Maine railroad commuters who in the past two weeks have been agitating in the North Station for active citizen support in the interest of preserving train service to Winchester and other area towns.

A letter in the Star today from Mr. Zeiba, who lives here at 207 Washington Street, exhorts residents to contact their political representatives.

"A lot of people seem shocked to discover that we are about to lose our service," says Mr. Zeiba, who points out that the Legislature has yet to approve House Bill 1753, the Railroad Commuter Bill to preserve existing service under the aegis of the MBTA.

People are responding well to the call of his committee—co-chaired by Arthur Boudreau of Haverhill. "It is an unofficial group," he avers.

Mr. Zeiba feels too, that some of the Federal monies now allocated to highways should be put instead into support of the rail systems. He is personally skeptical about increased auto transport efficiency having any great bearing on the jammed commuter situation.

Sherman W. Saltmarsh of 154 Mt. Vernon Street, Winchester's representative to the MBTA Advisory Board and a member of its executive committee, told the Star that he too is concerned about many aspects of the picture although he believes the bill to be out of the Transportation Committee and now before the Ways and Means.

Mr. Saltmarsh wanted to postpone extensive comment on the subject until the end of this week when he expects to have met with the budget director of the MBTA and hopes to have more figures. He then will report to the Selectmen, possibly at next week's meeting.

He however did state that he expects Winchester to be hit hard financially and that he hopes that much care goes into the MBTA route and personnel service studies before the plan is effected and assessments are made to the towns.

Under the present legislation the outlook is that the levies to the towns serviced by MBTA will gradually increase until such time as they are paying about 90 percent of the service costs to the State's 10.

Rhubarb

Under the agreement Boston seeks in the event of rioting Winchester would send aid outside the riot area. In return the city would help Winchester in unusual emergency situations.

Compensation for injuries to Winchester firefighters while in the city would be assumed by the city—This differs from the provisions of mutual aid agreements already in effect between Winchester and surrounding communities which call for Winchester to take care of its men injured, for example, in Woburn, and vice-versa.

The Chief, who recommends the acceptance of the proposal, noted that the possibility of Winchester's going to Boston is greater than Boston's coming here so that the proposed method of reimbursement for injuries would financially be more favorable to Winchester.

Discussed were whether red tape in Boston might hinder payments to Winchester firefighters, the possibility of Winchester firefighters' going into an area which later becomes a riot zone and whether agreement to the proposal would have an effect upon collective bargaining.

Members of the Board indicated that at present the Chief has discretion on whether to respond to emergency calls from cities and towns not already included in mutual aid agreements.

The Board has agreed to meet on May 20 with the Walter G. Armstrongs whose home on 64 Fletcher Street was damaged in a fire on April 13. Mr. Armstrong had written a letter to Selectmen stating that he wanted to appear before them before any action is taken on the advice of the Planning Board that the Town seek to acquire the Armstrong property which is near Wyman School.

Also on May 20 the Board will discuss with the Personnel Board collective bargaining procedures.

In other action the Board referred to the Park Department a letter from Dr. Harry L. Benson, the Town medical examiner, requesting a fence along Mill Pond from the bridge on Mt. Vernon Street to the sidewalk on Mystic Valley Parkway, —decided to have Police Chief Joseph Derro make a further study of parking along Bacon Street near Wedgemere Station,

—noted that at its suggestion, Chief Derro had written to the Division of Youth Service asking for conditional approval for detaining juveniles in the Town Station since the Town plans to improve the facilities, —and announced that two candidates for executive secretary would appear before it on May 13.

Annual Meeting For Drop-In

The Winchester Youth Organization, Incorporated, sponsors of the new Drop-In Center, are holding their first annual meeting on May 20 at the High School Auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

At this time all officers and advisers will discuss plans and problems and elections will be held for adult advisors and for all members and officers of the Student Board.

The students are repeating their announcement that all ninth graders—or freshmen—are now eligible for membership in the organization.

They are also announcing two dances planned—tentatively for June 1 and 18.

At their Monte Carlo night held Friday in the Town Hall prizes were given out donated by Anderson's Jewelers, Colonial Perfumers, Winchester Appliance, Spaulding Book Store, Knit Shop, Kean Flower Design, Boodakian Rugs, Winchester Bowladrome, Sears and Roebuck, Co., Winchester Theatre, Embassy Cleaners, First National Stores, Purity Save-Mor, Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm, Fells Hardware, the Handcraft House and the Star Market.

In addition that night and served by members of the Winchester Council for Community Action, refreshments were donated by Ann's Donut, Christies, and the Donut Kitchen.

Interior Designer To Give Programs At Boodakian's

To give advice on home decorating, Koko Boodakian and Sons, Inc., 1026 Main Street, will have Carole Winslow, director of the Gulistan Carpet Interior Design Service, J. P. Stevens & Co., Inc., New York City, appear on Monday and Tuesday evenings, May 13 and 14.

Miss Winslow is author of the Gulistan consumer booklet, "How to Choose Your Carpet with Confidence."

In addition to demonstrating decorating, Miss Winslow will assist with personal decorating problems.

The program, starting at 8 p.m. each night, is open to the public, and those interested may call 729-5566 to assist in determining how many will attend.

Mrs. Louise Fish, of Myrtle Street, is a patient at the Winchester Hospital. She recently retired as secretary of the First Congregational Church Sunday School.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Besides the perplexing social problems posed by civil disorders, there is a serious insurance problem too. Just the insured losses alone in the riots triggered by the death of Dr. Martin Luther, King, Jr., total $45 million!

Congress, and interested citizens, are beginning to see the overwhelming urgency of doing something about these problems—including insurance. So far, the private insurance companies have shouldered these losses even though it is obvious that they SHOULDN'T HAVE TO! Wholesale arson and city-wide riots clearly were NOT considered in setting the modest fire insurance rates. As one expert explains: "No business, including the property insurance business, can continue to operate in a society where order, reason and confidence do not prevail."

As a partial answer, an insurance industry spokesman proposed a "surcharge" on the fire insurance premiums in cities with a population over 200,000. Also, Congress is considering a bill to provide Federal "reinsurance" for riot-prone areas.

Regardless of the riots, ample fire insurance coverages are AVAILABLE for most properties. May we discuss adequate protection for your property?

DESPITE MASSIVE EFFORTS A LITTLE BOY DROWNED

Friday's Tragedy — Constant Vigilance — Plus?

In the past three years there have been three serious water hazard incidents in the Mill Pond immediately west of the Town Hall. On Friday afternoon a five-year-old boy visiting from Medford to feed the ducks drowned while his mother was near the spot but had her attention upon his six-year-old sister.

Not too long ago a baby buggy holding two very young children plunged into the water from where it had been parked on the enbankment. The children were strapped in and went in head first ending with the buggy above them, head down. A passerby saw the accident and jumped in immediately to pull one after the other baby out—most likely saving two little lives.

Last year one of the young boy kindergarteners attending with Roxbury neighbors the day classes still being held in the Congregational Church, fell in while with his group and under the supervision of his teachers. He, too was pulled from the water in time.

Friday, a tragedy occurred. The potential for tragedy remains. The question many Town authorities and concerned citizens are now asking themselves is: should the Town do more? Just what is its responsibility in this matter and is it being properly carried out? Or, most commonly, should Winchester fence more of its waterways—and most particularly should this area be fenced in part or in whole?

Monday night's Selectmen's meeting reported a letter from Dr. Harry Benson, the Town's medical examiner requesting that the Town fence with a three foot wire fence from Mt. Vernon Street to the Mystic Valley Parkway—along the east side of the Mill Pond.

There are many arguments for fencing. They include the fact that by allowing the ducks to stay and thereby encouraging their feeding, the Town—in one of its most attractive spots—has created an attraction to the water's edge. In addition, those who want fencing point out that about 50 per cent of the pond's east shore is from moderately to steeply inclined; that the banks are eroding and that the open banks where feeding takes place stretch too far to be properly supervised by a given parent with more than one child. In addition, the great variety and unevenness of contours, including the pitch of some of the retaining stones, adds to the natural danger of waters which, though not deep, do drop off from the banks in amounts from about two to four feet.

Among others, many of the Firefighters would like to see the area or part of it fenced. Their proximity and view shows them many near accidents and they are constantly called on to act in locus parenti—sometimes warning (often with their bull-horn) little children from the edge, sometimes clearing them from thin and dangerous ice in the winter.

But there are arguments against fencing. The world is full of waterways, almost all of them unfenced—the Boston Public Garden ponds are not fenced, nor the banks of the Mystic or the Charles; nor the oceanside and many lakes of New England. In this part of the world it is imperative that rules about waterways be instilled and strictly enforced by parents. Young mothers and fathers must always be alert to what can happen at the waterside. Young children who cannot swim must not be allowed to play alone in these areas. Fencing the Mill Pond would, some say, compound the problem because fencing exactly at the edge might not hold with enough surety and fencing any footage inside would only invite climbers.

The Star is acutely conscious of the problem by the Mill Pond. The day before the fatal accident we were on the way to the Library when we noticed two light metal baby strollers each holding a lively, quick moving baby from six months to two years of age, each parked on the incline facing the river, leaning into it as it were, about 25 feet from the edge. We couldn't keep ourselves from walking over to the two bright looking attractive young mothers seated on the ground nearby to point out the danger and to recite the accident of months ago. They were receptive and likely they just hadn't thought about it. Yet one slip of a brake, one whack from a careening bike, and either baby would have been in the brink before the mother could rise.

What's the answer? At this writing we are not wholly sure and would welcome more discussion and facts. But the Star believes that at the very least and quickly the place should be posted with signs alerting mothers to the danger of the variation in bank incline and against parking baby buggy's headed into the pond. In addition, it thinks strong consideration should be given to a wire fence edging the banking from the Mt. Vernon bridge up to the area opposite the island.

Restoration of the bridge to the island was voted at the Town Meeting. This will preclude some of the wild jumping and walking on or in the water that now gets the venturesome from the banks to the island—but will also let more out where the pond is deeper. Bridge or no bridge the chances are that the boys will go to the island, just as they now often play at an even more dangerous spot—the cement steps by the waterfall—well fenced and well posted to read, "Danger—Keep Out."

On our part we favor an overall review and a hard focus on the whole area rather than a quick decision to fence it all. It may be that total fencing is the answer. But it also may be that it would be better to leave some area where parents can teach their young the safe ways to behave in places of danger which are familiar. It may be that if we fence the entire area the older boys and girls who come along are simply going to go to the even less safe opposite banks—or up the river out of sight where hazards are still greater.

The subject demands a lot of immediate but thorough study.

Scouting Action Is Safety Action

With the aggregate mind of the Town turned toward hazards and protection, it is appropriate this week to welcome to Manchester Field the Musket District, Minuteman Council Boy Scouting show on Saturday. For the Boy Scouts of America program can boast no superior among national young people's organizations which educate mind and body for prevention and protection.

Specifically at Manchester Field all day Saturday, some troops will be exhibiting first aid procedures and adjuncts. And among their demonstrations should be one of mouth to mouth resuscitation—the most effective of modern water-revival methods—yet one unfamiliar to many particularly those in the older age brackets. Had you been the one to see Joel Leitner fall into the Mill Pond and had he been recovered much sooner, could you have revived him?

Winchester can be congratulated on its Scouting program—and at the same time encouraged to do even more. Right now out of 10,915 boys between ages 8 and 16 in Arlington, Stoneham, Woburn and here, 2778 or 25% are in Scouting. The Musket district goal this year is to increase this to 3,089.

It costs 13 dollars to put a boy in Boy Scouts through one year. Of this about five dollars comes from the United Fund. The rest is brought in through the Council's annual membership drive, from donations, from its annual action show and from the weekly dues paid by each Scout.

The money, the time, the effort couldn't be better spent. The Star heartily recommends the Scouts and their show.

Distressed Re-Assessors

Editor of the Star:

I was distressed to read in the Star of May 2, that the Winchester Board of Assessors is reviewing and altering the assessed property values determined by the firm of Cole-Layer-Trumbull. This irregular procedure, as Mr. Carpenter admitted, has not been followed by other towns, and would seem to obviate the purpose for which the revaluation firm was retained. This is not to say that our Board of Assessors would willfully distort the truth, but no man should be put in the position of having to assess his own property or that of his friends and associates.

The town has paid $58,000 for an objective assessment; we should insist that we get it.

In Tribute To Mothers

Editor of the Star:

To each of us, one life is given;
One soul; one chance of reaching Heaven;
The God who made all things is One,
Whose great works one by one are done.

To each of us, He gave one mother,
Beyond compare with any other;
Our lives to guide, our health to guard,—
Her joy,—our welfare; her reward,—
The love of those for whom her care
Has been unceasing toil, and prayer.

Thus, mothers, on your day we ask
God's blessing on your ev'ry task;
And hail you, sensing deep your worth,—
The sweetest girls on God's green earth.

"Save Our Service" Committee

People of Winchester:

With the growing strangulation of the Metropolitan area due to ever increasing auto traffic, fast, efficient and frequent public transportation to downtown Boston from suburban communities is of utmost importance. We in Winchester are fortunate to have 32 trains daily each way on weekdays, with somewhat less frequent service on weekends. Of course there is always room for improvement especially in the condition of equipment. However, the problem facing us at the moment is not improvement but rather preservation.

On June 30, 1968 the existing subsidy and contracts between the MBTA and the Boston & Maine will be terminated when the present law expires. Although a bill has been submitted to the State Legislature to continue train service, no action has yet been taken. Time is very short. Unless new arrangements are made prior to June 30th, we may very well have no service at all from July 1st on.

Act now if you value the service which we now have. It can always be improved upon, but once lost, impossible to replace. Make your voice heard. Write to our Representative, Harrison Chakwick, who is a member of the House Transportation Committee; to our State Senator, Philibert Pellegrini and to Governor Volpe urging them to support legislation to continue commuter train service. If we are apathetic, how can we expect our elected representatives to be concerned? Support the efforts now being made by the "Save Our Service Committee" to preserve existing train service in order that we may have something to build on for a better transportation system in the near future.

Sincerely,
Ralph E. Zeiba

Topless!

Editor of the Star:

Believe it or not, there is a toplessness here in Winchester—and I refer to several very nice bowls and dishes we got at the recent, exciting Rotary Auction.

My husband and son bid in several boxes of "stuff" at the end of the day, which contained some nice pieces—all of them obviously requiring covers which were not to be found in any of the boxes. We did get one cover—a small glass one with a gold line decoration, for a jam or mustard jar—but no dish to match it.

If someone bought some boxes with odd—and lonesome—covers, I would appreciate it very much if she or he would contact us so that we can make these pieces complete.

Sincerely yours,
Claudia Kelty Edgell

The Challenges of Civil Unrest Aired by Christian Scientists Here

The practicality and importance of a prayerful approach to solving contemporary problems was emphasized last week at First Church of Christ, Scientist, at a special meeting open to members and friends, titled "Meeting the Challenge of Civil Unrest."

The evening was moderated by Don S. Greer, former First Reader of the church, whose keynote remarks concerned the need for inspired action to redress wrongs in societies throughout the world today.

He read selections from the Bible and from the writings of Mary Baker Eddy, the Founder of Christian Science, on the principle of freedom and equality of all mankind.

Four papers prepared for the evening, including one by a high school age Sunday School class, came to grips with the problems underlying current civil unrest, and alerted those present both to the opportunity for prayerful solutions and the need for taking practical action as the result of divine guidance.

The young people's paper stated a major need: "Before we can effectively work to dispel strife, riots, and poverty in the world and at home, we must first rid ourselves of selfish motives and prejudices and begin to protest for what we believe is right."

Recognizing that civil strife has differing meanings to different people, another paper pointed out that the basic cause of all strife is a negative concept of man, and that the healing concept of love for mankind must begin in our own individual experience.

Taking as its theme the title of the collected sermons of Martin Luther King, "Strength to Love," a later paper suggested that the greatest need today is both for spiritual understanding and the ability to make it practical in human affairs. The speaker quoted from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mrs. Eddy: "Contentment with the past and the cold conventionality of materialism are crumbling away . . . The scientific unity which exists between God and man must be wrought out in life-practice, and God's will must be universally done."

The question of the practicality of a spiritual approach was answered by many other speakers throughout the evening.

A Negro member spoke gratefully of help received through earnest prayer. Others told of opportunities for demonstrating the "strength to love" in their experience. In all, close to 15 speakers rose to share their awareness of the issue and their thoughts towards meaningful involvement.

The evening brought to those gathered an awareness that all Christianity is faced with the need to practice what it preaches. The attitude prevailed that this issue must be handled and that those present were looking forward to further useful action.

WCCA Sums Up:— How to Become Involved

For the past three months, the Human Relations Committee of the Winchester Council for Community Action has been compiling a series of articles on the involvement of Winchester people, old and young, in some of the volunteer programs designed to help in many different ways those less fortunate than they.

The WCCA has hoped, through these articles, to motivate citizens to help. But it reports an overall poor response to its effort.

Today it summarizes the programs described in its articles and includes the names of contacts for any persons who may be interested:

Big Brother—Big Sister: There are always more "little" brothers and sisters than "big" ones who care. Call Joseph Knight at 729-7664

LEAP (Lynn Educational Action Program)—Our young people go to Lynn once a week to tutor deprived children. Adults who will drive them are desperately needed. Call Libby Gebhard at 729-5810

Buy-a-House—The program in which four Winchester churches have joined to purchase a run-down house, rehabilitate it, and let it out as low-cost housing. (This action has been taken.)

Just-a-Start—The implementation of the Buy-a-House program in which the young people of the four churches are deeply involved in the rehabilitation. Call John Chaneat 729-3261.

Hospital Volunteers—This article is about the volunteers who do such an outstanding job at Winchester Hospital. Call Mrs. James Hollinshead at 729-1900, Ext. 278.

TARS (Teens Aid Retarded)—Again our high school students who care enough to reach out a helping hand to the children at Fernald School. Call Kristie Allison at 729-7677 or 5835.

Veterans Hospital Volunteers at Bedford—A program for young people aimed at helping our handicapped (mentally and physically) veterans in many ways. Call Sharon Butterworth 729-1519.

Friendly Town—A chance to bring a core city child to the suburbs for a two-week vacation. Call Mrs. Norman Hobbs 729-4904.

Boston Industrial Mission—An ecumenical endeavor concerned with the values and problems in a highly technical society and addressing itself to such questions as how the hard-core poverty members may be trained on the job to take their place in a complex society. Call Rev. Michael Jupin through 729-1922.

Mass. Mental Health Center—Young people work with patients with all degrees of mental illness. Such work is especially helpful to those young people who are planning a career in the mental health field. Call Kathy Ryanat 729-4934.

In addition the above ways of volunteering help the WCCA would like to note a column, Volunteers for Boston, which appears every Wednesday in the Boston Globe. This lists many opportunities for volunteer services in many fields.

If you would like more information on any of these programs, Mrs. A. S. Goldin at 729-4629 will also be glad to answer questions.

In the meantime, the Winchester Council for Community Action reports joining with many other civic groups in striving to keep interest in the on-going programs on drugs high. They will also continue to explore constructive programs aimed at helping people whose need is great. It is hoped that some citizens, reading about these programs, have been motivated in some way to help.

BOOK REVIEW

CRISIS IN CREDIBILITY

by Bruce Ladd

Walter Lippmann, a friend of Presidents for 40 years, noted in the Washington Post for March 28, 1967: "The credibility gap today is not the result of honest misunderstanding between the President and the press in this complicated world. It is the result of a deliberate policy of artificial manipulation of official news. The purpose of this manipulation is to create a consensus for the President, to stifle debate about his aims and his policies, to thwart deep probing into what has already happened . . ."

Said Arthur Krock, twice Pulitzer Prize winner and a friend of the Kennedy family, writing in Fortune magazine in 1963, "A news management policy . . . has been enforced more cynically and boldly than by any previous Administration." James Reston has voiced a similar concern and journalists feel that the lack of candor in government news handling has contributed to lack of confidence and to what is now called "the credibility gap."

Bruce Ladd's "Crisis in Credibility" aims to discuss the problem in a manner which will enable the reader to understand its broad scope. "It deals exclusively with three practices of the executive branch —secrecy, lying and news management.

The author brings out in the first part of his book that there is a well-established precedent, time-honored, for the President to determine what records may be opened to public scrutiny and what may be withheld. Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln all exercised this right.

"The Eisenhower administration first claimed 'executive privilege' during the Army-McCarthy hearings in 1954 to bar testimony involving high administration officials." The claim was later used to protect Sherman Adams, to cover up some aspects of the Dixon-Yates case, and to withhold facts concerning foreign aid programs in Laos and Peru.

"In 1957, is was estimated that nearly one million federal employees were withholding information in one form or another, and that the greatest amount of this withheld data had no connection with internal security whatsoever." The brinkmanship of John Foster Dulles during the Eisenhower years also contributed to the lack of credibility. The most damaging blow was, of course, the U-2 incident.

The author points out that during the Cuban missile crisis, "restrictions on news coverage and centralization of authority for releasing information enabled government spokesmen to withhold or slant news at will. The passing of the first Soviet ship through the United States Navy blockade was originally announced by a member of Congress. Photographs of the missile sites in Cuba were first released in London."

Much of the book is devoted to the management of news under the current administration with attention focused on the operations in the Dominican Republic. Vietnam, as well as how different government agencies manage to withhold information: the Post Office Department, the Pentagon, and NASA.

Mr. Ladd reports that NASA spent 20 million in 1967 to maintain its image. He assures us than none of these expenditures promises to change Washington reporters' views that as a federal agency NASA is more concerned with propaganda than with truth.

In regard to President Johnson, Mr. Ladd describes him as "the most intensely secretive President in history. His insistence on secrecy covers the biggest and the smallest matters . . . He is seen as a 'politician's politician,' as one who will say what he has to say to gain an end. As a result of the image he projects, Johnson finds it very difficult to win the trust and confidence of others. His credibility is buried under a mountain of doubt."

The lack of candor in regard to Vietnam makes this war the least understood in history. Government leaders have said we are there because of commitments made by Eisenhower, or by the SEATO treaty, or by the Tonkin Gulf resolution. Mr. Ladd will de-hypnotize the reader on this point. He also tells that after denying for months the charge that aircraft losses in Vietnam were being understated, the Pentagon admitted in February, 1967, that 1,172 fixed-wing aircraft had been destroyed, almost double the previously announced total of 621.

"Credibility Gap," says Art Buchwald, "is located in the Great Society Mountain Range somewhere between Johnson City and Washington, D.C. . . . Thousands of newspaper men have not only seen the Credibility Gap and gone through it, but have come out of it badly battered, suffering from frostbite and shock. They bear witness to the fact that the Credibility Gap exists."

Mr. Ladd is a real good mountain guide.

Whether the brave deserve the fair or not, they won all the points on this one,—Board 14 from the Men's Pairs, East the dealer and no one vulnerable.

Look at the North-South hands and figure what you would have bid with your favorite partner. For instance what would you open with the South hand, one diamond or one no trump? And if you open the one no trump, what can you bid if your partner says three no trump? You really don't have enough information to do anything but pass. And there were five of the eleven North-Souths in the three no trump bid.

On the other hand, if you bid one diamond with the South hand (there are twenty points in a suit versus eighteen in no trump, enough to tip the scales for me). North will give you more information with his jump to either two no trump or three diamonds. Again which appeals to you, looking at North, showing the balanced hand in no trump or the support in South's diamonds? In either case, South can now feel a slam coming on.

It is still a touchy one, but there are two chances to make it. If the club suit breaks three-three, South's small spade can be discarded on the good thirteenth club. And if clubs don't break, there is still the spade finesse to fall back on.

And since both the spade finesse and club break are in your favor, six can be made in either diamonds or no trump with more points for the latter (nine out of a possible ten) although you get above average for bidding slam at all. Of course, if nothing works, the hand could fall apart at no trump, while you would still have control in diamonds and go down only one.

In actual play, six North-Souths made seven in no trump when hearts were not led. There are six diamond tricks, four clubs, and three spades without touching the heart suit.

Hydrant

Noting that the persons responsible must be in possession of one of the special Department wrenches, Mr. Conlon further requested that citizens report to the Police immediately if they at any time observe a person acting suspiciously in the area of a hydrant and that they make every attempt to obtain the license plate number of any car involved.

Police reports list calls from residents reporting this problem starting to come in at 1:10 a.m. and continuing for nearly an hour —with the Church Street, Johnson Road, Symmes Corner, Highland area and other areas complaining. Householders also called in to Mr. Conlon and to the Fire Department.

School Committee To Meet Next At Wyman

The School Committee will have its regular meeting at the Wyman School on Monday, May 13, at 7:30 p.m. All Wyman parents have been especially invited and will receive agendas of the meeting. The public is also, as usual, invited to attend.

There will be a question and answer period. Included in the topics for discussion will be the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

Cause of Fire Investigated

A Thursday night fire at 37-39 Irving Street is still under investigation as to cause.

"The fire is definitely of suspicious origin and we are continuing investigation," said Chief Frank Amico yesterday. He told the Star that Fire Marshal Leo Walsh had joined him twice this week to look into the matter.

Report of the fire was received at 11:03 p.m. by telephone, and by the time the Department arrived it had nearly been extinguished. Firefighters, however, found a pile of papers on the cellar stairway of the hosue which appeared to have been ignited.

The two-family home is owned by William Konanis of Stoneham and tenanted by the William Myles family and the Thomas Severino family.

Break Reported On Cambridge St.

Police are investigating a breaking and entering on Cambridge Street which was reported to them in the early afternoon on May 1.

Paul Collins Plays Large Role In 50th Anniversary of Air Mail

For Paul Collins of 3 Harrington Road Washington ceremonies next week in observance of the 50th anniversary of United States Air Mail service means something special.

The replica of the first airmail ship which will also appear in a special commemorative airmail stamp out next Tuesday is a facsimile of the kind of ships he himself flew as a pioneer air mail pilot from 1921 to 1929.

As a founder of the Air Pilot Pioneer group and its recent president, he also has been directly involved in the construction of the plane replica whch was completed last month in Santa Paula, California, and has just arrived east after a slow flight over the old route, and which will be donated to the Smithsonian Institute.

Mr. Collins, who has been invited to take part in the ceremonies in Washington, was also a cofounder, with the late Amelia Earhart, of Northeast Airlines. He is known in aeronautical circles throughout the country.

He reports that his group's efforts to build the replica met with bad luck all along the way and that the Post Office red tape also contributed to the delay in completing the ship. Construction started over two years ago in Santa Paula, and the plane was almost complete when a flash fire came down the mountains and consumed it and its hangar. With the Pioneers pressing, builders started over again. Completion has been just in time—mid-April.

Mr. Collins is a veteran of 5,000 hours on this kind of plane. He bailed out over the Allegheny Mountains once in 1928 when the wings ripped off his plane. He is completing work on a book on the early days of pioneer air flight.

The local Post Office is joining in the anniversary, and Postmaster Charles Hill reminds of the recent Presidential mandate that all first-class mail now move by air where it can speed delivery.

Mrs. Woodward Thanks Voters

Editor of the Star:

May I express my thanks to the many people who helped on my campaign, unsuccessful though it was, for State Committee Woman. I appreciate the many interesting political discussions that were held at the various coffees and the opportunities afforded to educate many on the April 30th primary. My appreciation also extends to the Star for its reminders on registration dates and its article explaining the "write-in" procedures.

I congratulate Cynthia Barone on her election and sincerely hope that the Republican Party will go forward with renewed vigor to Victory in 1968.

Accident Results In Court Charges

A 17-year-old Wilmington girl faces charges of leaving the scene of an accident following a collision on Cambridge Street Friday evening at 10:26 p.m.

Responding to the call of a lieutenant at the site of the accident, an officer and a sergeant identified a car, damaged and with a flat tire, traveling along Church Street which fit the description of the auto allegedly leaving the scene. The operator was found not to have a license in her possession.

One of the five passengers, a 25-year-old Wilmington man, in whose name the car was registered, was arrested for drunkenness and later fined $15.

While the car was stopped on Church Street, a Cambridge Street resident arrived and accused the occupants of dumping beer cans in front of his home.

The other car involved in the accident, whose driver and passengers were from Arlington, had its whole left side damaged. No injuries were reported at the time to anyone involved.

The accident reportedly occurred about 200 feet south of Robinson Park.

"As a candidate I said, and as a newly elected Committeewoman I repeat, that I believe the State Committee should be a strong check and balance entirely separate from the titular heads of the Party and not a mere rubber stamp group echoing the wills of the top Republicans," Mrs. Barone said to the Star.

"Only by listening to the ideas and warnings of divergent Republicans from far right to far left, can the Party leaders take soundings of the over-all Republican attitudes in our State.

"The recent Primaries with the startling image-plunging of our state Chief, showed that the recordings of the Republican pulse was not 'getting through' to the Republican leaders. Everyone knew what was happening except those at the top, and the poll's revelation must have been a rude awakening. It also resulted in unpropitious publicity for Massachusetts Republicanism," the new Committeewoman stated.

"Only through an effort to close the communications gap between the top Repubilcans, State Committee members, Town Committee members and the general public can the obejctives of the Party be voiced, considered and put into effect by the voting public in the future," concluded Mrs. Barone.

Mrs. Barone was recently reelected a director of the Republican Club of Massachusetts at the organization's recent annual meeting. She serves on that group with another resident, William J. Speers, Jr., of 2 Fernway.

450 Attend College Night

Parents and students numbering 450 attended "After High School, What and Where" on May 1 at the Winchester High School. This informational evening was presented by the guidance department of WHS and actively supported by the PFA. The program was opened with a short business meeting of the PFA, following which Dr. Niblock, principal, spoke briefly emphasizing the importance of parents and school people working together. The members of the audience were then invited to visit with the school representatives.

A list of over 50 schools, junior colleges, business, professional, and vocational schools; and four-year colleges telling where each representative was located in the high school building, had been given to parents and students, and the evening was planned to include visits of 20 minutes each with four different school representatives.

Throughout the evening displays and demonstrations of materials used by students and counselors in the guidance department were on view in the cafeteria.

Evaluation sheets were attached to the list of schools, and visitors were asked to fill them out and turn them in. The response on these showed this type of program is helpful.

Louis B. Briasco, of 6 Royalston Avenue, has been nominated by Chi Psi fraternity at Bowdoin College as a candidate for the 94th annual wooden spoon, one of the oldest awards at the college. The award is presented to the most popular and respected junior, chosen by an election among his classmates.

WINCHESTER'S HOME AND GARDEN CLUB will present a home and garden tour May 22, from 1 to 4 p.m. This is the club's major found-raising campaign organized to benefit the landscaping of Winchester Hospital's Continuing Care Unit. Ways and means chairman, Mrs. Harwood Boynton, Mrs. Michael Boodakian, and Mrs. George McFadden have planned the tour to feature six homes and two gardens. Mrs. Boodakian (left) and Mrs. Boynton (right) are pictured above visiting with Mrs. Park Hoyt, owner of one of the homes on the tour. Refreshments will be served in the garden of one of the homes. The public is invited. For tickets those interested may contact Mrs. Robert A. Nyere, 729-3006, or Mrs. Linford N. Fitzpatrick, 729-4810.

India's "Least Coin" Fellowship— Women's Peace Plan to Be Told

Indian women, despairing of their men doing anything except fight with bullets, have inaugurated a plan whereby mothers agree to teach tolerance to their children in their homes—or "Christian understanding rather than guns," and the Women of the Epiphany are inviting others to join them at a luncheon and talk to hear of this program, to be held on Tuesday, May 14 in Hadley Hall.

Grace Nies Fletcher from Sudbury will be the speaker. She has recently returned from a tour of 12 countries in the Orient to see the relief work being done by the 17 million Christian women who belong to the Fellowship of the Least Coin. Mrs. Fletcher will relate how this association of women has grown from its start in India 10 years ago to include women of many creeds in 30 countries.

As one Chinese woman said to Mrs. Fletcher in Hong Kong, "When our sons die on the battlefield, a little of us dies, too. So it is up to us mothers to do what we can to train against wars."

The name of the Fellowship, Least Coin, comes from the fact that each woman who belongs gives the smallest coin of her country every month (In India this amount to an eighth of an American penny) for relief work. This work started in Asia, is still officered by Asian women, but they spend the half a million dollars that makes up the fantastic total made from these tiny coins in all six continents including both North and South America. They are currently helping to cure adolescent drug addicts in Harlem, to build homes for the displaced farms in the Delta in Mississippi, and to help the migrants on our western shores. Asia helping the USA.

GRACE NIES FLETCHER

"In Quest of the Least Coin," Mrs. Fletcher's 10th book, will be published on June 10. To get her material she has not only crossed America many times but has made four trips around the world in the past five years. Her book, "What's Right with our Young People," was digested in the Boston Globe and 20 other newspapers and is now on the required reading lists in many high schools and colleges. "In My Father's House" was not only a selection of the Reader's Digest but has been published in England, Holland, and Switzerland. She is also the author of "Bridge of Love," "The Fabulous Flemings of Kathmandu," "Preachers Kid," "The Whole World's in His Hand," "I Was Born Tomorrow," "No Marriage in Heaven." It is hoped that advance copies of the new book about the rapidly increasing world peace movement among women will be available on May 12.

A mature and competent woman will be in attendance to care for small children so their mothers will be free to come to the luncheon meeting.

Balloon Dance Aids Foundation

McCall Junior High School students for the second year contributed $100 to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation using profits made on the annual balloon dance.

Officers of the student council, president Heather Harms, vice president Mark Capobianco, secretary Nancy Fontneau, and corresponding secretary Mildred Cogliano presented the check to Charles Butler, treasurer of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation. Contributions from students, according to past experience, are unusual and McCall council members are hopeful that their gift will start a trend.

The balloon dance was held on Saturday, April 20 and according to acting principal Alfred Meurling, was a huge success. The gym was decorated with 1200 balloons to carry out the theme.

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the title of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

The Golden Text is from Ephesians: "Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light."

The Lesson-Sermon also contains these lines from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The son of the Virgin-mother unfolded the remedy for Adam, or error; and the Apostle Paul explains this warfare between the idea of divine power, which Jesus presented, and mythological material intelligence called energy and opposed to Spirit."

When diplomats and envoys
Have labored loud and long,

And pinned to an agreement
The wily Vietcong;

When ended is the bloodshed,
And silenced is the noise,

What have we won that will be worth

Drug Control Bulletin Lauds Police Paper Here

The current issue of the Bureau of Drug Abuse Control Bulletin included the following item entitled "Cops Take up the Pen in Drug Program:" The pen may not be mightier than the sword when the enemy is at hand, but Sergeant James Cogan and Officer Richard Beaton of the Winchester, Mass. Police Department, wrote an informative paper on the drug problem, which hopefully would prevent the abuse of dangerous drugs, making it unnecessary to pick up the sword. The paper, worthy of publication in pamphlet form, was used as the basis of clergymen's sermons in Winchester's churches one Sunday and served as a guide for classroom discussion in all of the High School English classes the following day. Sgt. Cogan and Officer Beaton attended one of BDAC's first schools for police."

In addition, Chief Derro is continually getting requests from around the country for copies of the information paper prepared by his two officers.

Rummage Sale Set at Lincoln

May 15 is the day and Lincoln School Auditorium is the place for a rummage sale.

Members will hear reports of the past year's activities, and will elect and install officers for the coming year.

Preceding the business meeting will be a pot luck supper. Cohostess for the evening will be Mrs. Carl Albers.

Lynch Tries "Quiet Zone" For Special Work

Lynch Junior High is experimenting with a new approach to student use of time during unassigned periods.

Students will now be able to select any one of three areas in which to work during periods when they are not assigned to either academic or non-academic classes.

Anyone who wishes to work quietly and independently may report to a special "quiet" zone designated for that specific purpose. Those who wish to use the resource material may go to the library for the purpose of researching or browsing. Students who do not wish to work in either of these two zones may go to a third or "open" area. Here they may work in small groups with fellow students, converse with other students, or engage in free or light reading.

The Student Council will be assisting in the mechanics of the program during the experimental period. At some point toward the end of the trial period the faculty and administration will decide if the idea has enough merit to be incorporated into the program for next year.

Miss Palubinskas Presents Paper

Alice Palubinskas, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Felix S. Palubinskas, of 4 Winslow Road, presented a paper at the 21st Annual Intercollegiate Psychology Conference held at Mount Holyoke College on May 4. Her paper was entitled "The Relationship Between Hue and Brightness in a Color Naming Task."

A junior at Vassar and a psychology major, Miss Palubinskas, is presenting work which is a preliminary study to her senior thesis. She has been admitted to the honors program in psychology and is planning graduate professional work in psychology. Miss Palubinskas is a member of Owl and Torch, a selected group of students who serve as guides for campus visitors. She is a graduate of Winchester High School.

WHS Artist At Work on En Ka

The Senior High School art classes of Miss Marcia Sewall will once again decorate the High School cafeteria for the En Ka Street Fair.

Instead of working on paper, this year's classes have chosen to work on brightly colored spring materials to produce an excellent exhibit to which the public is invited. The pictures will be on sale, and the proceeds will help swell the overall Street Fair profits.

ROBERT MAGNUSEN AT WORK BEFORE AVID LINCOLN SCHOOL LISTENERS

Harper & Row To Publish Book By David Ewing

David W. Ewing, associate editor of the Harvard Business Review, tells in a new book what makes long-term planning work in practice by examining various methods used in public and private organizations. Titled "The Practice of Planning," it will be published on May 22 by Harper & Row.

"To understand planning is to understand a process which, as much or more than any other resource or capability, gives the modern corporation its unique ability to prosper in a world of continuing change," says Mr. Ewing, who lives at 195 Cambridge Street.

Examining the variety of methods used in planning, Mr. Ewing suggests that fundamentally there are two main approaches.

One type which he terms the "outside-in" approach, consists of studying the market and organizing the company accordingly. The other, the "inside-out" approach, is used by corporations that are already organized, but wish to reach the market by special methods.

Crucial to strategic planning is careful assessment of the organization's abilities and aims, says Mr. Ewing. "Realistic, perceptive appraisal has saved from disaster many a program which was not otherwise well designed. And lack of good appraisal has led to catastrophe many another program which was otherwise designed to perfection," writes Mr. Ewing.

Also examined in the book is the role of budgeting in planning, as well as the various tools, such as decision trees and the critical path method.

In his research Mr. Ewing observed and assessed what actual companies have done to formulate and implement plans. In his book he gives specific examples of planning failures and successes in major U. S. companies.

David Ewing is also a member of the Harvard Business School faculty. Editor of the first book published on the subject of long-range planning, "Long-Range Planning for Management," he is also the author of "The Managerial Mind."

Mental Health Dinner Meeting

Mrs. Donald K. Lewis, president of the Winchester Mental Health Association, has announced that the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association will hold its eleventh annual meeting at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, Winchester, at 6:30 p.m., May 15. Dr. Philip Isneberg, administrative director, Columbia Point Health Center, will be the guest speaker discussing "Mental Health Issues Raised by the Neighborhood Health Center.

The annual business meeting will be held following a roast beef dinner. The president and treasurer will present annual reports, and Dr. Morton B. Newman, director of the Mystic Valley Children's Clinic, will summarize the work and progress in clinical services during the past year.

It has been a year of tremendous activity and growth. Established programs have expanded and new programs have been initiated.

One priority service of the Association at presest is the finding of family care homes for patients leaving the Metropolitan State Hospital who have been participating in the case aid program co-sponsored by MVMHA. These patients have been working intensively with a case aid volunteer and have reached a point in their progress toward resocialization where they no longer need the institutionalization of the hospital.

Homes are needed now and those interested in further information should contact the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association office in Lexington.

Reservations for the annual dinner may also be made by calling the MVMHA office.

Chief Urges Clean-Up Time

"The watchword for spring clean-up time in Winchester is 'A clean house seldom burns.' It's just as true that a clean stove or furnace seldoms burns up the house," says Fire Chief I. Francis Amico.

He reports that "dirty and defective heating and cooking equipment" are among the top causes of all fires, according to National Fire Protection Association records.

"So while we are cleaning up our homes to help make them fire safe, let's be sure to include a thorough cleaning and check-up of stoves, furnaces, portable heaters and chimneys," Chief Amico urges.

Now is an ideal time to have heating equipment serviced and repaired, he points out, before the first cold snap of next fall puts it back to work. It could be time to check that chimney too — a clean, tight one means fuel savings as well as fire safety. He asks those who have exhaust fans and ducts over kitchen stoves how long since they've had the greasy residue cleaned from them?

The Fire Chief concluded, "Above all, make sure that any portable oil heaters you have are clean and in sound working condition before you put them away for the season or get them ready for summer camp use. A dirty, defective one is as dangerous a thing as you could bring into your home."

Robert Magnusen Talks at Lincoln In Conjunction with Book Fair

On Friday afternoon, May 3, Lincoln School students had the opportunity of listening to Robert Magnusen, a Lincoln parent and an illustrator of books.

Mr. Magnusen explained the way books come to be by drawing a series of cartoons which showed the process of the development of an idea into a published work. He appeared in conjunction with Lincoln School's first book fair, sponsored by the Parents Association and held in the school auditorium.

A business meeting, which formally opened the book fair, was held by the Parents Association on Tuesday, April 30, at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Charles Morgan, first vice president, introduced Miss Betsey Bradley, library specialist for Winchester schools, who explained the activities in the new Instructional Materials Centers. Mrs. Vivian Nossiter, Travelab instructor, also addressed the group. Mrs. Nossiter described her mobile unit and its work in helping students in the area of communications and articulation.

Refreshments were served by the kindergarten mothers.

PFA Holds Annual Meeting

The Parent-Faculty Association of WHS held its annual meeting on Wednesday, May 1, preceding "After High School, What and Where." William Jeffrey, retiring president, pointed out that all parents of high school students are members of the PFA. He thanked the retiring board members and committee chairmen for their support and reported the year's activities.

The PFA had actively supported the new high school building and the health - education program. Ways and Means raised over $1000 with its show "Swingers and Squares," and this with dues, enabled the PFA to support the Winchester Scholarship Fund with a gift of $500, give an additional $200 to the Drop-In Center ($100 was given last spring), and $400 to the foreign student exchange program. Also as an expression of Parent-Faculty concern a donation to the civil rights movement of $200 is being made, but the exact nature has not been determined. James Smith, treasurer, gave a detailed report of income and expenditures.

The 1968-69 board members were elected as follows:

New Pamphlet Out on "Mail For Servicemen"

An illustrated pamphlet Mail for Servicemen outlining the expanded program for airlifting letters, packages and other military mail overseas at low postal rates is now available through the Post Office window clerks, Postmaster Charles R. Hill has announced.

Postmaster Hill said that "as a result of new legislation and action by President Johnson we are now airlifting more than 75 per cent of all mail going to the military men and women stationed abroad. We hope this guide will help more American families be familiar with these services and use them."

The eight-page pamphlet illustrates three services for airlifting parcels at rates the average family can afford, the speedy service now available for newspapers and news magazines to most overseas bases, the special rates for books and similar educational materials, and how to mail sound-recorded personal messages. The guide also provides parcel wrapping instructions, information on the time it takes parcels to reach Vietnam and other overseas bases from major U.S. cities, and pointers on the correct way to address military mail.

A family sending a 10-pound package from Winchester to Vietnam, for example, pays only $3.40 on a package marked "PAL," while the air parcel rate for the same package is $8.08, Postmaster Hill said.

On parcels weighing less than 5 pounds it might be more advantageous for a family to use the older "SAM," Space Available Mail service, which provides surface transportation to the port of embarkation and airlift overseas. A four-pound "SAM" package to a European military post from Winchester costs only $0.60. On packages weighing under two-pounds air parcel post is often the patron's "best buy" for through airlift service, the pamphlet suggests.

Homefronters Invite Bake Goods For Benefit Sale

Mrs. Albert Marasca, executive chairman of the Homefronters, recently opened her Mystic Avenue home for a meeting of the group, whose purpose is to send Christmas packages to Winchester servicemen and women. An informative flyer planned by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Morse is in the works to alert new and old Winchester residents to the worth-while work of the Homefronters.

The annual Homefronters' Bake Sale is scheduled for May 24, a Friday, from 9 to 3 at Purity Save-Mor, with proceeds benefiting the Christmas project. Anyone who cares to donate a home-baked specialty for the event will be most welcome and is asked to bring her offering to the store anytime between 9 and 2.

Joan Wilson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Wilson, of 8 Oneida Road, gave her junior recital on May 5 at the Yankton College Conservatory of Music. Miss Wilson, a violinist, played Beethoven's Sonata in G and The Pastorale and Scherzanol by Quincy Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. Club Have Pops Night

"Les Troubadours" were featured at the recent "Pops Night at St. Mary's." The French-singing group comes from Winchester High and is directed by Mrs. Eleanor A. Thistlethwaite, music specialist and foreign language instructor. Mrs. Thistlethwaite's niece, Mari-Ann Primpas, accompanied the group. Jim Mouradian played string bass, Rita McCreary played guitar and Dean Gallant was master of ceremonies.

Mari-Ann Primpas later rendered several selections on her accordion cabaret style. She is a senior student at Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts and is currently performing at the Merry-Go-Round Room at the Sheraton Plaza.

The nominating committee presented the new slate of officers: president, Betty and George Saulnier; vice president, Joan and Ed Doherty; treasurer, Pat and Maury McCarthy; corresponding secretary, Cecile and Jacques Bonneville; recording secretary, Pat and Mike Harrington. These officers will be installed at the June 5 meeting.

Dan Hobart, local pianisa, ended the evening by playing many old and favorite songs while members joined in a group sing. Jim and Noreen Connell arranged the program, while Pat Lyons and her committee prepared strawberry shortcake.

Plans have been completed for the final meeting of this year, Wednesday, June 5. Rita and John Griffin are chairmen for this meeting and have arranged a candlelight buffet. There will be dancing throughout the evening to the recorded music of the "Big Bands." Tickets should be purchased early.

A week ago last Wednesday, the Red Sox played a game against the Angels which they lost but might well have won. Manager Williams blamed just about everyone on the team but himself for the loss, yet he made a decision which must be questioned by every grandstand manager, who knows that a team one run behind in the late stages of a game, especially the home team, goes for the tying run, and that the chances of hitting into a double play must be guarded against. Yet with the bases loaded and one out Williams put in Seibert (0 for 9), a slow runner, when Tartabull (3 for 9), also a left-handed batter and extremely fast, was available. Williams must be given credit for having inspired the players last year to the point where they played the very best ball that was in them. But no team can play that kind of ball two years running. From now on they will have to do it strictly on ability and by making fewer mistakes, both by players and manager.

The four-day layoff undoubtedly was the reason for the horrible hitting slump. Red Sox management should make sure that the schedule will never again put them in the position of having such a long layoff as the result of one rainout. But the hitters will snap out of their slump, and the team will once again start giving opposing pitchers their lumps. We still like the Sox in the run for the pennant.

Cronin Sets School Record; But Sachems Lose 78-53

Senior co-captain Greg Cronin, running the first 440 of his varsity career, set a new Winchester High School quarter mile record with an outstanding 52.6 seconds clocking against Melrose here. The previous record of 53.0 seconds was set in 1963 by Bill Thoms.

Cronin also lengthened his unbeaten streak in the 100-yard dash to six meets; his 10.3 seconds in that event is just .05 seconds off the existing school mark. To round out his day, he placed first in the broad jump, leaping 18 feet 1½ inches.

The Sachems' other co-captain, Middlesex League low hurdles champion and State Class C 50-yard dash champion, Dave Carpenter, had almost as productive a day. Carpenter took first place honors in the lows and javelin, and placed second in the 220—filling in for the transferred Cronin.

Meanwhile, defending League discus champion—Chris Halverson, paced the Sachems in the field events, winning the shot put with a heave of 45 feet 4 inches, and capturing top discus honors with a 135 foot 6 inch throw.

Cronin's 15-point day solidified his position as the top scorer of the squad. His season total for the six meets (the Sachems are now 3-3) stands at 67.

Reading Shades Trackmen 66-65

The Reading Rockets, trailing 63-36 at one point of the meet, roared back in the final four events to hand Winchester High's track squad its second defeat of the Middlesex League season in a contest held last Tuesday on Manchester Field. In the last four events (the 440, 880, mile, and relay), Winchester posted only two points of a possible thirty-two.

The Sachems amassed their seemingly-secure 63-36 advantage following the sprints, hurdles, and field events. Leading the early Winchester surge were co-captains Dave Carpenter and Greg Cronin, and senior strongman Chris Halverson. Carpenter placed first in the low hurdles, second in the javelin, and third in the broad jump, while Cronin remained undefeated in both the 100 and 220. Halverson, meanwhile, captured his third dual victory of the season, taking first in the discus and the shot put.

But the lead was not enough, as the Sachems faltered badly in the distance races. Their only points came on two third-place finishes (sophomore Tim Fahey in the mile, and a Joe Garvey-Tom Workman tie in the 440). Having placed 1-2 in the 440, 1-2-3 in the 880, and 1-2 in the mile, the Rockets carried their momentum to the relay, where they won the race—and the meet.

First Clinics For Adults Start In Tennis

Tennis clinics for adults will be held by the Winchester Tennis Association on Saturday, May 11, and the following Saturday, May 18. Both sessions will start at 10 a.m. under the guidance of Joe Corish, experienced missionary in the field.

The Winchester Tennis Association has for many years sponsored and run tennis clinics for Winchester children, but Saturday's clinic will be the first ever held for adult tennis buffs. With the growth of tennis interest at all age levels, Corish and W.T.A. President Bob Pritchard, feel that there are many adult players taking up the game for the first time or returning to the sport after an absence who could benefit from the clinics.

The first session will be devoted to a review of fundamentals while the second will stress tactics, proper position play and tips from Corish and staff on how to improve your game. All adult Winchester residents are welcome to attend.

WHS Girls' Team Wins in Tennis

The tennis team easily won its match with Stoneham as B. Irwin and M. Sexton won the first singles, both in two sets. C. Alba defeated J. Balcom in three sets, with scores of 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

The first doubles team of J. Ober and S. Kajander won their match 6-3, 6-0. S. Garrity and S. White defeated their opponents 6-3, 6-2 and M. Ober and C. Marvel ran out of time as they were ahead of M. Fredand and J. Scanda. (L.K.)

Sachem Bastmen Rally in Seventh To Defeat Lexington 3-2 Monday

Senior hurler Mark Fitzgerald pitched his way to his fourth consecutive Middlesex League victory as he defeated visiting Lexington High Monday afternoon on Manchester Field. Fitzgerald, throwing in his third contest without a rest, gave up six hits, walking two and striking out four.

The Sachems matched the Minutemen's single runs in the third and sixth innings before winning the game in the last of the seventh. Junior first-baseman Jack Papadinis put Winchester on the scoreboard in the third stanza as he batted in Tom Flaherty with a screaming ground rule double into the right field stands. The Sachem run in the sixth came when sophomore third baseman Mike Gilberti scored on a passed ball by the Lexington catcher. Gilberti had singled his way on base, and was moved to third by another single by sophomore catcher Steve Swanson.

Turn-About Double Play

But the game winner for the hometowners came in the seventh. The Sachems had retired Lexington in their half of the inning on a phenomenal double play in which Fitzgerald, Flaherty, Papadinis, and Swanson all played a part. The Minutemen had positioned men on first and third on two Winchester errors. They then attempted a double steal, with the runner on first decoying between first and second, while the man on third base tried to score. The Sachems diagnosed the play perfectly and turned the Lexington stratagem into a Winchester double play: Fitzgerald to Papadinis to Flaherty for one out; and Flaherty to Swanson for number two.

With the momentum turned in their favor by this tremendous defensive play, the Sachem offense rallied in their half of the seventh. Junior Mike Boodakian reached first on an error by the Lexington shortstop. Tom Flaherty then bunted perfectly down the first base line, moving Boodakian to second, and reaching first safely as the Minuteman first baseman booted the ball. Billy Wolfe popped up to the catcher, leaving Jack Papadinis at the plate. Papadinis, who had already doubled in the third, was intentionally passed, loading the bases for Toby Harvey. Harvey, apparently miffed by the Lexington coach's strategem, then rapped a single to left, scoring Boodakian and ending the contest.

The victory boosts the batsmen's record to 4-2.

Batsmen Shut Out Wakefield 6-0

Paced by the two-hit pitching of senior right-hander Mark Fitzgerald, and the timely batting of Tom and Billy Wolfe, Coach Bill Colella's baseball squad defeated a hapless Wakefield team 6-0 last Wednesday at Wakefield. Fitzgerald struck out six while walking just one Warrior batsman in posting his second Middlesex League victory.

The Wolfe brothers' hits came in the third and fourth innings. Tom, junior left-fielder, was the first to distinguish himself at the plate. After Jack Papadinis reached on an error, and Toby Harvey walked, he drilled a single to left, scoring Papadinis and moving Harvey to second. With one run already posted in the Sachem half of the third, Tom played an important role in pushing across another Winchester run: before the next Sachem batter, Mike Gilberti, was thrown a strike, Harvey was able to steal third; then, with Wolfe successfully decoying between first and second, the senior center-fielder slid safely into home.

Billy Wolfe's opportunity came in the fourth. The Wakefield pitcher had loaded the bases, yielding singles to Gilberti and Fitzgerald, and walking Tom Flaherty. Wolfe then ripped a clutch single to center field, batting in both Gilberti and Fitzgerald.

Besides the Wolfe-produced runs of the third and fourth, the Sachems had scored one each in the first and second innings. Tom Flaherty had scored in the opening stanza on a sacrifice fly to center by Toby Harvey. Tom Wolfe had scored in the second on an error by the Wakefield third baseman.

Would You Believe? Two Holes-in-One in Two Years

Mary Marchesi Nigor, who grew up here and was graduated from the High School, had to go to California to do it but she did it.

Last month she and her husband Anthony and their two children, Mary Ann, 9 and John, 8, were host to Mr. and Mrs. DiCarlo of 181 Main Street. The foursome went to the Singing Hills West course, just outside San Diego where Mary and family live in Lemon Grove.

And on the 115-yard eighth hole, using a number 5 iron, Mary sank a sweet drive with many witnesses present to attest the feat.

This should be enough. But it isn't. For the record shows that Mary, who hasn't been with the game too long, either, did the same thing almost a year ago to the day on the Navy course in Grantville, nearby.

A member of the well known and large Marchesi family here, she is the daughter of the late Salvatore and Mrs. Marchesi who for so long ran a market on Swanton Street, and the sister of Anthony, the proprietor of Neno's, as well as of about 11 other brothers and sisters who grew up here. She had lived in California about 20 years. The climate must agree with her.

Softball Team Loses to Stoneham

by Lesley King

In their first game of the spring season the girls softball team was defeated 16 to 5 last Friday by Stoneham. The Winchester girls' major weakness was fielding errors which unfortunately accounted for several of their opponents' runs. The Stoneham girls, much improved since last year, displayed strength in both fielding and pitching and were able to keep Winchester hits to a minimum.

A. Wenger, who pitched the whole game for Stoneham, allowed only 11 hits and held Winchester to four scoreless innings. M. Barrow, the starting pitcher for Winchester, began the game with two strikeouts but allowed five runs in the first inning, and was replaced by M. England who pitched through the fifth inning. In the third and fifth innings she allowed only one hit, however, the Stoneham girls managed to score nine more runs in the second and fourth innings to lead Winchester by a score of 14-4 in the fifth. The last Winchester run was scored by C. Laban in the sixth inning. Sue Swanson replacing M. England, began the bottom of the sixth with a strikeout and allowed the final two runs to score.

The Junior Varsity was also defeated, 18 to 16. The game was very close in the last few innings as the Winchester girls pulled themselves up from the five runs to sixteen with the aid of two homers by L. Anderson and one by S. Kent.

Manchester Field Lacrosse Debut Set Saturday Against Winchendon

Coach Gene Bouley has announced the first Manchester Field and first Saturday WHS lacrosse game scheduled for Saturday afternoon at 2 against the Winchendon School.

He hopes to see a good turnout come to watch the varsity stickmen—now holding down a .500 season. The game may also be televised over WKBG-TV, U.H.F., channel 56.

"We should give the spectators an excellent game here Saturday," says Bouley who reminds the team is dominated by juniors who have gained a lot of experience in their first five games—they have beaten the Phillips Andover J.V.'s, and Ipswich High and been done in by St. Mark's School and Governor Dummer Academy.

The team is led this year by co-captains Ted Webb and John Wisbach on defense. Jeff Lindberg, James O'Donnell, Richard Kimball and goalie Mark Stabile complete the defensive unit. Playing attack are Cliff Letty, Don Daniels, John Pirani, Bob Giamattei, Anthony Martignetti and the teams leading scorer Jim Barry.

The firs two midfield lines consist of Bob Penna, Henry Cushman, Bill Allard, Ernest Guarino, and Mark Collins, Alan Scalenge and Tom Kivney.

WHS Lacrossemen Top Andover 8-2

Winchester High's lacrosse squad put everything together and played its best game of the season in defeating a tough Andover Academy J.V. team (the Andover varsity competes against collegiate opponents) 8-2.

The contest was highlighted by the triumphant debut of co-captain John Wisbach, following his long bout with mononucleosis. Playing surprisingly well for his first varsity appearance of the 1968 season, Wisbach helped direct a hustling Sachem defense which played its usual fine game.

Senior center-midfielder Henry Cushman played an exceptional game, as he went the distance for Coach Bouley despite a sprained ankle and a 102 degree fever. Cushman came up with 90 per cent of the face-offs, as well as contributing several goals to the Sachems' offensive surge.

The attack, composed of sophomore Cliff Letty, juniors Jim Barry and Don Daniels, and seniors Tony Martignetti, Bob Giamattei, and John Pirani, worked well together, and moved the ball effectively in the Winchester offensive zone.

In all the previous contests, the team's scoring has been erratic. However, versus Andover, the attack worked out plays well, with the whole squad playing a heads-up, thinking game.

Lacrosse Team Dumped 9-2 By Gov. Dummer

Although they were soundly defeated by a seven-goal margin, Coach Gene Bouley's lacrosse squad made a fairly respectable showing against the defending Class A champions of the Governor Dummer Academy squad Friday at South Byfield.

The game was surprisingly well-played considering the Sachems were competing without the services of ace midfielder Henry Cushman and stand-out crease attackman Bob Giamattei.

The defense worked well together, in view of the existing circumstances. Co-captains Ted Webb and John Wisbach combined with goalie Mark Stabile in executing many fine clears, without which the final score would have been even more one-sided.

The midfield and attack played fairly well also, despite their respective losses. However, the precision passing and shooting of the Governor Dummer team proved too much for the faltering Sachems.

Tennis Team Wins Three More

As yet undefeated in interscholastic competition, Coach Don Stangel's high-flying tennis squad chalked up three more wins this week, defeating Boston Latin 5-0, Newton South 3-2, and Middlesex League contender Wakefield High 4-1.

The big win was the victory over defending State champions, Newton South. The three ponits in that victory came from the three singles matches, as Dick Kadesch, Mike Hills, and Brad Lindgren all defeated their opponents. Both of the Winchester entries in the doubles, Steve Pritchard-Barry Gibson (No. 1) and Paul Peterson-Leo Lauretano (No. 2), dropped their matches. The Kadesch and Hills victories were especially noteworthy, as they defeated the highly-regarded 1-2 combination of Newton South's Bucky Adams and Garry Mescon. The win brought Winchester into the interscholastic tennis limelight, as more observers were convinced that the squad is destined for the State, if not the New England, championship.

The meet versus Wakefield brought the team back into Middlesex League competition for the first time in over a week. The victory was decisive, as only the No. 1 doubles team (Pritchard-Gibson) failed to subdue their challengers.

CAP League Opens Season With First Games Sunday

by James Stewart

Fathers of boys up to 12 years old are invited to bring their sons to Ginn Field at 1 p.m. on Sunday, May 12 so that both of them can participate in CAP League baseball.

CAP League is sponsored by Winchester Little League each spring, and is designed to give non-members of Little League teams the opportunity to play organized baseball for a couple of hours every Saturday and Sunday from this Sunday through the month of June. Many ex-CAP Leaguers are now members of minor, major, and senior League teams.

The experiences they gained by playing CAP League attracted the attention of other managers, and it is expected that a number of this year's CAP League boys will be playing on uniformed teams before this season is over.

"Papa Bear" (George) Tello is the director of CAP League again this year. The excellent training as well as fun and excitement that last year's teams enjoyed are expected to be equally evident in this year's games. All boys will receive a baseball cap that they will wear during the weekly games, and all will be assigned to a team.

Phil Stackpole, a former professional baseball player and vice president of Little League's major and minor National League will be on hand to help with individual and team instruction. Fathers who would like to see their sons benefit by this training are urged to lend two hours each Saturday and Sunday afternoon toward this method of using up some of their sons excess energy and that of many other boys.

In 1967 there were 207 CAP League players, but this year it is expected there will be upwards of 250 youngsters who were unable to be absorbed by Little League, proper. Mr. Tello said that any boy who comes to Ginn Field on Sunday, May 12, at about 1 p.m. will be registered and get to play two hours of baseball.

All CAP League baseball will be held at Ginn Field from 2 to 4 every weather-permitting Saturday and Sunday, under the supervision of the Little League Dads' Club. Leo Roche of 26 Sargent Road, vice president of the Club will be the administrative supervisor, and Don Van Roosen, Club president, of 12 Woodside Road, is the overall coordinator of CAP League.

CAP League is one of the beneficiaries of the Annual Fund Drive now taking place all over Winchester. James Frongillo, Drive chairman, has asked that all boys in Little League make a special effort this week to sell as many donation chances as possible and bring the money to Tom Magoun at his office, Dominick & Dominick, 47 Church Street. Deadline for ticket sales is Monday, May 13 to be eligible for the En Ka tickets prizes.

Sachem Comeback Takes Belmont 7-4

After a shaky first inning, during which winless Belmont posted four runs, Winchester High's baseball squad fought back to a 7-4 victory in a contest played last Friday at Belmont.

The Maroon Marauders' four runs came on one single, two walks, and three Sachem errors, as all nine Belmont starters batted in the opening inning.

But from then on, it was all Winchester and Mark Fitzgerald. Fitzgerald came on with only one out in the first inning. He went on to strike out nine, without walking any, yielding just two hits in registering his third Middlesex League victory. In 20 2/3 innings, Fitzgerald has given up one run and only eight hits, for an E.R.A. of .33.

Sophomore catcher Steve Swanson started the Sachems on their way with his two-run double in the second. Then in the fourth Fitzgerald helped his own cause, posting an R.B.I. by scoring Mike Gilberti with a sacrifice fly to deep center.

The Sachems needed only four hits in producing their seven runs, as alert Winchester base running and erratic Belmont pitching and fielding moved the Sachems' runners around at a brisk rate. The three other Winchester batters who hit safely were Mike Gilberti (a single in the second). Tom Flaherty (a double in the fourth), and Jack Papadinis (a single in the fifth).

Dr. Anderson To Describe Middle School Concept

Tuesday evening, May 14th, at 8 p.m., Dr. Robert H. Anderson will discuss the concept of the "middle school." This workshop sponsored by the Winchester League of Women Voters will be held at the Winchester Public Library open to the public.

DR. ROBERT H. ANDERSON

The "middle school" may include grades 5-8 or any combination of these grades. At this point in Winchester, the school committee is considering the idea of McCall at a 5-6 school when the junior high no longer needs it.

Some pupils in junior high school have difficulty with subject departmentalization and the conflicting demands of academic pressure and interscholastic athletics. The "middle school" prepares pupils for the high school experience by providing a stable environment during the pre-adolescent years and by using a variety of teaching techniques to encourage students to learn by and for themselves.

Dr. Anderson is Professor of Education, Graduate School, Harvard University. He resides at 8 Winslow Road. Dr. Anderson is currently involved in planning 14 new school buildings for the city of Boston. He has been at Harvard since 1954. He is author of "Teaching in a World of Change" and co-author of "The Nongraded Elementary School."

The "middle school" concept raises some exciting ideas and some puzzling questions. We are fortunate to have the opportunity to hear the views of Dr. Anderson, to ask him our questions and to explore the possible usefulness of this program for Winchester.

The League of Women Voters urges all to attend.

WSCS Dinner To Sponsor "Fairless Fair"

On Thursday evening, May 9 at 6:30 p.m. the Women's Society of Christian Service will hold its second annual appreciation banquet.

Ladies of the WSCS who have worked especially hard for projects of the Society are being given a free dinner and invited to ask their daughters to accompany them for the evening. Another feature of the evening will be the Fairless Fair—when members will place small packages wrapped as Mother's Day gifts under the Fair Tree. These packages will contain a monetary gift in lieu of all the work entailed in a Fair.

The entertainment of the evening will be the Winchester High School orchestra and the Double Sextette under the direction of Wendell Withington.

Olive Hatch will preside at this, her last meeting of the year and will introduce Hope Oliver, next year's president who will be installed, together with the other new officers early in June.

Reservations were being made with Carolyn Morse and Marge Donaghey who was in charge of the dinner. Reservations were refused after the first 160.

Antique Cars Head En Ka Parade For the 34th Annual Street Fair

An elaborate float parade featuring a fleet of antique cars will open the 34th En Ka Street Fair on Saturday, May 18—setting the tone for the Gay Nineties theme of this year's fair. The parade will wend its way through the center of Winchester and end at Manchester Field with flag raising ceremonies. It plans to be bigger and better than ever.

There will be the usual exciting rides and thrilling games of chance and skill on the midway. Prizes will be awarded to the skillful and the lucky.

The fair opens on Friday evening at six o'clock and continues until 11 p.m. All types of homemade foods will be available as well as books, jewelry, and bargain box treasures. There is something at the fair to interest all age groups and the En Ka Society suggests coming early and staying late.

The proceeds of this annual event are always spent the following year in Winchester to benefit civic and socail service projects in the town. There is no need which is too small or too large for the finance committee of En Ka to consider as it disperses the profits of the Street Fair. Fortunately for En Ka, the entire town feels responsible for the success of the fair and hundreds of townspeople are scheduled to work on it and many hundreds more support it.

The dates and times are, Friday, May 17, 6-11; and Saturday, May 18, 10-10.

Cancer Drive Reported to Be Near Completion

James E. Connell, Jr., local chairman for the recent Cancer Crusade, has thanked each of the townspeople whose volunteer efforts added to the success of the recent campaign.

Crusade Night on April 23 was particularly successful this year, and pleasantly surprised the group assigned at the Winchester Trust Company to receive the completed kits.

Since each of these kits is checked against a master file retained by the Boston Cancer Society office, Mr. Connell stresses the importance of returning outstanding kits promptly. Several dozen are still not in and it is urged that they be forwarded to the Winchester Trust Company or to the neighborhood captains as soon as possible so that a final report may be made.

Inside Ed. TV – Topic at Noonan

"Contrary to popular belief, the G.B.H. in our station's call letters do not stand for God Bless Harvard," quipped Mrs. Helen Peters, director of public relations for WGBH-TV in Boston, as she spoke recently to Noonan's parent association.

"However, we shall be forever indebted to this Ivy league school as well as to Tufts, Brandeis, Boston University, and many other institutions of higher learning, along with philanthropic foundations, private businesses, and channel 2 lisDeners for their generous gifts necessary to operate the station," she emphasized.

Speaking with enthusiasm and pride, Mrs. Peters noted that from a modest beginning, WGBH has grown in popularity and influence as an educational station to one that is now a major producer for N.E.T. (Natonal Educational Television). She added that educational T.V. is slowly changing its name to public T.V. due to the dull connotation of the word education. "WGBH is by no means dull," she said, "it is a 'station of ideas'." "We produce what we call, 'T.V. that lingers in your mind'; our aim being to stimulate emotions, excitement, agitation, surprise, even anger—in capsule form," she said, "make you think."

"Nothing was more provocative than the Lettvin vs. Leary debate," the speaker continued, "and the controversy that ensued over the particular expression used at one point by Dr. Lettvin."

Mrs. Peters went on to say how proud she was of channel 2's T.V. personalities. She spoke of Julia Child, the French Chef, recipient of an Emmy last year.

With equal warmth, Mrs. Peters told of how Fred Rogers, of Misteroger's Neighborhood, has skyrocketed to fame and popularity within a short period of time. A Presbyterian minister by profession, he started a local children's program in Pittsburgh and is now seen nationally on 140 educational stations. His absence from the T.V. listings not long ago generated the most mail received by the station than any other personality last year. "We announced a Misteroger's Day at the studio; 10,000 kids lined Western Avenue to meet their special friend," continued Mrs. Peters. "Why so popular?" she queried. "He is changing our sense of humor; he does something many of us fail to do, he treats children with respect."

WGBH is now preparing for its annual auction to be held in June.

Mrs. Peters entertained questions from the audience and was more than willing to relate more of her "behind the scenes" tales during the social hour that followed.

Miss Margaret Tilton's second grade class won the attendance banner.

MSPCA to See Puppet Show

A team from the Animal Rescue League and their puppets will put on a demonstration at the annual SPCA meeting on Monday May 13. These puppets have appeared in various Boston area schools to promote kindness to animals. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Don Greer, 82 Arlington Street.

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. William MacDonald and her committee.

Savings Bank Reports Progress At 98th Dinner

The 98th annual meeting of the Winchester Savings Bank was held at the Winchester Country Club Wednesday evening, April 24. Following the business meeting at which officers and trustees were reelected and the report of the treasurer was approved, the 31 corporators present were guests of the bank for dinner.

At dinner James F. Dwinell, Jr., president, gave a detailed report on operations and growth during the year. It was his opinion that their greatest asset was their staff of interested employees headed by the Treasurer Arnold Gibson. "Our bank is a friendly, human institution dealing with other human beings," Mr. Dwinell said, "and we try to give every assistance and every service possible in a kindly personal way."

He reported new highs in deposits, assets, mortgages, income and dividends paid to depositors, which exceeded more than 1,237,000 dollars. Total resources are now over $35,000,000 and income increased by 10.3 per cent over the preceding year.

Accomplishments during the 12-month period were reported to include the completion of total automation, a 16 per cent increase in banking hours, and a change to a quarterly dividend basis. As the bank looks to the future needs of customers, it plans to be able to offer daily interest accounts by early summer.

In last week's listing of officers, the name of Henry K. Porter, a trustee whose term expires in 1970, was erroneously listed as William K.

Koerner Report Set For Forum Topic

"Racism and Riots: Implication for Winchester."

This is the topic for the spring forum on the Koerner Report announced today to take place next Thursday night, May 23, at 8 p.m. in Hadley Hall of the Church of the Epiphany, sponsored by the six-months-old Winchester Council for Community Action.

The meeting will take as focus the report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders published this winter under the chairmanship of Otto Koerner, governor of Illinois with Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City vice chairman and with Senator Edward Brooke the Massachusetts representative.

WCCA President Bernard Harleston told the Star that the panelists will be Cameron Bird, director of the Ecumenical Center in Roxbury and an articulate and forceful social activist and community organizer; Charles Harris, director of the Massachusetts Council for Public Schools and a member of the Winchester School Committee until this March; and Frederick Rozelle of 326 Main Street, vice president of the Old Colony Trust Company and member of the board of directors of the Ecumenical Center in Roxbury.

Dr. Harleson will moderate. He encourages all citizens to attend.

Major Coon, SA Sullivan In Viet Action

Stories of action seen by two more Winchester servicemen reached the Star this week.

Reporting from aboard the destroyer USS Epperson, the Fleet Home News Center related that Seaman Apprentice Lee F. Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sullivan of 2a Rangeley Ridge, has been helping provide naval gunfire support to U.S. and Allied units ashore from off the coast of Vietnam. The Epperson has also been engaged in action designed to stop the flow of enemy supplies from North Vietnam through the Gulf of Tonkin.

This ship was recently erroneously reported by North Vietnam radio to be "attacked and burning" in this area. Seaman Sullivan's letters to Winchester substantiated, however, later reports that the shells had missed his ship by 50 feet. The seaman was graduated from Winchester High School two years ago and attended St. Michael's and Bentley College before enlisting for four years in U.S. Navy service.

Air Force Major David B. Coon, who has been at a Thailand base for a few months, was said this week to have carried out a successful bombing mission over North Vietnam with fellow F-105 Thunderchief pilots of the 355th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Students Seek New Exam Policy

Meeting at the Wyman School on Monday night, the School Committee heard five representatives from the Student Council of Winchester High School request that final exams be eliminated for seniors with a B— average in a regular course or a C plus cumulative in an AP subject.

After listening to the students' position, the Committee agreed to reach a decision on the proposal at its meeting on May 20 at 7 p.m. in McCall.

The students told the Committee that giving a qualified senior an option on whether to take a final would serve as a reward and an incentive to work hard throughout the second semester, even after college acceptances have gone out. They further stated that final exams have an insignificant effect upon the futures of seniors since most already have plans for next year. They added that several nearby towns have programs which allow some not to take finals.

High School Principal Howard Niblock commented, "The proposal has a lot to commend it and I certainly support it. This sets up incentive which has the potential of resulting in better work throughout the year." He also agreed with a previous speaker that the program should include more than honor roll students.

Dr. Walter Gleason, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, cautioned that the purpose of exams is to recapitulate the year's work. Lawrence Beckley, Committee member, voiced concern with the necessity that college-bound seniors be adequately prepared. Another member of the Committee, John Dolan, demanded to know whether the acceptance of the proposals would result in the elimination of "senior skip days."

Before making its decision, the Committee has requested statistics on the number of students the proposal will affect.

Personal Ethics

In a report to the Committee on the personal ethics program, Dr. Gleason revealed that efforts are under way to find a director and leader for the program, which will include seminar sessions with 8th and 11th-grade students.

Man vs. Nature Again

MACHINES have been at work for over a week now at the site of the WHS playing field areas, just north of the Center between the two railroad spurs. Men from the Richard White Company in Newton are set up with trailer headquarters and have just started re-routing the Aberjona temporarily to the east of the area so that the pipe conduits can be buried to the west. Democrats, Republicans Organize Here Next Week

The 35-member Republican and Democratic Town Committees elected in the April 30 primary voting will each meet to organize for the year next week.

At 7:45 p.m. on Tuesday the 21st the Republican Committee, presently chaired by Lawrence T. Smith, convenes in the East Room of the Town Hall.

At the same spot at 8 p.m. the next night, the 22nd, Chairman Mary Serieka reports the Democratic Committee will meet and elect for 1968-69.

Each group expects a heavy late summer and fall schedule with action to start just after their parties pick major candidates in August—the Republicans in Miami, the Democrats in Chicago.

Associate members may be appointed by the Committees. There is no limit to number, but associates, though often allowed to express opinions, do not have the right to vote. Many meetings are open meetings which interested voters are allowed to attend.

Recently the Republican Committee has been mailing regularly to about 60 associate members. The Democratic Committee has no active associate list at the moment, according to Mrs. Serieka.

10 Auto Mishaps Reported Here During Week

An unusually high number of auto accidents occurred during the past week, including two within hours of each other on May 9 at the intersection of Foxcroft Road and Wedgemere Avenue.

The first of the two accidents at that location occurred at 5:40 p.m. as Mrs. Winifred C. Bourne of 19 Indian Hill Road travelled west on Foxcroft and Miss Vivian Leith of Woburn proceeded north on Wedgemere. Extensive damage occurred to both cars.

Police transported Miss Leith to Choate Hospital in Woburn with a lacerated right leg and a possible broken ankle. Treated at the Winchester Hospital were two passengers in the Bourne car, Susan L. Hill of 41 Foxcroft Road and Sarakay Bourne of the Indian Hill address.

At 8:19 p.m. a car going east on Foxcroft, driven by John P. Heor of Woburn, and an auto heading north on Wedgemere, driven by Frances M. Vaccaro of 2 Rangeley Ridge, collided. Neither car was badly damaged and no injuries were reported at the scene by the drivers, the five passengers in the Heor car, or the passenger in the Vaccaro vehicle.

The previous day at 6:50 p.m. an accident occurred at Wildwood and Cambridge Streets as John Macneil of Medford operated west on Wildwood and Martha Miller of Arlington travelled north on Cambridge. At the time of the mishap the traffic lights were out of order and consequently set on flashing. A passenger in one of the cars, Carol Macneil, was examined at the Winchester Hospital and released. The Miller vehicle was towed from the scene.

Thirty minutes before, that evening at 6:20, an accident was reported on Thornberry Road. Details are unavailable since court action is anticipated.

Rev. Dr. Powell Installed Sunday

"With the pressures of a world revolution laid against us, we can't be as sure as we used to be what a church is, what the minister's job is. So many of these things we used to take for granted are being questioned, and some have been plainly smashed . . ."

Dr. Oliver Powell was officially installed as minister of the First Congregational Church on Sunday evening. The successor to Dr. Cart, who retired this fall, and the 12th pastor of the Church, Dr. Powell came here from 10 years at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park, Illinois.

In his installation sermon he spent some time trying to draw for his congregation a picture of the changing function of the church, as he conceives it, and of the changing conception of the job he holds.

The proceedings included a meeting of the Metropolitan Boston Association in the afternoon to receive him as a full ministerial member. The Rev. Paul E. Barnes,

Merry Weekend Looms Ahead As En Ka Readies Street Fair

In the cities it's the circus which comes to town. In Winchester it's En Ka Street Fair.

Around-the-house job enthusiasts multiply like magic this week as the young population works to add to its funds to spend at En Ka—funds started by some just as soon as Christmas is over.

The kids are down early to watch them unload the animals at the circus. Down at Manchester Field right now the kids are watching them set up the carnival rides and booths for the biggest show in town—this year En Ka's 34th annual fair—"The Gay Nineties."

The first spins of the wheels of fortune and first strains of the merry-go-round music box will start at 6 p.m. tomorrow night. The fair won't close down until 10 p.m. on Saturday, after its famous baked bean supper served from 5:30 to 7:30 in the next-door Unitarian Church and after the last evening of festival.

Saturday's show start will highlight the Nineties theme in a parade which gets underway shortly after nine o'clock headed by a large group of horseless carriages from the antique car collections of citizens and friends.

En Ka makes merry once a year and makes groups happy the other 350 days. Among its charity beneficiaries are groups many of which will carry out its fair theme with parade floats Saturday morning: and vie for the prizes—one for that which best carries out the fair theme, one for that which best demonstrates its own organization.

Groups on the receiving end of En Ka checks include: The Little League, the Pals, Babe Ruth League, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Red Cross, the Visiting Nursing Association, the Winchester Hospital, the Home for the Aged, the High School bands and orchestras, the Hospital library book truck, the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, the Homefronters, and needy families recommended by the local welfare department. There is scarcely a good civic or social service cause in the town which En Ka doesn't help.

Cotton Candy Come-On

En Ka's midway will include all the old favorites with the merry-go-round and ferris wheel vying with the trabant introduced last last year and a surprise ride being set up right now.

En Ka will test skills and luck with baseball and penny pitches, basketball throws and darts. It will test appetites with multiple snacks for lunch and molasses apples and cotton candy-on-the-stick.

Fair hours: Friday 6 p.m. to 11 p.m.; Saturday 10 to 10.

Bronze Star To Lt. Jameson For Heroism

At ceremonies in Boston on May 2 Navy Lt. (j.g.) Richard C. Jameson of 4 Robinson Park was awarded a Bronze Star medal for "heroic achievement in Vietnam."

Rear Admiral Roy S. Benson, Commander of the First Naval District, presented the award to the 26-year-old serviceman who served in the Me Kong Delta area before completing overseas service. It was his second distinction received for Viet service. This winter he was awarded the Vietnam Cross for Gallantry by the South Vietnam Government for action of heroism.

Lt. Jameson, son of Dr. and Mrs. James J. Jameson, was graduated from the High School in 1960 and from Springfield College in 1964. He took officer's training at the Navy's Newport School before shipping overseas. He is presently assigned to the Fargo Building in Boston and will complete service in June.

Scouts Fill Manchester Field With Action And Spectators

Winchester Boy Scouts and Cub Scout units took more than their share of praise and prizes at the all-day Scouting in Action Show on Manchester Field Saturday—the largest ever held in the Minuteman Council Musket District, with 38 units participating.

Scout Troop 507, sponsored by the Baptist Church, Don Marchant, scoutmaster, won the coveted first prize ribbon for their demonstration booth, competing in a field of 18 other crack Scout units. Winners in other events were local Troops 503, Cub Pack 509 and Pack 511.

Demonstration booths were judged on the basis of prior planning and boy ideas, design and originality, spectator appeal and participation by members of the Scout unit.

Lines of spectators filed through the 507 demonstration area all afternoon, getting scored in rugged fitness test the boys had built with logs and rope lashings. Devices ranged from an overhead walk, a chinning bar and a special area for sit-ups, to the age-old carnival test of he-man strength—the mallet, lever and bell.

District Problems In Transit, Health Before Selectmen

Four presentations at Monday night's Selectmen's meeting focussed on Winchester's intergovernmental ties with Boston and with other area and state towns. In three there was a least common denominator to the reports: they represent a lot of money out of local pockets.

Representative Harrison Chadwick talked to the Board on Medicaid and on the Charles River Dam bill. Former Board Chairman Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr., the Town's representative on the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority advisory board, reported on MBTA plans and their probable local cost. Welfare Director William P. Supple introduced the State's District Welfare head who asked the Town to rent the State space for its Welfare administration take-over.

"Medicaid is headed toward an annual state cost of 400 million," said Mr. Chadwick, Winchester's Moderator as well as area member in the General Court.

After July first when the State takes over the administration of Public Welfare for the Town, the program will cost Winchester nothing out of its budget.

"The taxpayers will be paying for it on their income tax instead," he reported. But he reminded that Massachusetts is the last State in the union to change over from local to State control.

The Board had been asked by the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association to support a study of Medicaid. Mr. Chadwick reported that the study is all but assured already; that the State has five legislators in Washington right now asking for Federal assistance; that it has already cut back about 20% on benefits; and that one thing he feels certain the study will conclude is that some qualifications will be required for recipients.

"For the doctors there's likely to be a regular service fee established." It means they will get paid quickly and fairly, he said.

MDC Dam Plans

Mr. Chadwick also reported on House bill 1397 for the relocation and construction of a new Charles River Dam.

"This project is miniscule in dollars compared to Medicaid but technologically very complicated," said the Representative who came out in favor of the $20 million dollar dam project designed to replace the present locks and sluice areas.

On this issue the Selectmen had received a request for support from the Metropolitan District Commission of which Winchester is a component, and a request for opposition from the Massachusetts Taxpayer's Association.

"There comes a time when it's less expensive in the long run to do the job right," said Mr. Chadwick, defining his position. "The present dam and locks were built in 1910. In the last six months $200,000 has gone into them for upkeep."

He contended that the Taxpayers' Association plan to put dikes along Storrow Drive as flood control would not be basic control but would just back up the water. He described the present difficulty of evacuating water from the Charles River basin and the odor and pollution problems which would remain unsolved if the old dam is kept. And he pointed out that if the pumps that are really needed are put into the old dam it would be to spend considerable money in a far less effective way.

Mr. Chadwick allowed that the dam project, planned to be built in the area of the old Warren Avenue bridge in Charlestown, would bring little direct benefit to Winchester, unless in the plans to bring Route 93 into this area on a new roadway which could greatly improve Winchester-Boston commuter traffic.

"It's an expensive picture," commented Chairman Charles Doucette, who heard the report with Selectmen Paul Amico, Edmund Williams, John Sullivan and Ralph Swanson.

"I don't relish it for Winchester taxpayers," said Mr. Chadwick, noting that the Town's MDC Park Assessment figure (that part of the District's budget under which the dam would be built) had grown from $64,000 in 1964 to $112,000 in 1967 and that if the dam were relocated it is estimated to be $165,000 in 1972 (although possibly cut down by Federal aid).

He told the Board that both last year and this the Metropolitan Affairs Committee ("Urban" in 1968) had favored the dam; that the Ways and Means Committee had said "no" in 1967 and that he felt whatever they decided this year will determine the fate of the bill. Their decision, he said, is awaiting an Army Corps and engineering study.

WHS Tennis No. 1 In State As Team Tops Defending Newton So.

by Chuck Lisberger

We're Number One! For the first time in over a decade a Winchester High School athletic team is rated the best in Massachusetts.

Up until recently Winchester was considered among the elite of area tennis teams. But the clear consensus was that Newton South High School was unbeatable.

The defending state champions had beaten Winchester a year ago for the Sachems' only regular-season loss in three years. Many thought last year would have to be the year if WHS was to reach number-one standing, but the experienced 1967 net starts fell two matches short of their goal, beaten by a very strong Newton North team in the quarter-finals of the State Tournament.

The 1968 team became the top team in the state when it defeated Newton South 3 to 2 at the Palmer Courts recently. It is now the team to beat and hopes to stay that way.

There is still the third consecutive Middlesex League crown to be won. Winchester plays at Belmont today, and only an upset win by Belmont can keep the Sachems from clinching this. Belmont is sparked by Gil Furnald, who could easily give the home team plenty of trouble this afternoon.

Overall the Sachems are 7 and 0 so far. But still to be played are Brookline, Lincoln-Sudbury and Wayland. Come the first week of June and it is the State Tournament. If Winchester is to remain at the top it is going to have to duplicate its win over Newton South.

The Newton match here had been anticipated by the local racquetmen. The lineup had Captain Dick Kadesch facing Newton's much-heralded Bucky Adams, and in the number-two match Mike Hills meeting Newton's Mescon. Brad Lindgren held down the number-three spot; Steve Pritchard and Barry Gibson played first doubles, and Leo Lauretano and Paul Peterson number two.

Newton South won the latter two matches and quickly had a 2 to 0 lead.

All three local singles players jumped out ahead early, only to falter and leave the hopes of an upset very doubtful. Hills and Lindgren battled their way on to split upsets. Hills first went on to hand Mescon his first loss since Sachem Doug Carlson had defeated him last year. And Lindgren came through to win his match.

Kadesch went down on the first set but battled back on the second. The Winchester captain then jumped out to a big lead in the third, only to have the explosive Adams fight back. With the score 5 games to 4 for Kadesch, the Colgate-bound Sachem senior then accomplished the big one and took the last game to hand the highly ranked Adams a very big loss.

The Sachems aim to stay up top just as long as they can.

WINCHESTER

CAPT. DICK KADESCH

Nurses Hear Miss Voorhies

"Trends in Nursing and Public Health" was the subject chosen by Miss Eleanor Voorhies, associate professor of public health, Boston College School of Nursing, for her talk on May 9 to the Visiting Nursing Association's monthly meeting at the Unitarian Church. She observed that comprehensive health services set up by government grants and special programs under hospital leadership are increasing but also creating problems since they leave a vacuum in some areas while in others overlap with public health services. Miss Voorhies stressed that there is need for better coordination of services to reach more people.

Education in health services is improving, she added. The poor are not only becoming conscious of such services but also are pressing to be represented. She stated that in planning ahead all seetions of the community should be consulted and involved. No one plan is right for all communities for the needs differ sharply. Voluntary agencies must respond to changes, analyze the needs, innovate, and look for ways to meet the needs with existing agencies wherever possible.

Health care has become big business and is becoming more competitive. Miss Voorhies is convinced that modern business methods can and must be used to increase efficiency. The staff available must be used more effectively by freeing the best qualified nurses of routine non-nursing duties. She had high praise for the Winchester VNA for its foresight in arranging for a part-time business manager to free staff nurses for their professional duties.

The report of Miss Gloria Pearson, executive director, showed a continued increase in home nursing care visits, with 327 being made in April.

Wyman Parents Attend Meeting

The annual meeting of the Wyman Parents' Association was held on Friday evening, May 10, in the Wyman School auditorium. The retiring president, Mrs. Wallace McDonald, noted in a brief speech that the problems of exploding population and a multi-racial society, which has been predominately theoretical matters for parents of today's Winchester children, have in fact already made an impact on the lives of those same children in the form of crwded schools and race riots.

"To saddle our children with fears and hates, born of our own fears and hates and lack of understanding," she said, "will be to put the youngsters at a disadvantage in the multi-racial adult world that awaits them... Those of us who are rearing American children have a particular and special responsibility to be honest enough with ourselves to rear our children free of our own prejudices."

William Warnock, principal, greeted the parents and explained procedure for viewing student exhibits at the close of the business meeting.

The following slate of officers and committee chairmen was accepted by the membership:

President, Mrs. Lane McGovern
1st Vice President, Mrs. Joseph Knight
2nd Vice President, Mrs. James Barger
Recording Secretary, Mrs. Richard Kingsbury
Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Roman de Sanctis
Treasurer, Mrs. David Ewing

Committee Chairmen

Luncheon, Mrs. Harry Parker
Membership, Mrs. Guy Pistone
Room Mothers, Mrs. Robert Sullivan
Social, Mrs. Gareld Herrin
Ways and Means, Mrs. Robert Beattie
Nominating, Mrs. William Budd
Publicity, Mrs. James Papadinis

Following adjournment of the meeting, parents visited classrooms for exhibits of math and SRA reading programs. The program included a wide range of activities involving pupils and their demonstrations of math concepts and practices. Many parents took the opportunity of visiting the Wyman School Library.

Music Club Holds Final Program

The fourth and final program of the season for the Winchester Music Club was performed on Sunday, May 5, at the home of John Willis Jr.

Mr. Willis, who is a member of the club's teachers' committee, played two Shubert impromptus, opus 90 nos. 2 and 3, and the Chopin Scherzo in B-flat op. 31, as guest artist on the program.

Margaret Sexton, a pupil of Mr. Willis, who will be graduating from High School this June, was presented a record as a gift from the Music Club in recognition of her many contributions to the club over the past three years. She has served as mistress of ceremonies, business manager, and refreshment chairman. She has also performed many times as a piano soloist, as an accompanist, and in chamber music groups.

The mistress of ceremonies at this last concert of the season, Joan Reynolds, introduced the following program:

Vivace by Clementi — Ellen Spencer, piano student of Marguerite Webb.

Menuet in G by Beethovan — Diane Hammond, violin student of John Woodworth accompanied by Christine Marrocco.

Sonata in C Minor by Telemann for clarinet and piano — Peter Reynolds, clarinet student of Edward Mitchell and Jean Reynolds, piano student of Ruth Hayden.

Shadows on Grand Lake by Thompson — Nancy Fincke, piano student of Edith Bolster.

Sonata by Veracini for violin and piano — Scott Knopf, violin pupil of John Woodworth and Christine Marrocco.

Andante by Schumann — Lisa Fitzgerald, piano student of John Willis.

Prelude by J. S. Bach — Tom Page, clarinet pupil of William Street, accompanied by Mrs. Norton Demsey.

Beau Soir by Debussy — Noel Webb, violin pupil of Eugene Gratovich, accompanied by Mrs. Theodore Webb.

Love is Blue by Andre Popp — Tom Raleigh, piano pupil of Albert Horn.

A short business meeting conducted by Eric Neurath with the assistance of Mark Harrington and Michael Buros was followed by refreshments served by Jill Hallisey and Lisa Fitzgerald.

Ronald E. Cox of the Winchester Savings Bank is among 50 Massachusetts savings bank employees who will be in the freshman class at the School for Supervisory Personnel. Sponsored by the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts the School will be held from May 19 to 24 at the Hotel Belmont, West Harwich.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

"The fellows at the plant where I work have always kidded me about carrying such high limits of automobile insurance," Jerry Kranson said. "But with large court awards all over the country in auto cases, I just feel better."

"I think you are right as well," I replied.

"I just tell them," Jerry said, "that all the extra premiums I've paid in a lifetime wouldn't begin to equal one good big loss."

"Besides," Jerry continued, "I get a chance to kid them back. Several of my friends who have cut-rate insurance have been involved in an auto accident, and invariably get their policy cancelled afterward by the company."

"I just smile and tell them to look up my agent," Jerry said.

"Perhaps I should buy you a gold medal," I told Jerry. "A few of your friends have come in on your recommenation."

"Word of mouth" recommendation from satisfied clients is the world's best advertising. In the insurance field, it results from sincere interest, strong companies and conscientious service. If you'd like that combination, we invite you to phone or stop by!

MBTA Octopus — How Do We Play In His League?

There was a time when if one mentioned here the words MBTA and B and M tracks in the same sentence, one was shamed, ostracized. MTA (it is now the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority) was a red flag to conservatives. It smacked too much of words like "subway" and "underground." It connoted the rush, dirt and trouble which suburbanites have left behind them.

But suburbanites are just that. They need to get in and out of their city—be it for work, for medical care, education, entertainment, or many other reasons. Spacewise and timewise mass transportation fills the bill. Railroads and passenger service are words that appear together on ledgers in red ink. Something had to be done.

The Town is associated in the MBTA with 79 cities and towns which ring all around Boston and which are dominated by it.

The core city has said it is not going to pay the whole way for the suburban commuters to come in and out of town. It shouldn't. The State has said it's tired of subsidies for railroads. It should be. The gradual take-over by the MBTA of all the transportation systems feeding commuters into Boston seems the only practical step.

Despite his discouragement at the present outlook for Winchester taxpayers as they begin to pick up the tab for MBTA administration of the Eastern Mass Railway and the Boston and Maine service, Sherman Saltmarsh, the Town's representative on the MBTA board is taking steps which in themselves seem to hold the seeds of better days. Mr. Saltmarsh is becoming an effective voice for Winchester in the councils of transportation trouble. Together with Reading's representative he has recently pressed the MBTA for a slow-down on more hirings and growth until it goes into a complete study of route layouts, needs and a personnel review. It will come to many as quite a shock that the Eastern Mass bus drivers have just won a wage raise which brings their hourly wage to $4.71. It is the concern of everyone in the area that the union demand of 1966 which put guards in every single subway car costs nine million dollars a year. That there are to be 40 unions to be dealt with by MBTA administrators once the B and M takeover is complete would be a huge and fanciful joke if it were not so horrible and so real.

For his part, Representative Harrison Chadwick who serves on the joint House Senate Transportation Committee is not as pessimistic as Mr. Saltmarsh. "I don't think it's as dreadful as it sounds," noted the Town's Moderator, not a man known for exaggerated spending, when asked for his comments. The B and M has been running an about four million and a half annual deficit. If the MBTA could improve service in this area, it should be able to double its rider count, he believes. And if it could do this, it could wipe out its deficit.

What can Mr. Saltmarsh do? What can Mr. Chadwick do? How can they make the voice of so small a proportion of the Greater Boston community be heard? In MBTA councils Boston has 73.29 votes, Cambridge has 10.56, Arlington 3.11, Winchester 1.13. Winchester's association is with all 79 of the municipalities. And it seems logical that all the periphery areas should organize together in some way to discuss and strengthen their aggregate voice. It is particularly with the B and M served towns that we should work, according to the former chairman of Selectmen. Woburn, Melrose, Reading, Wakefield, Stoneham, are in the same boat with assessments for both B and M and Eastern Mass service to be subtracted from next year's cherry sheet reimbursements.

We seem to need a sort of Middlesex League association in this effort and there should be no one better than the former B.C. hockey player to make the contacts and carry out the action. He needs, however, the support of his townspeople and their elected officers—to the hilt.

Just Looking

We read the papers. In the past few months we have read:

In Cohasset the School Committee voted four to two in early Spring to join the METCO program and accept 30 pupils. The action was applauded by a packed hearing of voters. The school will take pupils in its kindergarten, and in its seventh, ninth, tenth and eleventh grades.

In Bedford the School Committee has just approved enrollment of nine METCO students. The action was taken on a transportation and tuition-paid (the usual) basis. The students will enter its high school in September.

Dedham is seeking a "commitment of the heart" for acceptance of METCO students. Two years ago its School Committee voted 7 to 0 against the plan. The board, however, has had a change in makeup. Many citizens are agitating. It has recently stated to the Boston press that it will reconsider the situation.

Newton this week voted to waive tuition for its METCO pupils. Brookline will do this for those it takes in new next year. Lexington has voted in the past two weeks to cut tuition costs considerably. Other communities in the METCO family which have reduced tuition include Arlington, Framingham, Marblehead, Walpole, Wellesley and Weston. This action is on the agenda of quite a few participating towns.

At the start of the METCO program in the fall of 1966 there were seven participating towns which took a total of 220 Boston Negro students to be educated in their schools. Last September there were 16 towns playing host to 425 pupils. Many more communities are on the list of those working toward joining, and METCO officials look to close to 1,000 students to be bussed daily to the suburbs next fall.

Then there was the traumatic Quincy episode wherein its High School students organized, backed by many parents, to ask for METCO students. But its School Committee, on record once against it, put off and put off a decision until it in turn was turned down by METCO. This rang a bell in the memory.

And Winchester? Just Looking. Just Wondering.

Speaking To All

In its just-installed pastor, Dr. Oliver Powell, the Congregational Church appears to have brought to town a sensitive, articulate and activating leader whose influence should be spread outside his parish. Among the things he said at installation ceremonies were these:

". . . The massive social evils which bedevil our time will not disappear through the miraculous regeneration of the individual by the Holy Spirit, but will become more manageable as the Church joins the ranks of those who are working for social change. It will mean becoming a lot more theologically sophisticated than we are most of the time, travelling lighter than before, chucking a lot of our heavy and archaic language, . . . rejoicing in new forms of celebrating the faith in worship, opening windows in our churches until they reflect the sights of this swinging time. And most of all it will mean wrecking the snug walls which have kept the world of the Church separated from the world of the world. . ."

"The awful temptation of our media-minded age is to believe that somehow maximum communication means maximum faith. . ."

". . . One of the hardest things one has to face . . . is that for the present, and maybe for quite some time, the possibillities for action on our part will be quite limited or non-existent. This is a shocking and dismaying thing for white liberals to live with, the fact that there is literally nothing they can do. Indeed, as black leaders are saying, the well-intentioned, idealistic efforts of white liberals toward integration, toward better understanding, toward reconciliation are themselves all a deadly part of condescending, paternalistic white racism. But when there is little or nothing we can do, we can be repentant people, men and women who have scoured their souls to the bottom to clean out the last remnants of racism in us, and this is a lot harder than getting behind a program of action."

Editorial Comments

The Park Board Commission met Tuesday night and the problem of the Mill Pond banks and what to do to them in the interest of safety was to have been on their agenda. The Star had not heard by press time what, if anything, was decided relative to Dr. Harry Benson's request that the Town fence with a three-foot fence all along the Pond from Mt. Vernon to Mystic Valley Parkway. Citizens are very properly interested. We hope to report next week.

Bacon Street is beautiful! So handsome now it almost asks for a block dance. The new, black, bituminous concrete topping makes its 30 foot width seem even more spacious. The curbing, done only about one-half of the way, frames the job. The highwaymen are still at work resurfacing Highland Avenue and one can hardly wait for the unveiling there.

Speaking of beauty, it is worth a trip downtown to see the Common—dressed in the glory of its flowering trees and shrubs, with rock garden accents and a background of velvet green. Only thing to mar the picture is the dead stump marking its northeast corner.

This week is National Hospital week—designated this year to call attention to the people involved in good hospital care. The multiplying health and life saving machines are wonderful in themselves. But they would be far less effective if there were not that important human interest ingredient which comes from those who run them. Whether one is getting a simple X-ray (usually in a room which to a small child or frightened adult looks like a torture chamber), or whether one if fighting for life with a complicated heart machine, the felt concern of a technician can make the difference. The nurses, doctors, dietitians, cooks and others one thinks of more readily. Winchester is lucky to have so fine a hospital and one with so many kindly people at work.

ROSY IS MY RELATIVE

by Gerald Durrell

Ah! Just the day for a stroll in the country with an alcoholic elephant! The situation is really forced on Adrian Rookwhistle when his uncle wills him Rosy, his pet elephant, with admonitions about her tippling. Unable to keep Rosy in the city, Adrian sets off for the seacoast, hoping to find a circus to take her. Unfortunately, horses have an unreasonable fear of elephants, and Rosy's presence upsets an entire foxhunt with Rosy twirling the huntmaster in the air as a friendly finale.

Lord Fenneltree meets Rosy and has a magnificent idea. She will be the piece de resistance at his daughter's eighteenth birthday ball. She certainly is. Somehow, she finds and finishes a bottle of rum before time for her debut. When Lord Fenneltree, riding her on a howdah, enters the ballroom, Rosy skids on the waxed parquet floor and crashes into the refreshments. Ah, more booze — wine, champagne, punch! She must entertain this appreciative audience. She tries to sit up and beg. That last bottle of champagne was a bit too much. She tries standing on her head. That doesn't work, either. Her last prat fall brings down a chandelier—lighted candles and all. Rosy mistakes the resultant uproar as applause and provides an encore by lifting Lady Fenneltree aloft and laying her gently, in her dead faint, on a cold salmon.

Black Nell, the white witch, sends the fleeing culprits to Peregrine and Samantha Filigree at The Unicorn and Harp Inn and thereby hangs quite a tale. Still aiming for the coast, Adrian eventually gets Rosy to Ethelbert Cleep and then into still more trouble (gin this time) which brings Adrian into court, where he is defended by Sir Magnus Ramping Fumitory. This is probably the funniest and quite legally logical trial on record. Sir Magnus is a clever fellow, and the outcome is foreseeable, though not in detail.

This is Gerald Durrell's first novel (may there be many more) and he claims—"Although many people will not believe me, I would like to place it on record that this is almost a true story. By this I mean that Rosy and Adrian Rookwhistle really did exist. I had the privilege of meeting Rosy myself. Nearly all the adventures described in this book really happened. I have merely embroidered and polished here and there." Rosy and her musical stomach are never to be forgotten.

In betweenc ollecting animals for zoos and writing about them (The Overloaded Ark, A Zoo in My Luggage, Two in the Bush, etc.), Gerald (as very distinct from Lawrence Durrell, his brother, who wrote The Alexandrian Quartette), must spend his time eating. I won't spoil your appetites by quoting menus, but one could gain pounds just reading them. This is altogether rare entertainment for everyone. And were did Gerald get all those lovely names?

Editor of the Star:

Since many people asked me when the azaleas and rhododendron are going to open, on Cliff Street, may I ask you to put a notice in the Star, that the peak of the blossoms will occur sometime this week of May 12-19.

Also some people inquired about the Concert of Russian Music by the Russian-Byzantine Choir. This will be held at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, 136 Tremont Street, Boston, at 4 p.m. on Sunday afternoon, May 19, and will include an organ recital by Leonid Milius.

Students

To inform parents on the program dealing with sex, drugs, and drinking, Dr. Gleason intends to seek the assistance of CONCERN in setting up small neighborhood meetings.

A pilot study of the program in the High School was recently completed with the assistance of Dr. Donald McLean.

Memorial at Lynch

The Committee voted to approve the request of the Lynch Junior High School to name the library in memory of Miss Jean B. Pittman, who died in December. Miss Pittman had served as a guidance counsellor at Lynch from the time the school opened in 1961 until her death.

Other Business

In other business William Speers appeared before the Committee to give a presentation on the policies of the Scholarship Foundation. He explained that the basic policy is to aid students with financial need during their first year of post-high school study. The Foundation seeks to encourage students who might not otherwise continue their education. No follow-up is initiated by the Foundation, but if approached, it will consider applications from students beyond their first year if funds are still available.

Before going into executive session at the close of the meeting, the Committee called for questions from Wyman parents, who numbered approximately 20. Questions came on housing for 5th and 6th graders in the Wyman district who cannot be accommodated at Wyman, and the possibilities of enlarging Wyman.

The Committee also approved several resignations and elections and awarded bids for supply items.

minister of the First Congregational Church of Waltham, moderated. Gilbert H. Hood Jr., chairman of the committee that selected Dr. Powell, delivered a paper. Dr. Powell's address came next and was followed by a brief discussion period.

The afternoon session adjourned to supper in Chidley Hall for the Association members and parishioners. Dr. Cart and his wife attended, as did Dr. Frederick M. Meek of the Old South Church, Boston, and Dr. Albert J. Penner, president of the Massachusetts Congregational Christian Conference.

The Rev. Kenneth R. Henley, associate minister of the church, convened the installation service. A symposium sermon entitled "The Shape of This Ministry" was delivered by Miles Weaver speaking on "The Layman's Expectation;" The Rt. Rev. Joseph W. Lyons, St. Eulalia's Church, on "The Ecumenical Venture;" the Rev. Richard C. Diehl, minister of Christian Education, on "The Faithful Minister;" and Rev. Allen Hackett, minister for the Metropolitan Boston Association, on "The United Church of Christ in Mission."

Mrs. Wallace McDonald, chairman of the Social Action Committee, read the Scripture and the installation prayer was delivered by Rev. Ross Cannon of the Second Church, West Newton.

Federal Agencies Offer Jobs For Summer

The Boston Interagency Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners (IAB) recently issued, in tabular form, a summary of information about "Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies." Copies are available at Room 1004, Post Office and Courthouse, Boston (phone 223-2571).

Under a nationwide plan, Federal agencies are expected to hire one summer employee to each 40 regular employees on its rolls: Naval activities plan to exceed this by hiring one to each 25. The greatest emphasis will be on jobs for financially or educationally disadvantaged youths. Interested citizens may file applications at their nearest State Employment Service Office, or at any of the cooperating employment centers. Government, civic and community organizations, and business and trade associations have joined in Boston in coordinating the intake of applicants and the equitable referral of qualified candidates to public and private job vacancies.

Under terms of a civil service examination that was open from October 17 to February 1, many summer jobs in Federal offices and laboratories will be filled from a roster of eligibles already set up at the IAB. Jobs for economically or educationally disadvantaged will be filled through referrals from the State employment service and cooperating employment centers.

Selectmen

Where to Welfare?

State Welfare District Director John Arsenault appeared before the Selectmen with Winchester Director William Supple to ask the Town to rent its present Welfare office space to the State for about three to five years beginning July 1, when the State takes over administration of the heretofore locally administered department.

Mr. Arsenault told of State plans later to establish community service centers which would house together Public Health, Mental Health, Rehabilitation and Welfare services for an area. In the meantime his department needs space in Winchester to rent as tenants at will.

The Board took this under advisement and turned to the comptroller for rental figures.

Members were concerned with the "exclusive use" request of State Welfare. They discussed in addition other places in town which might be available for this service.

Next the Board interviewed two candidates for the job of executive secretary to the Town.

Editor's Note

As the Star went to press it heard the news of the MBTA no-fare suggestion—too late to include as news or comment.

Saltmarsh: "A Stiff Price"

Sherman Saltmarsh painted a somewhat grim picture of the cost impact of the projected MBTA plans on Winchester if it is going to keep transportation going to and from Boston and points east, north and south. And he emphasized that there is so much change in this picture right now that it is very confusing.

The way things are going now, he said, "I don't think it's ever going to pay its way," And, in answer to a question from Ralph Swanson, "If people here want the service, you'll have to pay a stiff price."

He feel, however, that now that the agency controls the whole Boston area, it should be able to come up with a more efficient operation.

He reminded members that on March 30 the MBTA took active ownership of the Eastern Mass. Street Railway Company and that the assessment to the Town for this service from April 1 through October is estimated at $13,000 (arrived at by a formula which includes population figures plus mileage of runs within the town).

He reviewed that on June 30 the State subsidy of Boston and Maine railroad service expires and that the State has said it will fund no more deficits. He said that the present program before the Legislature (H 1753) would authorize the MBTA to buy the Budd cars and certain rights of way, to make improvements and to enter into operating agreements with both the Boston and Maine and New Haven Railroads.

He reported service cost assessments to Winchester under this plan projected at about $80,000 the first year. "But this could easily be more," he added.

Mr. Saltmarsh was pessimistic about the overall look and described to Selectmen some of the factors which make for operating costs among the highest in the country. Complexities of personnel organizations lead the list, with the MBTA now dealing with 20 unions and about to deal with 21 more involved with the B and M. Wage increases are spiralling. The Eastern Mass bus drivers have just been awarded $4.71 an hour. The cost of extra guards for each car is annually nine million. Much of the Boston and Maine rolling stock and equipment is in deplorable condition and also not designed for rapid transit.

In addition at the top the MBTA has a poor record—with three general managers in four years. There is no Federal aid available for operating costs and the present manager would not want it if it were.

He felt that only hope for proggress would be if the area towns get together for collective action. At present Winchester, for instance, has one vote to Boston's 73. Mr. Saltmarsh, together with Reading's representative, has demanded reviews of personnel policies and route layouts before more money is spent. But he feels others are needed to strengthen this position, and he gave this as his only answer to Chairman Doucette when pressed by him on what the community can do to affect the MBTA policies.

In answer to a hypothetical question he told Mr. Swanson that a ballot vote might take the Town out of MBTA jurisdiction—something the Town has been under since an enabling act of the Legislature in 1964. But he made clear he feels mass transportation improvements must be made for Winchester. He will report again soon to the Board.

Incinerator Costs

Superintendent of Streets Rovert O'Brien appeared before the Board to make recommendations for repairs and parts to bring the incinerator up to first class operating condition. The Board asked for the transfer of $6,743 from reserve funds and earmark $3,600 for this work.

The Board has invited Walter Armstrong and Ralph Swan, owners of Fletcher Street properties burnt in the fire of April 14, to meet with them, and planning Board and Elementary School Building Committee representatives next week.

It noted a complaint from John L. Bower of 2 Cutting Street relative to the de-barking of trees on his property. It accepted an offer of the Library Trustees that they turn over to it a marble bust of Colonel Winchester.

Larvacide Starts Mosquito Control

The first stage of Winchester's anti-mosquito program was completed on May 8 following three full days of work. According to Michael Saraco, Board of Health director, the lavacide program "went well with the excellent cooperation of the Forestry Department."

Under the supervision of Richard Horn, forestry foreman, spraying was done from north to south along the Aberjona and in other breeding places such as around Cox Pond, Dunster Lane, and Hillcrest Parkway.

Abate, an insecticide approved by the State Health Department, was used for the larvacide.

A town-wide fogging program is scheduled for some time this summer, probably in June.

In the Area– 1 Store for Every 134 Persons

Competing for the summer dollar in Middlesex County at the present time are no fewer than 9,796 retail establishments.

In terms of the local population, it means that there is a store for every 134 residents, which is more than in many sections of the country.

The facts and figures were derived principally from a national survey of retail businesses, conducted by the Department of Commerce.

The survey lists a total of 6,046 retail stores in the county that employ one or more persons.

There are also a large number of smaller stores, family-owned and operated, with no employees. Their total is estimated at 3,750.

Accidents

On Saturday, May 11, at 3 a.m., a Woburn driver, Thomas H. Hoare Jr., struck an Edison pole at the corner of Main Street and Stowell Road, causing a disruption of electrical service in the Gateway area until a repair crew replaced fuses on the pole. Police transported the driver to the Winchester Hospital with a lacerated nose.

Three accidents took place on Sunday evening. At 6 p.m. two cars facing east on High Street were involved in a collision near Westland Avenue. Police aided in taking the driver of one heavily damaged vehicle, James F. McKay of Baltimore, Maryland, and his passenger, Denise D. Masella of Medford, to the Winchester Hospital for treatment. Operator of the second vehicle, George J. Vincent of Park Street, transported his wife Ellen to the hospital, where she was treated for a slight concussion.

At 8:45 p.m. the intersection of Ridge Street and Johnson Road was the site of a collision involving Arlington and Winchester drivers. The Arlington driver, Jerome B. Tocio, was taken to the hospital with a knee abrasion, while his passenger, Mary J. Kerrigan of Lexington, underwent treatment for a possible broken sternum and a nose laceration. Operator of the Winchester vehicle, Merton Towle of 246 Ridge Street, was observed at the hospital, while his wife was treated for head injuries.

In the third accident of the rainy evening no injuries were reported. Reports show that Albert J. Christo of Woburn, who was travelling north on Main Street, and Rebecca Dattilo of 9 Alben Street, who was proceeding east on Church Street, collided at 10 p.m. at the Mt. Vernon Street intersection. The force of the impact forced the Dattilo vehicle to skid into a building. The car was towed from the scene.

Two Sunday mishaps occurred within moments of each other. At 8:15 p.m. Peter F. Judge of 9 Stone Avenue knocked down a tree in front of a Loring Avenue home as he reportedly tried to avoid a dog which had run in front of the car. The car, whose front was extensively damaged, was towed.

At 8:20 p.m. two residents, Stephen J. Dunn of 6 Fernway and Frances A. Equi of Taft Circle were involved in an accident at the intersection of Canal and Middlesex Street. No injuries were reported at the time.

PAMELA GOODWIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Goodwin Jr. of 14 Highland Avenue, will deliver the valedictory address at the Wyndham School graduation on May 26. Miss Goodwin, who has been on the dean's list for two successive years, plans to join the staff of Attorney General Elliot Richardson.

third in the first aid contest. This troop also had a 25-foot high signalling tower the boys built during the afternoon as part of their pioneering demonstration.

In Cub Scout events, Pack 509, George Washington School, Gill Livingstone, cubmaster, fielded Den 2 whose members outran all other packs in the Dizzy-Izzy contest and came in with the blue ribbon. In the Cub Scout once-around-the-track race, Tim Waite came in third to give Pack 509 their second award of the day.

Lincoln Mothers Association—sponsored Pack 511, Tom Knapp, cubmaster, brought home third prize in the shoe tying contest.

VFW to Sell Buddy Poppies

Buddy Poppies will be sold on the streets of Winchester on May 17 and 18. Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 3719 and Auxiliary officers have expressed a desire to make this year's sale the "biggest in modern times."

They pointed out that "today, with boys fighting in Vietnam we are reminded of our obligation to help those who gave, and are today giving, so much on our Nation's battlefields."

They added that the continued high cost of living is placing an increased burden on disabled and needy veterans and on those who are attempting to serve them. "Those who buy and wear Buddy Poppies will make a substantial contribution to this worthy cause. It is hoped," said these V.F.W. leaders "that our citizens will contribute generously, and help us remember hundreds of orphans in our National Home in Eaton Rapids, Michigan."

The appointment of Lawrence B. Harrington, post service officer as chairman of the sale has been announced by Commander John P. Welch, of the Aberjona post. Announcement was also made of the appointment of Mrs. Lee Luongo as Auxiliary chairman.

The Engine Is Dead, Long Live The Engine!

THIS SPANKING NEW DIESEL-POWERED TRIPLE-COMBINATION FIRE ENGINE - Engine 2 - is getting ready to displace the Town's old Engine 2, still in service but preparing for retirement. The Fire Chief, Frank Amico, reports himself "more than satisfied" with the new truck, voted by the Town Meeting of 1967. A centrifugal pumping wagon which includes ladder and hose, it was designed to pump 1,000 gallons per minute. Recent tests showed it doing 25% over this. Its official acceptance by the Town and displacement of its predecessor will come after all Fire Department officers and men have been completely trained and oriented to its use and handling. Change in Place For Saturday's Learning Problem Area Conference

The Massachusetts Association for Children with Learning Disabilities has been forced by attendance interest to change its all day Saturday conference to a larger place.

It is now planned to be at the Keith Junior High School on Hathaway Boulevard in New Bedford rather than in South Dartmouth.

According to Mrs. Herbert Jaffee, Winchester chapter president (729-7189), the conference will highlight teacher training opportunities and summer help for the perceptually handicapped child and will have in addition to panel discussions a resource room and a special consultant service.

Winchester parents of children for whom next year's Winchester schools program for the perceptually handicapped has been recommended, last week received letters from William Clark, acting superintendent. The letters stated that their son or daughter "has been tentatively diagnosed as having some degree of perceptual handicap which might interfere with his/her educational program," and asked if the parents wished to have the child considered for the local class.

Many of these parents are planning the trip to New Bedford for the conference Saturday.

Harpsichordist To Play Friday For Arts Center

A program of harpsichord music to benefit the maintenance fund of the new Winchester Center for the Creative Arts will be presented by Ruby Reid on Friday, May 24, at 8 p.m. at Lynch Junior High School.

Miss Reid, a native of Chile, has performed as a pianist and as a harpsichordist in solo and chamber group programs both in the United States and in Latin Amercia. In Winchester she will play Couperin's Septieme Ordre, Bach's Toccata in C Minor, William Byrd's the Passinge Measures and Scarlatti's Four sonatas.

In 1962 Miss Reid received a Fulbright Scholarship to the University of Kansas. In 1965 she received the Organization of American States Scholarship to Yale University to study music. She is presently a candidate for the master of music degree at Yale and beginning in July she will be professor of harpsichord and baroque music at the Conservatory Nacional de Musica, University of Chile.

Members of the Winchester Music Club will usher at the concert. Tickets at a very reasonable price are being sold by the Music Club members and may also be obtained from Mrs. Marshall Kincaid, 729-6444.

Hospital Commends Its Personnel In Honor of Hospital Week

People who contribute to patient care are being spotlighted during this week's observance of National Hospital Week by Winchester Hospital.

Theme for the week is "Your Hospital—People Caring for People," according to Reese E. James, administrator here.

"In recent years," Mr. James said, "the public's attention has been focused on the tremendous technological advances hospitals have made in patient care. Certainly, new and sophisticated machines and techniques have helped immeasurably, but unfortunately it is too often forgotten that human hands must operate the machines, and that technology is useless without technologists."

Mr. James pointed out that in the average community hospital, the skills and knowledge of 261 persons are needed to provide care for each 100 patients.

"In short," he said, "we nedd nearly three employees to care for each patient admitted to Winchester Hospital."

Mr. James added that there are more than 200 job classifications within a hospital's walls, ranging from accountant to x-ray technician. Others are laboratory technician, engineer, laundry worker, houskeeper, maintenance worker, dietitian, cook, kitchen helper, purchasing agent, therapist, pharmacist, chaplain, personnel officer, clerk, medical record librarian, and social and welfare worker.

"While the personnel filling these job classifications very in background, education and skills," Mr. James said, "they have a common goal—better patient care—and a firm belief that a hospital is truly people caring for people."

National Hospital Week, sponsored by the American Hospital Association, is celebrated annually to emphasize the vital community role played by the more than 7,000 hospitals throughout the nation. This year, the observance begins on the birthday of Florence Nightingale, whose efforts led to the establishment of the first hospital schools of nursing.

Dr. Francis W. Sennott is serving as a 25th reunion gift committee member for the Class of 1943 (March graduates) at Tufts University School of Medicine annual reunion program in Boston on May 10-12.

WHY STERLING?
Sterling, or solid silver, is a precious metal that lasts forever. Centuries of women have presided proudly over tables set with sterling. There has never been — and is not today — any substitute for its presence on your table. Sterling is unmistakable; it has a warmth which is more appropriate than even gold or platinum for the subtle elegance of fine tableware.
CHOOSING YOUR PATTERN
Selecting your sterling pattern is an exciting and important step in every girl's life. Perhaps you'll be shopping for the first time for your very own home! Starting your silver service is a wise investment for the future. Remember, you can use your silver every day — for the rest of your life — so it should be a pattern you truly love — one that expresses your personality.
We invite the Graduate or Bride-to-be to look at silver and to discover the advantages of our club plans and Bridal Registry Service. Among the fine lines of silver we carry are Gorham, Lundt, Reed & Barton, Wallace, Towle, International, Stieff, Heirloom & Frank Smith.

Professional Quality Is Mark Of Unitarian Players' "Odd Couple"

by Roger Foskett

Undoubtedly one of the finest comedies to come to us from Broadway in recent years is Neil Simon's play "The Odd Couple," which was presented last Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Metcalf Hall by the Winchester Unitarian Players. Directed with his customary sure touch by Robert Storer, the play kept near full houses roaring with laughter from first curtain to last.

The story concerns Oscar Madison and his friend Felix Ungar, both of whom are separated from their wives. Oscar, generous, open hearted and lonely, invites the downcast Felix to share his apartment with him. They soon find, however, that their very different housekeeping habits make life together almost unbearable. Oscar is casual and disorganized, gambles away his wife's alimony, drops his cigar butts on the carpet and breakfasts off cold cuts and cookies. Felix is cautious and tidy, insists on their eating at home to save money, washes the ash trays before he goes to bed and cooks up a whirlwind in the kitchen.

It rapidly becomes more and more apparent why their wives left them and the situation really blows up when Felix sabotages a double date that Oscar has carefully planned with a pair of girls who live in the same apartment building. Oscar throws Felix out, pots, pans and feather duster, only to learn that he has been taken in by the same two Pigeon sisters, who have found him pathetically and irresistibly in need of protection and mothering.

The relationship between the two men as they gradually reveal their mutually irritating characteristics provides openings for a thousand brilliantly amusing lines, and if the humor is sometimes a little slapstick and camp, the audience was in far too happy a mood to complain.

Top Star Performances

The two principal parts were played with great conviction by Frank Thayer (Oscar) and Jim Dorsey (Felix). Both of these roles represent tours de forces, the characters being on stage throughout practically the whole play. Frank Thayer has been seen in many productions in Winchester, most recently in the Unitarian Players' productions "The Enchanted" and "That Certain Age," but this must rank as one of his finest performances.

For Jim Dorsey, on the other hand, this was a first venture on stage, which makes his strong and believable character drawing all the more remarkable. He moved about the stage with an easy assurance, and is certainly a valuable addition to the acting talent of the area.

Much of the work of setting the background to the story fell to Oscar's poker playing buddies, Speed, Murray, Roy and Vinnie, played by Dick Barnard, Dick Wilcox, Gene Pollard and Cecil Prest. These four old hands offered us their usual delightful acting and passed the dialogue and business backwards and forwards with such ease that it was a joy to watch.

Later in the play we met Gwendolyn and Cecily in the shape of Mary Klug and Ann Carrigan, who succeeded in making their characters into two of the most giggly and feather-brained English girls imaginable. They both fully deserved the round of applause they received upon their exit.

Much of the great success of the play, after the skillful writing and direction, must go to a group whose praises are rarely sung—the casting committee. Everyone in the cast was clearly hand picked for the part and was able to fit into his adopted character as though he had known him all his life. The timing and pace were in general well maintained, although in a few places we lost good lines which were spoken through the laughter of the audience.

The setting made a considerable contribution to the overall effect; the choice of Kathy Chipman and Bob Magnusen of a predominantly orange motif, a skyline backdrop and well chosen furnishings transported the audience immediately to Oscar's New York apartment on a hot summer evening. Honorable mention should also go to the prop girls, Peg Magnusen, Gladys West and Beth Foskett, who accomplished the Herculian task of clearing away hundreds of properties between acts; and to the sound effects crew, Steve Funk, Garry Patrick and Ted Knowlton, for their quite indescribable achievements in act 1.

Costuming, by Carol McIntosh and make-up by Pauline DeSimone put a perfect finishing touch to the whole picture.

This was overall a production of professional quality and all who saw it received a bargain. It must have been very gratifying to all connected with this production that such an excellent audience attended each performance. But were they not perhaps just a little disappointed that the support for community theater of this quality is not more consistent and that plays of more substance are frequently so poorly attended?

Cadillac Standard of the World
Cadillac Motor Car Division

Your new car may be the most important family decision you'll make this year.
To be sure you make the right choice, talk to your Cadillac dealer before you decide.
As a specialist in luxury motoring, your Cadillac dealer has some interesting things to say about quality and value in a new car.
The brilliant 1968 Cadillac gives him plenty to talk about. Quality abounds in the spacious, lavishly appointed interiors, in the smooth, quiet ride and in the solidity of Cadillac construction.
These Cadillac qualities are universally recognized. Year after year, Cadillac returns a greater portion of its original cost at resale than any other car built in the land. Major advancements this year, such as a totally new 472 V-8 engine (largest V-8 ever to power a production passenger car), further assure a high resale value.
There's no better time than now to talk quality and value with your Cadillac dealer. Your selection of models may never be better; your present car may never be worth more. See him before you decide.

Broader Programs Are Asked For Mental Health

"Mental health groups must work with others towards the alleviation of pressing social problems such as poverty, violence, and racial tensions," said Dr. Leston Havens at a meeting at 10 Everett Avenue recently.

"This will involve working closely with planning councils, model city programs, and a host of other community agencies. In the mental health field, there is a need for closer working relationships with other voluntary groups such as the associations for mentally retarded children."

Dr. Havens, principal psychiatrist of the Massachusetts Mental Health Center and associate professor of psychiatry at the Harvard Medical School, was speaking to a large group of citizen leaders and campaign workers of the MAMH at a kick-off meeting for the annual Bell Ringer Drive for that group. The home of Governor Volpe was the site of the meeting and the wife of the Attorney General, Mrs. Elliot Richardson is co-chairman of the drive.

Several representatives of the Winchester Mental Health Association were present in addition to the hostess, Mrs. John A. Volpe. The group here is an associate of the MAMH through its parent association, the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association.

The Mystic Valley Mental Health Association met last night at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church for a dinner annual meeting at which Philip Isneberg, administrative director of the Columbia Point Health Center was speaker discussing, "Mental Health Issues Raised by the Neighborhood Health Center."

At the meeting at the Volpe home Dr. Havens lauded the efforts of the citizens' groups in greatly increasing public understanding and sensitivity of the mental health problem. But he asked for an end to the traditional isolationism of agency effort. "Our programs must be seen as part of a whole network of comprehensive community services relating to housing, employment, education, and the total needs of the community," he emphasized.

Mystic Mothers To View Children Doing Exercises

Students in the first three grades at Mystic School are preparing a physical fitness program which will be given at the annual meeting of the Mystic Mothers Association on Tuesday, May 21, at 9:30 a.m.

Mrs. Gale Montgomery, physical education specialist in the elementary schools, has been working with the children almost every day on a program showing exercises which they enjoy and also are good for body building.

The new slate of officers for 1968-69 will also be read at the meeting.

For the physical fitness program the first grades will show the exploration of movement with Miss McClusky's class doing ball handling to music and Mrs. Dyer's class performing "A Bear Hibernating," a story play to music.

The second graders in Miss Cumming's room will do tumbling and in Miss Littlefield's will do stunts.

The third graders in Mrs. Dyson's and Mrs. Layzer's rooms will combine to perform a square dance to "Just Because," a folk dance called a Jessie Polka and rope jumping to music. Mrs. White's third graders will perform exercises to music, pyramid building, and a specialty number.

The 25 members of the sixth grade science class at Mystic School presented exhibits and demonstrations at the annual science show which culminated the year of science study. Parents and friends were invited to visit the displays on Friday evening, May 3, and the other classes observed the experiments during the school day.

The displays were set up in the Mystic School auditorium and included a little village with lighted houses and street lights illustrating electricity flow, manufacture and testing of carbon dioxide and oxygen, and illustration of the energy of expanding liquids. Games and tricks using the principles of electricity, jet propulsion, light reflection, and static electricity were also done by the students. Projects were supervised by teacher Miss Margaret Millican.

Marycliff Girls Join in Test

Recently nine sophomores from Marycliff Academy participated in the Know — English contest sponsored by the New England Classical Association. For several weeks the girls prepared for the test by studying Latin root words and derivatives. Mrs. John Colsun, Latin teacher, was the student moderator.

The girls from Winchester who took the examination were Joanne Martignette and Martha Bonneville. Prize winners will be announced before the end of the school year.

Marycliff reports that Mary Piantedosi of Winchester, a senior, should have been included in the first place winners in the 16th Archdiocesan Art Fair. Also Jane Cannava of Winchester won a first prize — not a second prize for her papier-mache elephant.

Artists Reminded to Prepare Works For Sidewalk Art Show June 8

Amateur and professional artists are encouraged to exhibit their works at the Art Association Sidewalk Show, on Saturday, June 8 (June 22 in case of rain).

Works in any medium are invited from residents of Winchester and the surrounding towns. Pictures will be hung along the fence at the High School, bordering Manchester Field. The public will be admitted without charge.

Artists may register with the committee any time after 9 a.m. on June 8, and then hang their own works. A small registration fee entitles the artist to exhibit as many works as he wishes. Pictures should be equipped with loops or hooks for hanging.

Crafts Return

After an absence of two years, crafts again will be included in the show. Individuals wishing to exhibit in this category are requested to contact Mrs. Robert Johnson at 729-3112 immediately, so that suitable arrangements can be made for their display. At the artists' discretion, all pictures and crafts may be offered for sale at a price self designated. A commission from the sale of each picture is retained by the Association to help support its scholarship program.

Children's art works will also be included in the show. There is no registration fee for children, but none of their entries will be sold.

Raffle

Two pictures donated by local artists will be raffled at the show for which chances are being sold in stores here on Fridays and Saturdays prior to the show. Proceeds will benefit the Winchester Cultural Center Fund. "Winters Down East," an oil painting by George Carpenter of Ogunquit, Maine and "Early Winters," a watercolor by Joseph Santoro, are the two works which will be awarded at the show.

Co-chairmen of this year's Sidewalk Art Show are Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Brown. Further information about the show can be obtained from them at 729-0862.

Rico Petrocelli's announcement that he was quitting baseball in 1969 has reverberated not only throughout the baseball world, but also the world of business. Here are some samplings of opinion from both:

Said Horace H. Holzhacker of Holzhacker Mutual Fund: "Such integrity, such singlemindedness of purpose would be an asset to our organization. We are willing to hire him at a generous $100 a week."

Mr. Marcantonio of the Marcantonio Construction Co.: "Rico strong boy. I give him one-twenty-five."

J. B. J.: "I don't believe it. It's too incredible to believe. But if he does go through with it, he'll make a believer out of me, and that takes some doing! We'll hire him as liaison man to close the Credibility Gap."

A spokesman for the other shortstops in the Red Sox farm system: "Oh, boy! We agree 100% with his decision and hope he sticks to it."

Ted Williams: "A wise decision. You will recall that I, too, quit baseball, at the tender age of 41."

Mickey Mantle: "Rico's decision has strengthened my resolve to quit playing baseball. 1992 will positively be my last year."

Tom Yawkey: "Franks and beans will absolutely ruin Rico's digestion. He'll have to go back on a diet of filet mignon, lobster, and charcoal-broiled steaks—and baseball."

Don Buddin: "Aw, he's not much of a shortstop anyway."

"Pats Talk," which appears in the Star sports section this week, quotes Harold Kaese of the Globe, who notes that the Boston Chamber of Commerce estimates how much large Red Sox attendance helps business, and wonders why such business does not buy low-yield bonds to build a stadium. We certainly wonder along with Kaese, and in our further wonderings, wonder why the Chamber, which represents Boston business, does a little less talking and show a lot more action in getting Boston businessmen together to work on a bond issue. Further, how about diverting some of that hotel tax money, which is supposed to promote tourism and which is in large part being diverted to the paying of salaries of other government departments, to help in the planning of a stadium. With the city using its power to get the land necessary for a stadium and business furnishing the capital, the stadium could be on the road to reality.

Town Tennis Tournament Starts This Weekend

Beginning Saturday May 25th at 9:30 a.m., the Winchester Tennis Association will sponsor its 38th annual "Spring Get-Acquainted Draw Doubles Tournament" and "Family Doubles Tournament."

There will be events in men's doubles, ladies doubles, and mixed doubles, and prizes will be awarded to winners and runners-up in all events.

The tournament is open to all residents and employees of the Town of Winchester, and it is sponsored annually by the Winchester Tennis Association in an effort to introduce the many new players to one another, and to offer competitive play at the tournament level. It is important to note that all ages and abilities are represented from novice to expert, and the newer players have as good a chance of winning as do the more experienced players.

The entry procedure for the draw doubles events is to submit one's name and indicate the events one wishes to compete in. The tournament committee will then select partners at random. In the family doubles event, one selects one's own partner—wife, husband, brother, cousin, etc.—and submits the name of the team to the tournament committee.

Entry blanks may be procured at the Palmer Street courts from the court supervisor Mr. Gray, or entries may be telephoned directly to tournament chairman, Bill Macneill, at 729-3576 evenings, or at LA 3-4280 extension 64 days, or tournament co-chairman George Blair at 729-2917 evenings only.

Entry fees are 50 cents per event for adults, and 25 cents for children.

The tournament will commence at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, May 25th, and will continue on Sunday, Thursday, May 30 (Memorial Day), and the weekend of June 1st and 2nd, if necessary.

Lacrosse Team Drops Newton, Thompson Acad.

Coach Gene Bouley's lacrosse squad bounced back from their defeat at the hands of Governor Dummer Academy and came up with two victories on two successive days last week Tuesday and Wednesday, beating Newton 6-3 and Thompson Academy 4-1.

The victory over Newton avenged a much-discussed 2-2 deadlock which the two teams had played to on their first meeting three weeks ago. Winchester had control of both the ball and the scoring this time, and only late in the game, with the Sachem varsity sitting out, could the Newton team post their tallies to make their loss respectable. Senior midfielder Bob Penna led the Winchester scoring surge with four goals. Crease attackman John Pirani and co-captain Ted Webb scored one apiece.

Penna was the leading scorer in the Thompson Academy game also. He shoveled in two goals off assists from his fellow midfielders, Hank Cushman and Bullet Allard. Pirani also picked up another goal, as did junior attackman Jim Barry.

There was very little finesse in the contest, as the Thompson Academy squad fielded five players bigger than the Sachems' 6'1" 210 lb. crease attackman, John Pirani. After the game, the Thompson Academy coach commented that the Winchester club was the first team that did not hesitate to trade checks with his hard-charging linemen.

Lacrossemen Beat Winchendon At HS Field 6-5

Winchester High's high-flying lacrosse squad played its best-executed and most exciting game of the season in defeating a visiting Winchendon School 6-5 before a crowd of over 100 Boy Scouts and assorted Sachem fans at Manchester Field. There was no outstanding performer for Winchester. The whole team played an excellent game.

Attackmen Jim Barry, Cliff Letty, Don Daniels, and Bob Giamattei ran many fine plays, while midfielders Henry Cushman, Bill Allard, Bob Penna, Ernie Guarino, Mark Collins, and Al Scalingi got together to play an efficient game of ball control.

The defense, composed of co-captains Ted Webb and John Wisbach, Dick Kimball, Jeff Lindberg, and sophomore goalie Mark Stabile, came through with many important clears, and at the same time managed to limit the league's highest scorer, Winchendon's John Richardson, to only one goal.

Winchester goals were scored by Henry Cushman (3), Bob Penna (2), and Cliff Letty (1). The two clubs will meet again in the last contest of the season; the Sachems will travel to Winchendon for the game on June 1.

Drop-In Election

Tedd Webb, outgoing president of the Winchester Youth Organization, Incorporated, reminds all student members and all interested parents that the group will hold its first annual meeting in the High School auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, May 20.

Officers for both the student board of directors and the adult advisory board will be elected for 1968-69. Plans and problems of the Drop-In Center will be discussed. Ted urges that all attend.

Snakebeaters Top Framingham S. 5-2

Junior attackman Jim Barry scored two goals in pacing Winchester's streaking lacross team to a 5-2 victory over Framingham South on Monday. The win was the squad's fourth in as many games, and it boosted the Bouleymen's record to 5-2-1 for the season.

Although the Sachems gave their opponents a sound beating, they will have to come up with a better game Friday to beat a tough Rivers School squad. Winchester seemed a bit overconfident after its big victory over Winchendon Saturday, but Coach Bouley snapped the team back to business as soon as the rookie Framingham South team began to control the ball.

The Sachems' performance was mediocre over all, but co-captain Ted Webb and junior midfielder Bill Allard provided a few highlights to the contest, as they each sidestepped onrushing Framingham South players, sending their opponents careening to the turf.

Joining Barry in the scoring column for Winchester were senior midfielder Henry Cushman, Allard, and sophomore attackman Cliff Letty with one goal apiece.

Surrounding The Enemy On Manchester Field

WHS LACROSSEMEN Webb, Kimball and Barry close in on a Winchendon forward in Saturday's thriller here — down by their own goal, defended by Mark Stabile. The home team defeated Winchendon 6-5 and now stands 5-2-1 in its season. They meet Rivers School of Dedham here tomorrow. (Ryerson photo)

Fitzgerald Notches Fifth Straight As Melrose Errors Add To 6-2 Win

Senior right-hander Mark Fitzgerald pitched his way to his fifth consecutive Middlesex League victory, as Winchester High's batsmen bounced back from their defeat at the hands of Concord to beat Melrose High last Friday in Melrose.

Fitzgerald held the Red Raiders to four hits, as he pitched his third complete game, striking out eight while walking three. In the first meeting between the two clubs, the Sachems lost 4-1.

Winchester jumped on the Melrose starter, Nels Nelson, for three runs in the first inning.

Tom Flaherty led off with a base on balls. Peter Knight then placed a bunt single down the third base line, sending Flaherty to second. Nelson settled down momentarily, and struck out Bill Wolfe. But the tall left-hander then walked Toby Harvey on five pitches, loading the bases for Jack Papadinis.

Papadinis, like Wolfe, became a victim of Nelson's curve ball, and his strike out left sophomore catcher Steve Swanson at the plate, with the bases loaded and two out. Swanson worked Nelson for his third walk of the inning, and Flaherty came home with the first Winchester run. Knight then scored on a passed ball, which sent Harvey to third. Mike Gilberti then rapped a grounder to the Melrose shortstop which he bobbled momentarily, allowing Harvey to score and putting Gilberti on first. Tom Wolfe then fanned, ending the inning.

Melrose pushed a run across in the third on an error, a walk, and a single. But the Sachems came back for two more runs in the fifth.

Swanson Again

Knight went to first on a walk, to lead off the inning. Bill Wolfe then struck out, but not before Knight was able to reach second on a throwing error by the Melrose pitcher. Harvey batted after Wolfe, and singled to center, scoring Knight and moving to second himself on the throw home. Swanson then picked up his second RBI of the afternoon, as he doubled Harvey home after Papadinis had bounced to the second baseman.

Leading 5-1, the Sachems scored their final run in the sixth. Gilberti led off with a walk (Nelson put himself in a hole by walking the lead-off man in three innings—Winchester scored in each of the three), then Tom Wolfe and Fitzgerald hit back-to-back singles. With the bases loaded, Tom Flaherty drilled a grounder down the third base line, which the Melrose fielder booted, scoring Gilberti from third.

Melrose scored once more—in the seventh, on a walk and a double. But Fitzgerald settled down, and put the rest of the side out in order, ending the game with Winchester on top 6-2.

J V's Win 8th

The J. V.'s remained undefeated, as Bruce Mullen and George Greenwhich combined to pitch the Frenchmen to their eighth consecutive victory.

Streak Halted As WHS Downed

Coach Bill Colella's red hot baseball squad's three-game winning streak was halted last Wednesday by Concord High at the Patriots' home field.

Dave Baker, Concord's hard-throwing southpaw hurler, held the Sachems to five hits, as he went the distance, striking out seven and walking just two Winchester batters.

The game was highlighted by the successful return of junior leftfielder Pete Knight to the Sachem lineup. Knight went two-for-three, playing in his first contest since April 22, when he fractured a rib versus Melrose.

The Sachems were trailing 1-0 going into their half of the sixth. The Patriots had scored an unearned run in the fourth to pull ahead. Junior right-fielder Joe Fiumara reached on a walk to lead-off the inning. Al Ingraham, the Winchester pitcher, then struck out, attempting to move Fiumara to second with a sacrifice bunt. Junior Tom Flaherty had more luck, as he successfully sacrificed Fiumara into scoring position.

That brought sophomore shortstop Bill Wolfe to the plate. Wolfe, who had struck out twice before, had two quick strikes called against him. But on the next pitch, he lofted a fly deep into center field which landed 20 feet behind the Concord fielder, and went for the Sachems' first home run of the season.

Trailing 2-1, Concord scored four runs in their half of the sixth, and went on to hold Winchester scoreless in the seventh, for a 5-2 victory. The four Patriot runs came on two opposite-field singles, three walks, one costly Sachem error, and a ground single between first and second.

The defeat dropped Winchester's record to 4-3, as the Sachems completed their first trip around the ML circuit; the game marked the half-way point in the season. The J. V.'s, under Coach Evander French, had better luck, as they beat their opponents, running their undefeated streak to seven straight contests.

Wakefield High Tops Trackmen In Last ML Meet

Coach Roger Rawden's track squad lost its last Middlesex League contest by a score of 83-48 to visiting Waekfield High last Tuesday here in Winchester. The defeat dropped the Sachems' record in the League to 3-4.

The Wakefield meet also marked the first time this year that senior co-captain Greg Cronin has met his match in either the 100 or 220-yard dashes.

Cronin fell victim in each of these events to Wakefield's state indoor 300-yard dash champion, Ken Doherty. Doherty won the 100 in 10.3s and the 220 in 22.7s; Cronin was second in both races.

The Sachems' other co-captain, senior Dave Carpenter, was Winchester's high scorer for the meet. Carpenter posted 13 points, winning the javelin and low hurdles, while placing second in the broad jump.

Senior Chris Halverson continued to be Winchester's stand-out performer in the field events. For the fifth time in seven outings, Halverson captured first place honors in both the shot put and discus.

However, Wakefield's over-all strength was too much for the injury-ridden Sachems, as the Warriors took nine of the fourteen first places, and the relay. Winchester scored only eight points out of a possible thirty-six in the distance events (440, 880, mile, 2-mile). The eight points came on senior Tom Spang's victory in the 2-mile, and senior Bob McClellan's second place finish in the mile.

Sachems Place 7th in State Relays With a 3rd in 440, 5th in 880

Winchester High's four-man relay squad placed in two of the five events in the Class 'C' division of the Belmont State Relays held last Saturday, posting four points, and finishing in seventh position. The Sachem quartet, composed of junior Joe Bonasera, and seniors Greg Cronin, Dave Carpenter, and Chris Izzo, placed third in the 440-yard relay, and fifth in the 880-yard race in registering their points.

Winchester's time for the 440 was 47.7 seconds; Falmouth High won the race in 46.6 seconds. The Sachems' time in the 880 was 1:37.2; Falmouth was again the victor, with a 1:35.7 clocking.

Bonasera, as many Sachem football fans will remember, was a fleet-footed halfback on first-year Coach Manny Marshall's 1967 squad. Bonasera is co-captain-elect of the 1968 team, and he has been a stand-out runner on Winchester's regular relay squad all season. Cronin and Carpenter are the present co-captains of the spring track team. Cronin is the Winchester High School record-holder in the 440, and defending Middlesex League champion in the 100. Carpenter has been the Sachems' most versatile performer. He is defending ML champ in the low hurdles, and he has scored consistently for Coach Roger Rawden in the javelin and the broad jump.

Senior speedster Chris Izzo has also been a steady scorer for the Sachems. His outstanding performances in the 100 and 220 throughout the season have been somewhat overlooked because of the accomplishments of his teammate, Greg Cronin. Izzo has scored 23 points this season, and he has finished second to Cronin on no fewer than six occasions.

Among the six teams which placed above Winchester were two Middlesex League entries: Stoneham (third place, with 11 points) and Belmont (fifth place, with 8 points). Wakefield, meanwhile, captured first place in the Class 'B' division for the sixth straight year, with 28 points. Melrose and Reading did not compete in the Relays, as they were entered in the ninth annual Andover Boosters Invitational Track Meet. Melrose finished second, with 48½ points, while Reading was fourth, with 23½ in that contest.

Four Here Spark '68 Crew At Belmont Hill

A good part of this year's much improved Belmont Hill School crew is made up of boys from Winchester.

In the first boat are David Sidebotham of 17 Indian Hill Road and former resident Bruce Buchanan. In the second boat are Paul Martin of 21 Dartmouth Street and Andrew Porter of 9 Lawson Road. And in the third boat is Jay Broadhurst of 18 Glen Road.

In the regular season the school has defeated the first two boats from Exeter and Groton's second boat. In the tri-school Ducey Cup race it defeated the favorite, Browne and Nichols, and pressed strong Noble and Greenough in every race. It finished second, with even higher hopes for next year.

Top Honors To Moose

SOI Men's Bowling Banquet Awards Honors To Many

The men's annual bowling banquet was held recently on Saturday evening, April 27th. This year the league had 135 bowlers which made up 26 bowling teams, due to the increase in new Lodge members. The affair started off with a social hour followed by a catered meal. Brother Bob Fiore had the duty of saying Grace before the meal was served.

Chairman of the Sports Committee Moose Bellino opened by introducing Frank Provinzano as master of ceremonies. Frank next introduced the Venerable of the men's Lodge, William Fiore.

Before getting into the awards Venerable Fiore spent some time exhorting members to help at and attend the Youth Center-sponsored Monte Carlo night held recently and reminded them of the SOI Blood Bank Day which took place yesterday. He especially reminded that members and non-members are welcome at that time and of what a "great feeling it is to be able to get in touch with the blood committee or the Venerable and have ones blood need filled."

Many Awards

Venerable Fiore then gave out the Volpe Awards which went to: Richard Riga for High Average (114.3); Frank Gangi for High Triple (408); Richard Giacalone for High Single (163); and a special award to Moose Bellino who bowled at least 300 every week.

Secretary of the sports committee was next introduced by the m. c. and Richard Tofuri came forward to give out awards to Jake Ciarcia who had 3 strikes in a row on two different dates and awards each to Gaspare Lentine and to Moose Bellino who each had 3 strikes in a row.

Frank Provinzano introduced Vi Bruno, Venerable of the Women's Lodge, who congratulated the award winners and also thanked the sports committee for the invitation to the banquet.

The first place American League and bowling league champs were next to be introduced and to receive their jackets and trophies. They were Bob Fiore, Joe Ciarcia Sr., Jake Ciracia, Mike Colucci, and Frank Dattilo. The first place winners of the National League next introduced to come to receive their gifts were Tony Saraco, Larry D'Onofrio, Tony Perritano, Richie DeMinico, and Jim Gangi, and they are the "Cowboys."

The American League 2nd place team (Indians), 3rd place (White Sox), 4th place (Yankees) and also the 5th National League team (Chiefs) were also introduced and given their awards.

Next introduced were special invited guests: President of the Aberjona Civic Association and Mrs. Joe Paonessa; John Gattineri who donated the bowling score cards; Fred Caggiano of the gift committee; Jay Camaratta, the bowling league scorekeeper and Mrs. Camaratta; Gus Baldacci, SOI publicity director and Mrs. Baldacci; Moose Bellino, chairman of the sports committee and Mrs. Bellino; Paul Lentine, treasurer of the sports committee and Mrs. Lentine; Armond Lucarelli, the men's District Deputy, and Mrs. Lucarelli.

That famous mystery writer of the bowling column during the season was next to be announced and a special gift went to Jay Camaratta.

Sicialian Flood Relief

Our own Bob Fiore who is a grand trustee on the Grand Council was asked to come to the mike to speak. Bob introduced his wife Peggy and then spoke a few words on the Sicialian Flood Relief Program and told that the Grand Lodge is in a present drive for donations.

The chairman of the Grand Lodge Sports Commission Romeo Pascarelli then presented a trophy to Moose Bellino which is to be given out by the golf committee at the end of the golf league's playoffs. Mr. Pascarelli gave this trophy because of all the help and donations extended to him by the Winchester lodge during the course of his duties on the Sports Commission. Mrs. Pascarelli was asked to stand as she is the chairman of the Grand Lodge Committee on Education.

Selectman and Mrs. Paul Amico were next introduced. Paul extended the best wishes from the Board of Selectmen and of the Town of Winchester. He congratulated the award winners and the sports committee for a very wonderful bowling banquet, and wished them continued success for the future.

The special stewards for the evenings' affair were next asked to stand and they were Dom Provinzano, Frank DiMambro, and Andrew (Jeep) Giacalone.

M. C. then congratulated all the award winners and all in attendence for the fine attention given him and the speakers. He next introduced Mr. and Mrs. Dom Suppa who were to give out the annual SOI Andrew (Dippy) Diapella Memorial Sportsmanship Trophy, this award stands for one who is thoughtful, respectful, inspiring, courteous, self restraining, exhibiting fair play, and cooperative and who shows a good representative of our SOI. This award is voted on only by the past recievers of the trophy.

The trophy was given to Dom Suppa who in turn took off the tape which covered the name of Anthony (Moose) Bellino, who received the congratulations of all present.

The formal part of the program having come to a conclusion the sports committee had to rearrange the hall for dancing which was then enjoyed until 1:00 a.m.

Batsmen Shut Out By Reading 4-0

Winchester High's baseball squad was knocked out of second place in the Middlesex League Monday, as the visiting Reading Rockets handed the Sachems their first shut out defeat of the year. Sophomore Dave Merrullo, the Rockets' righ-handed hurler, yielded only two hits, while striking out six and walking one.

The loss also marked Winchester's throwing ace Mark Fitzgerald's first defeat of the Middlesex League season. The senior right-hander is now 5-1.

Reading scored once in each of the first two innings, and twice in the final stanza. Fitzgerald threw for the first and second, giving up the two runs on five hits. He was relieved by Ken Cooper, who was very effective for the final five innings. Cooper yielded two runs on four hits, striking out four and walking two. Neither Winchester pitcher received much support from his teammates, as the Sachems committed three errors, and could muster no offense whatsoever.

The two Winchester hits came off the bats of two sophomore starters. Third baseman Mike Gilberti poked a single to right-center in the second, and catcher Steve Swanson blooped another single over third base in the seventh.

The defeat dropped Winchester's record to 5-4 in the ML, but the team is still very much in the League race. The victory upped the Rockets season slate to 6-3.

Coach Vandy French's J. V.'s won their contest, and remained undefeated for the year.

Billy MacNeill Does It Again— This Time Indoors

William E. MacNeill of 37 Calumet Road emerged both singles and doubles champion in the end of the season contract members' tournament at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center. MacNeill combined with John A. Tarbell Jr. of Lexington to gain the doubles crown.

In achieving his sweep Bill had to dispose of another prominent Winchester player, veteran Dick Kadesch of 15 Mayflower Road. Kadesch played MacNeill on a shot for shot basis for the extended first set but finally lost and then went on to lose the second set under the booming serves of the youthful MacNeill.

In the women's division a young Winchester lass, Susan Goodwin, had to default in the finals to Mrs. Nell Walker of Lexington. Susan worked her way to the finals via spectacular wins over three tough opponents only to injure her back in the first set of the finals. Her default was announced by President John Koslowski of the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center at the end of the first set.

Rain Postpones Cap League Start

by James R. Stewart

Jupiter Pluvius intervened in the Mother's Day opening session planned for the Winchester Cap League, causing George Tello, director of the League, to reschedule the first games on Saturday, May 18.

Fathers are requested to come with their sons to Ginn Field, Mystic Valley Parkway and Bacon Street, between 1 and 2 p.m. to receive caps for the players and assignments to teams for each Saturday and Sunday playing from 2 to 4 p.m.

There will be five fields set up for the opposing teams to play on, and fathers and others will be selected to coach each team and supervise the games. All the boys between the ages of 8 or 9 and 12 will have to bring is a glove, enthusiasm and a desire to play baseball. It is anticipated that there will be a number of minor and major league managers on hand each Cap League day to assist in instruction and keep a watchful eye out for prospective members of their next year's team or potential fill-ins for this season, should any of their present players drop from their team.

Girls' Softball Team Earns First Victory

by Lesley King

After a discouraging start, the Winchester High girls' softball team finally earned its first victory, defeating Lexington 7-5 at Ginn Field last Friday.

Senior M. England, pitching her first varsity victory for Winchester this year, allowed a total of 15 hits, all singles, and only two walks. Aided by a hustling outfield, she held the Lexington girls scoreless through the first five innings as their batting order was retired just twice.

Winchester looked good from the very beginning of the game, as the first three Lexington batters were retired on infield flies and a dropped ball. Then Lexington took the field and the first WHS batter was put out on a fly. Williams, pitching for the opposition, then walked the next two batters, J. Cussen and E. Sullivan, and K. Laban belted a fast grounder into right to drive in the first runner and place the second in scoring position. Then an error by Lexington's first baseman put C. Niles on second and drove E. Sullivan home for the second Sachem run. A wild pitch to M. Brennan opened the opportunity for another run, but K. Laban was put out at the plate, and Winchester left one runner on base as they took the lead 2-0.

The Sachems managed to hold a strong lead through most of the game. They gained three more runs in the second, as they were retired with the bases loaded, and J. Hoyt drove in another run in the fifth, but was put out herself at third base.

In the top of the sixth Lexington began a comeback rally, to little avail, as the Sachem outfield put them down to maintain the lead. The final run was scored by pitcher Williams, but found Winchester still ahead with a two-point margin.

One of Winchester's most effective plays was executed by Niles (short stop) and J. Cussen (second base) who combined on grounders into left and put out five Lexington runners at second.

The J.V. team dropped a 15-7 decision to their opponents. Its record now stands at 1-2.

Loss to Concord

The team dropped its second contest of the season. 15-8 against Concord on May 7.

The girls, hitting strongly off Concord pitcher B. Maccone and fielding their opponents' hits with few errors, played far better softball than in their first contest despite the score. The Winchester girls, unaccustomed to the speed of Concord's pitching, still managed 15 hits and, towards the end of the game, were allowed eight walks.

Concord started off the first inning with five runs and were retired with three still on base. Then runs on three singles and a walk, leaving one runner on second as they took the field.

Concord held the Sachems scoreless in the next three innings while the Concord batters increased their lead by six runs. In the bottom of the fifth Winchester began a comeback rally as J. Cussen doubled to score K. Laban and move F. Hoyt to third. Then M. England singled to right to load the bases and the next three batters walked, doubled and singled to drive in three more runs. K. Laban ended the inning with a fly to left field which was caught by A. Fergusen and retired the side, with three runners still on base. However, Concord, still leading by four runs, held Winchester scoreless through the next two innings and doubled its lead.

The J.V.'s, playing an excellent game against their opponents, gained their first victory 18-11.

Concord Loss, Lexington Win For Girls' Tennis

Despite the loss the Winchester girl's tennis team suffered at the hands of Concord last Tuesday, they managed to regain their winning record with a 5-0 victory over Lexington on Friday.

The 3-2 Concord defeat found all three Winchester doubles teams on the bottom. However, three of the four Sachems playing singles won their matches to shorten the Concord lead to a matter of one match.

Probably the most exciting match involved Captain B. Irwin who competed against Anderson. After dropping the first set to her opponent, Becki made a fantastic comeback to win the second set 7-5 and then sweep the match in the final set with a score of 6-1.

In the Lexington meet all three Winchester girls in singles competition won their matches in two sets. The doubles competition showed the Palmer Courts the greatest number of contestants in many years as four of Winchester's seven couples defeated their opponents. One of the matches which Winchester lost was discounted and the Sachems were credited with only two loses.

If Winchester plays as well against Melrose tomorrow then the team is really on the way to a winning season.

Tennis Team Wins Two More

Coach Don Stangel's tennis squad remained undefeated this week, as they added two more victories to their already impressive slate. The victories came last Wednesday at Newton High (3-2), and last Thursday versus Watertown High (5-0) here in Winchester.

The three singles competitors, seniors Dick Kadesch and Mike Hills, and junior Brad Lindgren, won their matches in both contests. Both doubles teams dropped their matches at Newton, and then bounced back to win big over Watertown.

Playing in the number-one doubles slot were senior Steve Pritchard and junior Barry Gibson. The number-two duo consisted of juniors Leo Laurentano and Bruce Stebbins.

The squad will face two Middlesse entries this week: Belmont on Friday, and Stoneham next Monday. The team has already defeated three League competitors: Reading, Lexington, and Wakefield.

Eager Sixth Graders Volunteer Aid at Washington Special Class

by Lois Carr

The sun streams in the large windows of a cheerful room housing the trainable retarded children immersing the heads of nine youngsters who have been at work in the class since it was organized last September, at the Washington School.

At play with these children during the day are several sixth grade students. Motivated, one likes to think, by the spirit of concern for others, groups of three students work with and become involved with those less foutunate than they.

Boys and girls volunteer eagerly before school and during their otherwise free time in the school day to assist the special class teacher and to play and socialize with the trainable children. Through experiences with these special children one of the young volunteers has decided she would like to become a teacher of the mentally retarded. The children enjoy the visitors and benefit from contact with older children. The visitors learn deeper understanding and the satisfaction of helping.

A delicate, soft-voiced and understanding young woman, Mrs. Regina Raeke, encourages the extraordinary efforts of the children in this special class to accomplish seemingly basic tasks and to learn to get along with others. Teachers of mentally retarded children must have special background and education for certification. At Washington School Mrs. Raeke skillfully guides her children in their training using instructional techniques developed through her experience in teaching in the field of the mentally retarded and her special knowledge of handicapped children. Some of the children unable to talk have begun to form words and all but a few have begun to adjust to functioning in a group situation.

According to Miss Leonor Rich, principal of the Washington School, who is strongly behind this program, "Every opportunity is given to enable this group of children to live a normal, happy school life. The primary concern in the educational program is to develop group consciousness and the ability to relate harmoniously with peers."

There are three classifications of retarded children—the educable, who can learn at least the first grade level, the trainable, and the custodial. These trainable children are given the best play equipment, environment and instruction possible to help release their greatest potential. In a recent move to help them more, their school day was extended from two and ¾ hours in the original experiment to four and ¼ hours. Since the group is bussed to class they now eat their lunches at school affording teachers the opportunity to help the children with their table manners and cleanliness. This is also a chance for the class to socialize and communicate with each other at a quiet time.

Art, Physical Ed

To the greatest extent possible students in the trainable class are given services similar to those offered to all pupils in the Winchester Public Schools. Art classes are conducted by the art specialist and the young artists are painstakingly trying to color, paint, paste and create with clay. Physical education instruction is given once each week by the elementary specialist. Play and gym equipment of enormous variety and varying degrees of challenge is readily available in the large, attractive classroom. The children romp happily and play on tricycles, the climbing ladder, balance beam, stairs and slide having fun but incidentally improving their coordination. Joyful expressions accompany mastery of bouncing a ball.

With no idea of what to expect on a visit we found the special class in its morning circle with the teacher at the piano. And an observer would at that moment have thought he had entered any typical classroom. Some of these children have a delightful spontaniety; and an engaging quality of innocence and appeal exhudes from many of the faces. Two tiny charmers rushed over to greet us with big hugs and a warm "Hi!" disarming us but helping to put us at ease. In the circle time the children are taught to say their first and last names and addresses. They are also learning about months and seasons of the year and presently about spring and flowers.

During the school day the children participate in music and rhythmic activities using instruments, marching and singing with the teacher and with records. They listen to simple stories or attempt to describe pictures in a book for the teacher. So-called manipulative training materials are available for those who use peg boards, wooden puzzles, blocks and strings of beads. During an organized play period they can choose the sand box, building with blocks, or playing house with the extensive kitchen, doll carriage, etc. equipment provided.

The creation of this trainable class program at Washington School resulted after passage of legislation at the State level, General Laws Chapter 71, Section 46, and is in accordance with regulations set forth by the Department of Education and Mental Health relative to the establishment of classes for mentally retarded children. Previously, all trainable retarded children in Winchester were transported to classes in Arlington, Belmont, and the nursery school in Woburn or educated privately. When the figure of five children was reached, the Town could legally establish classes in its own system.

There were two classes of educable retarded children in the system, one at Lynch Junior High School and one at Tufts School. However, with the impetus of deeply motivated and concerned parents of trainable retarded children who wanted to spare their handicapped sons and daughters the tiring daily trips out of town and back, the School Committee and administration worked out a plan providing for this first local class in Washington School.

Curriculum C'ncil

The Winchester Community School Association, the central parent-teacher organization for all schools in Winchester, will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday, May 21, 9:30 a.m., at the Wyman School auditorium. Interested citizens are urged to attend.

The function of the Association is to act as liaison between the administration, the schools, and the parents, and the group has invited the Social Studies Curriculum Council under Walter Gleason, assistant superintendent of schools to present a report on the coordination of social studies in the Winchester schools. Miss May Milliken, chairman of the Council will lead the discussion along with a representative from the elementary schools.

For interested parents this is an opportunity to learn first hand of the progress being made in this area and to have answered any questions about this curriculum in the Winchester schools.

Pats Talk

General Manager Mike Holovak was among the American Football League coaches who met in New York last week and unanimously voted to recommend adoption of a one-point, no-kick conversion rule for this year's pre-season games. The recommendation will be considered by the owners meeting in Atlanta this week. The NFL already has confirmed such a policy for its pre-season schedule. Holovak is one of the experiment's most enthusiastic supporters. "I think it's great in so many ways I'd like to see it adopted right now for regular season play," says Mike. "The kick conversion has become almost automatic. Our league's two-point option (run or pass) has been good, but it is seldom used until late in the game. The new proposal would call for strategy early and keep the fans on their toes. It would not handicap the livelihood of placekicking specialists because they could be more valuable than ever for field goals" . . . The one chance to see the experiment in person locally will be the Patriots-Eagles game at Harvard Stadium September 2. With added emphasis on the field goal, it should be a classic match between Gino Cappelletti and Sam Baker . . .

The Eagles will be without one attraction of Iron Man Jim Ringo, who announced his retirement after playing 172-straight games at center for the Packers and Eagles. The Pats boast of two iron men of their own, Cappelletti and Bob Dee, who have played every one of the Pats' 112 regular-season games, plus a playoff and championship tilt . . .

Travel Talk: Director of Player Personnel Rommie Loudd has just returned from a 19-day scouting tour in which he covered 20 colleges in spring practice through the South and Southwest. Rommie is particularly impressed by the quantity of top talent displayed by the U. of Texas at El Paso, where Bobby Dobbs recruits 'em en masse . . . Meanwhile, Mike Holovak and his assistants have just completed their girddogging into other areas . . . Assistants Art Spinney, Jesse Richardson, Claude Gibson and Tom Yewcic all were on the move this year . . .

Condolences: Go to Jimmy Colclough on the death of his father, William, a professional entertainer on the piano, who never missed a Patriots' home game . . .

Notes: The combined AFL-NFL owners are meeting in Atlanta this week with one of the major topics on the agenda being the eventual team alignments when the merger is complete in 1970 . . . From Harold Kaese, Boston Globe: "The Chamber of Commerce estimates that a 2-million attendance for the Red Sox at Fenway Park means $15.4 million for other businesses. Question — Why don't these other businesses to which the Sox and Patriots mean so much, buy enough low-yield bonds to help give Boston the stadium it deserves?"

Forum Completes Year Sunday

Members of the Senior Forum will participate this Sunday in the 11 o'clock baccalaureate service at the First Congregational Church.

Kathy Weaver will be serving as chaplain, and the deacons will be Toby Harvey, Paul Peterson, Gary Stillman, Mike Boodakian, Mark Harrington, and Danny Strout. The ushers will be Ernie Crabtree, Carl Smiley, Dave Schmink, Bill Brink, Richard Bennink, and Ken Cooper. All Forumites are urged to attend this final service of the year.

Sunday evening at 6 marks Forum's closing banquet. The program will include addresses by Forum Director Richard C. Diehl, President Ken Cooper, and Vice President Donna Starrak. Next year's newly chosen student council, superintendents, and adult advisors will be introduced, and Forum's dramatics committee will present some definitely original skits. If any Forumite and his parents wish to attend the banquet but have not made reservations, they should see Bowdie Burr or Jo-Ann Starrak for tickets.

Art Lending Program To Open Season Sunday

The Winchester Art Association's picture lending program is beginning another season this week. On Sunday, May 19, Mr. and Mrs. Rushton Harwood Jr. of 30 Ledgewood Road will open their home to this year's subscribers.

Paintings for the series are loaned not only by noted artists associated with the local group but also by well-known professionals outside of Winchester. This gives the subscriber an opportunity to choose and live with a variety of art types. There are water colors and oils and numerous subject matters from traditional scenes and portraits to abstracts and non-objective works.

Proceeds from this program support the Art Association's Scholarship Fund. Each year the fund provides for a scholarship processed by the Winchester Scholarship Foundation to support a local art student in college.

The committee responsible for this year's program is headed by Mrs. Byron M. Strites. Mrs. Ralph W. Detra, picture chairman, has collected an assortment of original paintings for the new season. She has been assisted by Mrs. George A. Marks, Mrs. Joseph R. DeSimone, Mrs. C. S. Luitweiler, and Mrs. Michael V. MacKenzie. Ticket co-chairmen, Mrs. Raymond N. Watts and Mrs. Robert F. Goldhammer took care of printing and selling tickets.

Registration and record keeping is handled by Mrs. Walter S. Howard, assisted by Mrs. William M. Jeffery, Mrs. Richard H. Spencer, Mrs. Creighton Vallee, Mrs. John R. Corf, Mrs. Adin B. Bailey, and Mrs. Stanley E. Cairncross. Hospitality co-chairmen, Mrs. Joseph A. Knight Jr. and Mrs. George S. Hebb Jr. prepare the refreshments.

Anyone not able to be present this Sunday may designate a friend to come and choose a picture for the coming four months.

CHAMPAGNE BALL Committee members, Mrs. Walter S. Howard, Mrs. John A. Volpe and Miss Rita Mucera, listen attentively to Mrs. Byron M. Committee For Champagne Ball Hard at Work

The Art Association's Champagne Ball committee met last week on the terrace of Mrs. John Donahue's Myopia Hill home, with a champagne preview concluding the afternoon's work.

Mrs. John A. Volpe, honorary chairman of the ball, coordinated all the reports of the various committee heads with Mrs. Joseph R. DeSimone, general chairman, and concluded that the ball to be held at the Sheraton-Plaza Ballroom in Boston on June 15, is going to be one of the Town's most elegant benefit affairs.

The goal of the committee is to raise $5,000 to be turned over to the newly proposed Center for the Creative Arts, which desperately needs money in order to open its doors next September.

Working diligently toward this end and in attendance at the ball-meeting last week were Mrs. Byron Stites, chairman of decorations, who brought samples of her lovely centerpieces of original design and creation; Mrs. Walter S. Howard, coordinator of a number of pre-ball dinner parties; Dr. Victoria Cass, general fund raising chairman; Miss Rita Mucera, who reported she has arranged special favors by John Robert Powers for the ladies attending the ball; Mrs. Donahue, special advisor to the ball committee; Misses Paula Garcelon and Audrey Puffer, chairman and co-chairman of the junior hostesses; and Robert M. Magnusen, who will officiate as host for the foreign dignitaries and special guests.

All Winchester is invited to attend the ball, have a wonderful time and support the new Center for the Creative Arts on Vine Street. Reservations at 729-3174 with two-thirds of the price of the ticket tax deductible.

Contributions to the Center are invited by those who cannot attend. Make checks payable to Winchester Center for the Creative Arts, and mail to P.O. Box 62, Winchester, Mass. 01890. All are tax deductible.

Unitarian Youth to Conduct Service on Overcoming Prejudice

"We Shall Overcome Prejudice" will be the general theme of the church service at the Winchester Unitarian Church on Sunday morning at 11. The entire service will be conducted by the members of the church school. A delegation of young people from the St. John's Baptist Church in Woburn will be special guests.

Songs by the children from the primary department will open the service. Anthems will be sung by the junior choir and the junior high choir under the direction of Marguerite Webb. Nancy Fontneau, guitarist will accompany.

A feature of the service will be a dramatization written by one of the High School class members. The story is a modern version of the Pharisee and the Publican and will utilize sacred dance, choric speech, trumpet, and organ.

The solo speakers will be David Boyer and J. Rondeau. The verse choir will be composed of the following: Susan Mead, Debby Renz, Kay VerPlanck, Helen Manning, Patience Barker, Faith Barker, Carolyn Roundey, Martin Barker, Noel Webb, Ted Webb, Alan Ingraham, Chris Tesar, and Peter Wardell. Musical accompaniment will be handled by James Sauber, trumpeter, and Mary Ranton Witham, organist.

The offering for the service will be used to provide scholarships for young people from the Roxbury area who will be invited to attend an integrated summer camp in Maine for a three week period. The camp is supervised by leaders from the Unitarian Universalist Church. The goal is to bring white and black children from cities and suburbs to enjoy a common experience.

Bibles will be presented to all young people graduating from third grade. They are: Alison Andrews, Ralph Bonnell, Henry DeGroot, Barbara Dexter, Carol Dinerstein, Molly Greene, Susan Hankins, Nina Johannessen, John Lowell, Sara MacKenzie, Paul Neurath, Robin Nichols, Laura Parkhurst, Jonathan Pettee, Kendall Pritchard, Richard Redpath, Suzanne Worth, Eric Zimmer, Catherine Byford, Christopher Seavey, Cinda Ann Houtsma, Lars Houtsma, and Sarah Horne.

At the conclusion of the service there will be an open house in the church school wing with displays, demonstrations, and light refreshments. Each young person present will receive a plant as a token of a growing religion.

Rubbish Works As Fuel for Fire

Household rubbish is the main target of spring clean-up in Winchester, says Fire Chief Francis Amico.

"And while most folks don't think of the many useless things they have got stored away around the house as rubbish—that's what it is and it's a major fire hazard," he warned.

He explained that rubbish itself does not cause fire, except in some infrequent cases of spontaneous ignition. But it is the kind of fuel that fire feeds on, and all it needs is a stray spark to start it off.

There are many different kinds of household rubbish, but these fast-burning items are among the most dangerous: old bedding, cast-off clothing, mattresses, old furniture, curtains, draperies, lampshades, magazines, papers, linoleum, and rags.

The Chief advised everyone to check for quick-burning rubbish in closets, attics, and basements—these are among the likeliest places for home fires to start, according to the records of the National Fire Protection Association.

Harvard Educator On Middle School

Would it be reasonable for Winchester to consider separate schools for grades six through nine? This was the question posed by Lawrence E. Beckley of the School Committee to Dr. Robert H. Anderson from Harvard School of Education.

Last Tuesday evening members of the School Committee, Community Schools Association and the League of Women Voters met with other interested citizens and local educators to hear Dr. Anderson discuss the meaning and purpose of middle schools.

Dr. Anderson pointed out that perhaps the most important reason for grouping grades five or six through eight into separate schools is that it provides another alternative in building programs for communities experiencing increased enrollments in their elementary schools. He emphasized that most educators now agree that any organization pattern of grades legitimate for a school, as long as it spans at least three years, assuming that other educational standards will be met.

He said that a school for two grades, such as proposals which have been mentioned for a fifth and sixth-grade school in Winchester, have generally been found to cover too short a time interval to allow the flexibility necessary for accelerating or slowing down a child or to provide adequate guidance.

When Mr. Beckley raised the question of having kindergarten through grade five elementary schools and a middle school for grades six through nine, followed by our three-year high school, Dr. Anderson replied that a 6-9 is not a common grouping but should be workable. Mr. Beckley stated that the School Committee has not discussed this possibility, but it occurred to him that when the new high school is complete he believes there will be room at Lynch and the present Senior High to accommodate classes for grades six through nine comfortably. He felt that this might alleviate some of the immediate pressure to add to our elementary schools and at the same time, might free McCall for needed administrative space.

In addition to his comments on grouping grades together, Dr. Anderson stated that middle schools need physical education, homemaking, guidance and other teaching facilities suited to the ages of the children. Good middle schools are likely to provide better instruction for these children than is possible in elementary schools.

Dr. Anderson, who resides at 8 Winslow Road, has been on the faculty of the Graduate School at Harvard University since 1954. He is also a member of Winchester's Elementary School Building Committee.

Racism, Riots – An Implication For Winchester?

"It's a superb panel—it represents both the people in the city and those in town."

Bernard Harleston, president of WCCA, told the Star Winchester is lucky to get together the persons who will tonight at 8 appear as a panel in Hadley Hall of the Church of the Epiphany to discuss "Racism and Riots: Implication for Winchester."

"Fred Rozelle, who lives here but is vice president of the Old Colony Trust, and Charles Harris, who lives here but is director of the Massachusetts Council for Public Schools, daily bridge the gap between the city and the suburb. Both are active here.

"Cameron Bird, who is director of the Ecumenical Center in Roxbury, is in big demand as a speaker and we are lucky to have him. He was himself involved in the Detroit riots as a lay minister trying to reduce the violence—and some of his experiences in this action tell quite a story."

Professor Harleston will moderate the meeting, which will focus on the implementation of the recent report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders.

Park Board to Post Mill Pond Banks

At its meeting held last week Tuesday in the Town Hall, the Board of Park Commissioners voted to have posted immediately the east banks of the Mill Pond.

Prompted by the drowning in this area of a five-year-old boy on May 3 and by the letter to the Town by Medical Examiner Harry L. Benson asking that the banks be completely fenced, the Board spent some time in a discussion of steps it could take which would maximize the protection of young children playing here.

Chairman Albert MacDonnell who met with members Stella Aitken, Charles Parkhurst, Gordon Peckham and Walter Stockwood, reported that the placards ordered for posting would restrict duck feeding and other bank-side activities to the banks immediately behind the Library and north as far as the island area.

He also reported that the group has postponed a decision about a fence and has initiated a study of the area. It will delay action at least until the retaining wall around the island, voted at the '68 Town Meeting, is constructed. (Subsequently Howard Ambrose, Town engineer, informed the Star that bids should be out on this job, which calls for a pre-cast cement circle to be installed around the island, by the end of next month.)

One of the most discussed ideas to be presented at the meeting was that of Park Superintendent Mullen that the Town consider constructing a sand ramp at the edge designed with no pitch, to be a feeding place for the ducks.

Plans for a bridge to the island appear indefinite. At the moment the island is off-bounds for citizens of all ages.

WELCOME ADDITION TO THE CENTER CIRCLE is the new Morgan-Senna building opened this month at the corner of Park Street. Architect John Danielson of Lexington has carried out the colonial design asked by Dr. Donald Senna and Attorney John Morgan with used brick and stark-white blinds. But his two-story modern glass entranceway and broad horizontal first-floor windows give lightness to the structure and his contemporary candelabra is eye-catching as one rounds the Circle at night. Spacious upstairs offices and work areas are panelled in ash throughout, and the respective offices of the two men are dominated by the two sailfish that they caught together this December in the Virgin Islands. The casual visitor might not notice the difference, but the attorney claims his catch to be the larger, and the dentist has not contested. The Optical Shop and Winslow's Potpourri will move in the end of next week. (Ryerson photo)

AIR MAIL PIONEER PAUL F. COLLINS of 3 Harrington Road, right, was honored in Washington last week at the 50th Anniversary of Air Mail ceremonies. Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson, left, presented him a special certificate of appreciation honoring his service as one of the pilots who flew the mail during the 1918-27 period when the Post Office transported air mail in its own fleet of planes. At the same celebration, Mr. Collins also was awarded the Air Transport Association of America Order of the Vest in recognition of his many outstanding contributions toward the advancement of air postal services. Selectmen Hold Monday Hearings On Bargaining and Planning

The Selectmen Monday night held hearings with the Personnel Board on bargaining procedures and with the Planning Board chairman, Elementary School Building Committee chairman and owners of the burned out Fletcher Street homes relative to the Town's interest in these properties for possible Wyman School additions.

Present were Chairman Charles Doucette and members John Sullivan, Ralph Swanson and Edmund Williams.

The Personnel Board, which Monday night re-elected Robert C. Ericson as its chairman, introduced Alexander J. Fay as its new member. Mr. Fay will take the place of David Choate.

Mrs. Mary Mears joined the group for the executive session hearing which Chairman Doucette introduced by indicating that it was a chance for the two boards to "touch base" on how best to get involved in the '68-69 bargaining. Mr. Doucette also spoke of the need for better communication.

The meeting had been called to see if the boards could set up "ground rules" to get the Town's representatives and the heads of working groups off to a better start working to preclude last-minute agreements in 1969.

Fletcher Land for Wyman

The hearing on the Fletcher Street land, on which the houses owned by the Walter Armstrongs and Ralph W. Swan were burned out last month, was called at the request of Mr. Armstrong, who had written the Selectmen requesting a chance to express his views relative to the Town's evidenced interest in and approach to possible acquisition of his land.

Planning Board Chairman William Chapman spoke first, noting the severe problems attending the elementary school building situation and pointing up that the cost of building additions on to the Wyman School would be borne entirely by the Town with no State 40% aid available due to the minimal land space around Wyman. He noted that the Committees Created By Town Meeting Are Appointed

The 1968 Town Meeting created three committees: the Recreation Committee to be a permanent board for the Town and study committees on Town Government and a skating rink. The permanent Recreation Committee has been announced, members of the study committee groups were made public this week.

The seven-man committee to study Town Government organized last Thursday night at the Town Hall, with Moderator Harrison Chadwick in attendance.

Three former chairmen of Selectmen are on the committee. Robert Armstrong was voted chairman and Edward E. Hicks and Sherman W. Saltmarsh have also been appointed to serve.

Elected vice chairman is Town Meeting Member David Ashton who authored Article 45, the article in the Town Meeting warrant asking that a committee to investigate the need for a Town Manager be appointed. The other three members are attorney Calvin H. Bowker, Town Meeting Member Mrs. Barbara Hankins and former Burlington Finance Committee member Clarence Feldman.

Chairman Armstrong reporting to the Board of Selectmen on Monday night stated that the committee plans to meet twice a month and for at least a year. He reminded that by its motion, it has been directed to study all aspects of Town Government including all administrative phases, Town Meeting, Town officers, by-laws, and organization of Boards, committees and commissions.

The committee meets next on Tuesday night.

The skating rink study committee is a sub-committee of the Permanent Building Committee and has yet to organize.

Appointed to serve and to come in at the next annual Town Meeting with recommendations, are Wiliam Cruwys, William Kimball, Barbara Joslin, James Russo, and, representing the Recreation Committee, Arthur Carr.

Complainants To Be Heard On Car Wash

At 7:30 tonight in the office of the Building Commissioner at the Town Hall, the three-man Board of Appeal will conduct a hearing on a permit granted by the Commissioner to George D. Whitten for the construction of a car wash at 785 Main Street.

The hearing was called after the Board received two appeals, one from the Planning Board, and a joint one from eight businesses in the vicinity.

Dr. Watkins Named By Crotched Mtn.

Dr. Arthur L. Watkins, chief of the physical medicine department of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston since 1939, will relinquish that post and assume charge of physical medicine at the Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center in Greenfield, New Hampshire on July 1.

DR. ARTHUR L. WATKINS

His appointment was announced today by Gardner A. Caverly, president of the foundation that operates the 15-year-old diagnostic, treatment, educational and research center for handicapped children and adults. The facility's $7-million building complex—on a 1,400 acre plateau near the peak of Crotched Mountain in New Hampshire's Monadnock Region—includes a school for special education, a vocational services department and New Hampshire's only school for the deaf.

Dr. Watkins, who lives here at 7 Longfellow Road, is an assistant clinical professor of medicine at his alma mater, Harvard, and former director of the Bay State Medical Rehabilitation Clinic in Boston. He was lecturer in physical medicine and medical co-director of the program in physical therapy at Simmons College.

Mr. Hatch has been a member of this Commission since 1954. Prior to that the retired treasurer of the Winchester Savings Bank served on the Finance Committee and, for 13 years, as its clerk.

He has been treasurer of the Winchester Hospital since 1944 and of the Winchester Chapter, Red Cross for two years.

Mr. Hatch, who lives here with his wife, Olive, serves on the Board with Dean W. Carleton, Maurice Freeman, Sherman R. Josephson and Lowell R. Smith.

Services on Sunday

Memorial Day Parade To Include 22 Units

The 1968 Memorial Day ceremonies and parade have taken on extra meaning as the Vietnam War continues despite peace talks and chairman of the planning committee, John T. Horn, expects one of the largest turnouts ever in participants and spectators.

A contingent of Vietnam veterans is expected to join the many others who annually participate in the town-wide march which brings the about 22 units up and down and across the town in visits to memorials and cemeteries. Mr. Horn and his committee have announced that they will be especially happy to welcome as marchers all service men home on leave.

Sunday Service

Opening service for the memorial observances is this Sunday at the Crawford Memorial Church, where Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion and their affiliated organizations will attend together the regular 11 a.m. worship service.

The groups will meet at the church at 10:45, post the colors at 10 minutes before the hour in the sanctuary and sit together in a reserved section of the church.

The host pastor, the Reverend H. Newton Clay, who has served as Legion chaplain for several years, will take "Freedom's Holy Light" for his sermon topic. He plans to point out the strong contributions of American religious history to the general American concept of freedom, and to speak of the responsibilities which goes with its privileges.

Grave Decorating

The second event in the week's observance is to be the decorating of veterans' graves, to take place in Wildwood and Calvary Cemeteries on Wednesday, May 29, begining at 6 p.m. The committee is requesting volunteers for work at both these areas.

The committee is extending to all veterans a cordial invitation to join in all ceremonies, whether or not they are organization members.

The Memorial Day Parade will leave Leonard Field where it assembles, at 9:15 to start the march, which takes it first to Calvary Cemetery, then back to the Leonard Field Plaque, the Honor Roll by the Town Hall, the War Memorial and Wildwood Cemetery.

WINCHESTER SCHOLARSHIP FOUNDATION

RIGHT OUT OF THE OLD RUMFORD SCHOOL is this early scene created by the Winchester Scholarship Foundation as one of the floats in the En Ka parade Saturday. It was awarded first prize in the category of floats best representing the Gay Nineties theme of the Fair. The Winchester Girl Scouts won first place in the contest among floats best representing their organizations. With a world friendship theme, the "Worlds to Explore" float featured scouts in the costumes and with the flags of eight countries. Michiko Nakajima, a WHS senior visiting in town this year, represented Japan and wore her scout kimono. (Ryerson photo)

It was beautiful, boisterous, and bountiful despite the weather. This first bad-weather En Ka Fair weekend in several years refused to be dampened in spirit by the elements. Friday night was cool. Saturday held cool and cloudy until into the evening, and then the rains let go. The crowds seemed unaffected by the weather, though. They didn't begin to thin out until late Saturday.

The Manchester Field skyline was ablaze Friday night—visible from far off with its moving, multi-colored midway monsters filling the sky. Close-to the squeals filled the air as young and not-so-young were shook, revolved, twirled for a fare-thee-well. Rides and midway games had lines waiting throughout the Fair.

Saturday's giant parade was one of the best ever—accented by the High School Band, cheerleaders and Tumblettes, and the Elementary School Band. Twelve antique cars nearly stole the show—sporting a bounty of En Ka directors—all ready for a return to the "Gay Nineties."

The floats were all beautiful. But judges Charles Doucette, Fred McCormack, G. Hartley Curtis, and Mesdames David Mears and Donald Chipman chose as best in the theme-of-the-Fair category that of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation sporting a Gay Nineties school interior complete with teacher and pupils, blackboard and pointer. As number one in theme-of-the-organization group was that of the Girl Scouts who, with a "Thank You, En Ka," depicted "Worlds to Explore." Honorable mention went to the Little League and the Visiting Nurse Association. A separate judging among friends of En Ka awarded a prize to the Winchester Estates Garden Club.

Bermuda? Who needed it Friday and Saturday. But many looked ahead and when the drawing took place Saturday night—with president of the Business and Professional Association Clay Spector doing the honors—Patrick Mogauro of Shield Street Woburn turned out to be the man holding the right ticket.

* * *

Everybody played a big part in the big days—which mean financial health to so many beneficiary organizations in town. Hundreds of Winchester men and women braved the cool to man the booths and Mrs. David Choate and Mrs. Henry Gerould, co-chairmen, have sent a thank-you-all to these important persons—too numerous to be listed.

Warren C. Whitman

Warren Clifford Whitman, for 40 years a Winchester resident, died at the Winchester Hospital on May 18 after a brief illness. He is survived by his widow, Lillian A. (Randlett) Whitman.

Mr. Whitman was born in South Weymouth on July 19, 1890. His parents were Wilmot and Iola Whitman. Most of his youth was spent in Abington. He was graduated from Abington High School in 1908 and from Clark University with an A.B. degree in 1912, later acting as freshman alumni assistant at Clark.

For a year he was assistant headmaster at Tabor Academy, Marion. He then enrolled at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he received a B.S. degree in biology and public health in 1915. He was a director and reunion patron of his fraternity, Theta Chi.

On graduation from M.I.T., Mr. Whitman joined H. A. Johnson Co. of Boston. For 30 years he was with this firm, buying and selling food supplies, acting as production manager, and traveling to plants in various parts of New England and Canada. He resigned in 1945. He had an inventive mind and he held a U. S. patent for a table stabilizer.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitman were married in 1915, moving from Medford to Winchester in 1928. In 1934 they built their Cotswold type house on Prospect Street. Mr. Whitman had long been a member of the First Congregational Church. He acted as usher for years and as deacon for a term.

OFFICERS ROY AND BEATON ON A BICYCLE SAFETY PROGRAM

Bicycles Built for Trouble?

The Town notes with pleasure the appointment of its first safety officer in the Police Department, Officer Roland Roy, and with even more pleasure that one of his top priorities is bicycle safety. What's happening to the local bicycle traffic shouldn't be happening to children as nice as ours. It's happening all over the country and it's come about in a slow and insidious manner, the result of a sum of factors.

The first steerable bicycle was built in Scotland in 1839, a few decades ahead of the first automobile. Non-steerable bikes were used way back in early Egypt and the heyday of Pompeii, however. And there was—and must have been needed—plenty of room to manoeuvre. Things are different now. The world is filling up with people and automobiles of horsepower multiplied by the hundreds. But the bicycle's design is still the same. There are no built in protections, the protection must be the ability of the driver.

The bicycle problem in Winchester, as elsewhere, represents a three-fold danger. On the one hand all over town young bike riders are in danger of being hit by automobiles as they ply the streets with a degree of care and experience ranging from zero to maximum. This endangers them and it also clearly endangers the drivers. A driver can be forced to swerve to avoid a youngster just as he is forced to avoid a dog. The result can be a serious accident. The third element of the citizenry endangered is the pedestrian. Stand on a street corner downtown any late afternoon or Saturday. Sometimes the young bike riders take over the place—they ride their vehicles on the sidewalk and they park them anywhere—often smack in front of a store entrance. The officer on duty at the police box most usually has his hands full directing auto and foot traffic—the young bike riders more often than not are by him before he can remind them what they should be doing.

Officer Roy has a tough job cut out for him. It is going to help to have him coordinating official efforts toward the control of bicycle driving. But the parents are, as usual, the first line of offense. First they should not buy their children the so-called, relatively very unmanageable "monkey bikes." "They should be outlawed," says Officer Roy, pointing out that the design cuts down a very large amount on the ability to control them. Next, according to the officer, they should pay more attention to the condition of the bikes their youngsters ride. Tires, etc. should be checked just as with a car.

But most important, parents, police and anyone else concerned must start drilling into young heads from the very beginning that when on the road they are subject to the very same rules as are automobiles. They must obey them. This is a difficult thing to do for the first steps in riding a bicycle are in the home neighborhood—under fun and games conditions. This means a child needs to be carefully taught the difference when he rides out onto the streets of the town. Safety Officer Roy has already held one National Safety Council-designed Bike Safety Program—at the Wyman School. He is talking about at the other schools and plans more programs. He is concerned especially about the riding double and riding the wrong way on a one-way street.

In the August 24 issue of the Star Mrs. Marilyn Preston wrote making explicit suggestions toward a training program for Winchester leading up to a bicycle "rider's license." "I don't believe that bicycles can be classified as toys any longer," she said. This is the kernal of the problem. It must be faced and faced fast if Winchester is to avoid a bicycle tragedy.

Town Meeting: Looking Back and Ahead

The 1968 Town Meeting raised many questions and none more pressing than its own efficiency and manner of conduct. The Star heard rumblings from many Members expressing dissatisfaction with the length and, sometimes, tenor of the meetings. Some well respected Members indicated that "something must be done—or I'm not going to run again."

This kind of talk bodes ill for the future of Winchester and makes particularly welcome the announcement this week that the Town Government study committee has been formed and is ready to go. Action in this area was instigated by Town Meeting Member David Ashton who introduced a warrant article asking for the study of a Town Manager for the Town. It developed into a broader study when Moderator Harrison Chadwick came down from the podium to speak on the floor for a study group to look over the whole spectrum of municipal affairs here. The motion finally passed unanimously by the Meeting included the broadest possible direction. The make-up of the group includes three former chairmen of the Selectmen's Board, two lawyers, an active female Town Meeting Member and one who contributed this year out of his experience as a Finance Committee member in the Town of Burlington. This looks good.

A look back at the Town Meeting itself raises many questions about the motivation of its Members at some times. For instance how curious that a town, sophisticated though it may be, with Winchester's jealously guarded small-town image and a long, near-agrarian history, should vote with such alacrity to go gung-ho modern and buy itself a computer and then turn around and vote down the carefully presented green-belt conservation plan article by article, leaving the west side of town open to even more development and a potential of no real public-owned park area excepting that of its schools. And then it turned aroung again and said it did care about conservation in some ways by voting a total of $51,000 to improve the Aberjona River and its banks.

The Planning Board this year came in with seven well-thought-out requests for Town land acquisitions. They ended up with four accepted, two rejected, and they withdrew one themselves. This seemed a reasonable conclusion.

The Town Meeting curiously, and we thought erroneously, abdicated its right to name the Tufts Road School while it quickly and properly renamed the so-called Loring Avenue Playground area for its illustrious former citizen, Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald. True it is a sensitive thing when the name of a fine young man killed in the Vietnam War is suggested as that for a school in his area and when excellent presentations are made in this direction. Marine Francis Muraco's name would do any Town building or area honor. But the suggestion that the name of another young war hero, Marine Richard Bond be included pointed up the dilemna. Is it not possible that if neither one nor both of these names end up officially to be chosen for Tufts Road, that the school include some kind of memorial room or plaque for them anyway? If a plaque idea were adopted, then should Winchester lose any more young men in this war, their names could be included. And a room could include portrait pcitures of the soldiers—something which visually would be a sharper reminder of what we have lost and are losing even than names.

The nine-session 1968 Town Meeting spent much time discussing changes in its school lunch budget—changes made in the interest of improvement and also of economy and made by an unsuccessful candidate for the job of school lunch supervisor who himself had asked several hundred dollars over what the School Department would pay for the job. It spent more time on this than it did voting the Department's record near four-million-dollar School Budget.

The Town Meeting dared to vote the Town's policemen a somewhat higher raise than it did its firemen. This put it into the middle of a state and national problem which is difficult no matter how you cut it. Yet there was no article on the warrant asking again for a West Side fire station—something which many consider a must.

Members worked long and hard before they finally concluded business with a total appropriation of $8,797,275 and a tax rate jump of almost exactly 10 dollars over 1967. The Town owes them a debt of gratitude for their hard work. It is hoped that the Members to resign will be those who have consistently poor attendance and those who come in and out of sessions at will. It is deeply hoped that those very members who are irked by the weakness of the Town Meeting will stick with it and make it better.

Good luck to the fine Town Government study committee. Its creation has given many concerned citizens something to hope for.

Selectmen

Board's policy was to acquire land near the schools as it came on the market and, not, up to now, by eminent domain.

He pointed out that though the Fletcher Street property was not on the market it was in a "matter of unfortunate distress," and that the Board felt it should proceed to negotiate with the owners for its acquisition.

Mr. Doucette pressed the point—to ascertain that negotiation was to be the basis—Mr. Chapman agreed.

Mr. Sullivan inquired if the land in question had been part of any advance planning thinking prior to the fire, and Mr. Chapman replied ::yes," in a general man replied "yes," in a general Homeowners Disturbed—8bf

Mr. Williams noted that he understood the Planning Board to have gone ahead to prepare to have the land surveyed, etc., without notifying the owners and suggested they should earlier have gotten together. Mr. Chapman answered tht the intent was to institute procedures on which negotiations could be made and that the distress factors involved demanded the Town act as quickly as possible.

Mr. Littleton, speaking for the Elementary School Building Committee, noted that acquisition of the land would benefit the School immediately by allowing a very desired egress to Fletcher Street and that should the land be acquired his Committee would then have to reschedule its overall enlarging plan, which had called for something to be done to Wyman only after Mystic and Vinson-Owen had been enlarged.

He stated the desire would be to increase Wyman from a 250-pupil school to one for 600, and that 11 acres would be the modern standard for such a move, six the minimum.

Mr. Swan, when asked if he wished to speak, noted that as he was there without an attorney, he would observe only.

Homeowners Disturbed

Attorney Robert Hallisey, however, attending to represent the Armstrongs, told the Selectmen that his clients' view was from a somewhat different perspective. They had been considerably disturbed, he said, to have read of the interest of the Town in the local paper and not to have been approached directly.

"It is no secret that there are rumors that the fire-fighting effort left much to be desired," he stated, adding that when on top of this the Town appeared to be moving in, it left a very negative impression, making "Winchester look like a scavenger."

He told the Board that the Armstrongs have a building permit from the Town's Building Commissioner and had planned to go ahead. But that the Armstrongs were "more aware than many of the Town's problems" and would entertain the idea of negotiation.

Mr. Chapman reported that his Board would recognize the total value of the land and if it acquired, it would assume all costs of demolition and would aid the family to locate another lot of land.

Mr. Hallisey replied that this approach did not take into consideration the fact that the house can be restored. In answer to a question from Mr. Swanson he stated that bids for work would not go out for about six months.

The hearing concluded with Mr. Littleton reiterating that "what we are talking about is the possibility of saving 40% on any building additions at the Wyman School," and Mr. Doucette expressing that he was sorry that the Town had not come to the homeowners direct and assuring them that it would work with haste to get back to them as soon as possible.

The worth of the property was discussed from the separate points of view, and Mr. Chapman emphasized that he felt the Town to have a moral obligation in this instance and should extend itself in this situation.

TOO SHORT A DAY— A WOMAN VET IN AFRICA

by Susanne Hart

It is very heartening in these days when so much is written of frustrated, indecisive lives, to read the personal record of a woman who knew from an early age what she wanted to do and pursued her vocation with energy and determination.

Mrs. Hart dedicates her book to her "loving parents—with gratitude" and her description of herself as the one member of her family who passionately loved all animals suggests that she appreciates how trying it must sometimes have been when her "patients" were brought in and nursed under her parents' roof.

> ". . . I systematically began to collect waifs and strays, taking them home for love, food and care. My parents suffered these flea-bitten mongrels knowing that my happiness depended on their own tolerance. Secretly they hoped that I would grow out of this phase, and attempted to turn my thoughts to other careers."

Their attempts at "turning her thoughts" were not successful, however, and at the age of 16 she entered the Royal Veterinary College, where she had to struggle against a certain amount of prejudice against members of her sex becoming veterinary surgeons. After four years, she passed all the necessary examinations to qualify, but by this time she was engaged to a South African and left England to settle with him in Port Elizabeth. It was not until after the birth of her second child that she again began to practice her profession, and by that time her marriage was headed for divorce. Subsequent to this she set up her plate in a small village called "White River" a few miles away from Port Elizabeth and her adventures amongst the animals and people of that region are well and humorously described.

> "The body of a cow lay half a mile away; by this time the morning light was accentuating the gross distension of the beast. The first incision in a case like this usually brings a strong gust of unpleasantness, so I advised my client to stand well back to avoid it. He proudly stuck out his chin at the suggestion, stood firm and gave the impression that I had offended him deeply by implying that I could survive such an ordeal better than he. While absorbed in my gruesome work I happened to glance up just in time to see the farmer staggering drunkenly away, hand to mouth, his face a sickly green.
> "Half an hour later we assembled round the kitchen table to drink strong home-brewed coffee and "dunk" (dip) our rusks, as is the custom. I had been able to reach the definite diagnosis of Blackquarter, explaining the course of this dreaded disease as fully as possible. I stopped speaking and an uneasy silence followed, while all eyes turned towards the elder of the house, now restored to normal composure. 'Well, I am jiggered,' he finally exploded, '. . . I am really amazed; you work like a man without even changing color. How do you manage to do such work, and still look like a woman?' Coming from him I took this as a compliment and was just beginning to erase his previous antagonism from my memory, when he continued: 'Why don't you behave normal like other women, stay at the house and have children and get a good man to cook for, instead of messing around in cows' insides? You listen to me, my meisie (girl), and change before it's too late.'"

Among the many unusual people whom she met on the Lowveld, not the least interesting was Toni Harthoorn, who was the first scientist to find a method of safely immobilizing animals which would enable them to be moved from danger areas. He had also found an antidote which would re-mobilize them immediately they were injected with it. When large areas of land have to be inundated, this discovery helps to preserve many animals which would otherwise have lost their lives.

> "To witness the amazing procedure of immobilization was the experience of a lifetime. One milligram . . . could stop a four-ton rhinoceros within ten minutes or even sooner. I watched the first attempt with respect and from a disdance, seeing the rhino slow down to a stop, head down, eyes sleepy. I was, therefore very surprized when Toni called me to come close and become a rhino rider! We want to show the world that a wild rhinoceros can be made safe and still with M99. Would you mind getting on his back for a while so that we can take a photograph?'"

The book ends when the author gives up her veterinary practice to marry Toni Harthoorn and assist him in his work of wild life conservation. Perhaps she will write another book on this fascinating subject—meanwhile the first instalment of her saga is very interesting and readable.

McCord-Winn Introduces New President

At a luncheon held at the Winchester Country Club on Tuesday, May 13, Albert R. Vanderbilt, the newly appointed president of J. H. Winn Inc., was introduced to a group of Winchester business men.

McCord Corporation, manufacturers of numerous automotive parts and equipment, and headquartered in Detroit, Michigan, recently acquired J. H. Winn Inc. which it will continue to operate as a Winchester Division.

During his comments as emcee, Vincent C. Ambrose, a former member of the board of directors of J. H. Winn Inc., and president of the Winchester Trust Company, paid high tribute to past chairman of the Board and Treasurer, Ernest B. Dade, for his ability and foresight in having guided the Winn corporation in such a manner that it gained national prominence as a manufacturer of dial hands and metal stampings.

McCord Corporation was represented here by C. F. Hogan, chairman of the board, and George J. Jackson, group vice president and president of L. F. Grammes & Sons, Inc., one of its many divisions located in various parts of the United States, Canada, and Mexico. On a world-wide basis, McCord has licensing agreements with licensed firms in 12 other foreign countries.

For the Town of Winchester, Selectman Edmund A. Williams extended greetings. And in well chosen remarks, State Representative Harrison Chadwick voiced greetings from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Mr. Vanderbilt responded enthusiastically following his presentation to the group, and told of his keen anticipation in coming to Winchester and taking an active part in the future growth and development of J. H. Wi nnInc.

Mr. Hogan spoke briefly and revealed the managerial philosophy of McCord Corporation, as well as telling of his firm's rapid expansion in recent years, further proof of which was his announcement of the impending acquisition of a gasket manufacturing and distribution firm in Turin, Italy.

In addition to those mentioned, present were Ralph W. Jury, vice president of J. H. Winn Inc.; Chief of Police Joseph Derro; Chief of Fire Department Frank Amico; Thomas Murray, manager of Dominick & Dominick, Inc.; Nicholas H. Fitzgerald, president of Fitzgerald Fuel Company; William Cusack, investments and real estate developer; Paul O'Neil, proprietor of O'Neil's Pharmacy and Timothy F. Letters To The Editor

Channel 2 Grateful To Merchants

Editor of the Star:

Through the letters to the editor page in the Star, I would like to express my appreciation to the local merchants for their cooperation and generosity in supporting the Channel 2 Auction. This auction which will be held the first week in June raises money to support New England's Educational Television Station and is contributed to by business organizations throughout the entire listening area.

I am well aware of the many demands made on our local business houses, and for this reason I am doubly grateful for the positive response which the twenty-five local go-getters received as they made their calls. Mrs. P. S. Cooke, my co-chairman, and I found our job made easier because of the outstanding cooperation we received.

Sincerely,
Edna T. Bentley

MBTA: Reader Seconds Motion For Takeover

Editor of the Star:

With interest and concern I recently read an article and a letter in the Star regarding the termination of the agreement between the Boston & Maine and the MBTA.

A possible solution to the problem of decreasing commuter travel on the B & M is offered here following an economic geography term paper regarding the success or failure of the Boston and Maine Railroad. My conclusion is that the freight segment of the B & M operations looks rather favorable for future growth. However, the commuter segment is failing slowly and holds no attraction for the future.

The recommendation I offered is for the MBTA to take over the entire commuter operations from the B & M. This step would be part of a long range objective to become the sole mass transportation system which would cover all of Eastern Massachusetts—the perimiter being Route 495 with Boston as the focal point for all main rapid transit lines.

With the rapidly evolving megalopolis where th eCity of Boston will grow outward and engulf many suburban cities and towns, the large population will require an efficient, fast means of rapid transit into and out of the city. If the MBTA were to acquire the B & M rights of way, this passenger transportation problem could be relieved or maybe even solved.

This idea would send the more efficient, less costly MBTA rapid transit subway trains between Winchester and Boston to replace the B & M Buddliners. Actually the line from the North Station area would pass through Winchester on out to Woburn, Burlington, Wilmington, and terminate in Lowell.

An idea such as this seems feasible considering the existing B & M plant and equipment. Since there is a dim future for Boston and Maine commuter operations, why not give the MBTA a try?

Sincerely yours
Richard G. Clark

Hospital Dinner Honors to 100; Dr. Moses Cited

At its 15th annual awards dinner held Thursday evening at the Kings Grant in Danvers, the Winchester Hospital board of directors presented a special plaque honoring Dr. Sanford H. Moses, a member of its staff since 1930 and chief of its department of obstetrics until this year.

Honored also at the dinner, held annually during National Hospital Week, were over one hundred employees with five years or more of service.

Special guests, in addition to the directors, were the retired employees, all of whom were introduced by Reese E. James, administrator, who served at toastmaster.

Among the awards presented by Clinton W. Bennett, president of the board, were those to Miss Marion McInnis of Winchester, who marked her 30 years of continuous service; Miss Dora Foster of Woburn, who just completed her 25th anniversary with the hospital; and Miss Eugenie Burnham of Melrose, for 20 years of service. Others were 15-year awards to Mrs. Anne Connor of Arlington, Miss Mary Gavin of Woburn, and Miss Virginia Wilson of Winchester.

Special plaques were presented to Nathan Bornstein, who had just retired as chief of the pharmacy service, and to two volunteers who were honored as representing the Volunteer Service at the Hospital, Mrs. Blanche Boyd of West Medford, who has given over 2000 hours of volunteer service, and Miss Eva Harrington of Winchester, who has accumulated almost 300 hours as a junior volunteer.

The presentation to Dr. Moses was a surprise. The doctor practices from his Dix Street office and lives here at 8 Prospect Street.

"Court Finds Youth Guilty Of Drug Abuse"

Woburn District Court has found a 19-year-old Winchester boy guilty on four counts of violating the narcotic and harmful drug laws.

The court suspended for two years on terms of probation a sentence of six months in the House of Correction on each of the four counts.

The violations were discovered by Winchester police on March 27 when they were summoned to the boy's home after he became unconscious after what appeared to be an overdose of drugs.

K

Tis the Season . . .
For Parties

If your schedule is like ours, these two months, May and June, are hectic. We start the round of activities with Mother's Day and go through a seemingly endless social whirl including such things as club year-end ladies' nights and installations, bowling banquets, anniversaries, weddings, graduations, and we even celebrate our day—Father's Day.

Unless you have a playroom (and even then) you'll find many of your guests congregating in the kitchen. Invariably, things get dropped on the floor.

Our wives don't get the least bit nervous because we have carpeting in the kitchen. Carpeting made of fibers which stand just about every type of abuse possible in addition to reducing the number of broken glasses which would have shattered when hitting the hard floor.

Another additional activity coming up is a birthday for daughter, Sherry. And there will be no damper put on the children's activities at the party because Mary knows that a little spilled ice cream or birthday cake or whatever else may end up on the carpet will be cleaned up in a jiffy with a damp sponge or a quick vacuuming.

Have you considered carpeting your kitchen? Come in and let us torture-test a sample piece of carpeting and show you what some of these new man-made fibers can withstand.

Nursing Schools Announce Places For 168 Students

Hospitals are crying for nurses and 22 of Greater Boston's nursing schools still have openings for the fall of '68.

Mrs. Margaret Ryan, R.N., director of the Careers in Nursing (recruitment) Program of United Community Services, has listed 60 percent of the schools participating in her program as needing more students to fill their classes. The openings are in all four types of nursing education programs—practical, diploma, associate and baccalaurate.

Mrs. Ryan explained that a recent boom in 2-year R.N. programs has changed the recruitment situation. Eight such programs have opened across the state in the last three years.

Schools reporting vacancies include: practical nursing programs —Boston Trade High School for Girls, Holy Ghost Hospital School of Nursing; diploma programs—Boston City Hospital, Catherine Laboure, Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Massachusetts General Hospital, Malden Hospital, Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, New England Baptist Hospital, New England Deaconess Hospital, Newton-Wellesley Hospital, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Quincy City Hospital, Saint Elizabeth's Hospital, Salem Hospital, Somerville Hospital, and Whidden Memorial Hospital.

Associate degree programs with openings are Lasell Junior College, Massachusetts Bay Community College, North Shore Community College, Northeastern University College of Nursing; and the baccalaureate program — Northeastern University College of Nursing.

Of those programs with openings several accept men and married students. Those accepting married students are: practical nursing programs—Boston Trade and Holy Ghost Hospital; diploma programs —Catherine Laboure, Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Malden Hospital, Massachusetts General Hospital, Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, New England Deaconess Hospital, Newton-Wellesley Hospital, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Quincy City Hospital, Somerville Hospital and Whidden Memorial Hospital; associate degree programs—Lasell Junior College and Northeastern University; and baccalaureate programs — Northeastern University.

Men are accepted into the programs at Northeastern, Saint Elizabeth's Hospital, Quincy City Hospital, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Massachusetts General Hospital, Holy Ghost Hospital, and Boston Trade High School for Girls.

Anyone wanting information regarding any of these programs may contact the director of admissions at the school or Mrs. Margaret Ryan, R.N., Careers in Nursing, United Community Services, 14 Somerset Street, Boston, 02108, 742-2000.

NILES H. NELSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Nelson of 44 Water Street, this week received his Ph.D at Florida State University in Tallahassee. A former coach and teacher at Winchester High School, he holds B.A. and M.A. degrees in education from the University of Maine. Dr. Nelson will join the faculty of Austin Peay State College in Clarksville, Tennessee, in June as a member of the physical education department.

We have played a poor game indeed—be it golf, tennis, or bridge—if upon analysis, we are unable to come up without a single bit of rewarding action. Having completed a ho-hum game with a fine partner last Wednesday evening, I scanned the traveling slips in search of a bright spot. The action we took on Board 16, Section A, gave us reason to believe we occasionally do a few things correctly. For partnerships hopeful of achieving a competitive game, a good understanding is a must in the execution of penalty doubles at a low level. There are a number of factors which must be taken into consideration: briefly—vulnerability, a two-trick set of the opponents is virtually certain to be a top. With length in partner's suit, one cannot consider the double at a low level. Then, too, there should be no suit for adversaries to escape to.

West deals and bids one Spade; North doubles for take-out. In light of the meager bidding that transpired, not all aspects of partner's holding is made known to South; nevertheless, South, exercising his table presence, elected to defend against one Spade, doubled. Despite the fact that there is an almost unreachable game contract in the North-South cards, West's down two, doubled, is a sure bottom for his efforts.

$5,860 Spent Here For Basic Needs

How much is the average family in Middlesex County spending these days for the basic necessities of living—food, clothing and shelter? Approximately $5,860 per year.

How much does it have left, after those outlays and after taxes, for other spending? About $4,240.

These estimates are based upon national surveys by the Labor Department and other agencies to determine what changes, if any, have been taking place in family budgeting

Although prices have gone up considerably in the local area in recent years, as they have elsewhere, it appears that Middlesex County families have more money at their disposal today, after providing for the necessities, than they ever had.

This is the case despite the fact that they have upgraded their tastes and standards of living and are, therefore, spending more for these necessities.

The studies show that even though the budget of the average family is nearly 50 percent higher than it was in 1959, the economic squeeze is not very different than it was then. The will to spend has risen in tandem with the ability to do so, says the Labor Department.

The latest findings are that the typical non-farm family in the United States devotes 23.2 percent of its budget to food, 24.1 percent to housing and 10.6 percent to clothing.

In Middlesex County, this "must" spending amounted to some $5,860 last year, or 57.9 percent of the $10,100 that the average local family had available after taxes and savings.

This percentage, which is the national average, turns out to be close to what it was in 1959. At that time, 27 percent went for food, 24 percent for housing and 11 percent for clothing, a total of 62 percent.

The amount of money allocated for the basic necessities and the amount left for other purposes vary with income.

Among families in the local area with $4,000 available after taxes and savings, approximately $2,300 was spent for food, clothing and shelter and $1,700 remained for other outlays.

Those with $7,500 used $4,350 for basics and had $3,150 for discretionary spending.

Post Office Honors

Robert Winn Is Cited in Medford For 40 Years Outstanding Service

Well-known Town Meeting Member Robert M. Winn of 11 Kirk Street was honored by the Post Office Department recently. Boston Postmaster Ephraim Martin (shown above right) honored him for 40 years service as a letter carrier in Medford.

Mr. Martin presented a certificate of superior accomplishment and a cash award to Mr. Winn in recognition of superior performance of assigned duties.

In addition, in an accompanying letter, Mr. Winn was cited for his "demonstrated devotion to duty, outstanding performance and commendable ability as a carrier."

Bob, as he is known here as well as all over the City of Medford, has covered a total of four routes there. For the past 12 years he has been on duty at the Tufts University campus and three years ago he was selected and honored there as "Campus man of the year."

A life-long athlete, Bob, a Medford native, was graduated from Medford High School in 1926 and starred there in baseball, football and track. From 1926 to 1934 he played basketball for Company E of the Medford Lawrence Light Guard unit. In Medford also he is a past president of the Booster Club which backs the athletic program at the High School. And he is also currently vice president of the Mustang social Athletic Club, newly formed to assist students who show athletic or scholastic ability.

In Winchester he has been a Little League coach for nine years and a coach in PAL basketball for 10 years.

Medford knows Mr. Winn also as a star minstrel show performer where his shocking red hair was a familiar sight in many shows.

Mr. Winn lives here with his wife, Susan. They are the parents of three sons, all WHS graduates and all outstanding athletes here: Robert lives in Arlington, Richard J. at 23 Carter Street and Daniel T. in Medford. There is one grandchild.

Of Gremlins And Bookmarks

Now and then when the Star staff is out at night, gremlins get into the plant and go to work here and there.

Last week it appeared they worked on a caption under a picture of five young Winchester Public Library readers who had been winners in a book mark contest.

They worked so efficiently that no one could tell exactly who were the youngsters whose art work in a book mark created for their favorite book was outstanding among 300 entries.

In fact, Mrs. Dorothy Comfort, children's librarian, gave out book prizes to: Lance Laulettea, first prize and Janice Gerardi, second prize, aged nine to 11 category; Bridget Crofton, first prize and Mike Ferrari, second prize, among seven to eight-year-olds and Colleen Conway, first prize and Peter Mills, second prize, ages three to six.

Judges for the contest were: Mrs. Marcia Bartolo and Miss Mary Nelson, of the Library staff.

GOP Women Formulate Plans

Mrs. Maxwell McCreery presided at the first meeting of her executive board of the Winchester Women's Republican Club on May 15 at the home of Mrs. Robert Nyere.

With 22 women attending, plans for the 1968-69 season were formulated.

Mrs. Ann Blackham, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Republican Women, reviewd the history of the Winchester club, now in its 46th year, and invited the group to attend the annual meeting and luncheon of the State Federation at Castle Hill, Ipswich, on May 22.

Mrs. Cynthia Barone also attended as newly-elected State Committeewoman.

Barfods Join Foster Plan To Aid Girl

The Ib T. Barfod family of 28 Englewood Road has financially "adopted" Gregoria Moreno, a 10-year old Peruvian girl, through Foster Parents Plan, Inc.

Gregoria, a first grader, lives in the slums of Chimbote with her mother and four of her brothers and sisters. Their home is a sparsely furnished two-room adobe hut with an earth floor. The mother spends little more than four dollars a week for food for the entire family. The family's diet consists of tea, rolls, soup, rice, beans, and oatmeal.

GREGORIA MORENO

The monthly contribution by the Barfods helps to supply new clothing, household goods, medical care, a cash grant, and family guidance as well as primary education for Gregoria. The Barfods, who have three children, have already received a letter from Gregoria expressing her appreciation for their interest in her.

Currently Foster Parents Plan is operating in Greece, Hong Kong, Korea, the Philippines, Viet Nam, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, and Peru. A child may be chosen according to country, sex, and age and Plan will try hard to meet the specifications. Foster Parents Plan is a non-sectarian, non-profit non-propaganda, independent organization. "Adoption" and contributions are tax deductible. For information write to Foster Parents Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10010.

Housing Here Topic for WFHA

200 CAP Leaguers Open Season; 4 Little League Teams Undefeated

by James R. Stewart Jr.

After last Sunday's postponement, the CAP League got under way with gusto this past week end. On Saturday, May 18, 150 boys from 8 through 12 years old reported to Ginn Field for action with ball and bat under the supervision of Director George Tello, Instructor Phil Stackpole, and many fathers and interested adults. Four fields were set up for play, and eight teams were organized.

Due to extenuating circumstances, the first day's games were limited to four contests representing boys from different grade schools. Different colored caps were issued to approximately 25 boys on each team, and by 4 p.m. most games had been completed to the cheers and encouragement of many parents as well as the boys themselves.

On Sunday, Ginn Field saw five fields organized, and two more teams were set up. On of the most interesting games saw the orange caps and purple caps battle through nine innings without a decision being rendered.

Next Saturday at 1:30 p.m., the final day of CAP League registration will take place at Ginn Field. There are still a few openings for boys who want to play, but it will be necessary to limit each team to 25 players. Any father interested in managing or coaching one of these teams should see George Tello at Ginn Field on Saturday afternoon, May 25.

For Top L. L. Play

Elsewhere in Little League competition, four teams seem to have the upper hand at the present time in their race for the championship. In the American Major League, Leo Pollacchi's Reds are making a shambles of the standings by winning all eight of their games. In the American Minor League, the Jaguars, under Charlie Deroo, are 6 and 0; while in the National Minor League, Chet McGrath's Greyhounds are undefeated, so far. Standings as reported through this past Sunday's games will be found elsewhere on these pages.

CAP Leaguers, Minor Leaguers and Major Leaguers were prominent in the line of march of the En Ka Street Fair parade on Saturday, followed by a well-conceived and finely executed float originated by Mrs. Robert Carroll and her Women's Auxiliary. After the parade was over, most all of the Little Leaguers raced to the Fair, including the winners in the recent initial part of the Little League fund drive. Those who purchased chances for the console color TV set will have to wait a little longer for a chance to collect the prize, because the drive will not be completed for another week or so, so more people will have the opportunity to obtain tickets from any Little League manager or official before the grand drawing.

Co-Captains Lead WHS Trackmen To 66-65 Win Over Watertown

Coach Roger Rawden's track squad upped its season record back to the .500 mark, by defeating visiting Watertown High 66-65 last Tuesday on Manchester Field. The victory left the Sachems with a 4-4 slate, with the non-league contest with Woburn yesterday the final.

Co-captain David Carpenter was the high scorer for Winchester, as he posted his first triple victory of the season, winning the 220, the javelin, and the low hurdles, for a 15-point total. His fellow Co-captain, Greg Cronin, took first place in the 100 and 440 for a ten point effort.

Chris Halverson continued his steady performances in the shot put and discus, placing first and second respectively in the two events. Two underclassmen also contributed first-place performances in the winning cause: junior Rick Mobbs in the high hurdles, and sophomore "Chico" Amico in the broad jump. The victory was Amico's first varsity finish, as he has been plagued with fouls in his recent outings.

WHS Trackmen At Bottom In League Meet

Winchester High's track team, which boasted three Middlesex League champions after the 1967 League Meet, did not fare so well this year, as the squad posted only four points in the entire competition and finished a low last.

Senior Chris Halverson, Winchester's big scorer this season in the field events and the 1967 ML discus champion, was responsible for the Sachems' four points, as he finished second in the discus.

Another 1967 winner, senior Co-captain David Carpenter, last year's low hurdles champion and this winter's state Class 'C' 50-yard dash champion, was unable to compete for Coach Roger Rawden, as he was sidelined with a pulled leg muscle. Carpenter is expected to be well-healed for the State Meet, in which he will be a top seed.

Winchester's other co-captain, senior speedster Greg Cronin, was the victim of starting blocks, as he failed to place in the 100-yard dash—the event in which he was the 1967 ML champion. Cronin's mishap occurred in the final heat of the 100, as the front foot-rest of his blocks gave way at the gun. Cronin fell to his knees, but the official failed to signal for a false start which is normally called when such an accident happens.

Two new ML records were established in this year's contest, held last Saturday in Melrose. Lexington's Nat Guild set a new 2-mile mark with a time of 9:51.4, and Melrose's Dick Comeau posted his record in the 440 with a 49.7 seconds.

The team totals were as follows: Wakefield 62, Melrose 54, Lexington 30, Stoneham 23, Belmont 21, Reading 18, Concord-Carlisle 16, Watertown 12, Winchester 4.

Swim Club Plans "Ode to Summer"

Reservations may be made singly or in tables of four by calling ticket chairman, Mrs. J. Barratta at 729-6110 or 648-1341 or 648-8946.

Stoneham Shades Batsmen 2-1

Winchester High's baseball squad narrowly missed upsetting first-place Middlesex League entry, Stoneham High, as the team jumped ahead 1-0 in the fifth inning, only to yield two runs to the League-leaders before the contest ended. The defeat was particularly frustrating, as the Sachems held the Spartans to only three hits for the entire contest.

Junior first baseman Jack Papadinis led off in the Winchester half of the fifth with a base on balls. Junior right fielder Tom Wolfe was then hit by a pitch, moving Papadinis to second. Mark Fitzgerald, the Sachems' hurler, then fanned trying to bunt, but not before Papadinis advanced to third on an error by the Spartan first baseman, who bobbled a pick-off throw. Tom Flaherty, Winchester's second baseman and lead-off batter, then reached first on an infield single, which sent Papadinis home with the Sachems' sole run.

Stoneham got the run back in the home half of the inning on a walk, a sacrifice bunt, and a single to left field, which the Sachem fielder errored.

But the game-winner for the Spartans came in the sixth. Dave Commito singled to left to start off the inning. Then Gerry Young, attempting to sacrifice Commito to second, popped up to Fitzgerald on the mound. Fitzgerald's throw to first to try to double up Commito, who had been on his way to second on the bunt was wild, and the base runner advanced to second on the error. Fitzgerald walked the next batter, putting men on second and third. Dave Smith, the Stoneham right fielder, then rapped a grounder to Mike Gilberti which the sophomore could not handle. Smith reached safely, loading the bases.

The Spartan catcher, Bill Donahue then successfully executed a suicide squeeze, which scored Commito and won the game for Stoneham.

Belmont Drops Tennis Team In 3-2 Upset

Coach Don Stangel's highly-regarded tennis squad was defeated by a score of 3-2 last Thursday in Belmont.

The Sachems had begun the clash with a 8-0 slate, but the team left Belmont at 8-1, having dropped from first place in the Middlesex League for the first time in three years. Belmont takes over possession of the top spot, as their victory continued their undefeated streak in the League.

Number one singles man, Gil Furnald, paced the Maroon Marauders in their big win over the Sachems by defeating Winchester's top singles player, captain Dick Kadesch. The Sachems' other two entries in the singles, senior Mike Hills and junior Brad Lindgren, won their matches, putting Winchester on top 2-1 at the completion of the singles.

However, Belmont proceeded to win both doubles contests, in securing their narrow 3-2 victory. The Winchester duos who fell victim to their opponents were the number one pair of Steve Pritchard and Barry Gibson, and the second doubles team of Bruce Stebbins and Leo Lauretano. Winchester will face two more Middlesex League teams before the end of the season: Stoneham and Concord-Carlisle.

All the Sachems can do now is to defeat both these squads, and hope that Belmont will suffer an upset of their own.

Wakefield Defeats Sachem BB 7-3

Committing six errors in the field, and failing to produce an extra-base hit, the Sachem batsmen very unselfishly gave a game to visiting Wakefield High last Friday. Winchester defeated Wakefield the first time the teams met by a 6-0 margin.

Wakefield's five-run fourth inning proved to be all the Warriors needed. All nine Wakefield batters reached the plate that inning, as their five tallies came on two hits, two hit batsmen, a balk, and a Sachem error.

The Warriors scored again in the fifth, on a triple and a wild pitch, and once more in the sixth, on three Winchester errors and a fielder's choice.

The Sachems scored once in the fifth: Mike Gilberti singled to center, and then moved to third on an error by the Wakefield shortstop off the bat of Joe Fiumara. Gilberti then scored when the Warrior pitcher elected to go to first, after fielding Tom Wolfe's grounder back to the mound.

Winchester scored twice more in the seventh, as junior Mike Boodakian, who replaced Tom Flaherty at second base, ripped a single to center, which scored pinch-hitter Chuck Rotundi and Mike Gilberti, both of whom had also singled to center, and had been advanced when Bruce Mullen drew a walk. The clutch performances of the Sachems' reserves were the only laudable efforts contributed by the team.

WHS Mound Menace

RIGHTHANDER MARK FITZGERALD has accounted for the Sachem wins this season with a 6-2 season matching up against the team's 6-6-1 record. Last week he concluded a five straight streak. Tomorrow he is slated to go against Concord on the home field. Mark, who will try for the NU freshman nine next year, puts most of his stock on his curve, with a fastball back-up pitch. Girls' Softball Downed Twice; Topped by Woburn and Melrose

In their last two games the Winchester girls' softball team suffered defeat at the hands of Woburn and Melrose, to drop their season's standing to 1 and 4.

In the first game, last Monday at Ginn Field, the Woburn girls claimed the 15-4 victory. However, Woburn is notorious for scores of up to 50 points and Winchester was very successful in thwarting most of their scoring attempts.

The hard-hitting Woburn batters started the game with nine runs in the first and second innings. However, a hustling Winchester outfield built-up momentum as they increased their number of put-outs with each inning and gradually destroyed Woburn's scoring power. In the final half of the game the Woburn girls were held to a total of only three runs.

Winchester began and ended their scoring for the first half of the game in the bottom of inning number one with a single by Janet Cantillon, which was driven-in by Eileen Sullivan's grounder into left field. The girls, however, were really shaken by their opponents' powerful start and never had a chance to display their own hitting strength. The second run, again scored by Janet Cantillon, came in the fifth and was aided by Joan Cussen's double into right field. The last two runs were scored in the final stanza on a single by Eileen Sullivan and a double by Kary Laban.

The junior varsity also lost to their opponents by the close score of 23-21. They were hampered by Woburn's comeback rally in the last two innings and were unable to overcome the two-point margin.

Melrose Wins 9-3

The second game, which was played last Friday at Ginn, found Winchester on the bottom with a 9-3 decision.

Merri England, pitching through the fifth inning, got off to a bad start in the first as she loaded the bases and allowed Melrose to drive-in the first three runs with consecutive singles. However, during the next three innings she held Melrose scoreless and was only replaced by sophomore Eileen McKenna in the top of the sixth after allowing another run and two walks. Eileen, the outstanding junior varsity hurler, was pitching for her first time with the varsity squad. But without any strong support from the outfield Eileen allowed the final runs to score.

Winchester's three runs all came in the second inning as they rallied, with two outs, to tie the score. However, in the following innings a tight Melrose infield kept all but three of the Sachems out of scoring position. Unfortunately, Winchester accepted defeat with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh.

Girl Scout Diary

By Marie Began

Last week Junior Girl Scout Troop 484 passed the bicycle safety test laid out for them by Safety Officer Roland Roy and Juvenile Officer Richard Beaton of the Winchester Police Department thereby finishing the requirements for the bicycle safety badge.

The officers gave a talk and passed out pamphlets on bicycle safety after which bicycles were inspected and the girls tested on their riding skills and safety knowledge.

Troop Camping

On the first weekend of May three Winchester troops took advantage of the opening of Cedar Hill, a Girl Scout Camp in Waltham.

Cadette Troop 506 camped overnight Friday, May 3, at Juniper Hill, the primitive tent unit at Cedar Hill. The girls worked on preparing the area for the upcoming summer camping season and gained experience in fire building with wet wood and cooking by patrols. Each patrol had a different menu. On Saturday a treasure hunt was organized by one patrol for the rest of the troop.

Junior Troop 501 spent a night at the Pond Shelter Friday night and completed the requirements of their outdoor cook badge. Their leaders Mrs. P. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Richard Kramer were accompanied by Mrs. Walters as nurse and program aide Gay Roberts.

Junior Troop 485 also went to Cedar Hill on May 3 but stayed over a second night. They opened a second primitive tent area with a circular fireplace of rocks, and their water was brought up in pails. They all earned the outdoor cook badge which was presented to them around the campfire on Saturday night. Senior program aides Kay Verplank and Janice Russell taught the troop a game called "Capture the Flag." Accompanying the girls were leaders Mrs. Percy Hill and Mrs. John White.

On Friday May 10 the 5th and 6th graders of Troop 544 arrived at Cedar Hill for the weekend. Each girl provided her own supper to be cooked on a stick, allowing a minimum of cleaning up. They spent the evening singing around a campfire with a glowing moon overhead. The 4th graders arrived the next morning for a day of using their campcraft skills and learning new skills.

The girls extended thanks to 9th grade Cadettes Sue Friborg and Eileen Brennan for their assistance on the weekend.

Troop 544 has also been busy this spring finishing the gypsy and observer badges. In April they hiked around Walden Pond and saw the site of Thoreau's cabin.

Parkhurst Has Athletic Exhibit

On Wednesday, May 22, Parkhurst School children participated in an athletic exhibition called "Fun Day." Prizes were awarded to the winners in competition in various games and races.

All grade levels played kickball, dodgeball, had a bean bag relay, sack race, hoop race, and a treasure hunt. Future Olympic champions showed their skills at the running broad jump and a standing broad jump winning points which were accumulated to determine the winners in each grade.

Under the direction of Mrs. Ruby M. Wiggett, teacher of the third grade at Parkhurst School, the children were given the morning for the program which included the award of banners to the classes winning the most competitive events. An exhibition of unicycle skill developed by some of the students was an unusual part of the day's events

The finale of the morning was an activity similar to the old-fashioned box social. Each child decorated a box suitable for a lunch and brought the box filled with a special assortment of luncheon treats which he exchanged with one of his classmates. The children then participated in group singing before returning to complete their day in the regular school program of studies.

According to Albert F. Sutula, principal of Parkhurst Schools, "it is the thought that in the spring the children need a brief period to exercise and enjoy the outdoors as a break in the routine of studying." The hope is that there is a resultant re-charging of the batteries to carry them through until the end of the school year in their studies.

Lacrosse Team Loses to Rivers

In what proved to be a frustrating game for Winchester High's lacrosse squad, Rivers Country Day School handed the team its fourth defeat of the season, 3-1, last Friday on the Sachems' home field.

The hometowners did everything but score, as they completely outplayed their opponents, with the WHS midfield controlling the ball for 80% of the contest.

The Sachem defense cleared the ball beautifully, without one of their clearing efforts being broken up by the Rivers attack. The shots-on-goal statistics graphically illustrate the extent to which Winchester outhustled and outfought the visiting club: the Sachems challenged the Rivers goalie on 50 occasions, while Mark Stabile, Winchester's goalie, had to deal with only 15 shots.

The Sachems sole tally came off the stick of senior attackman Ricky Brink. The defeat was Winchester's second in two starts, and it dropped the team's season slate to 6-4-1, with three contests remaining.

Vincent M. O'Reilly, CPA, of 5 Grove Street has been elected a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. Mr. O'Reilly is associated with the Boston offices of the accounting firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery.

Tennis Team Seeded For State Tournament

Immediately before the Belmont match it was publicly announced the Winchester High School tennis team had been invited to and seeded for the 1968 Massachusetts State Schoolboy Tennis Tournament to be held early in June. Although the entire draw has not been announced the first four places were awarded to Newton South, Winchester, the Southeastern Conference Champion, and Scituate. Those four teams will be seeded entries for this year's tournament. Twelve more teams will be selected all of whom will be winners or runnersup in their respective leagues. Informed sources say the other entries will include Newton High, Brookline, Weston, Wayland, Lincoln-Sudbury, Belmont, Needham, and the winners of the Northeastern, Catholic and Cape Ann Leagues.

Winchester will not have to meet any of the other three seeded teams until the semi fiinal round. It was announced the semi final and final rounds will be played at Newton South High School.

The less said about the circus at Belmont last Friday, the better. It was a disgrace to both the Middlesex League and the game of tennis. Having the home court advantage is one thing, yet taking advantage of it as Belmont did is another. Belmont ended Winchester's long winning streak with a 3 to 2 upset victory. The home team (Belmont) has the authority to play the match under any conditions, yet they are also RESPONSIBLE for the lack of sportsmanship and proper behavior by the hundreds of Belmont fans on hand for the match. It happened two years ago and Winchester ignored the obvious intentions of the school and the residents of Belmont. This year an official protest has been lodged against the school and the team, who should be held responsible.

If Winchester is fortunate enough to be able to meet Belmont in the States (both teams are going), the outcome will be the result of tennis talents, not the result of circuslike behavior by the spectators.

Recently the Junior Class at Belmont Hill School elected Ted Shasta of 54 Grove Street to be editor-in-chief of the 1969 Year Book. He entered Belmont Hill in 1963 and has been a consistent high honors student.

Tufts Freshmen Top Lacrosse 9-7 To End Streak

Coach Gene Bouley's lacrosse squad's four-game winning streak was snapped by the visiting Tufts Freshmen at Leonard Field last Wednesday.

The defeat marked the first Winchester loss to a Tufts team in five years of lacrosse competition. However, the defeat was not due to a poor effort on the part of the Sachem team, as Tufts fielded its strongest squad in many years versus the hard-charging Winchester club.

Although the Jumbos capitalized on a few mistakes by the Sachem midfield and defense, and jumped to an early lead, the game was a good combination of hard checking and shooting, and effective stickhandling. The Winchester squad was quick to come back, but they were never quite able to catch the Jumbos, who had established momentum with their early surge.

Two Sachems were able to sneak a pair of goals past the Tufts goalie: seniors Bob Penna and Henry Cushman. Senior Ricky Brink posted a single tally, as did sophomore Cliff Letty, and junior Jim Barry.

Noonan Teachers Feted at Luncheon

On Wednesday, May 15, the Noonan School Parents' Association entertained the Noonan staff at the annual spring luncheon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Gast, 3 Ardley Place.

Attending were Miss Paula Caffrey, principal, Mrs Marjorie Bergholtz, school secretary, Mrs. Alven Wallace and Mrs. Roger Wood, incoming president and vice-president respectively of the Parents' Association, and the following faculty members: Mrs. Mary Alice Niles, Mrs. Margaret Sexton, Mrs. Mary Alice Norris, Miss Margaret Tilton, Miss Diane Celia, Miss Roseanne Bowen, Mrs. Patricia McGonagle, Miss Sarah McGowan, Miss Marjorie Edwards and Mrs. Mary Brooks.

Second, Sixth Graders Write Stories In Teams

Creative writing is being encouraged at Mystic School on a cooperative basis with grade 2 and grade 6 youngsters working in teams. Miss Eileen Cummings and Mrs. Eileen Hartwell, second and sixth grade teachers respectively, combine their classes in one room and pair off a sixth grader with each second grade child.

Ideas are suggested that could form a story and the partners compose a story with the older children serving as secretaries and mentors. According to Miss Cummings, "Thoughts flowed from the lips of the second graders to the pens of the sixth grade boys and girls. The former were truly creative as they told their ideas for a story entitled 'The Little Dog that Couldn't Bark.' The sixth grade children obviously enjoyed themselves as they recorded all the ideas of the budding writers."

After the dictation the sixth graders reorganized their notes placing them in logical sequence with a beginning that showed characters, time and place, followed by the exciting part, climax and ending, with the hope that all was written with correct spelling, grammar and punctuation. The finished products were shared by both original partners and then by the combined classes. Mrs. Hartwell explained that both groups appear to benefit from their experiences with the ghost writer experiment and that clever and amusing stories have been the product of this new approach to creative writing.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Many experts say the one thing that makes people "human" is language. That's why words have always played a big role in the progress of mankind.

For the past several years much of the discussion on words has centered around the 4-letter words so prevalent in modern literature and drama.

We have tried to think about the part played by 4-letter words in our business. Truly, these words play a vital role. Insurance, for example, provides CASH. Doesn't that word have a nice metallic ring?

Several clients have said that the Proper Program of Insurance lifts a LOAD from their shoulders, and gives them peace of MIND!

But one of the most vital Insurance words is not of the 4-letter variety at all. There's a 7-letter standout called SERVICE. Many clients feel this word —especially in its active form— is a wonderful feature of all of the insurance coverages that we provide.

In concluding this discussion, we naturally think of three more 4-letter words: The next time you NEED insurance of any kind, please COME in our office DOOR!

JC-ettes Honor Past Presidents

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Louis Cappello, the Winchester Jaycee-ettes honored past presidents and heard reports from officers and directors.

Following a buffet, President Mrs. Lee Osburn spoke for the membership in expressing to former presidents, Mrs. Robert McNamara, Mrs. John Williams, and Mrs. Edward Rodriguez, appreciation for their service to the organization.

During the regular business meeting, Mrs. Roger DeMinico announced that the Cautious Twins booklets for elementary schools had been ordered and that date of distribution would be published shortly.

Mrs. John Williams reported that the JC-JC-ette entry in the En Ka parade was a flower bedecked convertible carrying Miss Winchester, Ann Deechan, and Miss Congeniality, Linda DeLeo.

Contributions approved were the annual gift to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and a special donation to the Drop-In Center.

The annual meeting consisting of election of officers and summaries of the year's activities followed.

Locally, the group completed 12 civic, one social, one fund raising, and three JC aid projects. Participation in the state organization included attendance at workshops, the awards program, and an extension to Arlington.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers who were elected at the conclusion of the meeting: Mrs. Louis Cappello, president; Mrs. John Hackett, vice president; Mrs. Charles Price, secretary; and Mrs. Roger DeMinico, treasurer.

NOREEN JOHNSON CONNELL of Winchester served as judge at the recent dance festival auditions of the Connecticut Federation of Music Clubs Dance Division at the Creative Arts Center in Ansonia, Connecticut.

Woman Dies Here In Friday Fire

2-Alarm Business Blaze Later On The Same Day

A Winchester woman died of asphyxiation and third degree burns in a blaze at her home on 71 Salisbury Street early last Friday morning. A second fire broke out later that day at the Atlee Corporation on 2 Lowell Avenue causing merchandise damage.

Mrs. Doris Bell, 53, was pronounced dead at the Winchester Hospital by Dr. Harry Benson, town medical examiner.

Firefighters were called to the Bell home at 1:33 a.m. by Robert Bell, 14, who had been awakened by the smell of smoke coming from his mother's bedroom. Upon arriving they found Mrs. Bell's husband, Nelson, who had been alerted to the flames by Robert, attempting to douse them with a garden hose through a window of the bedroom. He had been unable to enter the room.

Being informed that Mrs. Bell was unaccounted for, Firefighters Connolly, Doucette, Delorey, and McDonough entered the home to reach the bedroom in which they found her. She was pronounced dead at the Winchester Hospital where she was taken by a police ambulance.

The bedroom was burnt out while the rest of the home was heavily charged with smoke. The cause of the fire remains under investigation by Fire Chief I. Francis Amico and Lt. Leo Walsh of the Fire Marshal's office.

Business Fire

At 2:49 p.m. the first alarm went out on the fire at the Atlee Corporation, makers of metal stamping. The blaze was confined to a section of the second floor, without a sprinkling system, where merchandise was stored.

A second alarm was sounded at 3:07 p.m. which brought into town mutual aid companies from Woburn, Stoneham, and Arlington.

About 40 employees had to evacuate the building according to Chief Amico. Production continued soon after.

Probable cause of the fire was reported as carelessly disposed smoking materials.

June 18 Hearing Asks Zone Change For Apartments

A Planning Board hearing at the Town Hall on June 18 will hear the petition of Sarah Moss of Belmont to amend the zoning bylaws of the Town so as to allow the construction of a high-rise, seven-story apartment hotel with attached town houses on land on the west side of Cambridge Street abutting the north line of that of Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and going north for a frontage of about 1,500 feet.

Speaking for his wife, Jack Moss, Woburn attorney, said he will present to the Winchester Board an architect's plan and scale model prepared by the firm of Whitman and Howard for a multi-faceted building which he envisages to include a dining room and which will be located adjacent to the new shopping center to be constructed across the street from the existing shopping area in that location.

His presentation, he told the Star, will also include a look at the impact such a project could have on the Winchester tax rate. In addition the Woburn lawyer noted that the land held by his wife totals 95 acres and that he has already been in touch with the Conservation Committee with an offer of some surplus acreage.

The apartments to be included in the plan are to be designed to rent in the $300 to $350 a month range.

Big Crowd Attends Car Wash Hearing

A large number of persons attended the Board of Appeal hearing Thursday night, many of them partisans of the group of businessmen who brought appeal action before the Board to contest a permit granted by the Town to George D. Whitten for the construction of a car wash business at 785 Main Street.

The Building Commissioner had granted the permit and subsequently the Planning Board and a group of businessmen brought separate appeals asking the Board subtract the permit on the grounds of safety.

Chairman Lane McGovern opened the meeting reminding that this the area in question is zoned for heavy industry and that although car wash activity is not listed in the 1924 zoning definition, the law gives broad coverage, accepting most all but a few enterprises such as manufacture of acetylene gas and boiler making. Sitting with him were Board members Daniel T. Chane Jr. and Frederick D. Herberich.

The appeal was brought under section 12 of the zoning by-laws which state that any enterprise which would be injurious to health, welfare, safety or morals of the community be precluded. And Planning Board Chairman William Chapman presented the case against the permit on the safety grounds.

Using a map, Mr. Chapman built his case around the factors of road contour and traffic flow and volume as present hazards in the area. He noted the blind approach, the condition of present parking and the fact that a traffic count done for him just that day by Safety Officer Roland Roy of the Police had counted 90 cars an hour going by in average traffic hour.

Pvt. Sullivan Back on Duty

Marine Private Kevin Sullivan, who was hospitalized after being shot in the upper thigh by enemy rifle fire on April 17, has just been discharged from the First Hospital Company in Da Nang.

A letter received recently by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sullivan of 18 Glenwood Avenue, reported Kevin anxious to get back with his unit. The 19-year-old Marine has been serving in Vietnam since mid-March.

WCCA Shakes Local Lethargy At Race-Riot Panel Meeting

It was S.R.O. at the "Racism and Riots: Implications for Winchester," panel, sponsored Thursday night at the Epiphany Church hall as the first annual meeting of the Winchester Council for Community Action. The meeting used the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorder (or Kerner) Report —as take-off point. But it zeroed in on Winchester and the white community's problems. It jabbed to awaken the local conscience. It produced many constructive workable programs and it heard some gripes.

The panel also sharpened understanding here of the importance of business leadership in area and nation-wide efforts to correct the inequalities between the black and white populations. Tufts Professor Bernard Harleston of 10 Crescent Road, president of WCCA, moderated the panel and introduced two other resident members, Frederick C. Rozelle Jr. of 326 Main Street, vice president of the Old Colony Trust Company, and Charles P. Harris of 23 Stevens Street, director of the Massachusetts Council of Public Schools, treasurer of METCO and a former School Committee member, along with Cameron Byrd, director of the Ecumenical Center in Roxbury and a "witness to and mediator" during the Detroit riots last summer.

Professor Harleston threw out the challenge, asking that Winchester examine the desperate nature of inter-group tension and the cancer of racism.

"Are we listening? What are we going to do?"

Mr. Byrd painted the picture in strong colors: We have been in separate societies for a long time, he said. To maintain our sanity we must understand black power and its relation to racism we must accept the present crisis and learn to live with it.

Mr. Byrd spoke with what many listeners felt to be a thrusting desire to get through to his audience. At times he seemed cynical and near bitter, reaching hard to starpen his meaning for his listeners—working to make them more aware.

He outlined his feelings that the press had distorted the black power concept—that in fact this is a very conservative concept — the "black is beautiful" idea necessary to give identity and dignity to a race struggling towards maturity.

But action in the black world has disturbed the establishment, and whites have met the thrust with violent panic, he said. They have confused it with the philosophy of the black revolutionaries. This is wrong, said Mr. Byrd, for the revolutionaries want no dialogue with the whites.

The Roxbury activist spent some time on the factor of exclusiveness as it encourages racism. Culture has taught us how to be afraid of black people, he said, and the haves will always exclude the have-nots.

"We have missed the crucial dialogue between races because we are afraid," he noted, and pointed up the pressing need now that white people must have a new set of values, that they must talk to each other to each other. Whites must solve their problem.

Mr. Rozelle picked up the rejection theme and noted that it may apply to the Kerner report itself and its riot analysis . . .

WCCA, continued page 7

"Are We Listening?"

Cameron Byrd, director of the Ecumenical Center in Roxbury:

"Stokeley Carmichael claimed the city as the black man's land. The white man should have said, 'who are you to tell me I can't stay?'...We're too good at the skin game...Integration is the by-product of a qualitative society...We must live together ...If business would get together with its expertise and start putting its organizational know-how to the problem we'd get somewhere..."

Frederick Rozelle, vice president of the Old Colony Trust:

"Riots are simply a way of getting attention—the fact that we are here testifies to the value of violence...There is no single point of view, neither in Roxbury nor in Winchester...About 'the almighty buck' I'd like to see it set up so that if any company spends $1,000 on some program it can deduct it from taxes—see special legislation devised so that the spender of the money would have a double return...There's not a single person without influence somewhere. We have the obligation of leadership—and this means to be out in front naked, open to attack—in home, at work or in church."

Charles Harris, former School Committeeman, director of the Mass Council for Public Schools and treasurer of METCO:

"We need to scramble...I want to work for action that brings the Races together; for another shot at METCO; for more black teachers in white schools; for more curriculum developed in Afro-American courses;...for a rethinking of policies and of all charitable institutions...Most important we must listen—patiently and quietly listen...and make a commitment not at any point to be guilty of inaction."

"What Can We Do?"

Bernard Harleston, professor of psychology at Tufts, president of the Winchester Council for Community Action:

"Winchester must not escape its own responsibility on racism. We must bring the issue back here. I suggest that:

—"the Selectmen appoint a Town-wide committee of seven to study the ways in which racism has entered into the life of the Town (much as it has on drugs); —"a group of volunteers be organized to ring every doorbell in Town to ask citizens to pledge themselves to think about the meaning of racism and to think of ways to insure equality;

—"each power group in town: doctors, teachers, lawyers, merchants, bankers, and real estate agents meet and develop its own statement of support for the Kerner Report and its pledge to help eliminate racism from Winchester."

Resolution On Curriculum

A resolution suggested, re-worked, and greatly applauded at the Thursday's meeting and sent to the School Committee, reads:

"The people who assembled at the open meeting on Racism and Riots: Implications for Winchester...ask and direct the Public Schools to create a social studies program for grades K-12 that will better teach our children how to live in a multiracial world. The program is to include the introduction of courses in Afro-American history and culture, visits to the Black Museum on Charles Street in Boston, and exchange class trips with predominantly black classes in Boston Schools."

Mortgage Help Bargains

WCCA Human Relations Committee Chairman Peter Neurath appealed to the town to support a plan for local people to raise money for short-term mortgages to encourage black people to settle here and thereby to "change Winchester's image to that of a town which welcomes minorities." He asked for purchase of $100 bonds to be held without interest—bonds planned to be redeemable after two years as money is repaid to the fund...

"Two hundred and fifty families who will 'lend' us $100 each would more than meet our goals."

Vote Keeps '68 Door Open

School Comm. Votes To Consider METCO; Deadline Next Week

The School Committee voted four to two to reconsider Winchester participation in the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity program Monday night in an unexpected move precipitated by its discovery Friday that the deadline for notice to the State Education Board was Tuesday.

The motion to consider the program to bus some Boston Negro students here for Winchester education was made by Committee Vice Chairman John Dolan and supported by Chairman Mrs. Barbara Walsh and members Lawrence Beckley and Mrs. Harriet Dieterich. It was to "indicate (immediately to the State Board of Education that we are interested in participating in a program with or through METCO" next year and that "we will study this matter further and will inform them on June 4 as to the specifics concerning the proposed plan that we would proffer for their formal consideration."

Former Chairman Richard Schroeder and Mrs. Mary Mears voted against the motion.

The speed of the action came about, according to Mrs. Walsh after an investigatory trip taken by her and incoming Superintendent Donald A. Klemer on Friday alerted them for the first time that the doors for fall participation would close this week.

Last year METCO turned down Winchester as an applicant to be considered following the Town's heated and divisive spring discussions and public meetings which culminated in a sense-of-the-Town-Meeting 99-98 affirmative vote on the program.

Mrs. Walsh said the Friday trip had been instigated to sound out the METCO board's point of view so as not to waste Committee time in discussing the issue if Winchester were automatically to be turned down. She reported that the Town would be considered if it should apply.

Committee Not Notified

A little later in the evening, however, Mr. Schroeder revealed, while the group was on the subject of funding, that he had received, "he couldn't recall when," a letter dated April 5 from the State Board of Education. Reading parts of the letter to the group he reported it stated that for any town to apply for tuition and transportation assistance funds under the Racial Imbalance Law of Chapter 506 of the State acts of 1966, forms must be received by the State by April 30. The letter had been, he said, addressed to both him and Acting Superintendent William Clark. Mr. Clark had not seen the letter.

Charles Harris, just retired from the School Committee and a member of the METCO board of directors, interjected from the floor, "Is this the first time you have shared this with this Committee?"

Mr. Schroeder answered, "yes," adding that the letter could have been mislayed as he had recently moved.

There was a considerable flurry around the table at this point, but Vice-Chairman Dolan immediately moved into the motion.

Tufts School Meeting Action

The meeting was held at the Tufts Road School, the third meeting to be held in neighborhood schools for the benefit of parents of that area. It was attended by about eight Tufts parents and by about 18 spectators apparently attracted by the METCO agenda item, although it had been a last minute substitution. Also present were Joseph Forte, acting assistant superintendent; Dr. Walter Gleason, assistant superintendent, and Henry Perry, director of personnel.

New Superintendent Takes Over on Monday

DR. DONALD A. KLEMER

Dr. Donald A. Klemer, named in November to be Winchester's next superintendent of schools, takes over this position on Monday.

Dr. Klemer, who was chosen from a list of 85 applicants for the job, has been for the past two years superintendent in Hastings-on-Hudson, New York. He is filling the vacancy created by the July, 1967, retirement of Dr. Harry V. Gilson and which William F. Clark, assistant superintendent, has been filling for the past 10 months in an acting capacity.

Dr. Klemer is a Tufts graduate of the class of 1951, and holds AMT and Ed.D. degrees from Harvard. Prior to his New York post he was principal of two junior high schools in Darien, Connecticut; superintendent-principal in Stockbridge, a district assistant superintendent in Baldwinville; instructor of English at Northeastern and a secondary school social studies and English teacher in North Attleboro and Honolulu, Hawaii. He has also served in the U.S. Army in Korea.

Dr. Klemer has been a member of the Rotary Club; a former program director of Camp Lawrence, Lawrence YMCA summer camp; educational constultant for the Unitarian-Universalist Society in Yonkers, New York; consultant with the Bureau of Occupational Services in Ulster County, New York; and a vocational advisor with the Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. In addition he has lectured extensively on Hawaii where he taught.

His writings have appeared in educational publications including "School Paperback Journal," "NASSP JOURNAL," "School Management Magazine," and "Educational Data Processing Newsletter."

He is married to a Jackson College graduate and the couple, parents of six children, are moving into a Winchester home soon.

Dr. Klemer's first public appearance here before the public is to be Tuesday, June 4 at 8 p.m. when he speaks at the Washington Mother's Association annual meeting in the school auditorium. The Association has invited the public to attend.

Police in Action: Arrest Man for Assault, 3 Girls on Car Theft

Winchester police have arrested a 23-year-old Medford man on charges of kidnapping, armed robbery, assault with an attempt to rape, and unnatural acts. On Saturday he allegedly took a Jackson College student from Somerville to a wooded area near Hutchinson Road and sexually assaulted her.

The case will come before Woburn District Court on Friday, May 31. The man is presently being held in the Billerica House of Correction in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Officer Donald Jackson, working with others, made the arrest at the man's home on Sunday afternoon. Police had been on the case since shortly after nine the previous morning when the girl broke away from her reported assailant and ran to a nearby home whose owners summoned officers.

Girls in Car Theft

Three young Woburn girls have been arrested for auto theft in Winchester last week. They are scheduled to appear before a juvenile session of Woburn District Court.

On Friday, May 24, at noontime police were alerted to a stolen car which was left on Main Street. Two girls were seen running from the vehicle, owned by a Richardson Street resident. Officer Robert Baird proceeded to follow them to Cross Street where he apprehended the pair aged 15 and 16, and brought them to the police station.

Investigation of the case by Juvenile Officer Richard Beaton led to the arrest of a third girl, aged 15, for allegedly joining the same two girls in the reported taking of the identical vehicle from the Winchester Depot on Tuesday, May 21. On Tuesday the owner of the auto informed police that it was missing at 5 p.m. Woburn police found the car later that evening abandoned on Montvale Avenue.

Town Honors Reverend Clay

The Reverend H. Newton Clay and Mrs. Clay were honored at a reception last Sunday afternoon at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church. Mr. Clay is retiring this June from the active ministry after serving for 45 years. He has served as pastor of Crawford Memorial Methodist Church for the past 10 years.

Guests included members of the church, friends from Winchester and out of town, as well as ministers of the Winchester Ecumenical Association and fellow Methodist ministers of the New England Conference. Mr. and Mrs. Clay were joined in the receiving line by their daughter Ruth.

A gift in the form of a purse from the church members and Winchester friends was presented to Mr. Clay by Robert W. Armstrong, president of the board of trustees.

Sullivan And Saltmarsh Head Political Coms.

When the Town's two 35-member political committees organized last week in regular one-in-four-year elections, the decision of both Mrs. Mary Serieka, Democratic chairman, and Lawrence T. Smith, Republican chairman, not to seek re-election, opened the way for two new faces to lead these grass roots committees through the election months ahead.

On Tuesday night at their Town Hall meeting the Democrats, in a very short meeting held for election purposes only, voted in Mrs. Theresa Sullivan of 8 Hill Street to be their next chairman. On Wednesday night the Republicans, also meeting at the Town Hall but for a much longer meeting, named Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. to succeed Mr. Smith.

Mrs. Sullivan steps into her job after 10 years with the Committee. A WHS graduate in 1945, she has lived here most of her life.

In Memoriam
We pause tomorrow to pay tribute to our dead, to reflect back on memories we shared with them while they were here with us.
More especially, we join with the thousands of families who have lost loved ones in any of the wars. We owe a great debt to the young men who gave their lives so that we could remain free.
We hope everyone will observe tomorrow as the type of day for which it was intended . . as a day in memory.

"Christian Gentlemen—Dedicated Minister"

In his presentation speech, Mr. Armstrong gave recognition to Mr. Clay for his many contributions to the life of the church, the progress made under his leadership, his fine sermons, and his faithful service to his people. He also made mention of his community relations and his service as chaplain of the Fire Department, the American Legion, the Rotary, and the Masonic Lodge.

The president of the Winchester Ecumenical Association, Rt. Rev. Father Joseph Lyons of St. Eulalia's Church, then presented Mr. Clay with a plaque from that group. The inscription read—"Rev. H. Newton Clay—A Christian Gentleman—A Dedicated Minister—A Zealot for Unity. For His Memorable Service and Witness to the Community of Winchester. Presented by the Winchester Ecumenical Association on the Occasion of His Retirement. June 16, 1968." Father Lyons spoke of Mr. Clay's keen sense of humor and his devotion to ecumenicity.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Clay thanked everyone who had contributed in any way to make Sunday such a memorable day for him and his family. He spoke of how much he had enjoyed the church and the community. He explained his life's philosophy had been based on two verses of scripture—"Peace on earth, goodwill toward men" is the basis for his devotion to unity and brotherhood and "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I unto Thee."

Mrs. Clay has been a teacher at the Wyman School. She will be retiring also in June. Before coming to Winchester she had taught at the Westfield Public Schools and the State Teachers' College at Westfield. She also taught remedial reading at Columbia University and at Machias Normal School in Maine. Their daughter Ruth is employed by the Stone and Webster Engineering Firm in Boston.

The reception was held in Gifford Hall which was decorated for the occasion with many bouquets of lovely spring flowers. The members of the pastoral relations committee, the board of trustees, and the Woman's Society of Christian Service arranged the reception.

Carl Sittinger, though living and playing in Peterborough, New Hampshire, remains an interested member of the Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club. He has kindly sent us the following article which he wrote for his paper:

PETERBOROUGH
DUPLICATE BRIDGE CLUB

Apropos of last week's reference to contracts ending up in an unfavorable position for the partnership—it is ironic that in the current duplicate session, on seven boards there were twelve out of twenty-nine hands played in such unfavorable final contracts, resulting in generally bottom or near-bottom boards with only few near average.

When played in the opposite position, and usually in the same suit they were, in practically all cases, top or second, or tied for these positions.

Another good illustration of the "sacrifice" mentioned some time ago appeared on board no. 18 on which two heart by North was bid four times, making four for a score of 170. One East sacrificed at three spades, going down one at minus 50 for "top of the board." Another East, doubled at five diamonds, went down for for minus 700 and bottom! He apparently overcalled North's bid of a four-heart vulnerable sure game, but had East chosen instead to sacrifice of four spades, down two, he might not have been doubled and his minus 100 would have landed this pair in second place.

Both of the foregoing situations, while relatively unimportant in a rubber bridge game, are typical of good bidding at duplicate bridge.

Library Studies For Staff Here

Members of the staff at the Public Library have attended meetings lately to enable them to keep up-to-date on innovations and new trends in the field of library science.

In mid-May Mrs. Leila-Jane Roberts, head librarian, and Mrs. Eleanor Sirrine, reference librarian spent two days in Provincetown at the Massachusetts Library Association spring conference. Problems and techniques of book selection were probed in small groups using the case method as developed at Harvard Business School and as used in several courses at the School of Library Science, Simmons College. David Silver of the Channel 2 TV program "What's Happening, Mr. Silver?" delivered a sincere presentation of the forces and ideals shaping today's dissenting young people. Open meetings were held by the recruitment committee and the Public Library Administrators on personnel needs and training, and the Arthur D. Little report recommending a statewide system involving all libraries—public, school, academic and special.

The Eastern Regional Public Library System has held a series of seminars this spring which have been attended by Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Sirrine, Mrs. Ann Anderson, assistant librarian, and Mrs. Katrine Laban, young adults librarian—those most involved in the particular problems: business reference, programs for young people, inter-library loan, and programs for leisured adults.

Mrs. Anderson attended a meeting of the Greater Boston Public Library Administrators held at Information Dynamics, in Reading, to acquaint librarians with the thought processes involved in using data processing and computers. Miss Elva Nelson, catalog librarian, and Mrs. Sirrine attended the meeting of the New England Technical Services held at Harvard University Law School Library at which the use of computers in cataloging was explained. The library is already planning toward utilization of the town's computer as time becomes available.

Mrs. Roberts has just returned from a three-day library executive development workshop provided by federal funds administered through the state Bureau of Library Extension for 25 library directors. Techniques of business management, and principles of communication and motivation were presented and discussed. Problem solving, automation, networks of library systems and creativity were other areas of common concern that were explored. The director of the workshop was Dr. Lawrence A. Allen, professor and chairman, Department of Library Science of the University of Kentucky, a dynamic, volatile and energetic discussion leader.

Though innovations will come slowly, townspeople will see effective change making their library more efficient and more significant to all.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

A few months ago, a friend remarked to me shrewdly: "I know lots of people who don't like insurance, and don't want any — until they need it!"

Since then I've thought about many people to whom my friend's remark applies. Just the other day, for example, I met another independent agent from a nearby city. I commented about a large fire loss there.

The other agent said, "Unfortunately, that was my client, and he had only a small amount of insurance. His business carried a high rate and was scattered in several adjoining structures. He felt that if a fire started it would burn only one section. But a flash fire sprang up. It spread rapidly and burned the business completely to the ground. It was a staggering loss to my client—most of his life's savings."

The other agent continued, "When I saw my client he just shook his head. 'Well,' he said, 'You warned me but I just didn't think it would happen. Obviously, I should have had more insurance.'"

The ONLY way you can have Ample Insurance when you need it, is to get it in force BEFORE the loss occurs. May we discuss an adequate Insurance Program with you?

Editorials:

We Move To Get With It

Congratulations to the School Committee for going in and getting Winchester a chance to get with it—for buying time so that we can get back into the mainstream of American life. Congratulations to the not-yet-arrived-officially superintendent. Too bad to have to jump right into the tough dirty work of the job without benefit of the usual amenities. But what better way to get to know us and not to waste any time about it. Dr. Klemer asked for the job in Winchester, he's coming—welcome aboard Dr. Klemer!

METCO Federal funds are by the board for this year. We can't have them. It may well be that there will be no funds for Winchester should it apply and get accepted and we would wait a year. But on its visit last week the School Committee head and the new superintendent got our foot in the door, got an indication that it wouldn't be slammed just because the name is Winchester. In short they bought us a little—a very little—time.

School Committee proponents at Monday night's meeting are correct to say Winchester is changing. Sure the hard core opposition is still here and still vocal. But there are many evidences that more of the big moderate middle has moved over a little closer to agreeing that we should get with it—that this is our area, our state, our country, our world. It's in trouble and we must do our share.

It is unfortunate all around that the former Committee chairman "mislayed" a letter from the State which if properly shared with his Committee or school authorities might have precluded the time squeeze which we are now in. Whether by oversight, subconscious delaying or conscious action on the part of Mr. Schroeder, an opponent of Town participation in METCO, the incident puts upon him a lot of the onus of "lack of communication" with which the Committee was again charged this week. Mr. Schroeder and Mrs. Mears are already in what seems to us an untenable position. We may be wrong but it seemed to us that they appeared uncomfortable Monday night presenting what can only in this time of dire national stress at best be called quibbling—fiddling with notions of summer programs and with talk of out-of-neighborhood busing while Boston burns.

Contrary to the public the Committee had had time to prepare for this meeting. If either had presented an argument which showed that any part of the Winchester educational program would be sacrificed should the town have METCO students here, they'd have had a point. Neither did—we still hope they may change their minds.

We go with the presentation of the mother who said she wanted METCO for "a selfish reason." "These people would be doing us a tremendous favor to come here," she said. "I have a child who doesn't know what a Negro looks like."

Mirror, Mirror on the Wall

We're the whitest. But are we the fairest?

Cameron Byrd, the hard hitting ecumenical leader from Roxbury told Winchester to look to itself for answers to the present race problems. Talk to yourselves. You're the ones with the problems he said. WCCA sponsors were overcome at the tremendous turnout for their spring meeting—with citizens packed to the walls in the big, new Epiphany Hall. They shouldn't have been. Indications are that Winchester does want to learn, that it does want to listen—and here was the chance.

The setting was perfect. A beautiful modern, yet gothic-inspired church hall set inside the fine old brick church on a handsomely landscaped lot. On the walls were posters with big red lobsters proclaiming a church group lobster dinner. In the audience were bright, well dressed and educated people, for the most part bursting with interest and concern. (The group included three selectmen, four School Committee members, others of office.) We were clearly the haves. And we were gathered to hear of the have-nots.

Witty and warm, Winchester's Professor Bernard Harleston made the evening's perfect intermediary voice for the ghetto story and the audience. Articulate Mr. Byrd (he is a former pastor but works now as a layman) was just the right balance to try and tell his audience what has been happening to it. Black power, "distorted in concept by the press," (and poorly named too) is really conservative Negro power, he taught. These are the persons who want a properly balanced power—meaning decision-making power, security, strength in working together. But we, the whites, didn't listen early enough. And we now have the revolutionaries to deal with rather than the simple black power advocates. Out of our fear we have confused the two.

Frederick Rozelle highlighted the same point really when he reminded that Roxbury doesn't speak with one voice any more than does Winchester. We needed the reminder. The "they" of the black community somehow blends together in our minds. Yet in the world of "us" we know it well. Look again in the mirror—only last year. The Friends of METCO, the Voice of Winchester, the multiple divisions of opinions in each and the even more variants of opinion among the non-joiners.

As it evolved the evening painted the perfect background of data for the action taken Monday night at the School Committee. The action is tentative, probing, possibly doomed to failure due to its timing. But no one, it seems to us, who attended the Epiphany Church meeting could fail to know why it is a necessity. We look in the mirror and we see we need a face-lifting. There's no plastic surgeon to help. To look and feel better we must get to the hard work of strengthening our basic community health. There's no easy way.

Chaperones Needed

The student initiated, organized and administered Drop-In Center is not asking the Town budget for money. The students are carrying their own load with a monthly rent of $500, payments to be met by their roughly dollar a month membership plus benefits. They are succeeding in the sense that so far they haven't reneged on a payment. Do they want the Town to finance them? "No I don't think we do. We know it's tough and we know we're going to make a lot of mistakes; but this way it's ours and if the Town took us over it would be theirs," said a student spokesman to the Star this week. They'll keep on with their struggle to meet the rent—running dances, benefits, and anything else they can think of doing. "We have some money given as donations still in the bank, but that's for capital outlay. We made our by-laws so that we couldn't touch it for rent."

What the students are asking for is chaperones. Their by-laws say that they cannot keep their Winchester Place Center open at any time unless there is an over-21 aged chaperone on the premises. They have been open since February and so far they have done pretty well. But now and then they fail. This week, once, their chaperone didn't appear so they had to close up and go back out onto the street. "How do you get your chaperones?" "Well, our chaperone chairman has done a swell job and she's got people pretty well lined up, but when we run out we just go through the voters' lists and start telephoning. Mostly people like to come by twos so they'll have someone to talk to."

The young people would like to hear from anyone over 21 (no upper age limit) free from 2:30 to 5:30, or weekend nights. This summer it will be evenings only. In charge of chaperones: Lauri Preston at 729-2039 and Mary Tonello at 729-5029.

Arts Center — Emergency

Editor of the Star:

"A Center For the Creative Arts" for Winchester seems like a dream come true. It has been a long time in coming. The cultural enrichment of life must go on even in troubled times. With our concern for making life better for people around the world, we must not overlook the opportunities to enlarge the lives of individuals at home. Man needs room to grow along with his neighbor in many areas. When people work together for common projects they develop warmth and a finer appreciation of human gifts.

I can believe that there are many young people in our town not sports or academically oriented who would make profitable use of a center such as this.

I understand this is an emergency situation. Let us get behind it. Time waits for none of us.

Sincerely yours,
Robert A. Storer

Memorial Day Prayer

To ye, who sleep the long, last sleep,—
In graves marked; unknown;—in the deep,:
'Tis given to know, beyond all doubt,
The answers to those things about
Which minds of men have sought to learn
That truth for which this world doth yearn.

For what ye were, and dared, and did,
We honor ye; the while we bid
Ye will implore Him who knows all
That, ere we err beyond recall,
His grace shall show His world the way

To do His will. Today we pray
For light, and strength to persevere,
That when His summons we shall hear,
We may undaunted face The Throne,
Nor wish His judgement to postpone.

METCO

The Board, which was to have considered curriculum changes in the direction of enriching the social studies program in the area of Afro-American studies, postponed this item to give priority to the immediate-or-not-this year METCO issue.

In addition it discussed for some time a student-sponsored presentation made by WHS sophomore Andre Marcous asking that students be allowed to smoke outside the cafeteria during lunch periods, and postponed its decision until some time before fall.

It also:

—voted notification of minor changes in the boundary lines which dictate whether the junior high school students go to the Lynch or McCall Schools and is expected to vote next week that, although no changes will be made with youngsters already in either school, beginning in the fall all students from Parkhurst, Vinson Owen and the Wyman Schools will enter Lynch and all from Washington, Tufts, Lincoln and Mystic will enter McCall;

—heard a parents' presentation asking for more phychiatrically directed and more specialized testing regarding pupils separated into the special classes for the educable and a challenge by the same parent relative to the secondary education outlook of students so designated;

—and heard testimony of the general enthusiasm of the Tufts parents about the innovative program there this year and one request that this same program (small group, self-study) be introduced as soon as possible into the other schools.

Principals Favor METCO

Mrs. Walsh introduced the METCO issue by noting that on a Thursday and Friday visit here, Dr. Klemer, who takes office on Monday, had met with the Town's principals and found that they favored METCO participation.

On their Friday visit to METCO headquarters Mrs. Walsh said that METCO Director Mrs. Ruth Batson told them that Federal funds had already been allocated and that the State was to meet Tuesday for the same purpose.

She outlined the committee's two options if they were to leave the door open to consider participation in the program to bus Negro students to Winchester next fall: (1) to vote that night to accept Metco and (2) to indicate its interest to the State immediately, but take the week to study particulars relating to the number of children and the tuition charge.

Mr. Schroeder raised the question of funding under the State Imbalance Law and it was at this point that his early April letter was read to the Committee.

Mrs. Walsh reported that she and Dr. Klemer had talked in Boston about the possibility of the Town's accepting a maximum of from 15 to 20 children in the first three grades of two or three of the elementary schools, and that METCO preferred that they go in groups to a few schools rather than being more sparsely scattered over several.

No member spoke in favor of voting Monday for METCO participation. No one, with the possibly inferred exception of the chairman, spoke in favor of granting tuition waiver.

Both Mr. Beckley and Mr. Dolan spoke emphatically, however, in favor of Winchester's participation this fall in METCO, as did Mrs. Walsh.

"Community Changing"

Mr. Beckley pointed to the indication of an "improving situation" here and said he expected it to improve even more. He was clearly in favor of taking students in the first three grades only for the dual reasons that for the visitors the educational gap was smaller and that for Winchester there are too many difficulties presently in planning for the fourth grade and beyond.

Mr. Dolan also pointed to the change in the community since in the past year subsequent to the Town Meeting vote and rejection by METCO. He felt that the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders—The Kerner Report—was a "very moving" element in terms of the issue and that "it is important what this committee does . . . (that it) show the heart of Winchester." He felt it would be ill-advised to waive tuition charges.

Mrs. Mears asked about following up on the possibility of "not jumping into METCO but going for a summer program." Mr. Beckley replied a summer program would not be a substitute, and Mrs. Mears reiterated that she had, however, suggested it as such.

In a general discussion of summer plans, John Harris, chairman of the Human Relations Committee of the Winchester Council for Community Action, told of plans for the summer help through the Friendly Town organization and suggested that if the Town accepted METCO, possibly incoming METCO enrollees could visit here theis summer.

Schroeder Still Opposed

Mr. Schroeder, who as chairman last year led the fight against METCO, said he had been opposed to busing since last year and still was; that he thinks present busing of local children from their immediate areas undesirable and is equally opposed to busing in youngsters from out of town.

"As for relieving the inadequate situation in the Boston schools, METCO is barely a glimmer in the dark," he said, noting the sharp increase in pupils there and the impossibility of keeping up with this.

Mrs. Walsh, agreeing that the program could not touch the heart of the matter, said the program, however, points the finger at the Boston School Committee and gives hope to the Roxbury community . . . "I personally feel the program is very successful," she said, noting it had grown in three years from 200 to 500, to a projected 800 for next year, and that "only two youngsters have dropped out."

WHS Activating

W. Howard Niblock, WHS principal, reported the large interest of many students there and that they had been, he believed, preparing a resolution asking the School Committee for participation. On asking if pupils would be considered for the High School he was given a firm negative answer due to overcrowding.

Spectators speaking against Winchester participation in METCO were: Mrs. Theresa Sullivan who felt the ultimate goal of METCO personnel was for a metropolitan school; Mrs. Mary Brink, who challenged the Committee's authority to waive tuition and decried the lack of communication between the Committee and the Town on the subject; Edward Connelly, who also spoke strongly against waiving of tuition—"I have to support my own children. I don't feel I should have to pay extra taxes (for others) . . . without representation;" and one unidentified mother who felt, "very selfishly," that the schools were not yet doing enough for underachievers here.

Speaking for participation were the Reverend John Bishop of the Church of The Epiphany, who noted the "continuing concern of the Ecumenical Association for the program and the hope that citizens give more consideration about the image of the town; Joseph Knight and Mrs. Knight, who challenged Mr. Schroeder's statement that METCO offered no permanent solution by saying that the "problems will not be solved if we do nothing; and Mrs. Lois Carr, who stepped from her recording capacity to speak as a mother and say that selfishly she felt acceptance of METCO would be doing her a tremendous favor for "I have a child who doesn't know what a Negro looks like."

Mrs. Ruth Granger requested of William Clark, acting superintendent, the school census projections for grades one through three in all schools but the Wyman, Mystic and Noonan, which would be precluded from consideration by their overcrowding. She was read the data and subsequently challenged figures for the Washington School kindergarten.

The School Committee is scheduled to meet next week in the McCall School with an executive session on Winchester scholarship awards preceding METCO discussion at 8:30.

She is presently a school traffic officer, and she and her husband, Firefighter Robert, also a Committee member, are the parents of seven children.

Backing her up will be James Russo, vice chairman, Katherine Jennings as secretary and William Dailey as treasurer.

Elected to support Mr. Saltmarsh were Pearl Larson, vice chairman, Helen Shasta, secretary, and George Littell Jr. as treasurer.

The business meeting of the Republicans was opened by Mr. Smith. A report by the finance chairman, Cynthia Reynolds, was heard, as was a letter written by Dee Bauchspies, a member who is moving to Pittsburgh. Reelected State Committeeman William A. Barnstead spoke briefly, and newly elected State Committeewoman Cynthia L. Barone gave a report of the first State Committee meeting of the year, held in Framingham on May 20, at which Josiah Spaulding was reelected to state chairman and Betty Amesbury, vice chairman.

Mrs. Barone brought attention to the "Unity Bank," the second of its kind in the country, which will open on June 20 in Roxbury. One current project of the Republican Party is a drive among Republicans throughout the state to promote the opening of checking and savings accounts with this bank to help the people of Roxbury help themselves by establishing credit facilities and equity capital for their bank. More laws about this will be issued later.

Two Graduated At Russell Sage

Two Winchester girls were graduated from Russell Sage College in Troy, New York, at commencement exercises on May 24.

LINDA FAZIO

Linda Fazio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore J. Fazio of 85 Arlington Street received a degree in elementary education.

SUSAN J. McCLENNAN

Susan J. McClennan, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. McClennan of 32 Central Street and Isle of Springs, Maine, was awarded a bachelor of science degree in nursing. A member of the Nurse's Club, she was named a Kellas Scholar, the college's highest honor for academic achievement.

Kathryn DeVries Awarded Degree

Bay Path Junior College held commencement exercises Saturday afternoon, May 25, on its Longmeadow campus. Kathryn A. DeVries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. DeVries of 124 Church Street, was among those receiving an associate in arts degree in liberal arts.

Unit Bank Support

Mrs. Barone also reported that there will be a concentrated effort to increase active Young Republican Clubs in Massachusetts and mentioned that the Young Republicans' annual "Republican Night at Pops" will be on Monday, June 17, with ticket reservations available through Republican headquarters at 146 Bowdoin Street, Boston.

Mr. Saltmarsh was introduced as a native who attended local schools and is remembered as a star Boston College hockey player. "Whip" was chairman of the Board of Selectmen in 1961-62, one of the youngest Selectmen to hold office here. He was co-campaign manager for Congressman F. Bradford Morse in 1964, has been Winchester's representative on the MBTA Advisory Board since 1964, and was recently appointed by Moderator Harrison Chadwick to serve on a committee to study Town Government. His wife, Marcia, is a former secretary of the Republican Town Committee and active in many town organizations.

Mrs. Larson is a retired member of the bar and has been an associate member of the Committee for five years. She came to Winchester from Medford, where she had served the Medford City Committee, its School Committee and three school building committees.

Helen Shasta, wife of the late Theodore Shasta of Grove Street, has been an elected member of the board of the Winchester Women's Republican Club and corresponding secretary of Fortnightly.

George Littell Jr. has also been affiliated with the Town Committee for about six years, serving as a member of its nominating committee and attending the 1966 State Convention as a delegate. He was a former vice president of the Winchester Young Republican Club.

Republicans here elected a nominating committee including H. Rushton Harwood Jr., Mabelle Wright, Dirk Van Gemeren, James Denton and Christina Thompson. The members gave a standing vote of thanks to the retiring officers: Mr. Smith, Mrs. Barone, Barbara Lamarche and William A. Wilde Jr. The next meeting of the Repubican Committee will be in June.

BOOK REVIEW

Winchester Public Library

THE DOG HOROSCOPE BOOK

by Liz Tresilean

If all the books at the library concerning dogs were put together it would take a sizable amount of shelf space to accommodate them. Most of them are on training and breeding and on individual kinds of dogs such as the pomeranian or the dachshund or the English setter. There are also numerous dog stories, including such old favorites as Lassie Comes Home and White Fang. But besides these rather obvious works we have for the dog such things as a cook book, books on dog psychology, canine history, first aid and nursing for dogs, and something entitled Song of Dogs.

Now we have acquired The Dog Horoscope Book. Why not. If people are born under certain signs and are affected by the movement of the stars, so are dogs. The treatise goes through the zodiac month by month, a chapter covering each sign. If you are not sure of your dog's birthday—unfortunately we don't keep accurate records of such events—don't worry, you can fit him under almost any sign.

A dog born under Aries the first sign will be a leader, active and energetic. He must be first in everything and will trample over you when you open the door to get out ahead of you. He is boisterous and affectionate and never wants to gve up being a lap dog even though he may grow to outweigh you. Not everyone is cut out to be the owner of an Arian.

The dog who is born under the sign of Virgo wants to be helpful. He will bring in the newspaper, mangling it on the way. He hides things lying around in order to save you the trouble of tidying up and will gladly eat up all the leftovers including Sunday's roast so his owner will not be bothered by having to make hash.

Scorpio dogs are nearly always phychic (it says here). It could be rather unnerving to be alone with one with these powers when he was "seeing things." Scorpioneans are very strong minded and someone born under the same sign is ideal as master of such a dog. There would be constant conflict but they would both enjoy it.

A dog born under the sign of Cancer is unusually intelligent. When he is a puppy he is eager to learn and will absorb anything you want to teach him. When he becomes old enough to think for himself however you may have trouble. He might just decide that some of the tricks he learned in his innocent puppyhood are childish and proceed to reject them. Then if you order him to "roll over" or "speak" or to do something that he considers beneath him, nothing will make him obey you.

Health and vitality are characteristic of the Sagittarian dog. He is full of stamina. He gallops and cavorts and thumps his tail energetically against anything in its way. Wheen he sleeps he adopts an ungraceful position and he snores. I think my dog may have been born under this sign.

So if you are about to choose a dog, be sure to consult The Dog Horoscope Book to make certain that you get one that will be congenial to your sign. If you already have acquired a dog without the benefit of knowing his horoscope maybe this will help explain why he acts so peculiarly. If you don't own a dog, read it to see how lucky you are.

Open Letter to Winchester Asking Art Center Support

Dear Winchester:

Something that is good for Winchester has to be recognized before it can be supported. We at Macefield would like to help point out a marvelous opportunity in the making that deserves all the backing our people can give it: the proposed Center for the Creative Arts.

Hard work is behind every successful venture, as we can assure you. We understand that the forming Art Center has a ready volume of enthusiastic labor standing by. This should encourage those who are interested in the advantages of such a center here, but who have not the time to give, to offer financial assistance instead.

If you have considered this equally important kind of help, please do it now. The need is now to establish the location for a working project. The proof of interest is shown by the number of activities ready to carry on once started. And once started they should certainly be able to be supported by their very demand here.

We feel that the local interest in art exhibitions, numerous classes in arts, music, gardening and so on into varieties of small group meetings, is really greater than in many towns already enjoying some activities of this kind. The benefits should not be limited to the specialized organized groups but also fill a great need for possible creative outlets for the young and old, students and retired or idle citizens.

Hard work is one of the important solutions to many of our world's problems. A great help would be to offer opportunities to people to find something to work hard at. Imagine the thrill of really finding one's self for the first time! We have so thoroughly found ourselves that we should be six people to accomplish all we would like to in a week. But how much sooner this would have been had there been somewhere to turn in our youth with all the time we "killed."

So we have been excitedly in favor of this idea since first hearing of it; especially the central, sort of off-Broadway location, and the added chance to give a much needed lift to that unsightly spot. It can be done.

Please, a check to:

"Give Me A Few More Days"

Editor of the Star:

I hope some day to run for President of the United States, or maybe Governor of Massachusetts—(whichever office appeals to me most at that time)—so I would like to have it on record with the electorate that I am a man who "gets things done."

I trust that they will remember what Winter Pond looked like before I set out, single handedly, to get it filled. True, it has taken me about two years but I submit herewith a report of progress. As anyone can see who will take the trouble to drive over there the pond is almost filled at this very moment. I am confident that a few more rainy days, thunderstorms, and cloudbursts will suffice to fill it to the brim. When that result has been accomplished I would hope that the Aberjona Watershed Commission would take it off my hands and would undertake whatever steps are necessary to keep it in that condition.

Please give me a few more days to get it filled. These things take time. Each drop is so very, very small; and so many millions of them are needed elsewhere. We must accept what we get and be thankful.

Sincerely,
Clarence S. Borggaard

Commissioner Of Mental Health Lauds Volunteers

Editor of the Star:

Student volunteers representing over 100 high schools and colleges in Massachusetts provide many hours of service to patients in our state hospitals for the mentally ill and state schools for the mentally retarded.

Without the help of these dedicated young people, our patients and trainees would be denied many hours of needed companionship, educational and recreational programs and services which brighten their days and hasten rehabilitation.

Many of these student volunteers are now graduating and will be leaving our institutions. The Department of Mental Health wishes to express gratitude to all those who have participated in volunteer programs and have given so generously of their time and talents to help the mentally ill and the retarded.

Our appreciation goes also to the administrators of the high schools and colleges involved in volunteer programs. Their interest and cooperation, which is so essential to the success of volunteer activities has been exemplary.

Very truly yours,
Milton Greenblatt, M.D.

'Right to Know Children . . .Not Smug, White . . .'

Editor of the Star:

Last Monday evening at the School Committee meeting, the subject of METCO was officially reintroduced. Winchester came face to face with the late 1960's and stuck out again. Perhaps it is the town's financial wealth which makes its moral and social poverty such a sharp contrast.

For some reason, the arguments of the bigots who showed up last Monday, and undoubtedly will next Monday, have lost their steam. One lady felt that the Tufts Road School lacked textbooks and adequate lighting and on that firm logical basis, we could not afford non-tuition paying students. Since METCO students would be paying their own way, this wasn't the issue, but did give this lady a chance to make her grand gesture and to walk out of the meeting without waiting for a reply. Welcome to the summer of 1968, lady.

Another lady, with an otherwise impressive history of concern for Winchester youth, raised the spectre of huge metropolitan school districts to which METCO presumably will lead, school districts which our poor children will be required to attend, and financed by the worst of all possible kinds of money, federal funds. Last year her arguments were funny. This year they are sad.

I write to you to address myself especially, though, to the gentleman who raised his voice in defense of his annual tax bill. Sir, if I decide to stay in Winchester, you will find me fighting shoulder to shoulder with you to promote time and talent which Winchester should be spending additionally for slow learners. This is a subject which seemed to be dear to your heart last night, and is certainly dear to mine.

However, sir, you will not have me as an ally in trying to get more sensitive scheduling of these children, more and better psychiatric testing and counseling, etc., because you will have forced me to leave Winchester. You see, sir, my children have the right to know other children who are not white, smug, and middle class. My wife and I should have the right (through METCO) to get to know parents with enough concern for their children's education to be willing to send them many miles away by bus to attend school. You, sir, through your overt concern with your tax bill (even though you aren't being asked to pay it next year, let's see—15 pupils times an out-of-pocket cost of 60 dollars is nine hundred dollars divided by 20,000 Winchester residents is four and one half cents per resident) and your covert intolerance, lead me to the growing belief that this just is not the town for me. When you deny my wife and children and me the opportunity to have friends and classmates of all backgrounds, you are denying us a valuable civil right.

The cost to you, sir, won't be big at first. When I move, which I shall unless this town wakes up, you personally won't have my entire tax bill on your hands. But I will be anxious to get out, I will be anxious to persuade other homeowners to get out. I will do my best to persuade potential teachers not to come to Winchester, I will advertise the smugness, the selfishness and the bigotry of this town as widely as possible, and I surely hope that you replace me with people who think your way. You'll have quite a town in 10 years. And you will deserve it.

Sincerely,
Joseph A. Knight Jr.

Rockefeller: A Rude Shock

Editor of the Star:

Governor Reagan has found little favor with liberal Republicans of Winchester, who are alienated by the Californian's endorsement of a reckless foreign policy and of repressive measures at home. By contrast, Governor Rockefeller has inspired confidence, and his admirers have welcomed his apparent endorsement of moderation in foreign and in domestic policy.

For his liberal admirers, however, the New York Governor has provided a rude shock in his statement of May 20, made after a meeting with Governor Reagan. In this statement, reported in the New York Times of May 21, he said that he saw no important "ideological gulf" between himself and Governor Reagan. With this assertion, Governor Rockefeller has opened an important ideological gulf between himself and the moderate voters.

Sincerely,
Ruth D. Terzaghi

Grateful Father

Editor of the Star:

I wish in this small way to express my gratitude and sincere appreciation for the fine nursing staff at the nursery in the Winchester Hospital.

My wife, last Thursday evening, gave birth to a premature girl who was given very little chance to live Friday morning. Many people prayed and I am sure that this helped pull her through, but the nurses gave her around the clock personal attention which did pull her through. To say that they were marvelous, wonderful is only to say that mankind has not yet found a word to describe what these great girls did. Their kindness and understanding to my wife and myself was only matched by what they did for the baby. The doctors were extremely competent but they could only diagnose and tell the nurses what they wished done. The nurses did that and more.

I am sure that the baby would not have received better care at the Children's Hospital in Boston, which is considered one of the best in the world.

Winchester should be proud of its hospital, but a hospital like any industry or company is only as good as its personnel.

I thank God that my wife and baby were under the care of those gals on the second floor.

God Bless them,
Dick O'Brien

Mr. Harris Offers Some Answers To Honest Objections to Metco

Editor of the Star:

Once again Winchester has a chance to make a decision with respect to participation in the METCO program. I trust that our decesion will be the correct one. In light of the humiliating publicity generated by the issue last year, of the recent events in Quincy, of the public expressions in this town at the time of the tragic assasination of Dr. King, and of the sobering and timely analysis of the Kerner report how can we do other than welcome the opportunity for METCO participation?

Several honest objections to the program have been raised. They deserve honest consideration. One is forced to agree that the METCO program does not represent a real solution to the basic problems of Boston's ghetto schools. Yet if some children are provided with a better education than they would otherwise receive, the program represents a desirable (albeit small) improvement. The fact that vastly increased numbers of Roxbury parents have requested that their children participate and that only two children have withdrawn from the program suggests that it is worthwhile. Others have raised the objection that this is a move towards a metropolitan school system. There is overwhelming evidence that this is not the case. Those who fear metropolitan cooperation can breathe a sigh of relief while others who favor such a plan may be disappointed; the facts remain.

I think participation in METCO is the decent and proper course of action. However much I might want to justify it on the basis of altruism of Winchester's desire to bear some of its responsibilities to the center city on which it depends for existence, or of our contribution to implementing the Kerner report, I am forced to conclude that the lion's share of the benefits will accrue directly to Winchester. There is considerable evidence that our children are deprived by virtue of living in white ghettos, that they are being inadequately prepared to live in a multi racial society. The happy experience of neighboring towns, noted for their excellent schools, such as Newton, Brookline, Wellesley, Concord, and Lexington bear witness to the fact that they have benefited disproportionally from the program.

Although I believe that we will be the beneficiaries of the program, I cannot support the notion that our taxpayers should be asked at this time directly to subsidize the program. At the same time I think that it would be unconscionable for us to make a financial profit from it. The tuition formula used in the past has been based on the average cost per pupil in our system. To insist on this formula would mean that the METCO program would bear some of the costs of administration, facilities, and teachers that would be incurred even if these additional children did not come to Winchester.

We have some free space in our elementary schools which will have to be paid for whether or not these children come to us. Similarly, some teachers will have smaller classes than the prescribed minimum and the school administration will have to be paid for anyway. We must determine what extra costs will be incurred as a result of our participation. Additional supplies and textbooks will be required— there may be need for an additional teacher.

Winchester should demand reimbursement for these extra costs. To insist on payments above this level would be wrong. Newton, Concord, and Brookline have realized this and are revising their charges accordingly. This is not to say that if, in the future, accepting METCO students required construction of additional facilities we would not then require a higher level of tuition.

I would like to commend our School Committee for their willingness to face this decision. I trust that they will act affirmatively on Monday.

Help!

Editor of the Star:

For years (maybe 3, maybe 4) she was somebody's pampered pet. They taught her to shake hands and to beg. They over-fed her just a little because she was so irresistible. But now, picked up right here in Winchester, she's been lost for a month.

Won't someone help us find her owner or a new home for (we call her) Sheba? Oh, yes, she's a black collie with grey speckled feet and a white chest. Undoubtedly she's spayed. Please call 729-1698.

Robert W. Armstrong III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Armstrong Jr. of 15 Chestnut Street, has been named business manager of "The Orient," the Bowdoin College student newspaper. He is a member of the class of 1971.

Car Wash

Speaking very firmly, Mr. Chapman also noted the potential traffic increase, particularly on Saturdays, a big day for car washes, when Shore Road is closed off and householders are heading to the dump.

Joseph Iovino, attorney for the business group appellants rose to support Mr. Chapman and to add the issue of possible increase in traffic should the MBTA make the town a major or terminal stop.

Chief Joseph Derro went on record opposed to the car wash calling it a "serious traffic hazard" due to the bend in the roadway, the trucking already in the area, the lack of curb space and the Funeral Home activities.

He also pointed out that fights among drivers for places in line awaiting car washing were common to the business. Officer Roy added that there had been four traffic accidents in the area since January 1.

Robert Winn, speaking as a Town Meeting member and Selectman John Sullivan speaking as an individual endorsed the appellants' position as did a sum of businessmen and residents of the area, with many standing just to go on record.

Chief Francis Amico went on record against the permit defining the traffic problem which already exists in the area as the trucks go up toward the Swanton Street light.

William Speers, attorney for the Mystic Builders Supply, owners of the land and proposers of the car-wash, rose next.

He stated a theoretical suggestion that the Building Commissioner revoke all the other permits of those already in business there. "These people overlook the fundamental principle of law that those there first have no priority rights," he said to strengthen his point. "I am shocked that an equally permitted use should be denied," he said.

Mr. Speers listed letters from the Twombly Associates and the Appalachian Electronics in the area noting they were not party to the appeal.

Reiterating that the first car wash proposed this year was not to have been established within accepted uses of its zone, Mr. Speers said he thought that a lot of townspeople misunderstand the present situation.

"I frankly quarrel with the Planning Board...(it) should not come in on an individual case of an appeal." If the general zoning is wrong, he added, this Board should re-zone.

"Much of this discussion is academic," he concluded, pointing out that it is only under 9C of Section 12 of the laws that issue can be taken.

Mr. Herberich noted that the Planning Board is in the process of studies for re-zoning and that there are indications that the area is improperly zoned. Mr. Chapman later repeated this in taking strong issue with Mr. Speers.

James Cullen, former owner of the property in question, was the only person to be recorded for the defendants of th eappeal.

Questions by appeal Board members brought out the facts that water use would not affect firefighting adversely and detail about the proposed operation.

The Board will make public its decision as soon as it has been made.

WCCA

"We reject the idea of riot as an unsatisfactory solution," he said, but then went on to point out that it is the same in Roxbury as in Winchester—that there is no single point of view or voice, but a sum of many. Racism is here and Winchester must face it, Mr. Rozelle reminded.

On highlighting answers to what we can do, he listed two areas—those of big money spending and support for black community development and those more personal and close, such as assistance to the local Police Department in the area of race disturbance control as well as the many ways to help, dramatized by the "One Nation Indivisible" show.

"We can start anywhere," Mr. Rozelle concluded. "Our obligation of leadership is to be out in front . . . there is not a single person without influence somewhere."

Mr. Harris, exhorting the community to action, said that "if we act in fear this is better than no action at all."

The Kerner report, he said, was an indictment of the white power structure by whites. And he read some passages from the report and delineated the problems of the ghetto schools—irrelevant curriculum, racial isolation, stereotyped teachers, discouraged parents and stigmatized children.

Mr. Harris pressed for action here — for METCO, for black teachers here, for citizens to "stuff their congressional mail boxes" asking for national action. We must develop a sense of community which has no geographic bounds and is based on changed attitudes. We must work for a truly open society.

The panel presentation was followed by a short plea by Peter Neurath, chairman of WCCA Human Relations Committee that the large audience stop at the back of the hall and sign a pledge to aid in a new mortgage plan being presented by the WCCA, the Winchester Fair Housing Association, and the church action groups and others.

WCCA reports many pledges picked up and at least one turned in that night with the signator pledged to give $100 to a program to support short-term mortgages which would assist black people finding homes in Winchester.

"The black community is looking for tangible evidence of such action on the part of white America," the WCCA reminds. All interested persons are to contact Dr. Neurath at 729-3375.

Audience Jumps In

In the discussion part of the evening panelists re-emphasized the important role of business in corrective therapy for the national crisis.

Business could become the most important segment of our society if it takes the lead, he said. "I wouldn't look to the Federal bureaucracy...If business takes leadership, it wouldn't allow people to be trapped on Welfare programs."

Mr. Harris introduced the subject of the social studies curriculum in the Winchester schools, saying he was appalled at the curriculum on Africa here. "Its whole attitude is wrong... it is very much directed toward exotic customs...there is a bad situation here."

Curriculum became a major audience issue with many persons rising to urge improvement in this direction and with School Committee Chairman Barbara Walsh rising to report her group working on the problem and having a hard time finding material.

"The material is all around you," noted Mr. Byrd.

Mrs. Barbara Joslin proposed a resolution of the meeting urging a social studies program more relevant in this area to aid "our children in this multi-racial world." Others rose to ask that it be strengthened. The audience spoke its acceptance by hand and Professor Harleston took over the job of getting it to the School Committee.

One young Winchester woman rose to say that she had not been able to get a job here and wondered if her color entered into the picture. The WCCA took over the job of aiding the 16-year-old wife and mother of one baby.

The meeting broke slowly as clusters of activated citizens joined to share reaction and response.

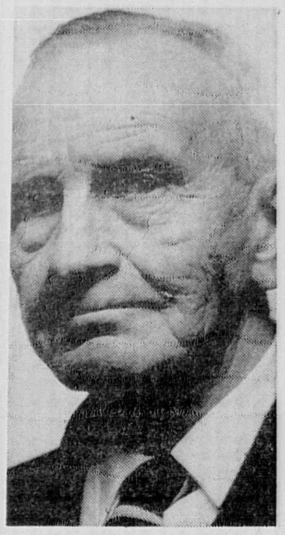
Horace de Rivera To Retire in June

Another phase in the several distinguished careers of Horace L. de Rivera will soon close.

The Winchester resident is concluding nearly 13 years service at Northeastern University. As associate professor of mathematics, he will be honored with 10 other N.U. staff and faculty at a retirement dinner on June 4 at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.



HORACE L. de RIVERA

His first extended career was as a naval officer, and later he was a partner in the Maine Coast Drillers and Geologic Consultants.

Professor de Rivera received a B.S. degree from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1921 and then began his naval career. During World War II, he commanded the U.S.S. Atascosa. A music experience which will introduce Lincoln School children, grade one through six to stringed instruments and the performance of live professional players will take place on Monday, June 3 at 10:45.

Each instrument will be demonstrated singly and in concert in a program which simulates "Young Audiences," with commentary by John Woodworth of the Winchester Public Schools Music Department. The performing quartet has John Jr., violinists, Eleftherios Eleftherakis, violist, and Dorothy Jump, cellist.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS get careful attention from Noonan 5th graders.

Les Troubadours Share Stage with Noonan Pupils

"Who says an annual meeting has to be dull?" quipped Mrs. Alven Wallace, president of the Noonan's parent organization, after a large number of parents and faculty were entertained with musical gusto by Noonan's 5th graders and "Les Troubadours."

Under the direction of elementary music specialist, Miss Jean Louden, the Noonan students demonstrated a new technique called the Orff-Kodayl approach which incorporates into its program the use of tuned, barred instruments such as xylophones, glockenspiels, and metallophones. Named after both a german and a Hungarian composer, Orff-Kodayl method, according to Miss Louden, is a flexible system of teaching techniques Within a framework designed to foster and develop a basic sensitivity to all aspects of music.

"We're offering you a peek into a typical music lesson rather than giving a performance," Miss Louden pointed out.

The children displayed their musical ability as they sang "Freres Jacgue" in rounds while clapping the rhythm two measures behind. The difficulty of doing two things simultaneously was obvious as the audience was invited to try it. The students then sang while playing the instruments. "As you can see, these instruments are just irresistible to the youngsters," added their director.

Miss Louden noted that the instruments were loaned to her by her friend and teacher, Miss Grace C Nash, director of the Dana School of Music.

"Basically," continued Miss Louden, "we are striving to develop each child into a musically literate person." "It is important to note that disciplines basic to music are also fundamental to the entire learning process." She cited a case study in Hungary in which children who were given a concentrated Orff-Kodayl course showed considerably greater overall gain academically than the control group.

The fifth graders were then invited to join the audience to hear the high school group, "Les Troubadours," under the leadership of Miss Eleanor Thistlethwaite, music specialist and member of the foreign language department at WHS

Miss Thistlethwaite introduced emcee for the group, Dean Gallant, who led the singers through a potpourri of French tunes beginning with their theme song, "Dominique" and ending with "Sous le Ciel de Paris"

Sitting in for the regular guitarists were Alan Raphael and Robert Ross, who ordinarily play with the Spanish group.

Faith

In this world of strife,
This world of misery,
There's little left
Of the things that count,
The things I thought could be.
There's little left
In this chaos, to love and
Long to hold,
To achieve one's fondest
Yearnings,
That overshadows purest gold.
There's little left
In the universe
Of the dreams of all mankind
So until the end of
Time and space
The end of all, rich—
Commonplace
Have faith in He
Who loves us all
And cast not yourself
Against the wall—
Of futility

Trackmen Defeat Woburn In Dual Meet Thursday

Coach Roger Rawden's track squad defeated Woburn High by a 66-47 margin at Woburn last Thursday in their final dual meet of the season.

Co-captain Greg Cronin ran a 10.0 seconds hundred, and lost the event. The senior speedster took first in the 440, however, with a time of 52.8 seconds. Cronin holds the Winchester High record in the 440 with a 52.6 clocking; the school record in the hundred is presently 10.25 seconds, as Cronin's 10-flat mark has not yet been declared official.

Senior Chris Halverson won a double victory for the Sachems, as he took first in the discus and the shot put. Halverson's 48 ft. 7½in heave in the shot is just inches off the existing WHS record. Two other seniors, co-captain Dave Carpenter and distance man Tom Spang, also captured first place honors for Winchester. Carpenter won the low hurdles in 11.6 seconds, while Spang,s first came in the 2-mile, on a 10:50.0 clocking.

Juniors Rick Mobbs and Girard Workman helped out with firsts in their events also. Mobbs was the victor in the high hurdles, with a time of 13.3 seconds; Workman took the high jump with a 5ft. 8in. leap. Mobbs added six more points to the squad's total, running his total contribution up to 11 points, by placing second in both the low hurdles and the broad jump.

Jr. Golf Amateurs

Qualifying for the 21st United States Junior Amateur Championship will take place at 57 sites between July 12 and July 17. The Championship proper is scheduled for July 30 through August 3 at The Country Club, Brookline.

A total of 150 players will win places in on-the-site qualifying. Eighteen-hole qualifying rounds will be played at The Country Club on Tuesday, July 30, and Wednesday, July 31. This will reduce the field to the 64 who will compete in match play beginning on August 2, and the semi-final and final rounds on August 3.

The Junior Amateur Championship is open to male amateur golfers who will not have reached their 18th birthday by midnight of August 3, 1968, and have handicaps not over 8 strokes under the 1968 USGA Golf Handicap System.

Entry forms accompanied by the $2 fee must reach the USGA office, 40 East 38th Street, New York, N.Y., no later than 5 p.m. on Wednesday, June 26.

The Championship was won last year by John T. Crooks, of Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Crooks is over-age this year and ineligible to compete.

The Country Club is the third course played by the juniors that has also been host to the United States Open Championship. Congressional Country Club, Washington, D.C., was the scene of the 1949 Junior Amateur and the 1964 Open; Southern Hills Country Club, Tulsa, Oklahoma, was the scene of the 1953 Junior Amateur and the 1958 Open.

Francis Ouimet defeated Englishman Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in a memorable playoff for the 1913 Open Championship at the Country Club. Fifty years later in 1963 Julius Boros defeated Arnold Palmer and Jacky Cupid for the Open Championship at TCC.

WHS In Big Woburn Upset Saturday As They Down Northeast Champs 2-1

Coach Bill Colella's baseball squad pulled off the upset of the year in defeating Woburn High by a 2-1 margin Saturday afternoon on the Tanners' home field. The State Tournament-bound Tanners brought a 14-1 record and the Northeastern Conference championship into the contest, and the club was a heavy favorite over the 7-7 Sachems, who were fourth place finishers in their Middlesex League.

But the Winchester nine arrived in Woburn determined to bow out with a victory, and the Sachems contributed their best defensive effort of the season, holding the NEC champs to one run and playing errorless baseball.

Senior Mark Fitzgerald pitched his way to his seventh victory, yielding five hits and three walks to the Tanners, while striking out two. The one Woburn run came on a fielding mix-up. With two outs in the fourth inning, and a Tanner base runner on second, Don Queenin, the Woburn left fielder, lofted an easy pop up to short right field.

Tom Flaherty, (Winchester's junior second baseman), Bill Wolfe (sophomore short stop), Tom Wolfe (junior right fielder), and Toby Harvey (senior center fielder) all converged on the ball, but each member of the quartet thought one of his teammates would catch the pop, and the ball dropped safely among them, scoring the runner from second.

But this single, ill-earned run was not enough to catch the Sachems. Winchester had scored twice against their arch-rivals in the first inning, and the squad did not relinquish the lead for the remainder of the contest.

Tom Flaherty led off for the Sachems with a base on balls. Peter Knight then ripped a grounder to the Woburn short stop, which the fielder booted, leaving runners on first and second with no outs. Jack Papadinis followed Knight, and the junior first baseman dropped a bunt toward the mound.

Steve Bevins, the Tanners' southpaw hurler, fielded the ball, but his throw to first was wide of the mark, allowing Papadinis to reach safely and sending Flaherty home with the Sachems' first run. Knight advanced to third on the error, and Toby Harvey went to the plate. Harvey singled to left, scoring Knight and providing Winchester with what proved to be the winning margin. Steve Swanson hit into a double play, and Mike Gilberti fanned, ending the inning for the Sachems.

With the momentum established in their favor, the Winchester defense tightened up and produced the Sachems' first errorless performance of the season. Typical of the fine fielding job which the squad contributed was the double play which provided the last two outs in the Woburn half of the seventh, and which insured Winchester's tremendous upset victory.

Pete Collins, the Tanner right fielder, was at the plate with one away and a runner on first. Fitzgerald offered him a curve ball, which Collins rapped back to the mound. Fitzgerald stabbed the grounder and fired to Bill Wolfe on second. Wolfe stepped on the bag and threw to Papadinis on first, completeing the double play and winning the contest.

The victory upped Winchester's record to a final slate of 10-8, including all ML and non-League contests.

Students Show Physical Fitness

Physical fitness was filmed at Mystic School Tuesday, May 21, as children in grades 1, 2, and 3 demonstrated accomplishments in agility and coordination gained in physical education during the year.

The program was a cooperative effort between thee physical education department and instructional aids section of the division of instruction in the Winchester Public Schools. It is planned that the films will be used in teaching of similar groups in the system. Mrs. Gale Montgomery, physical education specialist for the elementary schools, directed the demonstration, which was attended by parents.

First graders performed ball handling games and gave active impressions of creative suggestions such as animals and machines. More difficult forward rolls, head and hand stands, and cartwheels were included in the program presented by second graders. The third grade children danced folk and square dances in addition to displaying skills in formation of pyramids and doing a tumbling routine.

Baseball Team Tops Belmont 6-2

Winchester High's baseball squad exploded for four runs in the fourth inning of a Middlesex League contest played here last Tuesday, and the four tallies turned out to be the winning margin for the Sachems, as they defeated the Maroon Marauders 6-2, for their second victory over Belmont this season.

Senior right-hander Mark Fitzgerald went the distance for Winchester on the mound, striking out five and walking just two.

The Sachems had been scoreless for the first three innings, but the team started hitting in the fourth—hard and often—and they pushed four quick runs across before Steve Donovan, the Belmont hurler, could retire the side.

Senior center-fielder Toby Harvey led off the inning with a triple to left-center. Junior first baseman Jack Papadinis then reached on an infield single down the third base line, but Harvey was unable to score. Junior second baseman Tom Flaherty then walked, loading the bases. Donovan proceeded to throw a wild pitch, which scored Harvey and advanced Papadinis and Flaherty.

Chuch Rotundi, a sophomore first baseman who pinchhit for Tom Wolfe, then reached on a fielder's choice which allowed Papadinis to sprint home. Mark Fitzgerald then placed a perfect bunt down the first base line which went for a base hit and scored Flaherty. Peter Knight, junior left fielder, then ripped a single to left field, which drove Rotundi in and accounted for the Sachems' fourth tally.

The team scored twice in the sixth also. Sophomore third baseman Mike Gilberti led off with a base on balls. After two outs were made, Peter Knight tripled Gilberti home. Bill Wolfe, the Sachems' slick-fielding short stop, walked, leaving men on first and third with two outs for Steve Swanson. The sophomore catcher came through and stroked a single to right field, bringing Knight home with Winchester's sixth and final run.

Tennis Team Wins Two, Drops One

Coach Don Stangel's tennis squad captured two victories, while suffering one defeat, in this week's interscholastic tennis action. The club dumped Lincoln-Sudbury and Wayland High by identical 4-1 margins, while being upset 3-2 by by Concord-Carlisle.

In th victories, the top three Sachem singles entrants, Dick Kadesch, Mike Hills, and Brad Lindgren, won their matches against their opponents from both schools. The number two doubles combo of Steve Pritchard and Leo Lauretano also were successful versus their opponents from each of the two schools. The number one doubles team of Barry Gibson and Bruce Stebbins did not fare so well, as they dropped their contests against both Lincoln-Sudbury and Wayland, accounting for the opposition's one point on both occasions.

In the Concord-Carlisle clash, Hills and Lindgren were victorious once more. However, captain Kadesch and both doubles teams lost, presenting the Patriots with a 3-2 upset victory. Playing number one doubles for the Sachems were Gibson and Pritchard, while the number two slot was filled by a Lauretano-Stebbins duo.

Sachem Nine Upsets Lexington Behind Mullen

Behind fine four-hit pitching on the part of sophomore Bruce Mullen and a timely base hit by junior right-fielder Joe Fiumara, Coach Bill Colella's baseball team defeated Lexington for the second time this year.

The victory was an upset, and the Sachems dropped the Minutemen from contention for a berth in the State Baseball Tournament. Winchester scored its one tally in the second inning of the contest, which was played Thursday in Lexington.

Toby Harvey led off with a single to center field. Jack Papadinis then fanned and Mike Gilberti popped up to the first baseman, leaving Fiumara at the plate with two down. He then lofted a double to left-center, scoring Harvey from first.

Mullen struck out six Minutemen while walking only two en route to his victory. The contest represented his first varsity start, and the win made Mullen the only other Sachem hurler to capture a victory besides Mark Fitzgerald.

Mullen's battery mate, sophomore Steve Swanson, continued to play outstanding baseball. Steve is the team's leading hitter, and he threw out two Minutemen trying to advance. The Lexington game represented the first time in Swanson's last nine games in which he failed to produce a base hit.

The first time the two teams met, the Sachems defeated the Minutemen on a bases-loaded single in the last of the seventh.

Concord-Carlisle Shells Sachems To End Sachem League Season at 7-7

Concord-Carlisle's Patriot nine tapped Winchester pitching for 11 base hits and seven runs, in defeating the Sachem batsmen 7-0 in their final Middlesex League contest. The Patriots scored in each of the odd-numbered innings of the odd-numbered innings of the e game which was played Friday afternoon here in Winchester.

Mark Fitzgerald took the loss for Winchester, as his season record in the League was dropped to a final mark of 6-3. The defeat left the Sachems at .500-even for the year in ML competition, with a 7-7 slate. The squad finished fourth in the final League standings, behind Reading, Stoneham, and Lexington, Winchester was 1-1 versus Reading 0-2 against Stoneham, and 2-0 over the Minutemen. Reading won eleven of their last 12 contests en route to the ML title.

Four different Sachems hurled in the Concord contest. Fitzgerald went five innings, walking one and fanning two. Senior right-hander Ken Cooper relieved and lasted an inning and a third. Cooper struck out the side in the sixth, and walked one in both the sixth and seventh. Joe Fiumara replaced Cooper with one down in the seventh, but the junior right-hander was tapped for two quick hits for two runs. His pitching staff exhausted, Coach Colella gave the nod to senior center-fielder Toby Harvey. Harvey retired the next two Concord batters on strikes, ending the inning.

The Sachems sole hit came in the second, when Steve Swanson tripled to left field. But the sophomore catcher died on third as Jack Papadinis and Mike Gilberti fell victim to the Patriot hurler's curve. In all, Baker fanned twelve Winchester batsmen.

WHS Raquettes Win Two More

The girls' tennis squad, coached by Miss Jan Collins, captured two victories last week against Belmont and Lincoln-Sudbury, both by an overall score of 4-1. The match with Melrose was canceled because of rain.

All four Winchester entries in the singles, Becki Irwin, Margie Sexton, Cindy Alba and Cindy Marvel, topped their Belmont opponents by large margins last Tuesday. Cindy Marvel, the only sophomore playing for Winchester defeated her opponent in two sets, 6-0, 6-0.

However, Belmont managed to defeat the junior duo of Sherry Garrity and Sue White to secure their single point for the contest. The Lincoln-Sudbury game followed basically the same lines, as the opponent's sole point was scored in the doubles competition, this time against Sherry Garrity and Cindy Marvel. A third entry in the doubles, Merily Ober and Audrey Puffer left their match, ahead in the third set, but were not counted because the match was not completed.

1968 Version Softball League Ready to Go

Winchester's scrapping softball league gets under way this week with toss-outs due Tuesday night.

Two new teams join the ranks this year, making eight in all. Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nick Dizio landscapers will field teams as sponsors-supplying shirts and hats to two more nines.

They join former sponsors: Bellino's Pizza, Brown Screw Machine Company, Morgans, Elks, S.O.I. and J. H. Winn.

The Recreation Committee will pick up the tab on umpires and balls and is negotiating to get the local players into the Mass Softball Association.

The league has been an off and on thing since just after World War II. But for the past few years definitely on.

Cap League Closes Ranks Senior League Sees Upsets

by James R. Stewart Jr.

The week-end Cap League competition waxed hot and heavy, this past Saturday and Sunday, as five full teams of 25 to 30 players each were given different colored caps, and it was announced that no more players could be accommodated this year.

All games are starting at 1 p.m., now, and the enthusiasm of the players is matched by the enjoyment of many parents and friends who are flocking to Ginn Field to watch the five games each Saturday and Sunday.

Next week the standings of the teams will be announced as each unit plays the other nines in a round robin of fun and excitement. League leaders are gratified to see the number of parents who are volunteering their services as managers, coaches, umpires and general helpers. They appear to be getting as much exercise and enjoyment out of these games as are the youngsters.

Under the direction of George Tello, the managers and their teams are:

Royal Blues - manager, Bob Paridy
Chattanooga Maroons - manager, Jim McGoldrick
Miami Orange - manager, Phil Stackpole
Kelly Greens - manager, Tom McCarthy
Purple Ramblers - manager, Bill Wolfe
Golden Eagles - manager, Jim McIsaac
Gray Confederates - manager, Al Kajander
Green Phantoms - manager, Bill Coppins
Cincinnati Reds - manager, Don Bumiller
Black Knights - manager, Roger Stillman

Each team also has a full time coach, and five men are umpiring the contests.

At the other end of Little League, the Senior Circuit was the scene of some unexpected upsets this past week end. John Heffernan's Cubs put together good pitching and timely hitting to squeeze past the Joe Keating Phillies, 4-3, for the Cubs first win. In a slugfest, the Orioles of Ken Donaghey outlasted Art Carr's Angels by 11-10!

Over in the American League, the Giants came from behind in the last inning to defeat the Indians by 3-2. Hal Mullen's team, thereby, avenged last week's first loss. But the story was different in the second game as Joe Mozzicato's Senators walloped the White Sox by 10 to 4.

The Indians' Charlie Miller was unhappy after the game, but he is reported confident he now knows the secret that will start his "scalpers" on the winning trail, next week. Joe Julian, White Sox manager said "no comment" after his team's loss, but he is known to have more tricks up his sleeve for his next opponent.

Standings will be found for all Little League teams, elsewhere.

Girls Defeat Belmont 14-13 In Squeaker

Last Tuesday the Girls' softball team defeated Belmont 14-13 in eight full innings to boost their season's record to 3 wins against 4 losses.

The game, which brought Winchester only two more from the end of their Spring season, was extremely close right down to the final inning. The score was held at a tie in five of the eight innings of play and Winchester displayed three pitchers altogether.

Senior Meri England began the game and pitched on through to the fifth, giving-up nine runs. She was then replaced by Sophomore Eilleen McKenna who held Belmont to only two runs in the sixth, as Winchester took the edge 13-11.

However, Belmont pitcher Pat Hurley, sensing defeat, worked a tight infield defense and screened all Sachem hits while her team tied the game for the last time. Then in the seventh, junior varsity pitcher Sue Swanson, backed by Joan Cussen at second, allowed only one Belmont batter to reach scoring position. Joan put-out two of her opponents on flies and assisted in the third at first.

The top of the first inning saw Belmont score their first two runs on singles and have their third runner tagged by Cathy Niles at third base. In their own half of the inning Winchester matched Belmont's score with a single and a double, driven-in by Eileen Sullivan. Unfortunately three Sachems were put-out at third and Winchester missed its chance at an early lead.

The tie, which gained another run in the second inning, was broken by Belmont as they pulled ahead 4-3 in the third. However, even score was regained and held in the fourth and fifth innings until Winchester had its turn at the lead. The Belmont girls were not easily put-off and their sharp fielding handed Winchester a scoreless inning as they tied the score for the third time. Winchester's final run was scored on a line-drive down the third base line by Joan Cussen.

Winchester Takes Championship In Mayflower Ice Hockey League

A strong squad of 15 WHS icemen, predominantly sophomores, juniors, Saturday won the championships of the Mayflower League at the Boston Ice Skating Club where six area teams have been facing off for the past six or seven weeks.

They brought home a handsome trophy.

Winchester took six games and lost one to come out on top. They won by defeating the Cantabs on Saturday. Belmont, with whom they had broken 1-1, came in second.

A large group of men went into the spring tourney, including Jay O'Leary, Dennis Ross, Tom Kivney, Jim Beck, Rich Shanahan, Brian Bowen, Larry Spang, Ben Dolan, Ben Oliver, Fred Cammon, Bill Harris, Joe Campo, Jeff Charles and Stoney Jacobs, with senior Rich Kimball giving an occasional assist.

Lacrosse Team Shuts Out Newton So. 7-0

Playing a hustling but inexperienced Newton South squad, Coach Gene Bouley's lacrosse team shut out their opponents 7-0 in a contest played last Thursday here in Winchester.

The Newton South squad found itself in the same position which the Sachems were in three years ago, as the rookie team came up against a group of hard-checking veterans and were soundly trounced.

At half time, Winchester was leading 7-0, and Coach Bouley sent the varsity to the sidelines. There, they held a regular practice while the Sachem Jayvees played out the game. Apparently, these two clubs were more evenly matched, as neither Newton South nor the Winchester Junior Varsity were able to score for the remainder of the contest.

The lacrossmen have their final game scheduled for this Saturday. Winchendon School, upset by the Sachems two weeks ago, will get another shot at the Winchester team. The game will be held at Winchendon.

Starting for the Sachems will be: attack—Jim Barry, John Pirani, and Cliff Letty; midfield—Henry Cushman, Bill Allard, and Bob Penna; defense—Rich Kimball, and co-captains Ted Webb and John Wisbach.

Reserves for Winchester will be: attack—Don Daniels, Tony "Moon" Martignetti, and Peter Wardwell; midfield—Tom Kivney, Ernie Guarino, Charlie Logan, and Mark Collins; defense— Jeff Lindberg, Jim O'Donnell, Lou Pedi, and Rich Hansen.

Sophomore Mark Stabile will be in the goal for Winchester.

Six Row With Belmont Hill Crew At Quinsigamond

On Saturday, May 25, the Belmont Hill Varsity Crew competed in the 22nd annual New England Interscholastic Regatta on Lake Quinsigamond in Worcester. Of the three Belmont boats, only the third qualified for the finals.

Rowing in the third boat wre Jay Broadhurst of 18 Glen Road and Craig Stockwell of 6 Ledgewood Road. In the qualifying races, the third boat took fourth place, behind Choate, South Kent and Pomfret. In the finals, Belmont Hill finished third, only a few feet behind Exeter and Brooks.

In the first boat there were David Sidebotham of 17 Indian Hill Road and a former Winchester resident, Bruce Buchanan. The high hopes for the first boat did not meterialize as it took only fifth in the qualifying races and second in the consolation races.

In the second Belmont Hill boat was Paul Martini of 21 Dartmouth Street and Andrew Porter of 9 Lawson Road. The second boat did not qualify taking only sixth, but in the consolation races, it was able to come back and defeat boats which had overpowered it in the qualifying races, and therefore took a first.

Even with the disappointments with the first and second boats, Belmont Hill enjoyed a day which was a definite improvement over past years at Quinsigamond. With many oarsmen returning next year, Belmont Hill has hopes for an even better showing.

Achieves Eagle Rank

SCOUTING'S HIGHEST AWARD, Eagle rank, was conferred on Richard Porter, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Porter of Highland Avenue, at an Eagle Court of Honor held by Boy Scout Troop 503 in Chidley Hall, First Congregational Church, last Monday evening. Here Mr. Porter pins the award on his son, as Mrs. Porter proudly watches. The ceremony was conducted by Harris Green of the Musket District advancement committee, assisted by Calvin Allyn, committeeman of Troop 503, and scouts, Jim Dillon and Ted VerPlanck. The honor guards for the Eagle candidate and his parents were scouts, John Butterfield and Mike Simmons. (Steve Smith photo)

Students Win Revision In Senior Exam Policy

Seniors at Winchester High School will no longer be required to take final exams in courses in which they have a B average or better. This change in exam policy was voted on May 20 by the School Committee in response to a request presented by the School's Student Council a week earlier.

A senior meeting the requirement for an exam exemption may still take the exam if he so chooses. A student so optioning will not have to consider the possibility of lowering his grade, for according to the wording of the motion, taking a non-compulsory exam will allow him to raise or to keep his grade going into the exam but not to lower it.

The decision followed statements by Acting Superintendent William Clark and High School Principal Howard Niblock indicating support of the change. They presented the Committee with data on teacher reaction to the proposal, which was largely favorable, and a survey of exam policies in 20 nearby communities which showed that eight allowed no exemptions, while the other 12 had policies ranging from no exams for seniors to exemptions only for those with A's.

The Committee rejected by a 2 to 3 vote the Student Council suggestion that a B- be used as the standard for not having to take a final.

In the motion finally adopted, no mention was made of advanced placement courses although the Student Council had requested that those with a C plus in an AP course be exempt from an exam.

Under present policy students in AP courses are strongly urged to take the standardized exam. Those so doing have not had to take the exam prepared by the High School. Now a senior in an AP course who declines to take the standard exam must maintain a B average to be exempt from the school's final.

The B requirement for an exam exemption differs from the B requirement for the honor roll. For the honor roll a student may have a B-.

It is expected that a review of the new policy will occur after June, 1969.

Serious reservations on the proposal were expressed by Committee member, Lawrence Beckley, who said, "In terms of the arguments for this, I rule the case has been lost. As an experiment, perhaps it can be justified." He reiterated his uneasiness about the amount of time seniors lose from their studies at the end of the school year.

On the latter objection Mr. Niblock quoted a teacher, who had said, "time to provide more instruction for seniors is needed, but May and June are not the time to do it. It should be earlier in the year."

Library for New School

At the same meeting the Committee heard Frank Crimp, architect for the new high school, present several possible plans for the design of the library which will include audio-visual materials. The Committee voiced its preference for a two-floor library or, in the terminology of some educators, instructional materials center.

The following night, May 21, Mr. Crimp made a similar presentation to the Permanent Building Committee meeting with the Secondary School Subcommittee. They decided upon a plan not unlike that favored by the School Committee. The second floor of the two-floor area will be somewhat smaller than the first and a double staircase in the center of the rooms will connect the two levels.

Need a Bathtub? Lace Mantilla? Watch TV Auction

A 1968 Saab will take turns with a Dior dress, a leg of veal, a week at a basketball clinic, poetry lessons or a trip to Hawaii.

You'll be able to bid on a monkey in a cage, a stuffed tiger, a $1200 woodcarving of the "Last Supper," a sump pump, a dog house, a Thackeray first edition, a racing dinghy, color TV or hedge trimmer.

Most anything anyone wants will go up for auction when Channel 2 holds its third annual on-air auction June 3 to 8.

How Are They Doing?

Named Chief Of Obstetrics

At the recently held annual meeting of the medical staff of Winchester Hospital Dr. James F. McDonough was elected to the position of chief of obstretics, replacing Dr. Sanford H. Moses, who was concluding more than 25 years as head of this active department of the hospital.

Dr. McDonough, who resides at 71 Wilwood Street, has also served as president of the Middlesex East District Medical Society, and is presently executive councilor, representing the Milddlesex East to the Massachusetts Medical Society

Dr. McDonough is a graduate of Boston College and Tufts Medical School, and served his internship at Cambridge City Hospital and a residency in obstetrics and gynecology at the Boston City Hospital. He is a diplomate of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology, a member of the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Although the national birth rate has been declining in recent years Winchester Hospital continues to have an above average number of deliveries each year, with 14 physicians as members of its obstetrical department.

MISS MARY RICE (left) of 10 Lincoln Street was recently elected treasurer of the Northeastern University Alumnae Association for 1968-69. Dr. Phoebe Lanzoni (right) is the newly elected president.

Heart Fund Names Memorials

Late friends and relatives of Winchester residents honored by memorial gifts to the Heart Fund during the past five months were announced recently by Dr. James A. Bougas, president of the Greater Boston Chapter of the Massachusetts Heart Association.

"Heart Fund memorial gifts are fitting tributes to our friends and loved ones who have passed away," Dr. Bougas said. "It is particularly appropriate close to Memorial Day to recall that such gifts not only express remembrances and love for those who have gone, but also spell hope and longer life for others in the future through continuing support of the research, education, and community service programs of the Heart Association.

Any sum may be given as a memorial through the Greater Boston Chapter of the Heart Association at 667 Beacon Street, Boston 02215.

Anniversary Mass On Monday For Father Sheehan

Reverend John J. Sheehan, pastor of St. Joseph's Parish in Amesbury, and a former assistant at the Immaculate Conception Parish, Winchester-Woburn, will observe the 35th Anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood with a concelebrated Mass on Monday evening, June 3, at 7:30 in his Parish Church of St. Joseph's, Amesbury.

Father Sheehan came to the Winchester-Woburn Parish in 1947 after completing four years of active service as a Naval chaplain during World War II. In the two years in the Immaculate Conception Parish, he organized an extensive C.Y.O. program and was founder of the Immaculate Conception Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Girls Drill Team. The Drum Corps still continues as the Queensmen.

Father Sheehan still continues as director of Camp Stella Maris, West Gloucester, which he founded in 1938 and which is starting its 30th camp season this year.

He has invited his friends in Winchester to attend the Mass of Thanksgiving on June 3 and an informal reception will be held in St. Joseph's Parish Center, Amesbury, after the Mass.

Martha Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan F. Peterson of 6 Summit Avenue, has been named to the dean's list at Bates College where she is a member of the class of 1970.

Wellesley Club Holds Picnic

On Tuesday, May 21, the Winchester Wellesley Club met for its annual picnic meeting in the garden of Mrs. Robert M. Stone, 10 Wood Lane. A welcome was extended to special guests of the day, the mothers of Wellesley undergraduates and incoming freshmen from Winchester.

After box lunches and dessert prepared by Mrs. John D. Hamilton Jr., and her committee, a business meeting was held. This included a report by Mrs. Kenneth D. Hudson, ways and means chairman, on the sale of tickets to the Winchester Mornings.

Mrs. George M. Vrotsos and Mrs. Nancy Hemmerich, club members who had attended Alumnae Council at the college in April, then told of major changes in Wellesley's curriculum effective next fall, and particularly of the emerging cross-registration program with MIT.

The membership voted to establish a Wellesley Book Award, to be presented to a senior girl at Winchester High School for excellence in the humanities. The first award subsequently was made at the high school's Prize Day on May 23.

At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Norman Beecher, a Wellesley alumna now living in Concord, spoke on the topic "Do-it-Yourself Politics." Mrs. Beecher has been a director of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and is now its public personnel chairman. She recently served on Governor Volpe's Special Commission for Civil Service Reform, and it was largely of the needs in this area that she spoke.

Swim Club Sets Fashion Show

On Wednesday, June 5, at 1 p.m. the Winchester Swim Club will sponsor its first social event of the summer season. All are invited to attend, particularly those who have not had occasion to visit the newest swimming facility in Winchester located on Johnson Road.

Amid the setting of a classical English garden, "An Ode To Summer," a fashion show and luncheon will be presented with club members modeling casual, cruise, and cocktail wear. Mrs. Richard Miano, manager of Peck & Peck in Winchester, will serve as fashion commentator at the poolside.

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Leonard Cancelliere assisted by Mrs. E. Baratta, tickets; Mrs. C. Alexander, tables; Mrs. A. Kostopoulos, decorations; Mrs F. Feith, models; Mrs. B. Vrostos, program; Mrs. J. Cincotta, publicity.

Reservations may be made singly or in tables of four by calling 729-6110 or 648-1341 or 648-8946.

Pick Medford Administrator

Executive Secretary Named By Selectmen

The 13-month search for an executive secretary for the Town ended Monday night when the Board of Selectmen announced the appointment of Edward F. Donnelly, assistant manager of the City of Medford.

Mr. Donnelly will take office July 1 at an annual salary of $14,000. He will fill the job voted by the 1967 Town Meeting and for which the 1968 Meeting voted an increment. "The entire board is extremely pleased to have him," reported Chairman Charles Doucette. "We are looking forward to working with him."

"Mr. Donnelly will go to work with headquarters in the Selectmen's office. He will oversee all Town Hall operations and will be able to keep in closer contact with all department heads than we have been able to do and to better coordinate the affairs of the Town.

"In addition to these duties his job description has been written to include those previously assigned to William Supple as Workmans Compensation agent."

H.C. Grad

Mr. Donnelly comes to Winchester after eight years in his Medford job. He has had additional experience to town and city government in Worcester, where he served as administrative coordinator in the city manager's office for three years, and in Stoughton, where he worked as an administrative intern in the town manager's office.

His work in Stoughton was connected with his studies for a master's in public administration which he received from Boston University in 1957. Mr. Donnelly's undergraduate education was at Holy Cross College, from which he was graduated with a degree in government and history in 1953.

Prior to entering BU, he was for two years an officer with the Navy Reserve.

Married and the father of two children, Mr. Donnelly has been active in several professional organizations including the International City Managers' Association, the Massachusetts City and Town Managers' Association, the Massachusetts Municipal Personnel Boards' Association Board of Directors, of which he is a former chairman, and the American Society for Public Administration, in which he was formerly vice president of the Western Massachusetts Chapter.

The Air Force reported his death to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Sr., who now live at 200 Bartlett Road in Winthrop. The family had made their home here on Fletcher Street until four years ago, and surviving with his parents are a brother, Thomas E., and a sister, Cathleen, both also of Winthrop.

Lt. Logan had been a pilot with the Air Force since 1966 and had served in Vietnam for a month.

He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan College in 1966 with a bachelor's degree in mathematics. Prior to that he had attended Cushing Academy in West Newbury.

At the High School here he was very active and well known. The young flier had been captain of the golf team, a member of the hockey and rifle teams and of the Philosophy and Math Clubs. He was also a staff member of the Red and Black.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. in St. John the Evangelist Church in Winthrop.

On Monday night, June 10, the group will meet from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Mt. Vernon Street. Speaker will be Francis J. Bresnahan of Peabody, instigator and sparkplug of that town's Industrial Development Commission.

Memorial Day

The day cleared here a week ago today for Winchester's exercises on the 100th anniversary of Memorial Day, and a great many citizens joined with those who have actively served their country in military service at cemetery services and the parade.

Chief Marshal John T. Horn and others of the sponsoring American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars welcomed large units of marchers. Included were four Winchester servicemen by chance one each representing the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Corps, each also a veteran of service in the Vietnam War and each still active in service.

At Sunday church services prior to the day, retiring pastor of the Methodist Church Reverend H. Newton Clay, a former Post 97 chaplain, asked for retention of the real meaning of the day in a sermon entitled, "Freedom's Holy Light."

BC Psychologist Speaker Sunday At Marycliff

That love demands decisions, the graduating class at Marycliff Academy was told Sunday afternoon when Sister Bessie Chamers, R.S.C.J., a practicing psycologist at Boston College was commencement speaker.

The eight Winchester girls among the 21 receiving diplomas at the Academy exercises heard the Sister challenge them on their understanding of love and its importance to themselves as they now go on to make their own decisions. She told them how important it is that they come to an awareness of their best selves—of love—as a base for making these decisions.

Cynthia Ross of Winchester was awarded the scholarship prize offered each year by the Academy's Father's Club. Jane McBain was enrolled with Cynthia as a permanent member of the National Honor Society. Miss Ross, who merited three scholarship awards, has enrolled on one at the Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

Sister Elizabeth C. Farragher, principal, honored these girls with their diplomas and with them six others here, the Misses Marlene Berthiaume, Mary Burke, Kathleen Canavan, Kathryn Connors, Dale DiMarzo and Mary Piantedosi.

Sister Farragher also announced her own departure from Marycliff and her assignment to the English faculty of the Jeanne d'Arc Academy in Milton commencing this fall. In so doing she thanked the school's parents, staff and students for the fine support she has received while in Winchester over the past six years.

On Saturday at 2 p.m. the Academy will hold its annual Field Day.

6-2 Pro-METCO Vote Asks For 25 Children

Motions From Floor Raise Request From 15

At Monday night's open meeting attended by about 300 residents, the School Committee voted to make application to the State Board of Education for admission of up to 25 METCO pupils in the Winchester School's lower elementary grades this fall. The original motion proposed by the Committee suggested 15. After two-hour discussion the Committee responded, however, to motions from the floor that the number be increased.

The results of Monday night's meeting have been forwarded to the State, but spokesmen for the Committee here do not anticipate that Winchester will be able to participate in the program as early as this fall even if Winchester is accepted by METCO as an applicant.

As reported by Mrs. Barbara Walsh at the hearing, the Federal monies allocated for METCO have long been assigned for 1968-69 and the State Board voted a week ago Tuesday on its allocations. The State hopes for more, perhaps a supplimentary budget voted by the Legislature. It is also possible that town's now enrolled would release monies if they vote to give other towns the money to join.

In introducing her subject, Chairman Walsh, after noting that "Belive me we haven't been talking about METCO very long," made clear that there would be no cost to taxpayers here.

Introducing Dr. Donald A. Klemer, the new superintendent of schools, to his first local audience, she paused to express strongly the appreciation of the Committee and the Town for the work in the past months of Assistant Superintendent William Clark, who has been in charge of the schools, and of Principal Joseph Forte who has been assisting Mr. Clark.

She next noted reception by the Committee of several petitions in favor of the METCO program here—one signed by "almost all" of the Towns 14 school principals and assistant principals; one from a group of Vinson-Owen parents; one signed by 600 WHS students and one representing a 12-2 vote of the Wyman School parents' executive board asking that children be considered for enrollment in that school despite its crowding.

She next turned to Mr. Clark who gave a detailed report of space projections in each elementary school which added up to over 70 in the first three grades.

Lawrence Beckley then read the Committee's motion which asked for "up to 15" children for the lower elementary grades, "at the standard tuition rate as determined in accordance with the State formula."

Dr. Joseph Tansey rose first from the floor to speak strongly for METCO, a project "dear to my heart." Reciting his embarassment at last year's actions by some antagonists in the town and the subsequent rejection of Winchester by the METCO board, he said, "Since that time the country has seen a rising crescendo of protests of these injustices. If your conscience hasn't been touched by this time, it never will be."

He disagreed with the numbers asked, however. "I would rather go down fighting for 25," he said asking that "this magnificent town" share some of its great advantages with the ghetto.

Dr. Edward Rendall, the Reverend Oliver Powell of the First Congregational Church and Henry Heitz followed him asking participation.

Dr. Rendall seconded the motion for 25 and, noting he spoke somewhat in response to Dr. Bernard Harleston's recent challenge that groups other than the clergy speak, he reminded that in the race situation as in medicine "we have the responsibility to make a start." We do it on all our medical problems, even those for which we have no whole answer.

Dr. Powell felt there to be something elemental about the METCO problem which is such a small but hopeful thing...which promises to keep the doors for humanity open..." before history slams them.

Mr. Heitz reiterated the lack of cost to the town and said "we are living in an affluent time" and should be able to give a little to some children.

Arthur Hewis next rose and noting that at the last Committee meeting he had appeared to "ask for equal opportunity for every boy or girl in the Commonwealth," he questioned the group on the administration of METCO monies on what he thought a variance between what it takes in and what it expends; he asked that "these little children not be used as pawns;" he read from the

Considering METCO

The first applause of the evening came when Joe Tansey, the first non-Committee speaker, asked for 25 children instead of 15. Without hearing opposition applause, one knew that the heavy majority was pro—METCO—estimated somewhere between 75 and 85%.

* * *

Said the new superintendent upon being introduced: "I hope we'll have this kind of turnout at future Board of Education meetings!" (his lingo his first day was still Hastings, New York, where he woke up on Monday. He meant School Committee. He has been a district superintendent and he also still finds it hard to say "town" instead of "district").

* * *

The meeting acknowledged with a heavy hand the service of William Clark as acting superintendent — and that of Joseph Forte as acting assistant superintendent before Dr. Klemer's appointment and arrival.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Oliver Powell, speaking as minister of the First Congregational Church: "It is not the black militants, not the communists, not the kooks...but white racism which is responsible for the riots."

* * *

Committeeman John Dolan said at one point, "I know well that a lot of people in this room are not happy with the School system, not happy with the School Committee, not happy with me...all I know is that we're in a hell of a state...I think the suburbs have to do something."

* * *

On the numbers of children to take Dr. Joel Alpert, Children's Hospital child health chief, said, "The number should hurt us...This Committee should go on record for doing what we can in a maximum way." Frederick Rozelle: METCO may not be the answer for Boston but it may damn well be the answer for these 25 kids." And WHS Student Council President Kevin Lynch in answering a charge that METCO is relieving the Boston School Committee of its obligation said, "Does Mr. Galvin really believe the Boston School Committee will be out of a job (if 25 Roxbury pupils come here)? ...I think it'll still have a job to do."

* * *

At one point there was a little relief to the high gear speed of the meeting. One member of the audience, not as familiar as some with the demands of procedure to stick to the motion, rose to ask a question about help with seventh grade busing of St. Mary's students to an outing.

* * *

Separated by many exchanges and minutes came to these observations—Henry Heitz speaking for METCO: "We should practice our Christianity in public as well as private." Robert Jasse: I feel it is consistent with my Christianity to oppose METCO."

* * *

Perhaps the most biting opposition to METCO came from Mrs. Marilyn Preston, a native, who, in a prepared statement, spoke sharply of "people who have moved here only to find everything wrong." She suggested they move back to Roxbury and Cambridge and that WCCA members volunteer to bus their children into Boston to the ghetto so that their places could be taken by Roxbury pupils.

* * *

Richard Schroeder, former chairman: "I find myself in an uncomfortable position on the School Committee. METCO has been discussed more than a month now but last week publicly for the first time." On the expenditure of large State monies for the program: "This is big money...the money is large. The educational return is small."

Fish Derby And Parade Due Saturday Morning

The Kiwanis Club will hold its 11th annual Fish Derby Saturday at Wedge Pond, rain or shine. Planned to "help more kids discover the joys of fishing," the event has gained in popularity each year.

The parade of young anglers will start at the Town Hall grounds at 9 a.m. and march to the pond, due to arrive at 9:30. The derby starts at 10 and goes until 1 p.m.

All young people are urged to join, but Kiwanis rules ask that registrations, available at the Winchester Sports Shop, be signed by a parent or guardian and returned to the Sports Shop. In addition, a parent or guardian must accompany each entrant, excepting that one parent will do for a family.

Only worms may be used as bait—each entrant is to bring his own supply. "Don't forget to bring a pole to hook the worm and fish onto," reminds Kiwanis.

Entrants will take all fish "small enough to carry" to the judges' tables beside the pond as soon as caught. Prize day is later, to be announced, after a Little League Dodgers (Kiwanis-sponsored) game.

Sidewalk Art Show-Sale Ready For This Saturday

Artists and craftsmen and women have readied their works for the Winchester Art Association annual Sidewalk Art Show and Sale coming Saturday on Manchester Field, from 9 to 5 p.m. Amateur and professional works by local artists and those from other communities have been invited.

The Association expects one of the biggest displays ever, and announces that in case of inclement weather the show will be held June 22.

Three special events will highlight the day. A competition for children's paintings will be judged at 1 p.m. for the best entry from young people 13 years and younger. Ribbons and prizes will be awarded.

At 3 two pictures donated by local artists for which chances have been sold here during the past several weeks will be raffled. Proceeds of this go to the Cultural Center Fund.

"Winters Down East," an oil painting by George Carpenter of Ogunquit, Maine, and "Early Winters," a watercolor by Joseph Santoro, are the two works which will be awarded.

$1.10 Paid in Area Per $1 Received Of Federal Aid

Just how much is Middlesex County paying for each dollar it receives from Washington in the form of grants-in-aid?

Does the price it pays for these grants, through matching funds and taxes collected from local residents, making them desirable or undesirable financially?

A state-by-state analysis of the grants-in-aid programs, made by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit organization concerned with public taxation and spending, throws some light on the subject.

It shows that in some localities the cost of the assistance exceeds the value of the aid received. In others, the reverse is true.

According to a breakdown of the state figures, which are based upon Treasury Department reports, the cost of Federal aid in Middlesex County was approximately $115,465,000 in the past fiscal year as against an estimated $104,857,000 that was received in grants.

It was equivalent to $1 in government aid for every $1.10 of cost.

The ratio was similar for the State of Massachusetts as a whole. Its payments to Washington, allocated to the Federal aid programs, amounted to $430,000,000 in the year, the Tax Foundation reports. What came back, in grants to the state and its subunits, totalled $390,900,000.

The grants were for such purposes as health, hospital construction, child welfare, education, roads, sewage disposal, public housing and the like.

Of the 50 states, 31 received more money through the grants-in-aid than they contributed in that direction. Of the remaining states, 1 broke even 18 got back less than they contributed.

In explanation, it is pointed out that the allotment of grants to some areas is different than to other areas because of differences in their requirements. There is no attempt to make awards on a dollar for dollar basis.

Nationally, the aid programs have been expanding rapidly. They are expected to involve $20 billion in the next fiscal year as compared with $15 billion last year.

Two special features will be conducted throughout the entire show, a live exhibit of craftmaking and the balloting for the most popular works in the show. The public may designate its favorites in two categories—water colors and oils.

Crafts exhibitors should have made previous arrangements with the chairman of that section, Mrs. Robert Johnson (729-3112) for display space.

Artists may bring their paintings directly to the registration booth any time after 9 a.m. on the day of the show. Pictures should be equipped with loops or hooks for hanging, but need not be framed. A group of hostesses will be on hand to help with the hanging and sales.

Artists may designate which pictures they wish to sell and also the sale price. A small commission will be retained by the Art Association to help support its scholarship program. A nominal hanging fee will entitle exhibitors to hang as many pictures as they choose.

The Association is reserving a special section for the colorful and interesting artistic creations of Winchester school children. Children pay no entry fee, but are limited to one entry per preschool child and three per school-age child. These works should be mounted on firm backing to avoid wind damage.

Further information about the show may be obtained from Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Brown, chairmen of this year's event.

James J. Jameson

James J. Jameson, a practicing physician in Belmont for 30 years and a resident of Winchester for the past 14 years, died in a Boston hospital on Sunday following a brief illness. His home was at 4 Robinson Park.

The son of Larry and Paris (Gregory) Jameson, he was born in Lawrence on March 19, 1908. He attended the Lawrence schools and was graduated from the University of Kansas undergraduate and medical schools. He interned at Park East Hospital and Yonkers General Hospital, both in New York.

Dr. Jameson was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the World Medical Association, the Belmont Lodge A. F. & A. M., the Belmont Royal Arch Chapter, the Aleppo Shrine of Boston, and the Payson Park Congregational Church in Belmont.

His survivors include his wife, Marguerite A. (Kazarian) Jameson; a son, Richard C. of Winchester; a daughter, Cynthia of Winchester; his father of Belmont; a brother, George of Belmont; and two sisters, Mrs. Gerald Takvorian of Lawrence and Mrs. John Masoian of Watertown.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Payson Park Congregational Church. Butial was in Mt. Auburn Cemetery in Cambridge.

Joseph P. Logan, Jr.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning, Friday, at 9 in St. John the Evangelist Church in Winthrop for Air Force First Lieutenant Joseph P. Logan Jr., a former resident, who died last week in military action in Vietnam. He was 24.

The Mass will follow a funeral from the Maurice W. Kirby Funeral Home, 210 Winthrop Street, Winthrop, at 8:15 a.m. Burial will be in Winthrop Cemetery.

Lieutenant Logan had lived here with his family until they moved to Winthrop four years ago. He was graduated from Winchester High School with the class of 1960. During his high school years, he captained the golf team, was a member of the hockey and rifle teams and of the Philosophy and Math Clubs, and worked on the staff of the Red and Black.

Before attending Ohio Wesleyan College, from which he was graduated in 1966 with a degree in math, he studied at Cushing Academy in West Newbury.

He had been in the Air Force since 1966 and in Vietnam a month.

Lieutenant Logan leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Logan Sr. of Winthrop, a brother, Thomas E., and a sister, Cathleen, both of Winthrop.

Grand Jury Gets Assault Case

The case of a 23-year-old Medford man, arrested by Winchester police on May 26 on charges of kidnapping, armed robbery, assault with an attempt to rape, and unnatural acts, has been held over for the Middlesex County grand jury.

The decision was made on May 31 in Woburn District Court, which also ruled that he continue to be held in lieu of $10,000 bail on the four counts.

On May 25 the man allegedly took a Jackson College student from Somerville to a wooded area near Hutchinson Road and sexually assaulted her.

In Memory Of Paul W. Connors

Former Babe Ruth League Manager

Hush the Laughter, stay the song,
the cheer;
Let our thoughts turn for a moment
To the one who is not here.

As we pause and look around us
There are some we seek in vain
Whose souls have passed to great beyond,
They will never come again.

Today to those who are wondering
In memory let us hold;
While their spirits mingle with us always
They are still one of our fold.

We ask our Heavenly Father
To light them on their way,
And trust to His protecting care
The one now passed away.

And while the Mystic Hour is here,
And its chimes around us hover,
We give a kindly thought to our departed member
And to our Heavenly Father, we shall seek
His Blessings always.

Highways Cost Area Drivers About $30 Per Year

Middlesex County's car owners are discovering that Uncle Sam's glamorous 41,000-mile highway system, now under construction, is a more costly undertaking than they expected.

They know, because they are paying for it, along with the rest of the motoring public, through their purchases of gasoline, tires and other items.

During the past year their contribution came to approximately $13,628,000, calculated on the basis of figures from the Bureau of Public Roads The bulk of it was from the 4c that the government received on every gallon of gas.

Not included in the total were the auto-use taxes collected by the state.

The revenue was deposited in the Highway Trust Fund, which pays 90 percent of the cost of construction. The states foot the bill for the other 10 percent.

The annual cost, for the typical Middlesex County driver, who covers 10,000 miles a year and gets 14 miles to the gallon, is about $30, according to the government findings. For those who travel more or less than this average, the contributions are proportionately larger or smaller.

Transportation Secretary Alan Boyd reports that the cost of the interstate highway system has climbed nearly 20 percent, or about $9 billion, above the 1965 estimate. It is $15.5 billion greater than the 1961 figure.

In part, the soaring costs are attributed to improved safety features that are being introduced in the construction.

Back in 1956, when the project was started, it was believed that the work could be done for $673,000 per mile. Today, the cost is nearly double that amount.

As a result, points out Lowell K. Bridwell, Federal highway administrator, the trust fund, which is on a pay-as-you-go basis, is not receiving enough revenue to maintain its schedule.

Consequently, it now appears that completion cannot be before 1975, instead of 1972.

With seven more years to go, Middlesex County car owners can expect to pay at least $95,395,000 more into the fund, based upon the number of cars now in operation locally.

Heart Association To Investigate Transplantations

An investigation will be launched by the American Heart Association into the scientific, legal, and ethical problems resulting from human heart transplantation.

The study — to develop detailed guidelines for the medical profession and the public — was proposed by the newly created A.H.A. Committee on Ethics, composed of experts in medicine, law, religion, education and communications.

Approval of the Ethics Committee's study recommendation was announced by Dr. Lewis E. January, chairman of the Association's committee for medical and community program. Dr. January will be the main speaker at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Heart Association on June 5 at Ipswich.

Areas to be investigated with the assistance of the appropriate scientific councils and committees of the AHA will include:

1. Establishment of criteria for death and the rights of the heart donor.
2. Formulation of criteria for selection of a heart recipient.
3. Development of technical guidelines for institutions and surgical teams planning heart transplantation.
4. Identification of potential donors and the establishment of organ registries.
5. Development of appropriate legal safeguards to protect the donor, recipient and physician; and determination as to whether legislegislation is required and, if so, ltion is required and, if so, whether whether state or federal legislation would be more appropriate.
6. Analysis of development and treatment costs of artificial heart as well as heart transplant programs and recommendations for future national financial commitments.
7. Guidelines for continuous education of the public in interpreting the limitations as well as the potential of heart transplantations.

Miss Casagrande Earns Degree

Miss Imogen Remate Casagrande, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Casagrande of 24 Arlington Street, received her bachelor of arts degree from Temple Buell College, Denver, Colorado, on Sunday, May 19, at commencement exercises held in the George William Lindsay Amphitheater. Her major was art.

Miss Casagrande's class is the first to graduate from the College under its new name. Founded in 1888 as Colorado Woman's College, it was renamed in 1967 to honor Denver architect, Temple Hoyne Buell, the donor of a large endowment to the College.

DANIEL JOSEPH O'CONNELL III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. O'Connell Jr. of 20 Ridgefield Road, was graduated from College of Holy Cross in Worcester in ceremonies on May 29. During his college years, he participated in YMCA tutoring, the Big Brother program, and the class council and played with the varsity hockey team as a defenseman. He has joined the Army Reserves and soon will begin six months of active duty.

Janet Herrmann Receives Degree

Janet Ruth Herrmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Herrmann of 20 Wildwood Street, was graduated from Connecticut College in ceremonies on Sunday morning, June 2. A graduate of Winchester High School, she received an A.B. in history.

Edwin O. Reischauer, U.S. Ambassador from 1961 to 1966, delivered the commencement exer-address.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

A conversation with a Woburn businessman reminded me of a subject I've meant to mention. "John," he said, "I feel sick, and probably look like I do. The manager of one of my offices was caught embezzling. It looks like he pocketed about $17,000 in cash, extending over a two-year period. Naturally, the bonding company has taken over. I had adequate bond protection."

The Woburn businessman is one of the lucky ones from an insurance view. Less than 25% of the companies victimized by employee dishonesty are covered by fidelity bonds. Yet, according to a noted management consultant, "There is better than a 50% chance of sizable dishonesty right now in any major business."

Employees, for example, STEAL more than $5 million per day in cash and merchandise from U. S. business. Bank embezzlements are up nearly 60% over two years ago, and the same trend persists in other industries.

If you own a business, we would like to acquaint you with the various forms of fidelity bond coverage. Please phone for an appointment.

Editorials:

A Booster

One of the elder statesmen of Winchester churchmen who attended the School Committee hearing on METCO Monday night reported himself terribly depressed on Tuesday. He found it hard to see why many other pro-METCO persons were by contrast very encouraged. He had not attended the comparable hearing of a year ago.

An orderly McCall auditorium-full attended the Monday meeting. There were several students and teachers. There was some hissing—by pro-METCO people this time. But by and large each side listened to the other and this year the Committee was at least able to listen. By contrast the May hearing in 1967 was wholly emotionally charged, was unruly, raw. Quiet and orderly by nature himself, former Chairman Richard Schroeder had all he could do to handle it and at one point had to remind that he had the authority to have persons removed. They yelled. They booed. There was much ugliness. Anger was shouted with a strong "Winchester First" main theme coming through over a counterpoint of bad manners.

Although this year Mr. Schroeder was the one to say that in the overall background for METCO he saw that things had changed very little, we disagree. The tremendous turn-out last week for the race-riot WCCA meeting is one indication. The large number who marched in tribute to the late Martin Luther King was another. The fact that only five or six made presentations against the program Monday night and 15 to 16 made them for is very different. Last year there was a wide spectrum of anti feeling, expressed by many. The METCO proponents were fewer and hardy. Monday the spectrum on the pro side was wider and that on the anti side distilled to hard core. And whereas last year antagonists seemed outraged that their own interests might be jeopardized for a larger concern, this year, with but one exception, arguments from the floor each contained a positive plan to help.

There is very little chance that any young Roxbury children will be entering the Winchester schools this fall. The Town is too late in applying for either State or Federal money. The chance would depend on another applying town voting to waive tuition for METCO students thereby releasing funds, on the State voting supplementary funds for the program, or on some unseen monetary windfall coming to the effort.

We contend that whether Roxbury elementary school children come or not, Winchester has gained. It seems to be responding to the therapy of action and time. It is now moving in the right direction.

A Herblock cartoon in the Boston Globe this week had two black runners heading for the tape with "violence" close on the heels of "progress." In Winchester Monday progress was given a booster.

Youth At Bat

Lawyers are accustomed to protocol, to carefully structured controls for their discourse, for conducting things according to the rules of the establishment. Lawyer Arthur A. Galvin up front Monday night didn't know what he was opening up when he said, "These students should be home where they belong studying for their exams!" He thought he pitched a fast curve. Some thought it to be a low ball. Clearly he didn't know how the kids these days can hit.

Mr. Galvin had come to the McCall auditorium to speak out against METCO. WHS Student Council president, Kevin Lynch, president-elect Jim Mellen and sophomore class president, Andrew Marcous, had come down to support METCO, along with a substantial number of other young people.

Mr. Lynch took after him first, demonstrating the potential to be a good politician or lawyer in that he had no speech prepared—he just went after those points already presented. "I'll be home studying till three or four in the morning maybe, but I consider this important enough to make a sacrifice for." He also dissected a few of Arthur Hewis' arguments, making a strong pitch for what Winchester could give to the Negro and the need to show how we feel about helping.

"What is the world going to be like?" asked Mr. Mellen with eloquence, pointing out to those present that a good percentage of them soon wouldn't be around to care. "Will we (meaning those of his generation) have to be living in a black and white America? This question has been overlooked. "As we quibble the lack of understanding between blacks and whites is growing."

"We're the ones who are going to school, not Mr. Galvin," punched out Mr. Marcous, and had to be reminded by the chairman that personalities were to be avoided in his presentation. The School Committee had heard a fluent presentation from this young man the prior week on the subject of WHS smoking areas and wasn't too surprised to hear him give some facts of the major youth argument—that very soon half the population would be under 21 and that he felt it undemocratic of his elders not to want to listen to his generation.

Why shouldn't the young have their bat—according to the rules of the umpires? They are going to be in the game for all its extra innings.

Eureka!

The Selectmen were near jubilant Monday night to be able to announce that after more than a year's search they have found a good candidate for the Town's new position of executive secretary. They liked their choice and they were glad that he accepted them.

Edward Donnelly, assistant manager of Medford brings a strong background of experience to his untried job. That it has been in a city of the town-oriented quality of Medford should help him get the feel of Winchester. That it has been a city with multiple problems to be dealt with should be a strong point for action. He has a tough job ahead of him ("We're worried that he'll be inundated with work the day he starts," said Chairman Charles Doucette). We wish him well.

Editorial Comments

Two young, Winchester-bred men will be ordained as Jesuit priests by Richard Cardinal Cushing in Chestnut Hill on Saturday. Both are graduates of St. Mary's grammar school, one of the High School here the other of B. C. High and both will give their first public Masses in St. Mary's Church. Each man already boasts an impressive history of studies completed and teaching accomplished. Fr. Herbert Cleary was in business before starting toward the priesthood at one of the new delayed-vocations schools. Father Thomas E. Morrissey has been headed into the priesthood from the start of his educational career. In addition, this week the Reverend Gregg D. Wood, a native and also graduate of the schools here is being ordained into the Episcopal Ministry. A former National Unitarian lay youth leader, he is a curate of at All Saints' Church in Attleboro. The Town can be proud of all three.

In reporting the WCCA meeting last week the Star erred in attributing a harsh criticism of the school's social studies' curriculum to former School Committeeman Charles (Joe) Harris when it had been made by Mrs. John Harris instead. It regrets the error and appreciates the courteous manner in which Mr. (Joe) Harris brought it to mind. To quote his note, "I did indeed call for a reexamination of the curriculum as it relates to Negro Americans in urban settings and for greater attention to Afro-American history, but I did not say I 'was appalled at the curriculum on Africa here. Its whole attitude is wrong. It is very much directed toward exotic customs. There ise a bad situation here.' That statement was made by Mrs. John Harris. . ."

A false fire alarm coming moments before a call for help at an actual fire in the early morning on Sunday emphasized the potential of great harm in false alarms. As engines 3 and 4, the ladder, rescue wagon, and chief's car headed to Baldwin Street in response to a female caller reporting a fire there, a call came from a home on Sargent Road, where a broken bedroom lamp had set fire to a mattress. Engine 1, left at the station, responded to the second call immediately, but the other equipment had to go all the way to Baldwin Street, where they discovered the alarm there to be false, before they could start across town to aid on Sargent Road. In this case the firefighters were quickly able to extinguish the flames, but the incident sharply reminds how easily a false alarm can grow from an annoyance to a danger.

At School Committee Hearing — The Citizens Have Their Say

Kerner Report to back his argument that family background of persons in ghettos must be changed if education is to be meaningful; and he asked all there to join him to go to the Legislature and get State education standardized across the State.

Henry Gerould noting his great respect for Mr. Hewis' knowledge of the facts, said, however, he was there again in favor of METCO and would like to see 25 students requested.

Vincent Galvin, as had Mr. Hewis before him, objected that anyone against METCO be called a bigot. In speaking against it, he said, he was "reaching for equality," not to assuage his conscience. "I want to open up this town. . .don't make them feel at home, make them be at home," and welcome to live here. He charged that doctors at the Hospital (he spoke of the "previous speaker") wouldn't treat his nephew when he was in need there because he didn't have a Winchester physician and queried, "How would they treat a little colored person who fell down?" He felt the students present should be home studying.

WHS student leader, Kevin Lynch rose quickly to say that he and the 600 who had signed the school's petition felt the issue important enough to study late to make up for the time. To Mr. Hewis he pointed out that many other factors besides background contribute to the gain of a Negro in the suburbs and that though just a token step the METCO move was needed to show we want to share opportunity.

An unidentified speaker rose to say he felt it "not relevant to argue ideals and that the question now is what can the Committee do right now." He emphasized the "very real" qualities which the students would bring to Winchester.

Another rose to point to one METCO mother she knew sending one child to Natick and one to Brookline — "a staggering thing to do" but all she is concerned about is what can be done right now "for my child." A second quoted, "even as you do unto the least of these, you do it unto Me," and then telling of a Winchester teacher who hadn't wanted to join a crayon collection for the American Indians because it didn't answer the whole problem, drew audience laughter.

A Tufts teacher, "speaking for 21 out of 22" asked strongly for the program to add the educational value of knowing those of differing backgrounds better. John Harris rose to say that he felt most of the gains "would accrue to us." He felt, however, that the system of charging should be closer scrutinized so as not to charge METCO more that the real expenses of filling otherwise empty spaces on the one hand and on the other not profiting by a large, theoretical charge.

John Dolan answering for the Committee assured Mr. Harris there was no profit motive involved and went on to highlight his own forceful backing for METCO. Pointing to how many had been drawn there that night due to the magnitude of the problem, he said, " it doesn't do any good to bury it, or walk away from it," and then went on officially to amend the motion to ask for 25 children.

Mrs. Mary Mears, who voted against METCO again this week but has yet to make a public statement of reasons for the vote, next interjected three questions to her Co-committee members: 1) has the Committee and administration considered asking the Boston School Committee to discuss with it how Winchester can be helpful? 2) Has any other plan been considered? And 3) have we met with other Negro leaders to discuss what they want and need "rather than our telling them?"

Mr. Beckley defined his position in asking for 15 originally as compromise made somewhat due to the situation last year. He reiterated the strengths of the program and said that 200 families taking part and only two students dropping out is an answer in itself to the Roxbury attitude on the program.

Dr. Joel Alpert asked the group to go for the largest number possible within a safe projection margin and WHS leader Jim Mellen chided the group for not looking ahead to what the world is going to be like should a black and white America develop, and asked it stop quibbling.

The amendment was then passed with Mrs. Mears and Richard Schroeder voting no, all others yes.

Mr. Dolan, "in answer to questions Mrs. Mears has chosen to put (earlier) only just tonight," said the answer to all three was "no."

Frederick Rozelle asked for METCO; student Andrew Marcous asked the group listen more democratically to the younger point of view on the subject.

Then Robert Jasse, a State-wide leader in opposition to any Metropolitan area school concept, rose to say after asking help for the ghettos in other ways, he felt that METCO clearly was committed to this concept. He was answered by Mrs. Walsh that the Committee was not in favor of such a school association. She was seconded by Charles Harris, METCO board member speaking from the floor, to say that action contemplated would not be endorsement of a Metropolitan school.

Gunnar Brink, noting "apparently the thing to do is to get on the METCO bandwagon," said he'd still like to speak against it on the grounds of his belief in neighborhood school systems everywhere.

A Mrs. White spoke for METCO and was followed by Mrs. Marilyn Preston who read a strong anti statement which is printed in today's Star in letter form.

Committeeman Schroeder presented his case against the program next. He said first he felt there was not enough change here to merit reconsideration and then stating he felt the tuition charges do not represent the total cost of a child, if capital expenditures are taken into consideration. He thinks the amount the State spends (also our money) on the program is very large and that "if you would take this half million or so a year and put it into a lasting situation" it would be better.

Mrs. Mears asked what legal implication for the Town would be involved in participation and Mr. Dolan answered the same as for any other child.

Mrs. Harriet Dieterich reviewed her support on the grounds of the program being a gesture, though token, and the values to local children in growing up to know an integrated world. Mrs. Walsh tied things up emphasizing her full belief in the program despite her awareness of its being just a start.

The Committee voted the main motion with Mrs. Mears and Mr. Schroeder again dissenting.

ILLUSTRIOUS IMMIGRANTS:

The Intellectual Migration from Europe, 1930-41

by Laura Fermi

There is all kinds of evidence of the tremendous impact that was made by the arrival of the refugees from Europe in the thirties and early forties. Driven from their countries by forces of intolerance and oppression in unprecedented numbers they found asylum in the United States and certainly enriched our artistic, scientific, scholarly, and literary life.

Mrs. Fermi, the wife of Enrico Fermi, Nobel Prize physicist, is well equipped to chronicle the migration of that time. Both she and her husband chose to leave Italy rather than live under fascism. She gives us an outstanding view of the immigrants and their worth to the United States, as well as showing America in its best light by accepting thousands of refugees in time of depression when unemployment was high and morale low.

It was particularly remarkable that these immigrants were assimilated into our culture so readily, seeking American citizenship early in their new lives and learning the English language rapidly. Mostly grateful for the freedom of opportunity and the friendliness of the American people.

A glance at the portraits Mrs. Fermi includes gives us an idea of the prestige they gave to America. Arturo Toscanini chose to live in America somewhat reluctantly at first, but could not tolerate fascism in his native Italy; in refusing to play the fascist anthem he was under constant duress. Paul Tillich and Thomas Mann came as a consequence of their political and ethical views. From Hungary, Germany and France prominent Jews of course were forced to flee, such as Erich Leinsdorf, Arnold Shoenburg, Max Reinhardt, Rudolph Flesch and others in the arts.

Mrs. Fermi cites two cases where the United States showed its farsightedness at that time by recruiting scholars from European universities. The Institute for Advanced Study under Abraham Flexner's direction offered Albert Einstein a position before he lost his place in Germany soon after Hitler came to power. Einstein did not add a great deal directly to American science but he "became a symbol of persecuted European genius and is a measure of the stature of the cultural migration." Alvin Johnson founded the New School for Social Research and staffed it with many Europeans.

One of the moving incidents in the story is the function of the Emergency Rescue Committee, led by Varian Fry and Alvin Johnson and their daringness to aid the refugees at any cost. Some of those saved by being smuggled out of France were Marc Chagall, Max Ernst, Jacques Lipchitz, Heinrich Mann, and Franz Werfel. Eleanor Roosevelt did a good deal from this end to prod the State Department in issuing visitors visas to those who had been in danger of persecution and supported the principles of a liberal government.

A fair share of Mrs. Fermi's study discusses the role of the scientists from Europe who brought with them the theoretical knowledge and added to our practical know-how using the scientific instruments here that far surpassed those in Europe. The great degree of collaboration between native and foreign-born scientists, in particular "the cross-fertilization of ideas from different cultures, and the mixing of backgrounds in such a rich, stimulating climate" contributed gigantic progress in all fields, particularly in mathematics and physics.

The scientists, Edward Teller, Eugene Wigner, Enrico Fermi, John Von Neumann were predominant in the making of the atomic bomb. They knew that fission had been discovered in Germany and could visualize Hitler with the bomb. More alarmed than American scientists, they urgently presented their views to officials in the government. The rest of the story is history.

Surprised To Discover So Much Is Wrong Here

Editor of the Star:

I have always believed that this town in which I was born and raised is one of the most desirable towns in the Boston area and have assumed that, judging by the influx of new residents in recent years, a great number of other people feel the same way. Therefore, it rather surprises me to discover that there are so many things wrong with our town, many of which have been brought to our attention by comparatively new residents. Under the circumstances, may I ask why they chose Winchester?

If it is so terribly important to some of our residents to have friends and classmates for children of all backgrounds, as one gentleman stated in last week's Winchester Star, why doesn't he move to an area of Winchester which would offer more diversity, or to Cambridge, or even Roxbury? It seems to me that those who care so much and want to be actively involved could offer a great deal by moving to areas like Roxbury. In fact, it staggers the imagination to think of the changes that could be wrought in the upgrading of schools and housing simply by the presence of middle and upper-middleclass whites in ghetto areas.

It seems to me that if we're really serious about integration, whites of various socio-economic classes will have to be willing to move into ghetto areas as well as Negroes moving into the suburbs. If whites don't move into ghetto areas, how will they ever be anything but ghettos? However, I doubt that the number of whites who love their Negro brothers enough to become this actively involved is sufficient for the implementation of this meaningful exchange so we must turn to alternatives like METCO, which even Negro leaders will admit doesn't solve anything.

In this instance the majority of our School Committee reminds us of the average teenager who wants to do something very badly and uses the time worn statement, "Everybody's doing it!" Because everybody's doing it doesn't mean it's the right thing for my child; because so many towns are doing it doesn't mean METCO is the right thing for Winchester

However, I believe that there is a fairly simple solution which should please both sides in this controversy. If each member of the Winchester Council for Community Action and non-members of like persuasion would agree to voluntarily bus their children to Boston to be educated, their children's seats in our classrooms could in turn be filled by METCO students. Classes would not be any more crowded than they are now and those parents who want their children to have the benefit of association with children of varied background (despite the fact that they have chosen to live in a so-called white suburb) would have their desires fulfilled.

I don't believe that the Boston School Committee would turn down an opportunity to upgrade their classrooms with middle to upper-middle class white children and there should be no tuition involved since we would simply be exchanging pupils. METCO would pay for busing of their children and the more affluent whites could pay for the busing of their own children.

It seems to me that this arrangement should be agreeable to both advocates and opponents of METCO. Those parents who want to be involved would be even more involved than under the METCO plan and those who have been concerned about our lack of space would be reassured that for the present the situation is under control

I presented this plan at the School Committee Meeting Monday evening and was truly surprised at the lack of comment. There was much discussion about the magnanimous gesture of raising our commitment from 15 to 25 METCO students but no discussion about the possibility of accommodating many more than that through my proposal of exchanging students. From this, I can only assume that our commitment is to tokenism rather than whole-hearted participation.

My proposal also calls for the active involvement which so many have been crying for rather than just a verbal and monetary involvement. Where are the takers? They certainly were not at the meeting Monday night.

Wake up Winchester! Integration can not and should not be a one way street!

Merit Diminished

Editor of the Star:

Here we go again and it seems we learned nothing at all from last year's lesson!

Mr. Knight's letter in last week's Star telling us of his great abundance of tolerance was conspicuously intolerant of people who hold views at variance with his.

If METCO is a meritorious plan, it will prevail if its merit is articulately, unemotionally, intelligently presented.

Commendations should be extended to Mr. Harris whose letter seemed to do just that.

When we begin name-calling and threaten to leave and tell everybody if you fail to do what we want, we sound remarkably like spoiled children not able to have our own way. Our opinions are consequently ignored or their weight and merit diminished. In short, this is no way to win your point or persuade anyone to your way of thinking.

If METCO does not come to Winchester, perhaps Mr. Knight could try a more reasonable alternate solution other than moving. He could do as I do and send my children to a private integrated school.

Sincerely,
Margaret Galvin
Calumet Road

P.S.—I am somewhat curious as to why Mr. Knight's letter was published since it was obviously written after Monday night's meeting and received after the Monday 5 p.m. deadline. Is editorial tolerance also extended only to those in agreement with editorial policy?

(Ed. Note: Mrs. Galvin's query is valid and the Star is glad the question has been asked in print as it gives the opportunity for an answer in print to a question asked orally quite a few times this week. Indeed the letter page does state a Monday at 5 p.m. deadline. And indeed the Star has always, however, as persons active in Town Meeting affairs will attest, made exceptions when possible and especially when asked by writers with a letter angled at a second public meeting or event which would have gone by if the letter were held. In this instance each of the letter writers called to inquire and were told they could submit letters but there was no promise of use. The letters were sent from the editorial office up to the machines marked "Late. Not necessary to publish and if printed must make room for any anti-METCO letter received." Since the Star agrees with Mrs. Galvin that the effect of Mr. Knight's letter was against his cause, editorially speaking it would have much preferred not to print the letter.)

Mr. Ryerson Speaks Out

Editor of the Star:

Wow! The May 30 issue of the Star is a classic. A visitor to the Town upon reading the paper would undoubtedly believe the populace are graduates of Danvers or Worcester.

Mr. Joseph A. Knight Jr. threatens to move unless everyone bows to his convictions and decries all bigots who dare express their own beliefs. The WCCA is looking for donations to buy homes for the black while turning its back on the rest of the poor. Speakers at the Epiphany Church demand we face up to racism and assist our Police Dept. "in the area of race disturbance control," I didn't even know that we were having race disturbances. The School Committee is worried over the plight of Boston students and its new Supt. is making this his first problem to solve, how about spending a little time on our own kids. Crowds are gathering at the Town Hall to oppose a car wash. May I ask if the Donut-Fried Chicken Shop going up a few yards away will not cause any congestion?

But alas, buried under demanding editorials someone remembered what day it was. Mr. Anderson's Memorial Day prayer is refreshing, it's great to know there's at least one realist in Town.

Sincerely,
William T. Ryerson
10 Ardley Road

Thank You All!

Editor of the Star:

This is belated because I was waiting for the final figures to show whether we "sank or swum" in the 1968 En Ka Fair. If those fascinating antique automobiles in our parade had been equipped with pontoons, we could have used them on Saturday night. We swam beautifully!

The En Ka Fair could not be a success without the countless hours spent by so many of our wonderful and cooperative townspeople Would you believe 1800 workers?

My personal thanks to so many—the Auxiliary Police, the Auxiliary Firemen, the high school boys who helped set up, the Park Department, Police Chief Derro, Fire Chief Amico—the list is endless. Our many thanks to the Star for its generous coverage.

Our monetary profit will be reflected in the many acts of kindness and goodwill that En Ka promotes.

Thank you all,
Mrs. David F. Choate Jr.
Chairman of 1968 En Ka Fair

A Thank You For METCO Vote

Editor of the Star:

I want to thank publicly the School Committee for voting for me for METCO.

I cannot speak for the church. I cannot speak for any church. I cannot speak as a parent.

I speak as a human being. I am proud of my town and what it has to offer. Someone has knocked at my door seeking hospitality. I am happy that I have been chosen. I am thankful that I am to be enriched by my guests. I pray that I will be a worthy host. I will try.

Fair Housing Asks More Action

Unless positive steps are made to make contact with black people, Winchester whites will be cutting themselves off, to their own disadvantage.

Segregated living is bad for the community and deprives its children and the current youth revolts reflect a questioning of parents' sincerity and concern.

These were the opinions of Mrs. Sadelle Sacks, director of Fair Housing Inc., Boston, who appeared in the panel discussion "Housing in Winchester — A Human Appraisal" at the annual meeting of the Winchester Fair Housing Association on May 28.

"If there were more concern in this town, there would be one thousand people here this evening," was the view of another panelist, Mrs. Ann Danley, housing chairman of the Winchester group, as she looked over the half filled seats at Hadley Hall.

Allan G. Rogers, president of WFHA, questioned the panel, which also included Richard H. Murphy, Winchester realtor. He wanted to know the reputation of Winchester as a community, what image its residents see for the town and what kinds of housing exists here.

Winchester's image as a town where minority groups can settle and be welcomed has improved over the years but there is much more to be done, it was the panel's conclusion. To Boston-based Mrs. Sacks, Winchester is known only to the Negro community as a town that is assisting St. Mark's Nursery and also as a town that was refused by METCO in 1967. Little else is known about Winchester and Negro families don't even consider it as a housing choice.

Mr. Murphy, a life-long resident, has seen many changes in attitudes toward minority groups since the thirties, but still feels that courage is required for many to move here. Mrs. Danley, in her housing experiences with WFHA, has found that Negro home-seekers turn down Winchester flatly because of its METCO reputation. Taking issue with Mr. Murphy, she declared it should not take "guts" for a Negro family to move here, but that Winchester must be made a town where any family can live without fear.

Mr. Murphy replied to the question of types of homes available that most were over $20,000 and prices for new homes are far above that figure. There is little being offered for low-income families or retired persons, he said. To this Mrs. Sacks replied that there is a growing middle-class in Roxbury looking for towns with good schools and decent town services. They can afford houses in the $25,000 range but they go where they already have contacts.

Many prefer to remain in Roxbury than face the subtle discrimination which exists in the suburbs and is often difficult to prove when cases are submitted to the Massachusetts Committee Against Discrimination. Mrs. Sacks also outlined the home ownership loan plan being operated by Fair Housing Inc. for large families in Roxbury. But the pressure for housing in Boston is tremendous, she emphasized, and regardless of new governmental programs, the city can't realistically meet all of its housing needs. Open housing in the suburbs is absolutely essential.

Mrs. Danley chided the friends and neighbors who appeal to home sellers to discriminate.

Voicing the hope of all at the meeting, Mr. Murphy expressed the desire that this not turn into another one of those meetings where everyone talks about the future. Action is imperative, he affirmed.

Action, as declared at the meeting, can be taken in many ways now, to reconsider METCO, as was also expressed at the recent WCCA meeting; to pledge support for the housing mortgage plan presented by Dr. Peter Neurath; to make views known to the Planning Board regarding housing needed for low-income and retirement needs; to talk to the School Committee about employment of Negro teachers in Winchester.

Officers for the next year were announced as follows:

President, Wallace McDonald; vice-president, William H. Wells; treasurer, Edward S. Rendall; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James McIntosh; recording secretary, Mrs. David W. Allen; publicity, Mrs. Daniel Hritzay; membership, Charles D. Chipman and housing, Mrs. Robert Danley.

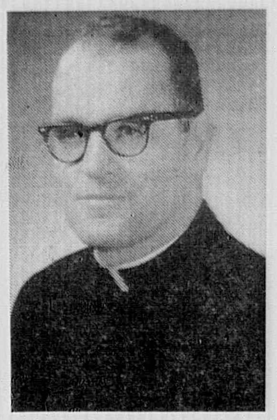
Rev. H. J. Cleary To Be Ordained On Sunday

Rev. Herbert J. Cleary, S.J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Cleary Sr. of 196 Washington Street, will be ordained to the priesthood in the Society of Jesus by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, on Saturday, June 8th, at St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill.



REV. HERBERT J. CLEARY

He will offer his first public Mass on Saturday, June 15th, at 12 noon, St. Mary's Church, 155 Washington Street, in Winchester. It will be a concelebrated Mass and the priests who will be concelebrating with Fr. Cleary are his brother, Rev. Richard T. Cleary, S.J., assistant director of Province Ministries for the New England Province of the Jesuits, Rev. Francis E. Walsh, curate at St. Mary's Church, Willimansett, Rev. John B. Handrahan, S.J., head of the physics department at Cheverus High School, Portland, Maine, and Rev. James A. Dempsey, S.J., head of the theology department at the same high school, who will also preach the sermon.

Fr. Cleary will bestow his first priestly blessing at a buffet reception between 1 and 4 p.m. in St. Mary's Parish Hall.

After attending St. Mary's Grammar School in Winchester, Fr. Cleary attended Winchester High School, graduating in 1948. He then studied at the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, now Bentley College, where he was graduated in 1950. Following graduation, he worked for a year as an accountant for the Boston firm of Stewart, Watts, and Bollong.

From 1951 to 1955, Fr. Cleary served as an enlisted man in the United States Navy, serving on the U.S.S. Waldron (DD-699), traveling to over 20 countries, and being discharged with the rating of disbursing clerk 2nd class.

Delayed Vocations School

He then prepared for entrance into the seminary by studying for a year at the St. Philip Neri School for Delayed Vocations, Boston. Following studies there, he entered the Jesuit Novitiate at Bellarmine College, Plattsburgh, New York in August, 1956, where, after completing his two years of noviceship, he began his studies in the liberal arts, moving to Shadowbrook in Lenox. For the next three years, Fr. Cleary continued his studies at Weston College, a division of Boston College, where he received his A.B. degree in 1962, and his M.A. in philosophy in 1963.

For the next two years he was a member of the faculty of Cheverus High School in Portland, Maine, teaching English, speech, and business law. He was the moderator of intramural athletics, coach of freshman cross-country and track, and business manager of the dramatic society.

He returned to Weston College in 1965 to complete his theological studies. Taking part in a pilot program of cross-registration with non-Catholic seminaries in the Boston area, Fr. Cleary took some of his courses at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge. His summers were spent teaching in an anti-poverty program run by the theological students of Weston College. He taught English to junior high school boys from Roxbury, Dorchester, and South Boston. This summer program was followed up by Saturday morning tutoring sessions during the school year. Next year, Fr. Cleary will return to teaching in one of the Jesuit high schools, while studying summers for his masters degree in English.

Fr. Cleary has one brother, Richard, who is also a Jesuit Priest, having been ordained in 1966. He is currently working on the coordination and structuring of the apostolic works of the New England Province of the Society of Jesus. Fr. Cleary's father, Herbert J. Cleary Sr, retired in January, 1967, after 20 years association with the Gillette Company in South Boston as a machinist. He is well-known in Winchester as past president of St. Mary's Holy Name Society. His mother, Mrs. Teresa I. Cleary, recently retired after 25 years service at the Raytheon Company in Waltham.

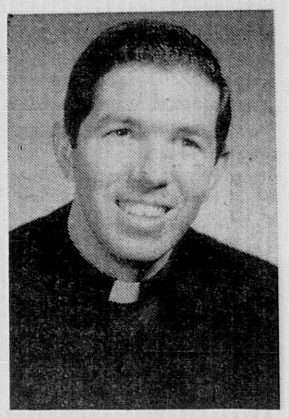
Ordination And First Mass For Fr. Morrissey

Reverend Thomas E. Morrissey, S.J., son of Mrs. Marie Baynor of 9 Ware Street, Dorchester and nephew of Philip S. Savage of 61 Harvard Street, will be ordained to the priesthood in the Society of Jesus by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, on Saturday, June 8th, at St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill.

He will offer his first Mass on Sunday, at St. Mary's Church, at 4 p.m. It will be a concelebrated Mass and the priests concelebrating with Fr. Morrissey are: Rev. John Barry, a curate at St. John's Parish in Peabody, Rev. John Farrell, a member of the faculty at Cardinal O'Connell Seminary in Jamaica Plain, and Rev. Avery Dulles, S.J., son of the late secretary of state, and himself now a professor of theology at Woodstock College in Woodstock, Maryland. Fr. Dulles will also preach the homily at the Mass. Fr. Morrissey will bestow his first priestly blessing in the Parish Hall from immediately after the Mass until 7 p.m.



REV. THOMAS E. MORRISSEY

Fr. Morrissey was graduated from St. Mary's Grammar School and Boston College High School in 1954. Then enrolled at Boston College and completed his freshman year there in 1954-55. In July, 1955, he entered the Jesuit Novitiate at St. Andrew-on-Hudson, Poughkeepsie, New York and then moved to Bellarmine College, Plattsburgh, New York. Fr. Morrissey studied from 1959 to 1962 at Loyola Seminary in Shrub Oak, New York, and received his A.B. in 1961 from Fordham University. From 1962 to 1965 he taught at the Loyola School in New York City and four months at McQuaid Jesuit High School in Rochester, New York. While teaching, Fr. Morrissey received his M.A. in history from Fordham University. At Loyola, he was assistant moderator of athletics and moderator of debating.

Fr. Morrissey came to Woodstock College in Woodstock, Maryland in 1965 to study for the priesthood and to complete the requirements for the B.D. (bachelor of divinity) degree. He has also worked with the Christian Council of Morgan State College in Baltimore in a variety of ecumenical and interdisciplinary programs for both the students and faculty and taught advanced placement American history at Loyola High School, Towson, Maryland. Subsequently, he has taught a course in Western civilization at Loyola Evening Vollege in Baltimore, and at Woodstock College in the department of historical theology, a course in modern church history from the French Revolution to today.

He has lectured to various groups on various topics in historical theology, has done book reviews for different publications and has an article due to come out this Fall in "Records of the American Catholic Historical Society." He is a member of the American Historical Association, the Catholic Historical Association, the Medieval Academy of America and the American Society of Church History.

Fr. Morrissey studied at Columbia University in the summer, 1966, and in the summer, 1967, at the Goethe Institute of Munich, Germany. He will teach this summer at Loyola Seminary, Shrub Oak, New York. In September he will begin studies for a Ph.D. in medieval history at Cornell on a Herbert Lehman Fellowship from the Regents of the State of New York, and a Cornell humanities and social studies Fellowship.

Fr. Morrissey will offer a concelebrated Mass for his former students and other friends from the New York City area on Saturday, June 22nd, at St. Ignatius Church, Park Avenue and 84th Street, New York City, at 4 p.m.

Fr. Morrissey lived here for some 15 years with his uncle, Mr. Savage. Mr. Savage, now retired, worked for many years in the General Post Office in Boston and has also been very active and well known for his work with the Knights of Columbus for many years, especially his association with the Winchester Council No. 210 and its degree team. Fr. Morrissey's mother, formerly of South Boston, now resides in Dorchester, while his brothers and sisters live either there or in other parts of the Greater Boston area.

Fire Chief Amico Makes Suggestions For Paint Safety

"If a paint brush figures in your spring clean-up plans, keep these fire safety pointers in mind," urges Fire Chief I. Francis Amico.

1. "For paint removing and paint cleaning, solvents labelled "non-flammable" are safest. If you must work with flammable ones, better use them outdoors. Indoors be sure windows are open, stoves off, and no smoking in the room.

2. "In storing paint materials, keep them well away from furnaces and also away from exits or under stairways—so you will not be blocked from escaping should these highly combustible materials catch fire.

3. "Get rid of old paint and solvent containers and those with small left over amounts. Store paints and solvents only in capped metal containers—glass jars and bottles break easily, creating a definite fire hazard.

4. "Safest practice with rags used to wipe up paint or solvents is to dispose of them immediately outside the house. If you must store them, use a metal container with a tight cover.

"Another fire safety tip for do-it-yourselfers is this : Any time you use mastics or adhesives—to cement counter-topping or floor tiles, for example—use extreme care. Some mastics are highly flamable, and they may involve you in a serious flash fire.

"Read the labels. Mastics safer to use are marked "Caution! Combustible." If the warning label reads "Danger! Extremely Flammable" or "Warning—Flammable" or "Caution, Inflammable Mixture," avoid the mastic.

"And whenever you work with mastics, be sure you (1) shut off all open flame producing devices in the area—like stoves and pilot lights; (2) don't smoke; (3) open doors and windows in the area."

Toastmistresses Discuss Publicity

At the May 27 meeting of the Toastmistresses the subject was publicity, and Mrs. Aldo J. Pietrantoni of Medford offered several pointers from the publicity handbook and other sources. Mrs. Harold C. Gibson also of Medford gave a talk on the same subject including advertising.

Mrs. James Papadinis of Winchester gave a book review on Hetty Green, and Mrs. George Brenner of Medford brought out the highlights of Mrs Jack Gardner, benefactor of Fenway Court.

Over the weekend Mrs. Alfred J. Quimby, Mrs. Charles Tyner, Mrs. Thomas W. Tucker, and Miss Joan Perry attended a regional conference held in Arlington, Virginia. Mrs. Quimby was elected treasurer of the colonial region which includes eastern Canada and the eastern seaboard of the United States down through Virginia. Miss Perry was named chairman of the budget and finance committee. She and Mrs. Tyner and Mrs. Tucker served as pages at the conference.

Blushing Brides!

Many of our young June brides will be encountering new experiences. Perhaps the most nerve-racking will be the first dinner she prepares for her in-laws.

Of course before mother-in-law is even invited, the young bride will want to make sure she has everything prepared: the right selection of china, everything looking spic and span — everything in its place.

To really set the stage, however, we would like to offer this hint. Why not dazzle that new mother-in-law with foot work—when she steps over the threshhold and on to a beautiful rug, she will be so overwhelmed that everything is bound to impress her from that point on.

We can help that young bride with "decorating from the floor up" — help her select the right rug for each room in her home or apartment and then set the mood for the accessories.

Our experience in selling and cleaning both Oriental and Broadloom carpeting has proved invaluable to many, many young housewives. This advice is free . . . the rugs, you pay for.

Edgells Give Museum Gift

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Edgell of 8 Sheffield West recently gave the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, a gift for the costume design department in memory of Mr. Edgell's mother, the late Mrs. N. Stuart Campbell, who died in January at her home in Greenwich, Connecticut.

The gift was a black silk taffeta evening gown which had belonged to Mrs. Campbell and which she had bought in Paris, giving it to the Edgells in 1952. Bearing the label, "Jeanne Lanvin, Paris, hiver 1928-1929," the gown shows the Spanish influence so popular at that time, with a skirt of two layers of deep flounces, short on one side and dipping to the floor on the other.

The gown will be on a mannequin in a case in the costume design department of the Museum, not far from the green gown of the twenties, belonging to Mrs. Campbell's late sister, Miss Lucy Aldrich, of Providence, Rhode Island. Both were daughters of the late Senator and Mrs. Nelson W. Aldrich, of Providence and Warwick Neck, Rhode Island and Washington, D.C.

Also included are selections from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. Among these is the following: "It should be thoroughly understood that all men have one Mind, one God and Father, one Life, Truth, and Love. Mankind will become perfect in proportion as this fact becomes apparent, war will cease and the true brotherhood of man will be established."

Smyly Buick Has Paint-In

More than 1000 people witnessed the Opel Kadet paint-in and test drive held recently at Smyly Buick in Malden.

Teams of painters representing eight high schools including Winchester competed for awards in the paint-in, which was the first of its kind in New England. The Lynch Junior High School in Winchester was also represented.

In the contest each team of painters was assigned an Opel Kadet car to paint with their own psychedelic design, within a certain time limit. Judging was based on originality, workmanship, and technique. Tied for second place were the teams from Winchester and Saugus. Each member received a $15 award.

All participants were awarded a plaque commemorating the event. Judges were A. Connie Arvanites, well-known Malden artist, Arthur Govoni, president of Winchester Art Association, and Mrs. Leigh Madison, art teacher.

More than 200 drivers took part in the Opel Kadet test drive, held in conjunction with the paint-in.

Driving over an especially prepared half-mile course on the Smyly Buick property, the contestants were judged on maneuverability, gear selection, shifting, braking, reversing, parking, aptitude, and confidence.

Bright buy or bogus bargain?

Let us help you decide.

At Dominick & Dominick, part of our job is trying to help investors separate the real bargains from the seemingly real...on the basis of facts far more pertinent than just yield or price-earnings ratios.

We estimate an equity's growth potential. Weigh a new product's contribution to future earnings. Evaluate acquisitions.

We take a hard look at market trends. Take into account the government's attitude toward mergers, pricing and labor contracts.

We pore over balance sheets and file after file of financial data.

Then our work just begins. The toughest part comes in sifting all this information, digesting it and analyzing it, to make specific recommendations. Only when our senior management has reviewed each and every recommendation, do we release our research reports—with specific "buy" or "sell" notations. Among serious investors, Dominick & Dominick research reports are read from cover to cover and acted on.

Stop in and pick up some interesting reading for yourself, or write:

When it's just one little thing to do after another, you'll be glad cooking is so easy.

It is when you cook with gas.

Because gas gives you instant results. The moment you turn up the knob, the flame goes on. The second you turn down the knob, the flame goes off. No waiting till things warm up. Or cool down.

Any wonder the best cooks in the world insist on cooking with gas? Shouldn't you?

Red Cross Appeals For Blood Donors

A plea to residents of this area planning their vacations to include a blood donation in their preparations was issued today by the American Red Cross.

Pointing out that, "accidents and illness never take a holiday," Dr. Evan C. Stone Jr., area medical director of the Red Cross Blood Program, Eastern Area, said that blood donations invariably dwindle to their lowest point in the summertime, while the need for blood, mainly because of summer highway accidents, frequently increases.

Basing his estimate on the July-August accident rates of other years, Dr. Stone in his Alexandria, Virginia, headquarters said that the motor vehicle fatalities across the United States in the two-month period are expected to be around 9,000, "with disabling injuries, many of them requiring immediate blood transfusions, correspondingly high."

"The solution is for all healthy Americans, age 18 through 60, to donate blood to the Red Cross or their community blood bank before leaving for their vacations," Dr. Stone said. "It will be for their own protection as well as for others."

Dr. Stone stressed, however, that it is essential to the Red Cross to maintain a constant, uniform blood supply throughout the year. Donors are encouraged to make their donations on a regular sheduled basis, so that blood will never be in short supply, he said.

Red Cross regulations permit donors to give a unit of blood every two months, but no more than five times a year.

185 Auto Dealers From France See Smyly Buick

185 automobile dealers from all parts of France were guests of Smyly Buick, 700 Broadway, Malden, this week as part of a tour sponsored by the Automotive Manufacturers Association of France.

The French dealers had selected Smyly Buick as the dealership they most wished to visit in New England. The reputation of the Smyly organization was known to them through the Overseas Division of General Motors. They acknowledged that their choice was influenced by the fact that Smyly Buick is the largest Buick dealership in New England.

The dealers, representing almost all makes of French automobiles, let it be known that they were both impressed and surprised with what they saw. They expressed amazement that it was possible for an auto dealership to have such modern and spacious quarters. They voiced surprise at the up-to-date service equipment and the computer system used at Smyly for accounting and inventory control.

When asked by the surprised visitors how an automobile dealership could grow to such proportions, Mr. Smyly explained that he attributed it to his simple philosophy of doing the very best possible for a customer to assure his return the next time he decides to buy a car.

Prior to their visit, Wil Smyly, president, who lives in Winchester, was the guest speaker at a meeting held for the visiting dealers from overseas at the Sheraton Commodore Hotel in Cambridge. The affair was held under the auspices of Harvard University. The subject of Mr. Smyly's talk was "Modern Automotive Merchandising." As many of the guests spoke no English, Mr. Smyly's speech was translated simultaneously into French.

The group will continue their tour by going on to Detroit where they will visit the various automotive manufacturing facilities and study modern production methods.

Lonborg Baseball, And Then Glove, At National Bank

Winchester ball-fans will be able to get their hands on a Jim Lonborg-autographed baseball almost as soon as Jim gets his on one in official stand at the mound.

As part of the Shawmut Association Banks to which it belongs, the Winchester National Bank is starting a special savings account promotion program which says that during June anyone opening an account with $25 or more, or making a deposit of $25 or more will have a baseball with the autograph of the ace hurler who spent a few weeks here this winter while recovering from his ill-fated ski trip.

The second benefit from the promotion is that a Lonborg glove will be available at a very good buy—a Wilson—his choice for an all-round glove.

William Sullivan, National president who made the announcement, invites all interested fans, young or old, to visit the bank and find out more particulars.

Resumes of Little League Teams: 1

Major Division National Twins

Although the Twins didn't start out the season with a flourish, Manager Al Milley feels that, as the team gets acquainted, they will cause all of the other teams major headaches.

Dave Serapina is one of the best hitters and a stellar outfielder. Joe Salemi is getting his share of hits, too, and playing a smart outfield. Steve Fisher is their number one pitcher, with Bill Lindmark doing duty as a pitcher and catcher. Another valuable two position player is Ron Gonyea who plays a mean shortstop as well as a good fast ball pitcher.

Tom Dattilo holds down first base, can play the outfield and is the scourge of the National League pitchers. A hard man to keep off the base paths. A steady catcher is Tom Carr, and his pick off throws to second baseman Chuck Hayford and Ricky Ellis as well as take a lot of pressure off the pitchers.

The "Hot Corner" is amply handled by Billy Shean. In the outfield positions, the Twins have several boys with sticky gloves in Mark Milley, Dave Dalton, John Sardella, and the hard-to-beat brother combination of Chuck and Steve Duran. Look out National League, here come the Twins with a gelling combination of up-and-coming ball players!

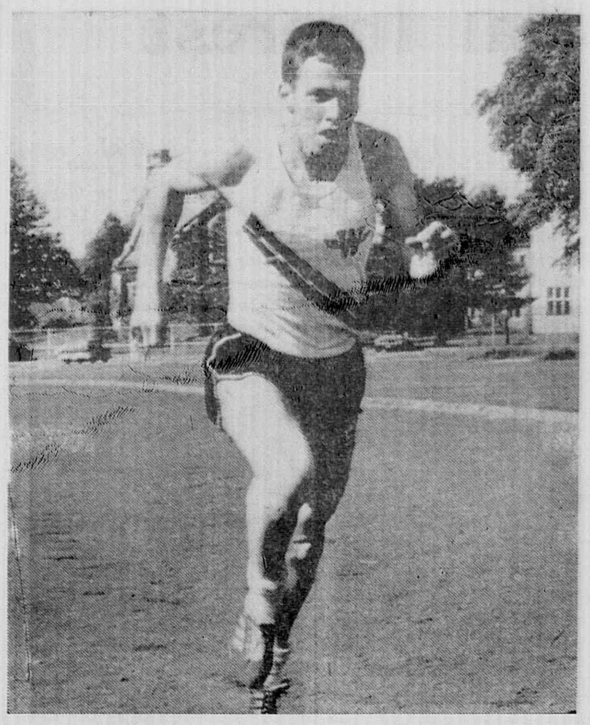
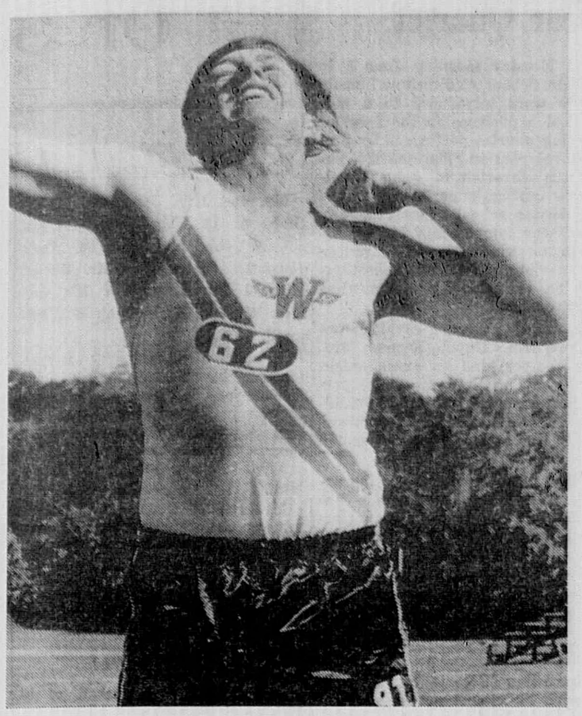
Top Scoring Trackmen Pace Sachems To 6-3 Record



GREG CRONIN, TWO NEW WHS RECORDS



CHRIS HALVERSON, SACHEM STRONGARM

DAVE CARPENTER: UP AND OVER

Cronin Shatters WHS 220; Places Second In State Meet

Senior Greg Cronin, a Winchester High spring track co-captain, set a new school record in the 220-yard dash during the State Class Meet held in White Stadium, Boston, on Memorial Day. Cronin placed first in the Class 'C' division of the meet, with his record-breaking time of 21.6 seconds.

His performance Thursday qualified Cronin for competition in the State Finals held Saturday—again in White Stadium. There, against the fastest interscholastic sprinters in Massachusetts, he placed second to Pittsfield's Paul Metallo, who ran the final heat in 21.7 seconds, .1 second slower than Cronin's record mark, but enough to nip the Sachem speedster on Saturday.

Cronin also holds the WHS record for the 440, which he set on May 3 versus Melrose with a 52.6 clocking. He also has run the fastest 100-yard dash in WHS history (a 10 seconds-flat performance on May 23 against Woburn), but because of a picayune technicality—the fact that he did not place first in the event in which he set the mark—he has been denied offical recognition for the feat.

His 220 run broke a 55-year-old High School record and took from the walls the plaque denoting that former Winchester Star Editor James Penaligan of 16 Maxwell Road had made the run in 22.04 in 1913. His 440 record break was one of only two or three years, dethroning Bill Thoms.

Cronin was the sole Sachem in the State Finals on Saturday, but one other Winchester trackman placed in the Class Meet Thursday. Senior Chris Halverson was a sixth place finisher in the Class 'C' discus throw.

Carpenter Pulls Muscle

Dave Carpenter, the Sachems' other co-captain, pulled a muscle in Thursday's competition and was unable to run in the final heat of the low hurdles. The injury was a tough break for Carpenter, as he was to be seeded in the States on the basis of his second place finish in the 1967 Massachusetts Finals. He was also the State Class 'C' 50-yard dash champion this winter, and the only low hurdles races he lost this spring were those in which he tripped in leaping a hurdle and could not continue.

The girls also heard from Miss Alison Hersey, a graduate of Winchester High School and Mt. Holyoke College, who is currently involved in international sports — mainly field hockey. Miss Hersey spoke to the girls on the values of sportsmanship and the rewards of international, as well as local competition. On the basis of her own experiences she urged all present not to drop their sports, once out of high school, but rather to allow sports to play an increasing part in their lives.

Girls Split Final Games In Tennis

In their final two matches of the season, the Winchester girls' tennis team, coached by Miss Jan Collins picked-up a 3-2 defeat from Newton along with a 5-0 victory from Arlington to complete its record of five wins and two losses.

The Newton meet, which was played last Monday at the Palmer courts, was extremely close and found the Winchester girls down by a single set. In the singles both Margie Sexton and Cindy Alba won their matches. However, Becki Irwin playing a most outstanding match for high school tennis, was defeated by Annie Meachem in three close sets. Both couples in the doubles competition lost to their opponents.

At Arlington the squad won all five of its matches. Seniors Becki Irwin, Margie Sexton, and Cindy Alba captured the singles competition — each in two sets, and both couples in the doubles, Sue White and Sue Kajander; Cindy Marvel and Merily Ober easily defeated their Arlington opponents.

Throughout the season the team played well in all of their meets and lost only two by very close scores.

Hard-Hitting WHS Raquets Go For State Title Friday

Winchester's hard-hitting tennis team goes for the top state title tomorrow and Saturday at the Harvard University courts near the stadium.

Depending on the outcome of yesterday's match with Newton South played in Wayland, the Sachems will go against the number-one or two team from the western part of the state. Newton South and WHS are the two top teams in the Eastern Mass. Tourney.

On Thursday the squad defeated their first three opponents in the E Mass. Invitational Tournament. The team beat Brockton 5-0 Tuesday, rolled over Marblehead 4-1 on Friday, and edged Needham 3-2 Saturday.

As usual, the first three singles players for the Sachems were captain Dick Kadesch, senior Mike Hills, and junior Brad Lindgren. Filling the first doubles slot were juniors Barry Gibson and Bruce Stebbins, while the number two doubles team was composed of senior Steve Pritchard and junior Leo Lauretano.

After breezing by Brockton, the squad yielded one point to Marblehead, as the second doubles duo suffered the defeat. However, it was this same Pritchard-Lauretano team which came through in the clutch versus Needham, and insured the club's victory and a berth in the semi-finals. Before Pritchard and Lauretano combined to win their contest, the score had been 2-all, as both captain Kadesch and the first doubles team were defeated, while Hills and Lindgren succeeded in out-stroking their opponents.

Girls' Softball Team at WHS Ends Season with 2-6 Record

The Winchester girls' softball team coached by Mrs. Karen O'Hare, dropped its final two games earlier last week to complete its season's standing of two wins and six losses.

On Monday the girls competed in their last home game and were handed a 21-3 defeat by Newton. Led by the pitching strength of Pat McMillen, the Newton girls held Winchester to five scoreless innings and allowed only five of the Sachem batters to reach scoring position. Most of the Winchester batters were held-off by a series of infield plays to first baseman Tina Davenport.

The Newton girls, who drove-in over half of their runs in the first, third, and sixth could have carried the game on the strength of these innings alone. They began the game with seven runs in the top of the first, nearly all of which scored on Winchester errors. In the third, four consecutive singles drove-in another run and loaded the bases. Then Newton's shortstop Mary Drew performed the impossible a grand-slam home run over the fence in center field. From then on the rest of the game, including Newton's six runs in the sixth inning, was an anti-climax.

Surprisingly enough Winchester scored its first two runs in the bottom of the third — despite the shake-up in the top of the inning. Janet Cantillon's first hit of the game - a line drive into left field put her on first. She was moved to second as Joan Cussen hit a pop-up which was missed by Newton's center fielder. Both runs were then driven-in by Janice Dignam as she looped one down the first base line and arrived at second on an error. Winchester managed another run in the sixth as Maryann Brennan put a fast grounder past Newton's right fielder to place herself on third. She scored on Meri England's single to left, but hopes of a Winchester victory had faded long before.

Arlington Game

The second game, on Tuesday, was a 21-0 victory for Arlington as they perfected a season with no defeats.

Despite their valiant attempts, the Winchester girls were just no match for the Arlington veterans.

The Sachems, unable to find a hole in the strong Arlington defense, earned a total of only two hits—both singles in the fourth inning. Arlington pitcher Nan Mahoney retired 19 Winchester batters throughout the game, six of which were strikeouts.

The Sachems also found Arlington batting well as the girls, averaging five hits an inning, came-up with nine runs in the third alone. The power of the Arlington batters was evident in their number of base hits. The team belted-out four triples and seven doubles in just six innings of play.

The J.V.'s won their game 14-12 after a startling comeback in the sixth inning. Their record for the season stands at 3 wins and 2 losses.

Although the season was quite a disappointment for the girls, next years' co-captains Sue Swanson and Claire McKenna are aiming for a record comparable to that of Arlington.

Duplicate Bridge Club

On Wednesday evening, May 29th, the Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club held its local charity game. A large field of nineteen tables, divided into two sections, strongly competed for the Winchester Sport Shop bowl. Those with average or better scores were:

Martha Joslin and Ed Sullivan	129
Joyce Wolf and Bob Haskell	127½
Fredna Perkins and Donna Redpath	126
Gerry Barrett and Tom Young	126
Alan Leland and D. Beaber	123
Adele and Everett Knox	120
Anne Galpin and Madelyn Walworth	119
Peggy and Paul Sanderson	118
Barbara Shea and Margaret Jackson	117½
Lena Collins and Kay McConnell	117
Frank and Leo Gonsalves	116½
Steve Haseltine and Steve Chiotellis	116½

Dealer — East
Vul. — North-South

Aggresssive E-W pairs can get good results on this deal by pushing N-S overboard. At tables where North opens in fourth-seat with 1 spade, a weak jump overcall of 3 diamonds by East will destroy N-S's chances at finding their club fit and probably lead to a 3 spade contract. This can be defeated if East secures a heart ruff. Some Easts may open with a weak 2 diamond bid; West raises to three, and N-S may be shut out of the auction completely. N-S have a chance of finding the club spot — at which they can win ten tricks — if E-W offer no interference at all. But even then, N-S have a pedfectly acceptable 5-2 spade fit and are apt to play there rather than in clubs. This is a difficult hand for both sides. Any plus score E-W will be worth a near-top, while any score of plus 110 or better will give N-S a significant score.

Women Sought As Social Workers

Married women with a college degree in any field, interested in a part-time paid position in social work, are now being recruited for a special two-year demonstration project in the Boston Public Welfare Department.

The program, which begins this fall, will be under the joint auspices of the Massachusetts Public Welfare Department and Catalyst in Social Work, a non-profit service organization.

A degree in social work will not be necessary for this project; orientation and training will be provided by an an experienced professional staff.

Selected college graduates will have an opportunity to help the core city meet its needs by using their knowledge of community problems, family budgets and child care to guide persons requiring public assistance.

Each woman will be employed by the Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare and will work in Boston for 20 hours a week. She will be eligible for medical and insurance benefits and vacation pay.

For further information and interview, contact Mrs. Bertram J. Malenka, Catalyst in Social Work, Freedom House, 14 Crawford Street, Roxbury, 442-8688.

AAA Opposes Hitchhiking

The American Automobile Association recently warned motorists against picking up hitchhikers.

"The hitchhiking menace is greater today than ever before," said Richard W. Hoover, safety director for AAA's Mass. Division. "Motorists are being robbed, beaten, forced to go out of their way, kidnapped, even murdered by hitchhikers.

"FBI records show two out of five thumbs raised to hitch a ride have their prints on file with the police," Hoover said. Although not all of them are criminals, in this age of increasing crime, why open your car to one and take a dangerous gamble?

The AAA official called "hitchhiking "one of the most dangerous of all practices. A hiker shows complete disregard for human life —his own and others.

"He endangers himself as he stands out in the roadway to beg a ride. He also endangers drivers who must swerve to avoid him or maneuver past the car which stops to pick up the thumber."

The Triple-A safety expert pointed out that warm weather brings out the hitchhikers. "It's only natural to want to give one a lift, but it's not worth the risk you take," he said.

Clean Houses Seldom Burn

"How will your house burn when it catches fire—hot, hungrily, and fast or just a small controllable blaze?" asks Fire Chief I. Francis Amico.

The Chief adds, "It's not hard to tell which it will be. Any fireman can tell long before fire ever strikes.

"We know from the records of the National Fire Protection Association that there are about 1500 home fires every day.

"We also know in many cases why one house will have only a small fire and the next one will be gutted before anything can be done. Rubbish is frequently the answer.

"Most people don't realize how much rubbish they have around the house. They just don't recognize the old mattresses in the attic, old clothing in closets, and stored furniture in the basement as rubbish.

"But that's what it is. And all too often it means the difference between a small fire and a bad one."

Christian Scient. Conv. in Boston

Many Christian Scientists from Winchester have this week been joining with their fellow members from all over the world at their annual meeting week in Boston.

Central theme for the week of special meetings and workshops is from Nehemiah in the Bible, "Let us rise up and build."

The focus has been on the need for spiritual growth and more vigorous living on the standards of Christianity in the continuing search for more active, practical ways to serve the pressing need for mankind.

The keynote message from the Christian Science Board of Directors pointed out that today's world of destructive upheaval and tremendous change calls men to be spiritual builders. The message stressed individual effort as the first step in any attempt to solve the world's ills.

Nehemiah's example as a spiritual builder was cited as still vital and useful to Christians today. In rebuilding the wall of Jerusalem, Nehemiah was making practical his own understanding of God and His kingdom. Today's need is for individuals dedicated to their work to be committed and consecrated to the task of spiritual building.

The message quoted the disciple Peter, "Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ."

Lively stones were then defined as being more than building blocks. Lively stones denote action which results from spiritual unfoldment; action that is inspired, rightly motivated, God-supported, God-sustained.

Later in the meeting, the directors said, "The Church must fulfill the requirements of peace by teaching the practicality of the great commandments—love for God and love for one's neighbor. It must teach the allness of God, good, the impersonality of evil, and the ability of the individual, whatever his race or color, to demonstrate this."

"Harmony, order and peace know no color line. They belong to the spiritual heritage of each individual; and it is the responsibility of Church to assert, demonstrate and maintain this standard.

"The healing and uplifting work of Jesus attested the practicality of spiritual building by means of prayer and inspiration.

"Mary Baker Eddy, who founded the Christian Science Church, taught the need for each individual to contribute to the progress and regeneration of society through spiritual building."

Chairmen and members of various committees at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, have also been attending special workshops dealing with the different aspects of church activities, dedicated to the search for increasingly useful service to mankind.

CSA Hears Talk By Miss Milliken

At the final meeting of the Community School Association for this year, Miss May Milliken, chairman of the social studies curriculum Council, presented a report on the activities of the council to date.

For the last two years, this council has been focusing on changes for the elementary school curriculum by gathering materials for the elementary teachers. They have developed 15 teacher resource kits representing the different countries which are studied by grades K-6. These kits are made up of books, language records, film strips, slides, and art objects. The teachers will have a yearly schedule of when the kits will be available at their particular school. Also the music and art supervisors for the elementary schools will be aware of when the schools will be having these kits so that they can introduce music and art of the particular cultures being studied. Each class will be asked to contribute one new object to these kits after the class is finished using the kit.

Also at this meeting, the Community School Association voted in a new slate of officers for the executive board for 1968-69. They will be:

Swim Area Patrols

The Park Department has painted all the Town's bathhouses in bright, new colors and showers have been installed throughout.

The beaches will be open daily starting Saturday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Life guards will be headed up by Edward Grant and Donald Scherban. They include Ray Dante, Katherine Renz, Audrey Puffer, Judy Ober, Marilyn Daetsch, Ruth Salter, Barbara Cade and Barbara Bund.

Beach checkers are new this year. Wearing khaki uniforms and helmets and employed by the Town to enforce the rules that apply to the beaches are to be: Jeff Buchanan, Chris Halverson and overseer Warren Branch.

Attendants in the bath houses in charge of keeping the newly refinished areas ship-shape are James Mallon and John Pirani.

The Red Cross instruction program, to open June 24 is announced elsewhere in this week's Star.

Aux. Firemen Recruit, Open House Number Drive

The Winchester Auxiliary Fire Department this week starts on two projects, each of which has been planned for some time—a town-wide recruitment drive and one to have all houses in Winchester properly numbered.

Any Winchesterite from 18 to 65 who can pass a physical examination and is a high school graduate, is welcome to join the Auxiliary. Seniors in high school, if they are 18 years old and have good marks, are also eligible.

One is not required to give any defined amount of time nor is one required to work in Winchester.

The group has its own station and apparatus at 14½ Reservoir Street and all prospective members are invited to stop on Monday, Wednesday or Friday evenings after 7 p.m. or to call Captain W. Otis, at 729-1483, during the week.

The Winchester Auxiliary Department is also about to conduct a drive to have all houses in Winchester properly numbered. The Department will install house numbers, on any house, for just the cost of the numbers, 25 cents for each numeral. The size and type of the numbers has been approved by both the Fire and Police Chiefs.

In the past, during emergencies (day and night), both the Fire and Police Departments have often had difficulty in locating the right house. The numbers that will be used are both large and reflective which should clear this problem up.

To place an order call Captain Otis.

300 Diploma Winners Crowd Auditorium

High School Graduation Held Indoors On Monday

Three hundred members of the 118th class at the Winchester High School were graduated from the High School late on Monday afternoon in postponed services held in the auditorium. For the first time the girls were in white caps and gowns, the boys in dark blue.

Diplomas and scholarships were awarded from the auditorium stage before as many parents and friends who could crowd into the hall. Announced by radio and phone on Monday morning was the fact that only two members of a family could attend with each graduate. About 20 persons stood at the back of the hall and also on the balcony.

The ceremonies were marked also with special recognition of the death of Senator Robert F. Kennedy: The High School band, in which were playing several capped seniors, played the Navy Hymn. Student Government leader Kevin Lynch gave a tribute in which he reminded of the late senator's especial recognition of the role of youth in a world which must be faced with hope and determination.

With President Richard Downes, Vice President Alan Ingraham, Secretary Susan Kajander and Treasurer Mary Fay among them, the class of 1968 processed down the west aisle of the auditorium and filled the center section of the hall.

Substituting for the Reverend H. Newton Clay of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church who had been scheduled to open the exercises on Sunday, was the Reverend Dr. Oliver Powell of the First Congregational Church.

Richard Downes greeted the audience for his class and Donna Starrak presented the senior address.

DONNA STARRAK
gives senior address

Miss Starrak condemned the dropouts of her generation and urged their active responsibility to accomplish changes. Rejecting conformists and speaking out against injustices she charged that "accepting the wrongs as inevitable is not part of our obligation to society."

High School Principal Dr. W. Howard Niblock, speaking at the close of the exercises drew from his observations on his recent trip behind the Iron Curtain to point up the character of American society.

"Brotherhood is not something to talk about but a way of life," he exhorted his departing class.

Awards, Scholarships

Three new scholarships were awarded to seniors and presentation of the Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps scholarship awards announced at graduation for the first time.

Made this year was the Francis L. Muraco scholarship awarded in memory of Marine Corporal Muraco, WHS 1965, who was killed in action in Vietnam in November, 1967 and the Paul Connors award given by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 97, to the boy or girl in the senior class who has by conscientious participation in athletic activity demonstrated the kind of interest and sportsmanship that Mr. Connors worked all his life to develop in the young people in Winchester.

Initiated this year as an annual award to be given under the Winchester Scholarship Foundation aegis is the Harry V. Gilson scholarship, contributed by the James T. Treffrey Realty Agency to honor the recently retired Winchester superintendent of schools.

Changes, Studies Of Curriculum Asked Monday By School Com.

At Monday night's School Committee meeting, members agreed to the initiation of a change in the English program, a study of the social studies curriculum, and the consideration of an invitation by the U.S. Department of State for Winchester to engage in an exchange with a school in Rome, Italy.

High School English students will have formal individual writing conferences with their English teachers next year. The decision to improve the writing program came at the meeting when members approved a proposal set forth by Superintendent Donald A. Klemer that English teachers have four instead of the present five teaching assignments.

Teachers will meet with each of their four classes in four classroom periods a week, with a fifth session scheduled for conferences.

Fogging to Start

The anti-mosquito fogging voted in the 1968 Town Meeting will get underway beginning tomorrow evening, according to Health Director Michael Saraco.

Mr. Saraco said only that the project would continue during the summer, to be done during evenings.

Plans are to cover the 83 miles of Winchester roadways with a spraying contracted to be done by Whitman Insecticide and Supply Company of Woburn.

Hearing On Tuesday Asks Zoning Change For Cambridge St. Apartment-Hotel

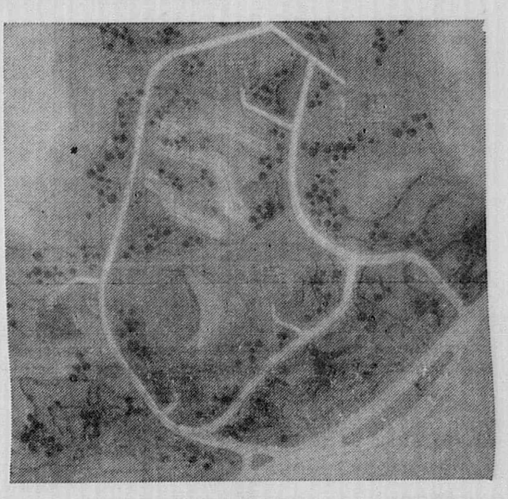
Owners of about 90 acres of land in the northwest corner of town will appear before the Planning Board at a hearing to be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday night, in the East Room of the Town Hall to request an amendment of the zoning by-laws.

The petition of Sarah Moss of Belmont to be presented by her husband, attorney Jack Moss, will request the Town to allow the construction of a high-rise, seven story apartment-hotel with attached town houses on land which abuts the north boundary of Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm.

Mr. Moss will give a slide presentation showing a lay-out to include about six units located across Cambridge Street from the new Elks Home. His plan (below) shows drawn an entrance security gate and the lot plan is designed to include tennis courts, a swimming pool, a jog and walk trail and a possible three-hole golf course.

Engineers Whitman and Howard plan construction in brick and for one multi-faced building to include a dining room. The complex would be bounded to the north by the about-to-be-constructed shopping center.

The Woburn-based attorney plans one and two bedroom unit apartments and will present to the Planning Board the results of studies estimating revenue to the town and costs of his proposal as contrasted to the revenue (or, Mr. Moss believes, possible net cost to the Town) if, instead, he should erect 131 four-bedroom homes on the same piece of land.



PLOT PLAN FOR APARTMENTS with Cambridge Street in right, lower corner.

Old Firearm Collection Started By Aux. Police

The Winchester Auxiliary Police are announcing a firearms pick-up which is to begin immediately.

As part of a public safety project the auxiliary department is asking all residents to turn in any unwanted or obsolete firearms for disposal. Also requested for turn-in is any outdated or unwanted ammunition.

Spokesmen for the program stated that there may be many worn, outdated or war souvenir weapons lying in cellars, attics or closets for which the owners no longer have any need or use. Each of these is considered potentially a danger to children and could fall into the hands of unauthorized persons.

Auxiliary officers will be prepared to call direct at the home of residents to make the collection or to assist in any other way. The program is under the direction of auxiliary officer Robert Elliott. Those interested in participating in this safety effort are asked to call Mr. Elliott at 729-6383.

Staff Development To Be Emphasized By Dr. Klemer, New School Head Looks To More Individual Learning

The Star interviewed the new superintendent last week, fresh off the turnpikes from Hastings-on-Hudson, New York.

"I'm just a son of Massachusetts come home," said Dr. Donald A. Klemer, whose teaching and administrative assignments over the past 16 years have taken him to Connecticut, New York and Honolulu, Hawaii — over and above army duty in Korea.

A native of Boston and a graduate of Tufts and Harvard Graduate School of Education, his last teaching assignment in the area was at high school in North Attleboro. He remembers driving with his wife along Route 128 as it was built, the dire predictions for industry in the Boston area with Lowell-Lawrence worker pull-out, and the predictions of failure for Route 128; and he finds the Boston area renaissance "unbelievable" and a testimony to the area's top education.

Dr. Klemer campared changes taking place in industry with those taking place in education and emphasized a strong interest in staff development aimed towards improved utilization of personnel and materials already on hand.

"Roughly 80 cents out of every invested school dollar goes for teachers and materials," he said. "This is our biggest investment. We are not providing enough time for planning with the staff to effectively use their time. The halfdays provided in Winchester for in-service programs are certainly a step in the right direction." Staff development is close to the new administrator's heart as well as more effective long-range planning involving teachers, administrators, and School Committee. "Change is coming — it is inevitable," he said, "so more time and effort are needed for planned and thoughtful change."

Among his special interests evidenced in public writings are those emphasizing more effective use of new equipment and materials in education such as tapes, overhead projectors, 8-mm. films and so forth.

DR. KLEMER, cont. page 2

School Committee Vote Corrected

The School Committee last week voted 4-2 for METCO participation, not 6-2 as the Star headline read. The vote was the same as that of the prior week to consider the program for 1968-69. In June of 1967 the official vote was 3 to 1 in favor, with one member abstaining because he was a METCO board member, and a sixth member absent, although he requested that he be announced to be in favor.

Keep Winchester Clean

School Comm.

The committee instructed the superintendent to study the feasibility of also implementing a similar program in the junior highs this fall and to examine funds in the personal services budget to determine whether up to four teachers could be added to the English departments in the secondary schools to reduce the pupil load so that no teacher would have more than 100 pupils.

Social Studies Program

African studies and Afro-American history in the Winchester schools will be the subjects of scrutiny this summer.

Dr. Klemer informed the committee that he has asked Dr. Walter Gleason, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, and the social studies curriculum committee to discuss reading material on these subjects in the libraries and topics which should be covered in social studies courses to eliminate present gaps.

Committee member John Dolan asked for consideration of whether ancient history should be dropped from the curriculum. He declared, "I can think of no better way to waste time in school and after." He also described one of the ancient history texts used in the schools as "atrocious."

Although other committee members did not display the eagerness of Mr. Dolan for ending ancient history in the schools, they spoke of the need for the study of present-day minority groups and modern cultures.

Summer School Tuition

The Committee voted to charge out-of-town students temporarily in residence with Winchester citizens this summer the same tuition charged for Winchester students attending summer school. This means that they will pay $15 for a course, as do residents. Nonresidents are charged $30. The new charges will affect children staying here on the Friendlytown and Operation Hospitality programs as well as others.

Also discussed was the possibility of children participating in the drama course if they are in town for only two weeks and wish to do so.

Exchange with Rome

Members agreed to have Dr. Klemer indicate the interest of the Committee in accepting the Department of State's invitation for Winchester to participate in a school-to-school project.

If the program gets final approval, the Winchester schools will be linked to the American School in Rome, Italy, to develop and improve staffing and programs. Specific areas of cooperation have not yet been determined.

Activities engaged in by schools already in the project include exchange of materials, pupils, and teachers, aid in recruiting staff, improving administrative procedures, and curriculum development, and coordination of practice teachers and curriculum development projects with nearby universities. Dr. Klemer also pointed to the possibility of summer school exchanges.

The Department of State grants financial assistance to the program initially.

At Tufts

Approximately 20 students from the High School will aid the social studies and math departments in developing small group self-instruction methods to be introduced into the Shore Road High School. The classes will be held at Tufts School from July 1 to July 26.

The committee also noted that Dr. Klemer will meet with all school faculties prior to the end of the school year and will attend a national policy conference sponsored by the U. S. Department of States on June 20 and 21.

Live Father's Day . . .
. . . for your children

This Sunday morning in many homes our wives and children will give us gifts or cards or just an expression, "Happy Father's Day, Dad!" But deep down in our hearts we don't require any gifts or cards or perhaps even the expression, "Happy Father's Day, Dad!"

To a father watching his children grow, seeing them run to meet him as he comes home from a hard day's labor; watching them hit their first ball in Little League; or, of their first dance recital, is reward enough for any man.

Father's Day is every day!

However, this Sunday, let us all pause to remember those children whose fathers, like so many others, have paid the supreme sacrifice. Be thankful that you can share your life with your children.

Make each day, not Father's Day . . . but rather your children's day . . . and live every moment with them.

Dr. Klemer

"We are going to be at a point where the teacher will be able to call any number of teaching aids to his or her immediate use. A teacher will be able to talk about trench warfare in World War I in a class, stop at that important moment and immediately show students 8 minutes of film taken at the scene of trench warfare in World War I," he said.

Dr. Klemer has also worked on programs in the areas of narcotics, smoking and sex education. He is pleased with the interest of high school students in making their education more relevant and believes that the energy and concern of this generation will be able to make some significant changes.

Dr. Klemer is pleased with the emphasis on developing individual learning as epitomized in the Tufts Road School teaching project and other school projects. He hopes to see individual work increased here and sees the superintendent as a catalyst working with interested and capable staff members, and with the School Committee, at the policy level. He feels that basic understanding of methods, materials, concepts in learning how to learn are very important to the college and non-college bound students. He stated, "Things are changing so fast that education that ignores understanding will become rapidly outdated." He sees the need for more students going on a 2-year training programs of one kind or another.

To a question on guidance the former Westchester Superintendent again put emphasis on staff communication. "For example," he stated, "teachers, administrators and special personnel should be working as a team much as a clinic of doctors works as a team, picking up a child's learning disabilities early and programming in the school for the child before a negative attitude towards school develops."

In a look-ahead on education done recently for the Board of Education in Hastings, Dr. Klemer talked about the pace in education these days. "In the past change in education has been slow and quite separate from the speed of change that has occured in our total society. This is no longer true — education is moving at a pace equal to that of the total society because of a dramatic increase in federally-supported educational research, the emerging interest of huge business corporations in the development of educational materials, and greater knowledge about the process of learning."

About these things and his baptism of fire for him at last week's METCO meeting when the Star spoke with him, Dr. Klemer avowed, "Oh, I wouldn't want to be working at any other time in any other field. These are exciting years in American education."

Air Force Wants H. S. Girl Grads

TSgt. Joseph P. Nolin, local U.S. Air Force Recruiter, announced today that women high school graduates who are interested in learning about the more than 170 types of career opportunities available in the U.S. Air Force should visit his office at 19 High Street, Medford at their earliest opportunity.

During the Spring rush, when women high school graduates are looking for jobs, said Sergeant Nolin, many young ladies overlook the opportunities available to them in the U.S. Air Force. Photomapping, Air Traffic Control, Communications Operations, Dental Services, Medical Services, and Data Systems are but a few of the interesting fields available to women on today's Aerospace Team, he said.

In the Air Force, a woman has the same advantages for pay, promotion, education, and travel as her male counterpart. In her smart blue uniform, designed by fashion experts, she is always in step with the latest in fashion.

For complete information on the Air Force WAF program, young women should contact TSgt. Nolin. His office is located at 19 High Street, Medford, or he may be called at 396-5109 for an appointment.

State Department Officials Talk With Community on Foreign Policy

On May 3 a team of Department of State officials were in Winchester for a day of dialogue with High School students, civic groups, teachers, and citizens.

In the series of meetings, most adhering to a format of brief presentations followed by questions and discussion, the officers spoke on an extensive list of topics.

Their day began before an assembly of High School students. Speaking first was David McKillop, currently serving in Washington, D. C., as country director of Scandinavia, Iceland, and Finland, who pointed to the objectives of foreign policy and the considerations which go into formulating policies.

Howard Robinson, a labor adviser to the Department's Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs, next described the "entirely new kinds of concepts and problems" brought to the fore since the end of World War II by the emergence of over 50 new nations.

An agricultural economist with the Office of the War on Hunger in the Agency for International Development, Norman Ward, spoke of the need for "one world of political development" and the consequent necessity to help underdeveloped areas build a sound economy with improved standards of living.

Richard Parker, who presently acts as county director of United Arab Republic Affairs in the Department's Bureau of Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs and was counselor for political affairs at the American Embassy in Cairo until the U.A.R. severed diplomatic relations with the U. S. last year, discussed U. S. interests in the Middle East and the greater polarization between the U. S. and the Soviet Union in the area as a result of the Arab-Israeli conflict. He predicts that the Arab-Israeli problem "will be with us for a long time."

Before beginning three periods of small discussion groups with individual officers, students heard them respond to a comment by Principal Howard Niblock on the need for more student exchanges. Mr. Robinson agreed with this but further declared, "We do not do enough to engage the attention of foreign students in the country now."

Following a luncheon prepared and served by students of the home economics department under the direction of Miss Harriet Nelson, Mr. McKillop appeared before a large and enthusiastic group of Senior Citizens, who gathered to hear him in the Rich Room of the Library. He started out discussing Russia and giving some background information on the Peking-Moscow split and brought the session to a close by responding to questions on a sum of subjects concluding with approaches to treating the population explosion.

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Ward visited with the League of Women Voters meeting at the home of Mrs. Richard Thuma, at 2 Allen Road, where they were reportedly vigorously pressed with questions about Vietnam.

The team ended its afternoon with an informal reception with teachers in the school system and a live interview by WHSR-FM, which was also taped for probable rebroadcast.

That evening a disappointingly small number of citizens turned out to hear Mr. McKillop, Mr. Robinson, and Mrs. Ward in the High School auditorium. According to Thomas Morse, coordinator of special programs in the School Department's division of instruction and curriculum, who arranged for the program, the audience of 35 listened to short presentations and then "fired questions running the gamut from Vietnam, to the troubles in the Middle East, to Europe and DeGaulle, and to aid for underdeveloped nations. They brainstormed the officers and the officials brainstormed them. It all ran very well."

When questioned on the success of the entire program Mr. Morse said "As Miss May Milliken, Social Studies Department head put it, 'Can we have them again?' "

VFW Awards Paul W. Connors Scholarship For First Time

As a memorial to Paul W. Connors, the V.F.W. Aberjona Post 3719 has established a scholarship in his name to be awarded annually to a deserving athlete of the graduating class at Winchester High School.

"This is a fitting tribute to a native son, who has been so closely associated with young people all his life, particularly through his work with the Little League and Babe Ruth League," note VFW spokesmen.

"His interest in sports throughout his boyhood at St. Mary's Parochial School and the public schools culminated in his election as captain of the baseball team at Winchester High School, from which he was graduated in 1939. Assigned to the European Theatre with the Seventh Armored Division in World War II, he was wounded in the service of his country and awarded the Purple Heart. Following a period of 15 years' employment at Lever Brothers, he joined the Park Department, where he worked until his recent illness and subsequent demise in March 1968 at the age of 47."

Mr. Connors made his home with his sister, Mrs. Helen C. MacDonald, and her family on Loring Avenue. He was a member of the Winchester Elks, American Legion and Sons of Italy, as well as the VFW.

Scholarshop committee heads, Nick Luongo and John Welch, made the announcement.

VA Notes Proposals

Specific legislative and administrative proposals are included in President Johnson's most recent message to Congress on servicemen and veterans, Daniel J. Doherty, director of veterans' services reported recently. Director Doherty said an analysis of the complete text of the message which he has just received reveals these legislative requests:

1—To increase the low-cost group life insurance now available to members of the armed forces from the present maximum of $10,000 to $30,000.

2—To protect disabled veterans, widows and children against disproportionate pension loss as a result of increases in other income such as social security.

3—To increase the maximum portion of a GI loan that can be guaranteed by the government from $7,500 to $10,000.

4—To permit part-time VA vocational rehabilitation training so service-disabled veterans can improve their skills while working at regular jobs.

5—Inactment of a resolution expressing the intent of Congress that private employers should give priority to returning servicemen.

6—To provide incentives to channel the talents of returning Vietnam era servicemen into teaching in deprived areas or serving local communities as policemen, firemen and hospital workers. The program would be known as Veterans in Public Service (VIPS) and would provide extra GI bill benefits to veterans serving or training to serve VIPS.

"Lock Your Car" Pilot Project

The first state-wide "Lock Your Car" campaign in the country will take place in Massachusetts during May and the first two weeks in June, it was announced recently by Dr. Edward B. Benedict, president of the New England Citizens Crime Commission.

The campaign will receive extensive cooperation from news media and is being run by the commission in cooperation with the Massachusetts Police Chiefs Association and the Criminal Division of the United States Justice Department.

Dr. Benedict said the drive is an attempt to reduce car thefts throughout the Commonwealth which has the highest rate in the nation.

The campaign was announced at the annual meeting of the Commission Wednesday afternoon. John J. Buckley, executive director of the Commission, said the Massachusetts rate for car thefts is the highest in the nation. He said that 29,706 cars were stolen in the Commonwealth in 1966, the last year for which 12-month figures are available and that the total last year went well over the 30,000 mark. The source of the figures, Buckley explained, is the Uniform Crime Reports published by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Buckley said that the national rate for car thefts is 284 cars for every 100,000 population but that the Massachusetts figure is 551 cars for every 100,000 people.

Buckley said the drive "provides a great opportunity for citizen participation to do something about the stolen car situation in Massachusetts." He noted that seventy-eight percent of all stolen cars are unlocked and that 42 percent of them either have the keys in the ignition or the ignition on. "Furthermore," he added, "car theft is quite often the beginning of a criminal career for some young boy. In addition to reducing our deplorable rate of car theft, the individual citizen by locking his car will be helping a good boy stay good."

Many police organizations throughout the state are also assisting in the drive by cooperating with the food chains in arranging special displays and demonstrations during the six-week period. The Criminal Division of the Justice Department is also interested in the success of the drive because it is a "pilot project"—the first effort on a state-wide basis in the country.

CARE Helps In Vietnam

In the midst of the fighting and sniper attacks that have made Saigon a battlefield during the current Viet Cong assault, CARE representatives are speeding assistance to thousands of refugees who fled their homes in the besieged city.

According to word received by CARE from its mission chief in South Vietnam, the largest emergency delivery was a distribution of 17,400 pounds of rice to more than 6,000 refugees encamped on the grounds of the Cho Ray Hospital in the city's Cholon section.

CARE's New England Director, Leon M. Blum, reported from his Boston office that the CARE program in South Vietnam is proceeding as well as can be expected under the existing conditions.

In the report from South Vietnam, Blum said that the CARE Mission Chief, Felix Ashinhurst of Henrietta, Texas, reported that the Cho Ray refugees were in a "desperate situation."

"These people had been almost completely without food for four days," Ashinhurst said, "and the CARE food was the first assistance to reach them."

"Car Won't Start" Major Complaint Of Mororists

Massachusetts motorists had car trouble 1,757,627 times last year, according to the American Automobile Association's Survey of 1967 Emergency Road Service Experience, released today.

AAA, the world's largest road service organization, reported the number one trouble was failure of battery, starter, and ignition system. "Won't start" problems plagued 755,780 Massachusetts motorists last year. Nationally, the number was 30,846,000.

Battery, starter, and ignition failures represented 43% of the total motoring troubles, AAA reported, an increase of 20% over the previous year.

Tires remained number two on the list of car troubles, but dropped to 20% of the total. Flat tires stranded 351,525 Massachusetts motorists last year—14,347,000 motorists across the nation.

Third on the list (16% of the total) were calls for a tow truck. Cars stuck in snow or mud or with breakdowns so serious they had to be towed to a service station affected 281,220 in Massachusetts and 11,477,000 nationally.

The AAA Survey showed that car troubles increased 3.6% last year. Totals were 1,757,627 for Massachusetts and 71,547,000 for the United States.

Selectmen Hear Request On Land-Taking

At Monday night's meeting of the Board of Selectmen, chaired by Charles Doucette and attended also by members Edmund Williams, John Sullivan and Ralph Swanson, the group heard a presentation by residents of Winter and Summer Streets asking for an increase in allotment on land taking voted in the February, 1967, Special Town Meeting.

Winter and Summer Street land has been taken by eminent domain by the Town to augment to the north the playing field area set between the two railroad spurs and already under construction.

William Garbino made the presentation for his, and the Gurrisi and Evangelisto families, his request established later also to include the feelings of the Politano family.

Reimbursement to the landowners has been made at a rate in the vicinity of 30c a foot. The petitioners, basing their request on work done for them by an outside appraiser is requesting 59c, representing a "more nearly fair market value."

"The Town is reaping the value of our policy of keeping our lands intact for our own families," stated Mr. Garbino, who made a strong point also of the relatively few moderately priced house lots left in town, the easy access to the center of the land and that together the lost comprise one of the few large single tracts of underdeveloped land left near the center.

"I respectfully request the Board reconsider and take such action as necesary to arrive at a more equitable settlement," he concluded.

Others of the area spoke briefly in support, and the Selectmen substantiated by question that the Politano property owners were behind the request also. Included in this land the lots in question would total 11.

The Board, complimenting the petitioners on their fine presentation, said that they would give every consideration to the request but that they needed first to consult with the Town Counsel and appraiser.

Woburn Cab Company

The Selectmen also heard but postponed a decision on the request of Fred Johnson of the City Cab Company of Woburn for three hackney licenses.

Mr. Johnson noted he had heard through Roger Ralphs, who is withdrawing the Aberjona Taxi Company business here, that there is need for more local service.

He stated he would like the three licenses although initially would put only one or two cabs on duty during the summer. The Board pressed Mr. Johnson on detail of his service and heard from him that he would have a Winchester phone added to his cabs and that they would be garaged at the North Main Street Esso station. They indicated that they questioned the advisability of granting three licenses to begin with.

Welfare Office

Mr. Doucette announced that the Town is notifying the State Public Welfare Department that it will rent them its Welfare Office space at the rate of $250 a month with the provision that the area would be available all evenings for committee meetings. The rental would include heat, light and janitorial services.

Fletcher Street Lands

The board discussed Fletcher Street lands—taking issue, referring to a letter received from Walter Armstrong, stating that since he had not heard from the Town's officials in the three-weeks time asked, he was going to proceed with planning to rebuild his home with his architect.

At a hearing before the Selectmen on May 20 the Armstrong family and abutting owner Ralph Swan had heard presentations by the Planning Board and the Elementary School Committee on the large value to the Town of the lands on which the two homes had been burnt in April.

The Selectmen were to have approached the land owners but had not done this due to a sum of circumstances.

Discussion ensued on the advisability of taking land now owned by the group acted only to request that member Paul Amico contact the land owners immediately.

Motorboats Get Safety Warning

State motorboat enforcement agents will crack down on boaters who fail to have proper life saving devices aboard, Thomas J. Legere, State motorboat director said recently.

"The law requires that life saving devices must be Coast Guard approved, in easily accessible places ready for use, for every person aboard every boat, including sail boats, row boats and canoes," he said.

The Director pointed out, however, the only exceptions will apply to competitive rowing or sculling shells, rafts, surfboards and sailfish, so-called.

With the boating season not yet underway four persons have drowned and 16 persons had to be rescued. "Our records indicate that the drownings were caused by life saving devices in unservicable condition or were unavailable when the accident occurred," he said.

"We intend to do everything we can to eliminate these causes in the interest of safe boating," he added.

Needed To 'Bend History:' Uncommon Effort From Common Men

"Abrasive," "arrogant," "ruthless" . . . "compassionate," "dedicated," "most tender." "A bull in a china shop" Adlai Stevenson called him. "A spoiled brat"—James Hoffa. "The most thoughtful and considerate of all the Kennedy children"—nurse Luella Hennessey. "That man is pure Celt"—poet Robert Lowell. The late Senator Robert F. Kennedy left few neutral. But Democrat or Republican; Swiss, Irish or Italian; Protestant, Catholic or Jew, few can deny that from this uncommon young man has come for the common man a tremendous push to correct those evils of the day which this generation inherits from those gone along and which, in his words, are part of the "common works of man."

"There is discrimination in this world and slavery and slaughter and starvation. Governments repress their people. Millions are trapped in poverty, while the nation grows rich and wealth is lavished on armaments everywhere.

"These are differing evils, but they are the common works of man. They reflect the imperfection of human justice, the inadequacy of human compassion, our lack of sensibility towards the suffering of our fellows."

Robert Kennedy spoke these words broadly defining the world's problems two years ago in a speech made before the young people of Africa. And they were part of the pre-Mass presentation given by his brother Edward in Saint Patrick's Cathedral on Saturday morning in an eloquent service made modern by the insistence of the surviving Kennedys that the extraordinary force of spirit and direction of purpose of their slain kin be not lost in platitudinous ceremony.

To many looking at the life and death of the two remarkable young Massachusetts brothers, one of the most striking things evidenced is their unrelenting emphasis on the problems here and now. They were supported strongly throughout their shortened lives by a religious heritage which, as many others, has in the past put much more emphasis on the hereafter than the here and now; which like others, has emphasized the more negative elements of fear and, sin, and that of humility. Yet they stepped into today's harsh realities with a candor and courage marked by hope, devotion and outspeaking action. The glorification of the supernatural may have had its special meaning to the Kennedy brothers —their infusion of the mortal with tough-minded direction is that for which the world was the more hungry.

In the "Images of our Time" report on Robert Kennedy by the American Heritage editors, published only a few weeks before his death, a page is given to a picture of speech notes made by him while campaigning in Indiana: "Violence, lawlessness . . . summer after summer . . . not tolerable under our system . . . society cannot accept rioting, arson, nor men without jobs . . . substitute jobs for welfare . . , welfare destroys dignity." Senator Kennedy did not blink the need of rule and order for our society—he abhorred lack of respect for the law no matter whence it came. But, unlike many others who emphasize this factor in the current crisis, he went beyond this to reach for the ideals, to dissipate the fear and the too humble approach with the articulated hope and "even arrogance" of beliefs to build on.

At Saint Patrick's, Senator Edward went on to quote more from Robert's speech in Africa:

"Few will have the greatness to bend history itself, but each of us can work to change a small portion of events, and in the total of all these acts will be written the history of this generation.

"Each time a man stands for an ideal, or acts to improve the lot of others, or strikes out against injustice, he sends forth a tiny ripple of hope.

"And crossing each other from a million different centers of energy and daring, those ripples build a current that can sweep down the mightiest walls of oppression and resistance. . .

"And I believe that in this generation those with the courage to enter the moral conflict will find themselves with companions in every corner of the globe. . .

"Our future may lie beyond our vision, but it is not completely beyond our control . . . the work of our own hands matched to reason and principle will determine our destiny."

"There is pride in that, even arrogance," noted brother Edward, near his conclusion, about his brother's words.

Wrought by man the world's evils need his utmost effort to be corrected. The "million different centers of energy and daring" must be multiplied. Each common man must himself become responsible in the job to remedy the "common works of man."

Sheepskin In Workhorse Clothing

The glamour and the gaiety were gone from Monday's graduation. Darkened by the horror of the week just past, dampened by the rains which dictated a crowded inside ceremony, the exercises this week must have seemed anticlimactical for those who had witnessed past WHS exercises — handsome and spectacular, abounding in enthusiasm. The same circumstances colored many graduations other than those here this weekend. Students returning home from far away had similar stories to tell.

The ring of the congratulations the town has to say to all its graduates may be muted by the temper of this dreary week. But the diplomas and degrees coming into the homes represent the same heavy effort and investment of time and self. Perhaps it is more properly reflective of the realities of the decade to be having graduation days grayed by tragedy and made matter-of-fact by dull weather.

There is not much hurrah in the world the older generation is leaving to the 1968 graduates. It is a blood, sweat and toil kind of world. It is a dig in and help make it better or go down with the rest of us place. But to those who have finished a course, whether high school, college or training, the Star adds its hearty commendation. Work, not glamour are the needs of the day. May these young people have more wisdom, more dedication and more will to face up to the world than their elders have had.

Priority Contributions

Both the Auxiliary Fire Department and the Auxiliary Police Department are stepping forward this week to make timely and meaningful contributions to the safety of the townspeople.

The firemen have been planning for some time a campaign for new members, needed especially during the summer months when vacations deplete the regular firefighter roster. One can join as young as 18 if a senior in High School. But one can also join up into the sixties. Is this not a place where many middle-aged persons concerned about the fires and firefighting can step in and help? The time is now.

The Auxiliary is also tackling a problem reflected in the work of both protective departments — that of improper or no house number designation. The fifty cents for a numerical street designation — asked for by law here but missing many places — may be the investment that one day saves the life of someone in a given home. Response to this, too, should be full and quick.

The Police Auxiliary is stepping constructively into one of the hottest questions of the day. "Outdated or war souvenir weapons lying in cellars, attics or closets" applies to a good number of us. A public safety pick-up of old firearms is applauded. We have talked a lot this week about our guns. The collection of unused Winchester firearms is the proper place to begin to act.

Little League Hits Out At Vandalism — 'Wanton Acts Of Undisciplined Children'

Editor of the Star:

This is an appeal to the citizens of Winchester on behalf of their Little League — an appeal to help our faithful and hard-working Women's Auxiliary maintain the ever welcome refreshment stand at Ginn Field. This is an appeal to parents of children — and to the children themselves — to stop the vandalism at the Ginn Field house, the soft drink machine inside and the stealing of valuable equipment stored there.

This appeal is made to our fellow citizens because town agencies have failed to prevent breakage and pilferage, despite their being furnished with highly suspect names. Last year, incursions were so prevalent that the field house could not operate at all. This year, it has cost Little League almost $500. in stolen goods, repair costs, replacement costs and materials and labor costs to keep the stand operating for the benfit of over 600 Winchester boys, their sisters and brothers, their mothers and fathers and other friends who come to see the boys play. Now, because of senseless and wanton destruction and theft, the stand may have to be abandoned to the "wise guys" who have no respect for other people's property. Is it because they didn't build it? They don't operate it?

The latest list of property stolen includes: two black, heart-shaped, inflatable bladders out of umpire chest protectors, approximately 20 in. x 20 in. (Have you seen any of these at the beaches — if so contact the police), three catcher's shin guards, a black wire umpires mask, several umpire hand-held "counters" for ball and strike and "out" indication, several boxes of pop corn and several boxes of potato chips. Property destroyed or stolen includes the door of the stand, two snap locks, two pad locks, two sets of hasps and hinges, and three pressure cylinders with drink syrup. (Tampering with these cylinders, incidentally, could have seriously injured the smart kids who broke them open!)

In 3 weeks time, day and night vandalism has occurred more than a dozen times. The police have been unable to apprehend the culprits. Will the citizens — adult and non-adult alike — please cooperate to see what they can do to keep the Ginn Field and West Side Field stands inviolate? Equipment has to be stored in a private home, now, and the refreshment machine has to be rendered inoperable every night following baseball games. It is certainly unfortunate that those who contribute so much of their time to our extensive Little League program are harrassed by the wanton acts of undisciplined children who seem to take delight in flaunting any authority, and trying to prove that no one can keep them out of anyplace they want to enter — this is a fine way to show responsibility they ask for.

The Time Has Come

Editor of the Star:

Shortly before his death, Dr. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. wrote the following of his Poor People's Campaign:

"We believe that if this campaign succeeds, nonviolence will once again be the dominant instrument for social change—and jobs and income will be put in the hands of the tormented poor. If it fails, nonviolence will be discredited and the country may be plunged into a holocaust—a tragedy deepened by the awareness that it was avoidable."

With each passing day, this message becomes more urgent as Congress continues to ignore the demands of the poor. The time has come for us to demonstrate our clear support of these demands to our elected representatives and to the government as a whole.

The problems can be solved but it depends on the efforts of Americans from all walks of life and from all income levels. The poor people are in Washington doing their part. There are many things we in Winchester can do to help them:

1. Read the "Report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders"—the report recommends every objective sought by the Poor People's Campaign.
2. Support the Poor People's Campaign with your dollars.
3. Write or telegraph your elected representatives that you support the objectives of the Poor People's Campaign. Identify yourself as a voter in his district.
4. Join the group going to Washington from Winchester on the evening of June 18 for the rally to be held on June 19. For further details about transportation, cost, etc., please phone me at 729-1579.

More Power To Joseph Knight

Editor of the Star:

I read the letter written by Joseph A. Knight Jr. in the May 30th issue and also the letters written in the June 6th issue which were critical of Joseph Knight.

I couldn't help think after reading the letters critical of his ideas that here were examples of the "smugness" he was talking about. I found the letters steeped in sarcasm! I found the letters insensitive! Because Joseph Knight had the courage to say what many others would like to say and dare not he becomes the victim of biting criticism.

What he wrote was true because smugness and superior attitudes do exist in this community against underprivileged groups. There is selfishness, hypocrisy, bigotry, and a smug attitude! The truth is not always popular and does hurt, nevertheless it is true. However, I do not think he wrote to the Star because he was trying to win a popularity contest! He wrote because he was concerned! The individuals who wrote in the June 6th issue apparently were not. The METCO issue is apparently important to this gentleman and if something is important to someone they fight for it. If they do not they become moral cowards! Joseph Knight was not afraid to speak out on what he really believes. Others just cower in silence. We need to speak out! We need to take a stand! This is no time to be a middle of the roader. More power to men loke Joseph Knight!

One lady said people who are committed to the cause of underprivileged people should move into their ghettos if they are really serious! This is the most ridiculous statement I have heard! We are trying to get people out of the ghettos! I sensed a great deal of sarcasm in her letter along with an insincere and unrealistic attitude. As if she didn't know, people move to Winchester for the most part because it is a very attractive community because of its natural beauty! It has a lovely downtown area, ponds, trees and lovely parks! It is a most beautiful town!

It is only sad that the hearts and souls of its residents are not as beautiful. Of course, I do not refer to all of Winchester's residents. I am specifically addressing myself to those whose attitudes made it necessary for METCO to turn us down! It is not realistic or desirable for the residents who are interested in METCO to move from their homes into the ghettos to help the poor. We can do much more by staying where we are and helping them out of the ghetto! METCO is a step in the right direction. It is only one step but to use an old cliche, "Rome was not built in a Day." However, to the poor it is a beacon of hope which they so desperately need that we participate in this program. It shows that we are concerned and this is what the poor people need. I am sure no one expects miracles overnight but it is high time that we started making commitments to the disadvantaged of our town, our state, and our country! To have the METCO program referred to by one lady as "tokenism rather than whole-hearted participation" is asinine!

Also another lady recommended another "more reasonable alternative solution other than moving" by sending his children "to a private integrated school." This too is unrealistic! It does not solve the basic problem! I also found that statement to be sarcastic and insensitive! This does not help the problem of the disadvantaged child as METCO would! It does not get to the core of the problem of the underprivileged. Also, I found that statement to be slightly ridiculous. Even though Winchester is an affluent community I would venture to say that there are many, many parents like myself with four children that would find private schools for our children to be an economic burden! Our children should be able to have classmates of all races in their public schools!

It is my sincere hope that the attitude of the people who are against METCO for whatever reason will find it in their hearts to make room for some of our disadvantaged children. That the barriers will come down and we will welcome them to share with us some of the advantages of this lovely town. It is our only hope for the future for our town and for our nation that all people gain equal opportunities and finally put an end to the frustration and anguish of the poor.

Very sincerely yours,
Janet L. Lindquist

Indeed Surprised

Editor of the Star:

As a new resident "surprised to discover so much wrong here" I have been quite hurt by Mrs. Marilyn Preston and like-minded citizens of Winchester who feel that I have no right to express my feelings about what my community should be. As a responsible adult however, I am compelled to do so.

I can well imagine the silence (including elements of sadness and shock) that greeted Mrs. Preston's proposal that all who disagreed with her racial attitudes leave town —perhaps moving to Roxbury. What can one answer to this sort of pathetic unreasoned hostility? Can any literate person still be unaware that what we are saying about the ghetto is that it is presently an unsuitable place for anyone to live because all public facilities including schools, parks, streets, police protection, recreation, stores, maintenance of public property etc., have been unequitably administered by the white power structure to the point where its citizens often live in degredation or despair.

No, Mrs. Preston, we don't want to live under these conditions any more than the citizens of Roxbury who are now fighting these injustices do. How could we afford our children an opportunity to participate in the cultural diversity upon which this country has prided itself by moving to Roxbury any more than we did by moving to Winchester. Don't you find this rather sad?

We bought our home in Winchester because we fell in love with the dear old house and believed that the town, as part of America would be struggling in these troubled times to live up to the teachings of its God and its Constitution. We were indeed "surprised to discover so much is wrong here" and so many have closed their hearts.

Sincerely,
Pat Globus

Assuming

Editor of the Star:

I have a great deal of empathy for your writer, Mrs. Marilyn Preston, who like myself is an aging distance from college, yet wants to be part of an on-going program in education and the welfare of the citizens of this democratic Christian Nation.

It is hard to disagree with her premise that an ideal solution to the many problems of integration might lie along a two-way street. Yet I cannot accept several of her proposals and conclusions.

For example, I can not observe four educated and dedicated adults, duly elected to the town School Committee, and equate them with coaxing teenagers, as does Mrs. Preston. Both may use the words "Everybody's doing it," but what does that mean? I can suggest that possibly the committee meant to reassure people cautious of change or newness that METCO is by no means a unique or untried program. Certainly there are other interpretations. Those sincerely interested ought to go to the sources and ask them what they meant.

Beacause I am unacquainted with Mrs. Preston, I have no clue as to whether her suggestions about newcomers and exchange programs were jabs, or to be taken seriously. One would answer a jab somewhat differently perhaps than a question born of serious concern.

Assuming that she is not a sarcastic person, but quite sincere, her proposal that members of the WCCA bus their children out of Winchester in order to substitute METCO children in their places here in town leads me to ask if Mrs. Preston has been listening to a substantial segment of the local population. I do not have the impression that her proposal for inviting in 200 Negro children, even on a two-way basis, would be acceptable to a portion of this town. It will help considerably however, if Mrs. Preston will elaborate on the details of her plan, so that we may come to understand one another better.

In any event, it is impossible to believe after the assassination first of Martin Luther King Jr., and now Senator Robert Kennedy, that any thinking American expects a small section of the white community to shoulder the responsibilities of the whole.

Lastly, I would like to state that I too feel Winchester is a desirable area just as I feel my family is desirable. In both I see the need for broad interests and contacts, generous hearts, and helping hands.

Law Enforcement What Is Needed

Editor of the Star:

The death of another public figure comes as a shock to us all. The question we are all asking now is who is next? It is certain that there will be others unless the root causes are attacked.

Unfortunately the voices crying the loudest are not even looking in the right direction when they cry "society" is to blame or guns are to blame. Society does not condone wanton slaying, and guns do not constitute the cause for killing. If we allow ourselves to listen to the headlines and think gun registration will solve the problem of anarchy in our land, we are just waiting for the next shock to hit.

The F.B.I. says that the vast majority of crimes which are committed using guns, use stolen weapons. This seems entirely reasonable, since who in his right mind would commit a crime of violence using a gun that could be traced to himself. Furthermore, crime has been noticeably reduced in several cities in which women took a publicized shooting class.

Anarchy is the avowed aim of many of the leaders of the riots and unlawful acts which are being committed in the name of justice. Public figures cannot openly preach defiance of law and order for their own particular cause and then expect others to obey the law when they also have a cause. Noted liberals publicly preach anarchy when they urge college students and minority groups to break laws to satisfy their own ends. The following are typical of liberal statements encouraging lawlessness. Adlai Stevenson in commencement address, Colby College, June 1964: "Even a jail sentence is no longer a dishonor but a proud achievement. Perhaps we are destined to see in this law-loving land people running for office not on their stainless records but on their prison records." Hubert Humphrey, July 1966, in New Orleans, saying that if he lived in slums, "I think you'd have more trouble than you have already, because I've got enough spark in me to lead a mighty good revolt." And even Robert Kennedy, God rest his soul, hastened his own end when in March 1968 he said: "The more riots that come on college campuses, the better the world for tomorrow."

And now what can we do? In an election year more than usual. Congress has the power to strengthen law enforcement by reversing many Supreme Court rulings favoring the criminal in court cases. The recent crime bill reversed several of the decisions. This is a good start and a letter to your senators and congressmen expressing approval of the bill will help them in their future deliberations.

Sincerely,
Jack A. Wilson

BOOK REVIEW

PAUL KLEE

Text by Will Grohman

Paul Klee, one of the great artists of the twentieth century, wrote in 1920:

> "Art does not reproduce the visible, rather it makes visible. Formerly we used to represent things visible on earth, things we either liked to look at or would have liked to see. Today we reveal the reality that is behind visible things, thus expressing the belief that the visible world is merely an isolated case in relation to the universe, and that there are many more, other, latent realities. Things appear to assume a broader and more diversified meaning, and often seem to contradict the rational experience of yesterday."

For those interested in non-representational art, the above statement will serve as an introduction to Klee's philosophy of art and a guide to viewing the 138 Reproductions in this book by Will Grohman. This book should not be confused with another book on Paul Klee by Will Grohman, which was published in 1954.

Paul Klee was born in Bern, Switzerland, in 1879, of a German father and a Swiss mother, both musicians. Klee himself was a master violinist, and although he drew from his earliest years, he had a difficult decision in deciding between music and painting as a life's work. At 19 he went to Munich and studied at the Art Academy under Knirr and later Stuck. He was a gifted and serious student. He spent a summer travelling in Italy.

Early in his artistic life he felt that his own approach to art would follow a different course. In 1902 he wrote, "Beginnings of a fresh approach to art, along with dim intimations that any ascent I might make would be dependent upon philosophy and human growth." In the development of his complex and diversified art, there were to be many stages and even styles of presentation.

In 1906 he married Lily Stumpf, to whom he had been engaged for six years. They moved to Munich, where she taught music. Their only son, Felix, was born there in 1907. Klee, in these early married years, took care of the household, looked after his son, and painted pictures in the kitchen.

In the ten years preceding the first World War there are many influences in Klee's works. Gradually color took a firm place in his landscapes and his work became more abstract and multi-dimensional.

During 1920, he was invited to teach at the Bauhaus, where he had stimulating contact with such artists as Kandinski, Feininger, Itter, Moholy-Nagy, Gropius and others. Lyonel Feininger has written of his first meeting with Klee.

> "The overwhelming impression we got of Klee, when we first met him at the Bauhaus in 1922, was of his eyes. They were brown, wide open, set extremely far apart beneath a broad forehead, they seemed to look through and part one. His jaw bones were rather large but his mouth was of the most delicate sensitivity . . .
> "Our memory of Klee in his studio . . . for hours he would sit quietly in a corner smoking apparently not occupied at all — but full of inner watching. Then he would rise and quietly, with unerring sureness, he would add a touch of color here, draw a line or spread a tone there, thus attaining his vision with infallible logic in an almost subconscious way."

Klee in his paintings and drawings was much preoccupied with seeing? To what extent has the picture, seen through our eyes, real plenitude and depth? Does it actually mirror the living ground of the experience which underlies the perception?

Grohman writes:

> "According to Klee, the optical-physical approach is outworn; now the artist explores the object's inner being . . . The result is pictures which differ from the optical image of the object and yet do not contradict it from the point of view of the totality, for all these considerations merge in the artist's eye. What is produced is not just a complex design, but a complex formal structure."

Klee taught at the Bauhaus for some years and then left to teach at the Dusseldorf Academy. In 1933 he was dismissed, for the Nazis felt his art was degenerate. The Storm Troopers searched his house. In December 1933, he and his family moved to Bern, Switzerland. He did not leave Switzerland till his death in 1940. Following an attack of measles in 1935, he came down with a rare disease, scleroderma, for which there was no cure.

Klee kept working until the very end. In 1930 he produced 962 drawings as against 291 works in color. During the course of his artistic career he executed over 9,000 works, about which 5,000 are drawings. His gravestone bears this extract from his diary:

In the here I am utterly incomprehensible for I dwell just as well with the dead as with the unborn
somewhat closer to creation than most but far from close enough.

75 Small Korean Boys and Girls Will Greatly Appreciate It . . .

Editor of the Star:

Greetings from "the land of the morning calm." Being in Korea is like living in a different world. Seoul and the larger cities have many of the modern facilities like running water and electricity, but the small villages are not as modern. Farmers plow their fields and travel to market with the aid of oxen. They work from dawn to dusk on their farms growing rice, potatoes and Kimchi.

The people of Korean farms do not have much, but make the best of every little scrap of food, cloth, and metal. The ingenuity of these people will never cease. About Korea, there are many orphanages. Some of the children have never tasted milk or eaten a full meal. Company C has taken it upon itself to help the orphans in many small ways. Many of my NCO's have gone to the orphanage and painted walls, repaired stairs, and replaced windows. We have taken candy and food out to the children. The children range from one to 10 years old.

We have run into a problem. The children are wearing old ragged and torn clothes. Our desire is to try and get some clothes for them. If there is any way possible that you could let the people of Winchester know of our problem, we would greatly appreciate your help. Any clothes that people no longer need can be used. Any size will immediately be put to good use. Perhaps some of the churches or schools would be able to gather the clothes on a Sunday. Be assured that 75 small boys and girls will greatly appreciate the hand-me-downs and old cast aways that no longer fit. The enclosed pictures will give you some idea of the condition these children live in.

On behalf of the officers and men of the company, I would like to express my sincere appreciation to all the people of Winchester.

The Tragedy Is Compounded

Editor of the Star:

The death of Robert F. Kennedy shocked an America that once again had mistakenly adopted a cloak of self-righteousness. But one wonders if Americans, and Winchester citizens specifically, have fully perceived the significance of the tragedy. Do we know the ideals for which he stood? Have we been tolerant of these ideals, or have we mistakenly been affected, either positively or negatively, by his mannerisms and dynamic personality. In short, are we mourning the loss of a myth or a man, a fiction or a fact?

Many have considered Robert Kennedy a radical whose type of politics meant a reversal from previous illusions of a now out-of-date administration. However, in a country where major changes in the fields of foreign affairs, civil rights, and poverty are desperately needed, Robert F. Kennedy accepted the necessity of such changes. If we also realize the necessity for such changes, then we can be justified in our sense of loss. However, if we feel a loss of leadership without accepting the ideals he held, then we have come to mourn the senator's death in a hypocritical fashion.

The tragedy is further compounded when we review the intolerance of many members of the community, indeed of many citizens throughout the nation. Thousands who were glued to their televisions and radios with lurid fascination were, only a few days earlier, cursing the senator's ideas, his wealthy background, even his long hair. In the final analysis democracy is inherently devisive. We may not all have accepted the Kennedy plan, but too many of us were unwilling to listen. Too many of us who are dedicated to values, assumptions, and programs of an earlier age saw Robert Kennedy as little more than an impulsive, imprudent youth. And all because he had a different way. We are living in the 20th century (and we must be continually reminded of that), and the 20th century demands not only new ideas, but a tolerance of new ideas. The Kennedy plan may not have been correct, but parts of that plan will have to be tested by experimentation. Winchester citizens did not fire the gun which killed a man and a leader, but they participated in the anger and intolerance that brought a sick man to the surface.

Sincerely yours,
Fred DeMinico

Marshal Horn Speaks Thanks

Editor of the Star:

The Memorial Day Committee would sincerely like to thank all those who participated in making the Memorial Day Observance such a fine success.

Our Board of Selectmen gave the Committee the utmost in cooperation in carrying out our plans. To Chief Joseph Derro of the Police Department for the largest turnout ever, and to Chief I. Francis Amico of the Fire Department, many thanks for sending detailed groups for this observance.

Our deepest appreciation is extended to Reverend H. Newton Clay of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church and to Reverend Bernard Hoy of St. Mary's Church for delivering the prayer and meditation at Calvary and Wildwood Cemeteries.

The Commanders of Veterans Organizations: John P. Welch, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Walter Appleton, American Legion.

Military units included a Naval unit from the U.S.S. R. E. Kraus (DD-849) led by Ensign Paul Ludwig and Co. C 101st Eng. Btn. from the National Guard Armory of Woburn led by Capt. Eugene G. Scoppettuolo.

In the music department we had our fine High School Band and Elementary School Band under the direction of Frederick J. Murray along with the Immaculate Conception Drum and Bugle Corps, escorted by their pastor, Reverend Herbert K. A. Driscoll. The Boston Fire Department Band was led by bandmaster William Bloof. The Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts had one of the largest representations in recent years. They were all received with great enthusiasm along the parade route.

A thank you to Arthur Collins who made the arrangements for wreaths at the two cemeteries and at Leonard Field, the Honor Roll and the McCall Junior High School Memorial.

I should like to thank all Veterans who helped in decorating the veterans graves. To Superintendent Robert O'Brien of the Highway Department, Herbert (Babe) Mullen of the Park Department, and Harold Moran of the Cemetery Department, thank you for your cooperation.

To all units which participated, a final thanks for a job well done. It is not our intent to slight anyone, yet, we feel that we should try to single out those organizations and individuals who contributed so much to the success of the parade.

A special thanks for the members of the Memorial Day Committee who devoted and contributed for the success of the day: John T. Collins Jr., Clement A. Landry, John P. Welch, Gordo H. Horn Jr., and Ralph Fiore.

Sincerely,
John T. Horn, Chairman
Memorial Day Committee

Only Means Left

Editor of the Star:

I wish to protest the suggestion of one of last week's correspondents, that the inclusion of middle and upper-class white children would automatically "upgrade" Boston classrooms—this is insulting and factually incorrect.

In the face of attitudes such as these it is no wonder that, to many inhabitants of our cities, riots and violence seem the only means left with which to communicate with these same self-satisfied middle-class suburbanites.

Yours sincerely,
Patricia M. Spencer

Applauds

Editor of the Star:

I applaud the School Committee's decision to again request METCO students for Winchester.

The tragedies of the past year have opened the eyes of many Americans to the urgent necessity for each and every one of us to do what he can now to improve the fabric of American life.

To assist 25 small children with pressing educational needs is something that we can do here and now. It is an opportunity for every resident of Winchester to share the treasure of his schools and of his caring.

Our bravest men have sacrificed all to show us the need for concern for others. METCO is not enough, but it is a beginning.

Mrs. Robert C. Bryant

Storm of Letters!

Editor of the Star:

I have written to our Congressman today imploring him to fight for a truly effective gun law before another tragedy rips apart one more American family. I urged him to support a bill as strong as the one for which our latest martyred victim of bullets was fighting.

It is reported that letters sent to our representatives asking them not to restrict the sale of guns and rifles outnumber those asking for adequate gun-control legislation!

I earnestly request that your paper solicit a storm of letters from every concerned citizen of this town. Let us exert the strong pressure needed to offset the unthinking, unbearably selfish opposition to a strict control of gun and rifle ownership.

Sincerely,
Forence D. MacKenzie
(Mrs. Michael V. MacKenzie)

Our representative in Congress is: Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald, 2448 Rayburn Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20515.

Meeting Place

Editor of the Star:

The pigeon situation under the railroad overpasses at Winchester Center is a disgusting health hazard. This has gone on unabated since the overhead was built.

It is my understanding that there has been much discussion on the correction of the situation between officials of the railroad and of the Town, with no action toward screening off under the girders to eliminate the roosting of the birds at those points.

May I suggest a meeting in the square under the overpass of lovers of pigeons and of lovers of cleanliness to consider a public subscription to cover the cost of eliminating these unsightly and unhealthy conditions promptly.

Sincerely,
William I. Gorfinkle

Sidewalk Art Show Sets New Records

The last good day before the rains and the fine exhibition of multi-media art works drew record crowds of up to near 800 persons to the Winchester Art Association's annual Sidewalk Show on Saturday.

Participating artists totalled nearly 100 with 72 persons exhibiting paintings, sketches and photographs and 24 in the crafts division. Children's entries numbered 156 works. Exhibitors, in addition to those from Winchester, came from 15 neighboring towns and one from Philadelphia. The show set records for most participants, largest and most exhibits, largest crowds, largest children's show, most paintings sold, most valuable painting sold. This year's show also attracted artists from a larger area than ever before.

Twenty-five large paintings were sold of the 360 works on exhibit—also about 50 smaller items. The most valuable painting was sold by MacLucas Ward of Lexington. Mrs. Rita Howard of Winchester sold the largest number—six flower paintings in oils.

MacLucas Ward (her given name is Mariwood) had the most popular painting of the show with her "Down East," and the third most popular with her "Mt. Desert Fog." She was also voted the most popular painter title.

Evelyn Carlson of Arlington was second most popular oil painter, Joseph Corish (a '67 winner) of Winchester was third. Mr. Corish's "Nor'easter" was second most popular oil painting.

Among the watercolorists the most popular was Thomas Morse of Wakefield (also a '67 winner) whose "Fresh Water Swamp" and "Anticipation" were numbers one and two in the water color painting balloting.

James N. Jones and Mary Jacobs, local entries, were adjudged by best watercolorists. Mr. Jones' viewers the second and third best "Sugar House" was the third most popular work in that category.

Sculpture, Crafts Winners

Crafts' winners were all from out-of-town. Balloting was taken by popular demand due to the high quality of these offerings and their popularity with spectators.

Among sculptors and craftsmen Arthur Brooks of Belmont was chosen best and two of his carvings, "Amazon Lady" and "Old Roman" were chosen best-of-the-show first and second place. Robert Wittemore of Billerica was second and Jan Hur of Arlington (who also exhibited paintings) third. "Red Clay Bird" by Hur and "Sea Forms" by Wittemore tied for third in the works vote.

Children's Show

A spectacular display which included 157 works of Winchester school children was a popular feature of the show. Works were prepared in a variety of media and most of them were attractively framed. Mrs. Dorothy Ponti and Robert Wittemore selected the following paintings because of the originality displayed:

1st Prize — $15 to Eilzabeth Hoffman aged 7 years for her "Tiger Cat"

2nd Prize — $10 to Holly Markin aged 9 years for her "Crayfish."

3rd Prize — $5 to Kathy Rubart for her pencil sketch "Tree."

Children's work left at the show may be obtained by calling Mrs. Richard Spencer at 729-0751.

Painting Raffle

C. Morgan and James Manley, both of Winchester were drawn on Saturday as winners of the painting raffle run over the past few weeks to benefit the new Cultural Arts Center. A George Carpenter (Ogunquit) oil, "Winters Down East," and a Joseph Santoro watercolor, "Early Winters" were the prizes.

A wide variety of works were exhibited in the crafts section. They included wood sculpture, metal sculpture, glass flowers, ceramics, weaving, stained glass, tray painting, wood plaques, pen and ink sketches, and batiks. Special recognition for the success of this section of the show goes to Mrs. Robert Johnson and her assistant Mrs. Andre Termeulin.

CHILDREN'S ART

The co-chairmen of this year's Sidewalk Show are Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Brown. They were assisted by the following committee: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Schell, Mr. and Mrs. C. Foote, Mrs. R. Detra, Mrs. James Gonyea, Mrs. William Lifson, Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. Wendell Irving, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Caggiano, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Corf, and Mrs. Andre Termeulin.

Fallout Survey In Mail This Week

There's something in the mail this week for most Winchester families. The Bureau of the Census has turned over to the Post Office Department about one million questionnaires for delivery to all home addresses in one-, two-, and three-family dwellings in about 40 major urban areas of Massachusetts.

The Bureau is taking a Statewide survey of homes to inform occupants of the amount of fallout protection their homes provide. Households outside the major cities will be visited by Census Bureau interviewers.

This home fallout protection survey is being conducted for the U.S. Department of Defense, Office of Civil Defense, with the cooperation of the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency.

John Blanchard, Civil Defense director, asks that residents watch for the official envelope, which will contain the questionnaire. The envelopes, ordinary business size, have printed on them in bold type the words "Official U. S. Government Survey."

Director Blanchard asks, also, that residents fill out questionnaires and mail them before next weekend. A postage-free envelope is provided.

The Board of Selectmen has urged all to participate in the Civil Defense preparedness effort.

"The Lord is my rock, and my fortress and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation and my high tower."

This verse from Psalms is part of the Responsive Reading in this week's Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. Subject of the Lesson is "God the Preserver of Man."

Selections from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following: "If we are Chrisitians on all moral questions, but are in darkness as to the physical exemption which Christianity includes, then we must have more faith in God on this subject and be more alive to His promises."

Did you lose any money today?

You did...unless you're heating with gas.

After 10 rate reductions in 5 years, gas is now the cheapest way to heat your home. And we can prove it.

If your oil bills are	plus this for your service policy and electricity to run the burner,	your total oil heating cost is:	But with gas heat you'd only pay:	So you'd save:
$150.00	$18.00	$168.00	$142.00	$26.00
175.00	18.00	193.00	165.00	28.00
200.00	19.00	219.00	188.00	31.00
250.00	19.00	269.00	232.00	37.00
350.00	20.00	370.00	320.00	50.00

Figures are based on the average gas customer having two gas appliances as well as gas heating.

Why be a loser.
Convert to gas heat for as little as $199.50 including normal installation.
And never pay another service bill on the burner.

An open letter

Filene's
Boston, Massachusetts 02101 Executive offices

To Our Friends in Winchester:

On Friday, June 29, 1968, Filene's will close its branch store in Winchester, after 28 years. We have enjoyed doing business in your pleasant community, but it has become increasingly apparent that a much larger store was necessary if we were to serve our customers well with the wide assortment of fashion merchandise Filene's has to offer.

Many of the Filene faces that have become familiar to you in our Winchester store will be on hand to greet you when our newest suburban store in Burlington Mall opens Monday, July 29. We'll be less than five miles from the center of Winchester and we hope that you will continue to regard us as a neighbor. We look forward to continued years of friendship.

Sincerely yours,

Richard Shapiro

If you're giving him a watch for Father's Day

ACCUTRON SPACEVIEW "H" Waterproof,* luminous hands and dots, sweep second hand, adjustable band. $150.00

ACCUTRON CALENDAR "AG" 14k gold. Waterproof,* sweep second hand, gilt or silver dial, luminous dots and hands, alligator strap. $225.00

Make sure it hums.

Then it won't be a watch at all. It'll be an Accutron® timepiece.

Bulova left out of Accutron the parts that make a watch run fast or slow.

The Accutron timepiece has no balance wheel, no mainspring, no hairspring. (Therefore no tick.) Instead it has a tiny, electronically-powered tuning fork. (That's what does the humming.)

The tuning fork splits a second into 360 equal parts. The best a ticking watch can do is divide a second into 5 or 10 parts.

Accutron time is so nearly perfect that Bulova guarantees monthly accuracy to within 60 seconds.†

It's a particularly good gift for the graduate who has everything except the right time of day.

Rehab Center Sends 111 to Work

Program completion exercises at North Reading Rehabilitation Center were held recently for 111 all of whom received graduation certificates and were honored for achieving specified goals.

"The center has met an important need for many adolescents and young adults among the mentally retarded since the program's inception in 1963 and hopes that even a greater number will take advantage of the center's opportunities," said Delilah Riemer, M.D., director.

Program completion exercises in the first year, she said, provided certificates for only 14 trainees. In the following three years, the totals increased to 48, 87, and 111 this year.

Graduates from the Center are working at a number of varied occupations, according to Dr. Reimer, which include nurses aides, custodial work, dietary aides, housekeeping, kitchen work, stitching, sewing, carpentry and painting.

North Reading Rehibilitation Center is a facility of the State Department of Mental Health devoted to habilitating and rehabilitating young persons who are slow learners. Some also have poor coordination or physical disabilities. The program emphasizes social, psychological, and academic development while the trainee prepares for a vocation.

Dr. Klemer Speaks At Washington

Dr. Donald A. Klemer, Winchester's new superintendent of Schools, was invited to the annual meeting of the George Washington Mothers' Association on the evening of June 4.

During a talk to parents, he presented some long range plans for improved educational opportunities for all children from kindergarten through high school. He indicated that great changes will occur on the educational scene in order to meet the demands of the future. He stated that each child must be given multiple opportunities to grow in accordance with his own pattern of development with special emphasis on academic performance.

Parents were reported to be well pleased with the general remarks that were made by this forward looking, young superintendent and to have left the meeting with high hopes for a bright future in the schools of Winchester.

Dr. Klemer, according to the Washington School parents, is beginning his work in this town with great enthusiasm. They are confident that his innovative and creative leadership will help Winchester maintain a top place in educational circles. They were also impressed with his sincerity of purpose as evidenced that night.

Cadillac
Cadillac Motor Car Division
Make a date to enjoy a "Command Performance."
Right now, your Cadillac dealer is inviting you to discover the most exciting motoring you've ever known—a "Command Performance" test drive of the 1968 Cadillac.
The excitement starts with the smooth, quiet, spirited response of Cadillac's 472 V-8 engine—the largest V-8 engine in any production passenger car. In the stop-and-go of city traffic or in cruising the open road, you experience an agility totally unexpected from a car of Cadillac's stature.
But Cadillac's performance encompasses much more than the liveliness of a great new engine. Its many power conveniences, variable-ratio power steering, and remarkable balance and stability make driving a Cadillac sheer pleasure every mile of the way.
And when you consider that a Cadillac returns a greater percentage of its original cost at trade than any other car built in the land, you'll see why your Cadillac dealer is so proud of the car he represents.
Why not call him and make a date for your personal "Command Performance" test drive before the week is out?
He's ready to talk business—in your favor.

Folloowing the ceremony, a reception was held at Monvale Plaza in Stoneham.

Having returned from a wedding trip to Nassau and Florida, the couple are residing in Arlington.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School as is the bridegroom. He was also graduated from Boston College.

Burns — Hunter

In a 4:30 o'clock ceremony in the First Congregational Church on June 8, Miss Diane Hunter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Joseph Hunter of 9 Bigelow Avenue, became the bride of Richard Francis Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Frawley Burns of 249 Mystic Valley Parkway.

MRS. RICHARD FRANCIS BURNS

The Reverend Dr. Oliver Powell and the Reverend Mr. John H. O'Donnell officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at the home of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory princess style full length gown of Moygashel linen with tapered full length sleeves, a high Victorian neckline banded with Irish lace, and a sweep of a train. A capped waist length silk organza veil was accented with matching Irish lace, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Martha Hunter, sister of the bride, was attired in a nutmeg linen full length sleeveless gown with a high neck, and tucked bodice fashioned with a white leather belt above the waist. She carried spring flowers.

Identically gowned were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Alfred Kettell of West Englewood, New Jersey, Miss Sherry Smith of Boston, Mrs. George G. Tooker of Brighton, and Mrs. Alan York of Manchester, New Hampshire.

Serving as best man was Charles E. Quinn Jr. of Houston, Texas, and ushering were William F. Burns, brother of the bridegroom, of Boston, Peter Coughlin of Newton, Jeffery R. Hunter, brother of the bride, and James vonRosenvinge of Winchester.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Boston.

The bride, who was graduated from Friends Select School in Philadelphia and Vermont College for Women, attended the University of Florence in Italy.

The bridegroom, a Boston College graduate, is presently attending Boston University's Graduate Business School.

Jack Daugherty Wins Little League TV Drawing

Mr. Jack D. Daugherty, 15 Wincrest Drive, Winchester, was the winner of the Magnavox console model Color TV set, top prize in the recently closed Little League Fund Drive. Mr. Daugherty was not home when the set was delivered to his home on Wednesday night, but Mrs. Daugherty was ecstatic when she heard the news. Her two small daughters couldn't wait to turn on the set and watch their favorite program in color, for the first time. Mr. Daugherty said that he had bought only one ticket — the first time that had ever paid off for him — from one of the Little Leaguers who rang his door bell on a Saturday afternoon.

Consolation winners of an "appreciation" Little League baseball were Miss Diane Meahl, 20 Blossom Hill Road, Mr. Wayne Mills, 74 Sylvester Avenue, Miss Lois Petitti, 62 Irving Street and Mr. D. H. Smith, 7 Garfield Avenue.

The drawing was held on Wednesday night at Ginn Field, before an anxious group of several hundred people. In front of the prize TV set, the two top Little League salesmen drew the coupons out of a tumbling barrel.

John Parkhurst, 21 Ridgefield Road, a member of the Wildcats was the top fund driver with 54 sales and he won a new bat plus the honor of pulling out the TV prize ticket. Bruce Walters, 69 Church Street won a Senior League bat for his second place sales of 50 tickets, and is already swinging it for the White Sox. Both boys drew the stubs for the consolation prizes, before teams or representatives of all Minor and Major League teams.

Edward Sandford Honored as Coach

LL Portrait: NL Red Sox Team

Under new Manager Fred McGrath, the Red Sox have had a battle to get some wins under their belt. "It's a little different than the Minor League," said Fred, "but I feel the Sox will gain confidence as the season goes along, and we'll be battling for the pennant, come June." Jeff Ashton is the teams leading hitter at the moment, and an excellent catcher. Rich Jacobs takes care of first base, and has raised his batting average solidly, lately. Doug Ewart is the mainstay of the pitching corps, and, when not hurling, can and will play any other position with skill. Girl Scout Diary

By Marie Began

Senior Troop 444 recently held a graduation for their 14 senior class girl scouts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Votaw on Oxford Street. During a candlelight ceremony each graduate was presented a single yellow rose and a copy of "Way of Understanding," a booklet containing poetry and writings on the spirit of scouting. Eight girls received 10 year pins representing 10 unbroken years in scouting. A supper in their honor was then held.

On the weekend following school dismissal, the senior troop is going on a camping trip to Martha's Vineyard. They plan to take a bicycle tour of the island.

At Camp Joy

Junior Troop 487 recently had an overnight at Camp Joy, Winchester, where they cooked and ate all their meals outdoors in patrols. They staged a variety show Friday night complete with a short play and much singing. Afterwards a story was read by one of the girls while everyone had a bedtime snack. Saturday morning a Girl Scout Wide Game was organized by a group of the troop mothers. The girls were tested on their first aid knowledge, taught how to use a jack knife, gained more knowledge on wood fires, and played a guessing game.

Brownie Fly-Ups

This is the time of year that Brownie Fly-Up ceremonies are held for all third grade Brownies entering Junior Girl Scouts. They receive their green wings signifying years in Brownies from their Brownie leader and are welcomed into Girl Scouting by a Junior Girl Scout troop whose leader pins on their Girl Scout pin. A flag ceremony, a candle ceremony, and refreshments are also part of their celebration.

On .Tuesday June 4 Brownie Troop 496 and Troop 468 held a combined fly-up in which their girls were received into Junior Troop 487.

On June 3, Brownie Troop 494 flew up into Junior Troops 514 and 511.

The junior troops displayed the badge work they had completed during the year.

Brownie Troops 520 and Troop 515 held their fly-up on Thursday night June 6, in conjunction with Junior Troop 501.

On Thursday afternoon June 6, the entire Brownie Troop 490 flew-up into Junior Girl Scouting assisted by Junior Troop 487.

Also last week, was the fly-up ceremony of Brownie Troop 523 and Troop 524. They were received into Girl Scouting by Junior Troops 513 and 544.

Arts Badge

Ten girls from Junior Troop 513 have been working on their drawing and painting badge under the direction of Mrs. Cora Martin. Their many paintings were exhibited last Saturday at the Winchester Artists' Sidewalk Show.

This troop has planned a hike and splash party at Cedar Hill, Waltham for June 15. They are also having a Mother's Tea on June 19 when they will award badges and show their year's work.

Drip-In Plans Bottle Pick-Up, Car Wash, Dance

Following their recent successful dance the students of the Drop-In Center are again planning ahead with money-making endeavors to help them carry their overhead for the current months.

This Saturday they are sponsoring a returnable-bottle pick up with Ted Webb as project chairman. They ask all householders with any redeemable bottles to leave them on their front steps—or give him a call at 729-0682.

June 21st will be another dance at the Town Hall. June 22, the next day, will be a car wash from 10 to 2 in the High School parking lot.

Hitchhikers In Mini-Skirts Can Mean Trouble

The Automobile Legal Association today urged motorists to ignore mini-skirted hitchhikers who, according to the ALA, are appearing in increasing numbers on the nation's highways.

"These young girls present quite a temptation to some male drivers, but only a mini-minded motorist would give them a lift," Philip C. Wallwork, ALA safety director, said. Mr. Wallwork lives here at 7 Jefferson Road.

"Although she may be just a foolish girl looking for a ride home, you can't be sure. To find out could cost you your wallet, your car or even your life." Wallwork said.

En Ka Society Hears Reports; $13,000 Raised at Street Fair

The annual meeting of the En Ka Society was held last Wednesday at the Winchester Country Club. Mrs. H. Gardner Bradlee, president, welcomed all the members and especially the new provisionals who were attending their first meeting. These new members are Mrs. Jacob Babakian, Mrs. Robert E. Durland, Mrs. William A. MacKenzie, Mrs. Byron M. Stites, and Mrs. Paul A. Walters Jr.

Street Fair chairman, Mrs. David F. Choate, received a standing ovation from the Society when the report was given of the En Ka Street Fair. Despite the weather, the Gay Nineties Fair raised over $13,000.

Mrs. Alan T. Buros, treasurer, had compiled a report of En Ka's contributions to various town organizations and charities over the past six year period. A total of $93,499 has been donated by the En Ka Society since 1962.

This figure breaks down as follows: Winchester Hospital, $19,438; Winchester Scholarship Foundation, $14,000; Winchester Athletics, $12,666; Winchester Boy and Girl Scouts, $3,875; Winchester High School, $3,579; Winchester Auxiliary Fire and Police, $2,275; Winchester Red Cross, $1,566; Winchester Recreation and Beautification, $1,422; Winchester Homefronters, $1,380; Winchester Friends of Band and Orchestra, $1,345; Winchester Art Center, $1,000; Winchester Youth Drop-In Center, $1,000; Winchester Visiting Nurse Association, 991; Winchester Home for the Aged, $606; Winchester Mental Health, $500; Winchester SPCA, $200; En Ka Civic Committee, $4,901; and En Ka Social Service Committee, $19,506.

Mrs. Robert J. Tesar headed the civic committee this past year. Among the services rendered to the women at the Home for the Aged are transportation to appointments and church, monthly luncheons are served by En Ka members, and each member of the Home family is remembered on her birthday with a home-made decorated birthday cake. Christmas gifts and Easter plants are also presented to each. The civic committee also has charge of the library book cart which offers patients at the hospital a selection of new books to be borrowed without charge.

Directed by Mrs. Philip P. Wadsworth the social service committee helps those who have need in Winchester. Working closely with the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association and the Welfare Department, En Ka provides necessary clothing, household items, and "special needs" which arise from time to time. Thanksgiving and Christmas food baskets are distributed as well as Christmas gifts. Last summer 53 children were sent to camp for a two week period.

The following slate of officers for next year was presented by the nominating chairman, Mrs. Earle F. Spencer Jr., and duly elected by the membership:

President: Mrs. Robert G. Ingraham

Vice President: Mrs. J. Warren Shoemaker

Secretary: Mrs. William M. Hopkins

Lynch Jr. High Dedicates Library

On Monday morning of this week the Student Council of the Lynch Junior High School dedicated the school library to the memory of Jean B. Pittman, former junior high school guidance counselor

Miss Pittman was born in Cambridge on the 20th day of July 1916 to Owen and Elizabeth Pittman. She was educated at Boston University receiving her bachelor's degree in social work in 1938 and her masters of science in arts in 1940. Nine years later she was awarded a degree of master of science in social work from Simmons College.

Miss Pittman was a social worker in the Beth Israel Hospital from 1949 to 1953, a counselor for the Greenwich, Connecticut, public schools from 1954 to 1960, and guidance counselor for girls from 1961 to 1967 at Lynch.

She was a member of the National Association of Social Workers and served as corresponding secretary to Delta Kappa Gamma, a professional association. This latter organization has made a contribution to the Sarah Chase Fund scholarship program in her memory.

Miss Pittman was a yearly contributor to the Scholarship Fund for the Episcopal Diocese and she quietly aided many needy families.

Frances Mulone, president of the Student Council, presented a plaque to Gardner Handy, principal of the school, to be placed in the library.

Chief Reminds Clothes Can Burn

"Flame...flash...fatality.

"That's an accident report in brief—an accident report about someone who didn't remember that clothing can burn," says Fire Chief I. Francis Amico.

National Fire Protection Association studies show that children are among the chief victims of clothing fires.

"The trouble starts when a child fails to keep adequate distance from flames, sparks—any source of intense heat. Among them are matches, smoking materials, stoves, heaters of many types, fireplaces, and outdoor fires.

"Spring clean-up, when there is much burning of rubbish in outdoor incinerators, is a time for parents to be especially watchful," urges the Chief.

"Sturdy play clothes of heavier fabrics offer some protection, because they do not ignite and burn as readily as light-weight, loosely woven matrials.

"But the surest protection," says the Chief, "is to teach children a wholesome respect for fire, and to make sure they understand how important it is to stay well out of the range of flames and sparks."

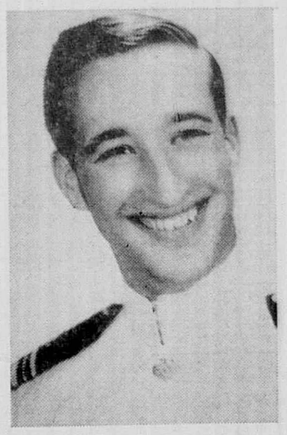
Ensign Young Graduated In Maine

Bruce Woodhull Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Young, formerly of Birch Lane and presently of Coral Gables, Florida, and Castillon, Spain, was graduated from the Maine Maritime Academy on May 30. He is also the grandson of the late Frank B. Kelley of Winchester.



ENSIGN BRUCE W. YOUNG

Ensign Young was awarded a bachelor of science degree in deck engineering and has received a commission in the Naval Reserve. He was named regimental adjutant of his class, with a rank of Lt. Commander-cadet.

Sandy, as he was known in Winchester, went to the Winchester schools through the eighth grade and then to the Huntington School for boys for three years. After moving to Florida with his family, he attended the Admiral Farragut Academy in St. Petersburg. He will join the maritime staff of Esso Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The new ensign's engagement to Miss Karen Smith of Lawson Road has been announced recently.

Frederick Fish of Winchester is a member of the committee for the annual Rose Show, June 22, at which amateur rose growers from all parts of New England will exhibit their choicest blooms. Jointly sponsored by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, The New England Rose Society, Inc., and The Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc., the event is open free to the public from 12:30 to 10 p.m. at Horticultural Hall, Boston.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Are you planning a vacation trip in the family car this summer? Not long ago, we were visiting Sid Troxley, who told us he was going to make a tour of several Canadian provinces. But Sid didn't know he needed a special Non-Resident Liability Insurance Card to comply with Canadian laws. Naturally, since he was a good client, we filled one out for him.

This made me think I should remind all of our auto insurance clients to check with us before leaving—especially if they are touring outside the United States. But even within our own country, auto liability insurance requirements vary. We would be glad to help any of our clients comply with the various auto insurance laws. If you plan to leave the United States, please give us a few days to get your card ready (or special insurance in the case of Mexico).

And before you leave, besides the usual precautions, please tell someone where you can be reached in an emergency! Finally, after locking up, leave a key to your house with a friend or neighbor.

Have a good trip! We'll be here to serve you—both while you are gone and when you get back!

Group to Join Poor People's Support Day

A Winchester group is included among the many groups from this area which will participate on June 19 in the "National Day of Support" for the Poor People's campaign to be held in Washington.

After a morning of entertainment at the Washington Monument, demonstrators from Resurrection City as well as their supporters from the entire nation, will march to the Lincoln Memorial for an afternoon rally. There will be no acts of civil disobedience or separate protests on that day by the Poor People's Campaign, and the demonstrators are expected to leave Washington by nightfall. Local residents interested in more details may contact Mr. Frank Hurley at 729-1579.

Today in Washington thousands of poor people — black, white and Indians — from rural poverty and city slums are dramatically petitioning national leaders for redress of their grievances.

They are calling upon the President and all Presidential candidates to endorse these basic principles of an economic bill of rights: every employable citizen has the right to a meaningful job at decent wages and, every citizen who cannot work be guaranteed an adequate income as a matter of right.

Demands upon Congress in this session are:

1. Recommit the Federal Government to the Full Employment Act of 1946 and legislate the immediate creation of at least one million socially useful career jobs in public service.

2. Adopt the pending housing and urban development act of 1968.

3. Repeal the 90th Congress's punitive welfare restrictions, which put a freeze on the number of families eligible for welfare aid, compel mothers of preschool children to seek employment and deny assistance to unemployed fathers unless they can produce evidence of previous employment.

4. Extend to all farm workers the right — guaranteed under the National Labor Relations Act — to organize and bargain collectively.

5. To restore budget cuts for bilingual education, Head Start, summer jobs, Economic Opportunity Act, Elementary and Secondary Educational Act.

Other demands include the institution of food distribution programs, farmer cooperatives and maternal and child health centers in poverty areas.

Kerner Report Seminar Subject

There were two adult seminars this year at the Second Congregational Church. The first adult seminar in January was on "Christian Education in the Local Church." The 12 adults who attended received insight into the way the United Church of Christ curriculum is constructed, its theory, and its theology. As a result, a letter of constructive criticism of the United Church of Christ curriculum was sent to the Board of Christian Education of the denomination.

The second adult seminar in May was on "The Kerner Report—Its Implicatioins For Us." The leader of the seminar was Charles Matthews, a history teacher at McCall Junior High School. The focus of the seminar was white racism and what can be done to meet the crisis in the nation. The seminar members noted that they are determined to move from study to action.

Board Of Appeal O.K. For Car Wash

"... The solution, we think, does not lie in 'freezing out' new businesses involving traffic so that the existing businesses will not be crowded; it lies, rather, in dealing directly with the traffic problem by means of suitable parking and traffic regulations, on a basis fair to all, and by effective enforcement of those regulations."

In a 17-page brief filed here this week, the Winchester Board of Appeal unanimously turned down the appeal of the Town's Planning Board and of six separate neighboring businesses that the Town reverse the action of its Building Commissioner William B. MacDonald in issuing a building permit to George D. Whitten for the construction of a car wash at 785 Main Street.

The decision came about as a result of a hearing held May 23 at which petitioners contested the permit as improper under Section 9-C of the Zoning By-Laws. At the hearing Chairman William G. Chapman of the Planning Board based his appeal on paragraph "C" of this Section which has to do with "injury to the safety" or "welfare" of the community.

Mr. Chapman maintained the traffic in this area to be extreme due to both the road contours and traffic volumes. His position was supported by Chief Joseph Derro, Police and Chief Frank Amico of the Fire Department.

Attorney Joseph E. Iovino appeared at the hearing for the area businesses and backed up the position and arguments of Mr. Chapman. He was retained as spokesman by the Humble Oil and Refining Company; the San-O-Cleaners; C. H. Symmes Company; the Lane Funeral Service; Kelley and Hawes; and the Winchester Brake and Wheel Service.

Attorney William J Speers Jr. represented Mr. Whitten, a partner of the Mystic Builders Supply of Holton Street, who will construct the new business. Application for the permit in the industrial district of the Town which does not preclude a car wash, had been filed by Mr. Whitten on April 9. On April 16 Mr. Iovino had filed a letter to the Board of Appeal stated his clients were "Aggrieved by the permit issuance due to the menace to public safety, health and welfare of the neighborhood." On April 18 the Planning Board also filed in grievance noting traffic congestion, safety and welfare.

1968 Summer School To Start Thursday

Director Thomas A. Morse announces that all students who have registered for 1968 Summer School are to report to classes on Thursday, June 27. The program runs through August 9 with classes meeting from 8 to 10 and 10 to 12 noon. Registration closes on Tuesday.

All classes are to be at the McCall Junior High School. Exceptions are Learning Laboratories II, Basic Primary Studies and Basic Intermediate Studies, to meet at the Tufts School; and Driver Training, in the drafting room of the High School.

Room assignements will be posted on Thursday and faculty members available to assist in directing students. The cancellation of any class due to insufficient registration will be telephoned to registrants in that course.

Mr. Morse notes there are still openings in Richard Cox's Creative Writing course, one designed to explore basic talents of individuals in this field and to be given for the second year. Also the advanced French course, Survey of French Civilization, under James Scott, has quite a few places.

Response to new Summer School courses for Grades 3 and 6 has been excellent, according to Mr. Morse. For the first time, by invitation only and tuition-free, third and sixth graders are being offered the opportunity to strengthen basic weaknesses to increase their potential for greater success in the next grade level. Studies have shown that these two grades are crucial points in the educational career of youngsters and additional work at these levels may avert future problems.

Basic Primary Studies and Basic Intermediate Studies are offered to specific students recommended by their teachers as needing additional help. Letters were sent to homes Thursday, June 13 and initial response as of Monday, June 17 included 15 registrations for Grade 3 and 10 for Grade 6. Each class will be limited to 30 students and will be taught by a team of teachers who are especially skilled in teaching of mathematics and language arts. The courses will be given at the new Tufts School. They have been designed as intensive, interim semester work to make more smooth the transition into the work level of the next grade.

Mr. Morse also reports that registration is going well for all of the reading courses offered and the dramatic courses and theatre workshop for children and adults.

In addition to the above mentioned programs, courses are offered in English, Reading, Fine Arts, Mathematics, Languages, Typing, Driver Training. Further information can be acquired through Mr. Morse at 1017 Main Street, 729-8130.

DR. BERNARD W. HARLESTON

Prof. Harleston Named Provost Of Lincoln Univ.

Dr. Bernard W. Harleston of 10 Crescent Road, professor of psychology at Tufts University and a nationally known authority on problems relating to Negro education, has been appointed to be the first provost of Lincoln University in Lincoln, Pennsylvania, it was recently announced.

Dr. Harleston, a member of the Winchester Citizens Advisory Committee on Secondary School-College relations and president of the Council for Community Action here, will leave Winchester in mid-August with his wife Marie (Lombard) and two young sons, to make his home in the university town about 38 miles south of Philadelphia.

In his capacity as provost he will be responsible for the faculty recruitment and development and related curricula matters affecting the quality of education at Lincoln, according to the University's president, Dr. Marvin Wachman.

"In recent years Lincoln has expanded its enrollment from less than 400 to its present 1,000 students. The faculty has increased from 38 to 108, this academic year," Dr. Wachman noted. "This dynamic growth has made the need for a provost vital to Lincoln's future."

In his present position at Tufts where he has taught for 12 years, Dr. Harleston has served on the President's Committee on Negro Education, as chairman of the Advisory Committee on Faculty Personnel, and directed the University's College Enrichment Program, as well as Upward Bound. He also served as president of the American Association of University Professors at that institution.

Two Hewises Present Anti-Metco Names Asking Town Action

Clara and Arthur Hewis appeared before the Board of Selectmen on Monday evening to present a petition requesting a special Town Meeting "to see what action the Town will take in relation to METCO, and any other School Busing Program."

The Board received the petition containing 254 names and transmitted it to the Registrar of Voters for verification of signatures. Selectmen rejected an appeal by Miss Hewis to call a Town Meeting on their own.

The Selectmen must act on the petition within 45 days of its presentation, according to Town Counsel Leonard Mullen. If a mininum of 200 names are certified, the Board will have at its "discretion" whether to call a special meeting, Mr. Mullen observed in a Tuesday interview.

He noted further, "Participation in the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity program is solely and exclusively within the jurisdiction of the School Committee. There is no question of that. Town Meeting's only effect upon METCO would be as an expression of opinion."

In 1967 a group calling itself the "Voice of Winchester" which included the Hewises demanded a Town Meeting. The Selectmen acquiesced and the resultant expression of opinion vote was 99-98 in favor of participation.

Following an open meeting on June 3 the School Committee had voted 4 to 2 to make application to the State Board of Education for admission of up to 25 METCO pupils in the lower elementary grades this fall.

Miss Hewis sought not to have the petitions filed as public records. She declared, "This year there have been strong rumors about which we found it necessary to inform the Chief of Police." Although she did not detail the rumors, she implied that they involved the possibility of reprisals against those whose names were on the petition.

Zoning Debated At Planning Board

A standing room only crowd of over 75 persons jammed into the East Room of the Town Hall Monday night to hear a presentation by a Belmont owner asking the Town to amend its zoning by-laws to allow a high-rise apartment complex of 1,350 units be built on Cambridge Street.

The Planning Board heard Jack and Sarah Moss, their achitects and attorneys. It must, by statute, acquiesce to such a request. It took no action and is not expected to do so in the near future.

Opposition expressed by many residents of the area involved was strong. Three residents made statements in support of the accommodation asked by Mr. Moss. Many others including some representatives of building and real estate interests were present. A show of hands, sense-of-the-meeting vote recorded a roughly two to one feeling in favor of the project.

Planning Board Chairman William Chapman conducted the meeting. But he and members George Redding, Otto Schaefer

Vietnam Honors To Lt. Marks

HONORED FOR ACTION AGAINST THE VIET CONG at his present SEAL team headquarters on the East Coast was Navy Lt. Frederick H. Marks. His commanding officer, left, pinned on the Foxcroft Road resident the Navy's Bronze Star medal, the Purple Heart and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry for action in November while serving on a SEAL detachment combat patrol.

Lt. Frederick Howe Marks, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Marks of 32 Foxcroft Road, was recently awarded three medals for action against the Viet Cong, presented at ceremonies at his present station at SEAL team East Coast headquarters.

Shot in the lungs and shoulder in action in which he led his men after a wounded prominent Viet district military leader, Nguyen Van Lam, the lieutenant was hospitalized in Japan some weeks before returning to the Chelsea Naval Hospital.

The citation of the Bronze Star Medal given him in the name of the President of the United States, reads:

"For heroic achievement in connection with operations against the Communist insurgent forces in the Mekong Delta region of the Republic of Vietnam . . . Lt. (then j.g.) Marks, serving as acting platoon leader of the Sixth Platoon, SEAL Team Detachment ALFA, led a combat patrol into a Viet Cong-controlled area in Chau Thanh District Vinh long Province.

"During the patrol, Lt. Marks' unit encountered and took under fire an armed Viet Cong. In the initial volley of fire, the enemy soldier was wounded. But before he could be apprehended, the wounded man succeeded in escaping into a dense thicket on the banks of a canal. Marks aggressively led his unit in pursuit of the fleeing enemy. Realizing the hazards involved in following the armed enemy into the dense foliage, he deployed his men around the thicket to cut off the enemy's escape. Then, accompanied by two members of his unit, Lt. Marks trailed the wounded man into a clearing containing a small house. Jeopardizing his own safety, Lt. Marks approached to search the house and, while doing so, was shot and seriously wounded by the well-concealed enemy.

REV. DR. J. ALLEN BROYLES

New Pastor For Methodists Due Here Sunday

The Reverend Dr. J. Allen Broyles was named last week at the New England Conference of the Methodist Church to be the new pastor for Winchester Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

Dr. Broyles, who comes from the Maine Conference where he has held several administrative positions, takes over this Sunday, succeeding the Reverend H. Newton Clay, retiring minister who preaches for the first time this Sunday as pastor of the West Roxbury United Methodist Church.

Announcements of both these transfers were made by the Bishop James K. Mathews at the area conference held at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

While in Maine Dr. Broyles served as chairman of the Methodist Board of Christian Social Concerns; the Department of Social Concerns for the Maine Council of Churches; the trustees of the Maine Christian Association of the University of Maine, and, most recently, by appointment of Governor Curtis, of the Citizen's Task Force on Intergovernment Welfare Programs which focused particularly on local general assistance.

Route 3 Crash Injures Six On Saturday

Six people were injured on Cambridge Street just north of Pond Street on Saturday afternoon in a two car collision purportedly caused by a third.

Most seriously injured was Carole Hunt, 26, of Somerville who was taken to the Winchester Hospital with a broken arm, several head wounds, and an injured back. Also treated at the hospital were the operator of the car in which she was riding, James F. Hunt, 57, of the same address, and James Hunt 3rd, 8, of Chelmsford.

Mr. Hunt was reported travelling south on Cambridge Street just toward Winchester from the Sears-Star Market Shopping area when he was forced off the road by a passing auto also heading south. He next appears to have lost control of his car and veered across the Route 3 traffic into the north bound lane where he was in collision with an open convertible auto heading north. The Hunt vehicle ended up about 15 feet in from the north-bound lane of the road, down in a gully, facing to the south.

Sachem Tennis Number Two In State Play

The WHS tennis team went to the wire in State championship play last week, losing to Newton South High School Friday to make it number two team in the State for 1968.

"They really did a great job all year," said coach Don Stangel. "They showed great courage and invariably fine sportsmanship.

"It was an exciting but exhausting year...we played 20 matches where two years ago when I first coached it was eight."

Mr. Stangel reported that the 1-4 loss to arch rivals Newton South on Friday which killed this year's chances for the top spot was really a better day for the team than the score shows.

Brad Lindgren took his match 6-3, 7-5. Captain Dick Kadesch went down 10-8 and 6-1. Mike Hills 6-2, 6-2 and the second doubles team went three sets.

Marijuana Plants Part Of Drug Haul In Monday Arrests

Winchester officers on Monday night arrested three persons here and on Tuesday charged them in Woburn District Court with violating the narcotic drug laws.

Monday's action came as a result of a month-long surveillance instigated as a result of information received by the Department. It took place in an apartment in a three-story Winchester housing unit.

Judge Francis Cullen charged with being present where narcotic drugs were illegally kept a 24-year-old Winchester man and his 22-year-old wife, residents on the premises, as well as a 23-year-old Wakefield man. The couple were also cited for growing and cultivating marijuana without a license and with possession of narcotic drugs.

Marijuana, Indian and Turkish water smoking pipes, and some 55 to 60 marijuana plants growing in a window box were allegedly taken in the raid.

In charge of the search were Police Sergeant James Cogan and Officers Richard Beaton, Donald Jackson, and William Nash. They were accompanied by Joseph Gately of the Federal Bureau of Narcotic and Dangerous Drugs.

Each of those arrested was freed by the Court on $100 personal bail. The case will continue at Court on Friday, June 28.

Saltmarsh Works To Get MBTA Aid

This is the week for MBTA action. At midnight on June 29, unless the Legislature passes the Railroad Commuter Bill, H 1753, or emergency measures not yet announced are adopted, Winchester will lose its commuter service.

The bill to allot to the MBTA $15 million for the purchase of railroad rolling stock and some rights of way, etc., has had initial approval from the House, but was reported yesterday to have been returned to he House Ways and Means Committee.

Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Winchester's representative on the MBTA Advisory Board is concerned. Harrison Chadwick, representative in the General Court feels that action will probably make the deadline.

Mr. Saltmarsh has recently shown leadership in the 79 town and city member Advisory Board in two ways, both looking to future operation.

At the most recent Board meeting held in the Parker House in Boston he initiated two motions, both passed unanimously. The first, co-authored by member Mayor John Slater of Chelsea, proposed that the group file to the Legislature requesting that the MBTA be allowed to receive monies from the cigarette tax to fund the cost of operating the Eastern Massachusetts routes outside the MBTA transportation district for six months.

Since its April 1 takeover of Eastern Mass, the deficit funding for the 58 cities within the MBTA district has come from the cigarette tax. However that for those outside, including Winchester, from now to October 1 (MBTA fiscal year close) has been left on the books to be picked by the separate municipalities. Winchester's deficit is estimated to be going to amount to $13,693. The success of Mr. Saltmarsh's motion is of considerable interest here.

The second, initiated by himself alone, was to "request that the MBTA be directed to commence an overall study of the Eastern Mass, Boston and Maine and Authority operations with a view to integrating and coordinating operations in order best to serve the public and to effectuate economies in operations."

Mr. Saltmarsh feels that now that the MBTA owns the Eastern Mass and looks to be going to take over ownership of the commuter portion of the railroads, it is imperative that it start its own overall study.

"If it can't be done now, it never can be done." he reports. "The whole picture must be coordinated — every mode of surface transportation in the metropolitan area must be considered together with every other — or we'll end up with a financial monster."

Everett Boy Drowns Here Sunday On Upper Mystic

On the Upper Mystic Lake on mid-Sunday afternoon an 18-year-old Everett boy drowned in view of many weekend, lakeside visitors.

Brian Arsenault of that town was swimming with friends when he went down about 30 feet off the shore in water at a depth of about 15-feet.

The Metropolitan District Commission Police assisted in the recovery and attempted unsuccessfully to revive the young man with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. They transported him to the Winchester Hospital, where he was pronounced dead at 3:45 p.m.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Aresnault, the young man was a recent graduate of Everett High School and was employed as a mechanic at the Central Motors Company in Malden.

The brief defines the issue this way: "The Building Commissioner issued a building permit for a car wash in the Industrial District. The Zoning By-Laws applicable to the Industrial District expressly permit 'any' business whatever so long as it is not listed in Paragraph B of Section 6 (and a car wash is not) or prohibited by statute or by some other by-law of the Town...There is a by-law...that says that 'no new buildings...shall be constructed or used...for any purpose which would be, for any reason, injurious to the...safety... or welfare of the community . . .' The question to be decided, as to which the appellants have the burden of proof, is whether the Building Commissioner acted in violation of this provision when he granted Mr. Whitten's application for a permit."

"We hold, unanimously, that (his action) was not in violation of Section 9-C. and was not otherwise unlawful..."

Reviewing the description of the proposed car wash, a full-service operation which will put cars through a washing apparatus on a conveyor line, the brief went on to review the hearing presentations quoting Mr. Chapman's calling the area a "distressed road" due to traffic and his noting it would be "punitive" to existing businesses to restrict parking in this area.

"Witness after witness at the hearing testified to the various ways in which the existing businesses currently cause traffic congestion," it summed up.

Continuing the reasons behind its decision, "As a result, if the causing of traffic flow or traffic congestion automatically equals an injury to 'safety', it is apparent that each one of the appellant businesses may itself be said to be violating Section 9C of the Zoning By-Laws...On what basis, therefore, are we allowed to single out one owner — whose proposed business will also involve traffic flow—and say 'You can't operate, but the others can'? It is clear, it seems to us, that it is not a matter of who comes first...If the existing businesses in an area are responsible for present unsatisfactory or marginal traffic congestion, they should not be able, it seems to us, to keep new businesses from coming in on the ground that the traffic situation which they have created would thereby become worse." "...The proposed Main Street car wash may or may not do a large business and may or may not produce lines of cars on Main Street of sufficient size and duration and frequency to rise to the level of a safety hazard, as distinguished from an occasional inconvenience. It would be improper for us to prohibit this business on the basis of our guesses, hunches and speculations as to what may or may not occur. Cf. Mahoney v. Board of Appeal of Winchester, 344 Mass. 598, 601-602.

"If traffic congestion does arise due to the car wash, and if it becomes sufficiently serious to warrant Town action for purposes of safety, the Selectmen and the Police Department can then deal with known facts by enacting and enforcing whatever traffic and parking regulations will be suitable and effective under the circumstances. It is certainly true that the car wash people will have no "right" to preempt half the street with lines of waiting customers. If necessary, a traffic regulation could be passed which would prohibit such lines and require that the cars move on. It may well be, of course, that the location of a car wash at 785 Main Street, in addition to the businesses already there, will necessitate, on occasion, more surveillance of the area by a traffic officer than is presently the case. However, although this will add to some extent to the Police Department's burdens — and we do not intend to minimize them — it does not constitute a lawful ground for entirely prohibiting a business that the Zoning By-Laws expressly permit in this District. Perhaps the By-Laws should be amended. That, however, is a matter for the Town Meeting and and not for this Board. . ."

Zoning

and Richard Sawyer made no presentation and very little comment.

In 1966 the Town Meeting voted, at the request of the Planning Board, to eliminate apartment house or group houses from all zoning by-laws until it could re-write the entire zoning by-laws (it indicated at the time that the job would be done "this year").

This is part of the background of discussion which took place Monday night as is the fact that the Board is still deep in its over-all zoning study with early fall the soonest it expects to be ready for Town Meeting action. A Town Meeting vote is mandatory on any change of or abrogation of the zoning laws.

There appeared to be some confusion among those participating in the hearing as to whether acceptance of Mr. Moss' request would open the door to apartment houses throughout the large, A-zoned area of this site (bounded roughly by Cambridge, High and Ridge Streets) or whether the Planning Board could in fact institute controls relating to density of population ratio to acreage, etc., which would allow this request to preclude others.

Presentation

Among Mr. Moss' points were his figures which had been drawn up to show an annual profit to the town of $982,000 from the $20 million dollar apartment complex as against one of about $50,000 from a multiple, single house development of houses selling around $40,000.

The largest factor in difference was reflected in his estimate that in 131 houses there would be a minimum of 200 students which would cost Winchester about $121,000 in schooling, whereas in the apartments there would be about 60 students costing about $37,000.

Road maintenance projections as presented by the appellants broke down to about $8,000 a year for a regular subdivision as against none for the apartments.

Auto excise revenue from the apartment — which would garage many more cars than the homes (described to be housed in underground parking areas) was presented as $133,500 against $17,500 for single homes.

Mr. Moss also made a point that his intent was "not to intrude on the nature of the site" pointing out that the great predominance of trees would remain with the apartment plan and would substantially hide the seven-floor buildings.

Among those speaking in favor of the project were George Barbaro, who felt it important the Town go with this plan in the interests of keeping the taxes down; John Mercurio Jr., who made the same point, emphasizing that young married persons can no longer afford to live in their home town; and James Cullen, who thought the plan "wonderful."

Opposition

Presentations against the zoning change were many. A sum of persons living in the neighborhood rose to object on aesthetic and traffic volume grounds, some decrying the "commercialism" and "downgrading" that would attend the move.

Kendall Spencer felt that apartment zoning policy be established "before we begin to apply it," and forcefully argued, noting he felt the tax computation figures to be one-sided. He also stressed the traffic potential and said "We've already seen a business grow from a garden farm stand into a nursery supermarket."

Robert Mirak also strongly challenged the figures, asking specifics on the school-child studies. David Ewing joined others in pointing to the vulnerability of the whole A-zone area should this pass. He asked if there could be any iron-clad restrictions and controls.

Mr. Moss said he felt that area could be "contract zoned" for protection; and, in answer to speakers' complaints about commercialism noted that "the whole area is now ringed by commercialism."

At the conclusion of the meeting he repeated that he had not just asked for the hearing for specific action but rather for a sense of how citizens felt—something on which he could base a decision regarding expenditure for future plans.

METCO

Chairman of the Board Charles Doucette Jr. noted that Chief Derro was investigating the situation. On Tuesday in response to a question by the Star, the Chief reported that he had not been able to substantiate any rumors.

Cost Question Raised

In explaining why she wanted a Town Meeting, Miss Hewis stated her opinion that since the Attorney General had said that tuition for METCO pupils may be waived, "there is now a tax problem for local towns. There are too many unanswered questions. The project needs a lot more discussion."

On the question of tuition payments if METCO children come to Winchester, Mrs. Barbara Walsh on Tuesday stated to the Star, "We applied for METCO pupils at the present tuition rates so that there would be no cost to the Town."

Miss Hewis also declared her belief that the School Committee had given the public insufficient notice that members were considering METCO.

Mr. Hewis followed his daughter in speaking. He traced the history of his opposition to METCO and related this to his opposition to a state-supported school in the city for urban and suburban pupils.

Referring to State imbalance laws he repeated that METCO action would not answer the total problem of the city.

He charged that since the first initial in METCO stands for metropolitan, "this means our Winchester School Committee won't set up a program of education in Winchester, A private organization will be the dictatorial master of public education. We will have no access to METCO records."

Declaring that "people with fraternal, social, and business ties may not like to stand up and be counted" he asked Selectmen to arrange for a town-wide vote. He suggested that an informal expression of opinion could be made in a vote on a Saturday afternoon at the Town Hall.

Also indicating his desire for action on the petition was Robert Jasse. Several others who had previously spoken out against METCO were present but made no statements.

Cynthia Barone Initiates Letters To Committees

Cynthia L. Barone, newly elected Republican State Committeewoman from Winchester, acting on her campaign pledge mentioned in the April 4th Winchester Star has mailed out a newsletter to district committee members.

"There seems to be a 'Communications Gap' within the Republican Party organization," said Mrs. Barone at that time, "and I have tried and will continue to try to do everything possible to help close the gap."

Mrs. Barone stated that if elected she hoped to make her district the best informed district in the state by preparing and mailing a District Newsletter to all elected members of the Republican Town Committees of Arlington, Medford and Winchester.

Last week Committeewoman Barone issued her first such newsletter, at her own expense, to the 150 members. It listed the recently elected Town Committee officers of the three towns, gave news of the first State Committee meeting on May 20th when Chairman Si Spaulding and Vice Chairman Betty Amesbury were reelected.

It mentioned a Conferama in Concord attended by Pearl Larson, Barbara Zovickian and Mrs. Barone from this town and also mentioned that State Committeeman Barnstead was elected as District Chairman in the State Committee organization.

Of interest to all Winchester people was the reminder that the reorganized 7th Congressional District now includes: Saugus, Medford, Malden, Melrose, Winchester, Stoneham, Arlington, Belmont, Revere, Chelsea, Winthrop and Everett.

The newsletter closed with several dates for Republicans, including...August 5, Opening of the Republican National Convention; September 17, State Primaries; November 5, Election.

"I hope to issue a newsletter several times each year or whenever there is enough news to warrent a mailing." said Mrs. Barone.

Mission Seeks Fruit, Flowers

This summer nine Winchester churches are participating in the Benevolent Fraternity Fruit and Flower Mission, now in its 99th year. Since 1929 a group of Winchester church women has aided some of Roxbury's elderly and needy people through the Mission.

Serving this year is Mrs. Neil Borden of the Unitarian Church, while Mrs. James Joslin is co-chairman.

Every Tuesday morning between 8 and 9 a.m. gifts of fruit, flowers, candy, or jelly may be brought to the Winchester Railroad Station to be taken to the Orchard Park Service Center in Roxbury. This project will be continued through September 24. Previously the gifts have been sent to Boston by train and transferred there by a trucking firm to the Service Center. This year, since it was impossible to find a trucking firm willing to do this, Mrs. Borden will deliver them personally in her beach wagon.

It is not necessary to contribute a large bouquet of flowers, as a few from many will soon make a large bouquet to be divided.

John Davis to Be Guest Preacher

On Sunday, June 23, the Reverend John Davis, director of religious education at the Baptist Church in Arlington, will be the guest preacher at the Second Congregational Church at the 10 o'clock morning worship service.

Mr. Davis is a native of Virginia and is presently a Ph.D. candidate in religious education at Boston University.

Lay Readership

At the Second Congregational Church this year two new features were added to the Sunday morning worship service.

In February, "Stump the Preacher" was added to the worship service in order to involve the church school children in the experience of worship. At a certain point in the worship service, they were invited to come forward to "stump the preacher." One of the children had an object in his hand (for example, a thumb-tack baseball) which the preacher had to identify and then improvise a religious or moral point about that object. A different child was assigned the object each Sunday.

In March, the lay readership was introduced into the worship service in order that both clergy and laity might be ministers of Jesus Christ. A lay person was appointed each month to serve as a reader in the Sunday morning worship service, which includes the leading of the responsive reading or the Scripture lesson.

If you are looking for a good attache case—we carry the National Blank Book Line. Prices range from $7.95 to $13.60. We also have Brief Cases priced at $6.00. At the Winchester Star.

Fire Chief Warns Against Leaving Children Alone

"With summer bustin' out all over, everybody wants to 'bust out' too. Unhappily this is the time when parents, in the urge to get out, too often make the fatal error of leaving small children alone in the house," stated Fire Chief I. Francis Amico.

"That quick shopping errand, that brief cup of coffee with the neighbor next door is all the time needed by fire to do its deadly work. Sometimes the children start the fires, playing with matches or stoves. Sometimes fire simply seems to choose this moment to strike," he observed.

The chief continued, "In the majority of instances, these are not cases of outright negligence, but lapses on the part of otherwise conscientious parents.

"Whenever you are tempted to run out for 'just a few minutes' without the children don't. Take them with you, or leave them home with a competent older family member or babysitter.

"Play it safe, and you'll never be sorry!"

Federal Taxes Cntinue To Jump Locally

Taxpayers in Middlesex County have been made aware of just how much they will have to pay this year toward the cost of operating the Federal government.

The cost is running high and the likelihood is, with the war in Vietnam continuing, that it will get still higher.

What part of the $67.7 billion in personal income taxes that the government expected to collect in April will be coming from local residents?

Last year, the figures show, they turned in approximately $548,760,000 in such taxes to the Federal coffers.

That is the amount, in round numbers, that was collected in the local area, as determined from income distributions and from a breakdown of the statewide receipts announced by the Treasury Department.

They show that the amount collected in personal income taxes throughout the State of Massachusetts totaled $2,040,000,000.

Some 26.9 percent of it was paid by Middlesex County residents.

The size of the current payment should be even larger, according to government expectations. It looks for an increase as a result of the improved rate of employment and the higher incomes that prevailed through most of 1967.

From preliminary figures on personal income levels during the past year, the tax returns from the local are are close to $604,185,000, a rise of $55,425,000.

The Administration's budget for the next fiscal year, which was submitted in January, counts on a continued expansion of the economy during 1968. It expects the personal income of the American people to increase by $48.7 billion, reaching a new high of $675 billion.

Many people under those conditions, will find themselves in new and higher tax brackets.

All told, individual income taxes are budgeted at $80.9 billion for the next fiscal year, which is $13.2 billion more than at present. This assumes that Congress enacts the 10 percent surtax proposal.

Personal income in Middlesex County will have to rise by about 19 percent during 1968 for local residents to meet their share of this increase without belt tightening.

Social Security Disability Help

Disability insurance under Social Security can be of particular importance and value to the younger worker in the family, according to John E. Lonergan Jr., manager of the Cambridge District Office of the Society Security Administration. Many young people have come to regard Social Security as a program for old people. Today over one million beneficiaries are receiving benefits, and this includes thousands of young adults and children.

Many people do not realize that Congress made some very important changes in the disability provisions of the Social Security law when they amended it in 1965 and 1967. For example, cash disability benefits can be paid to people if their disability is expected to last for at least twelve (12) months. In other words, these payments are no longer limited to persons with "permanent" disabilities.

It should be pointed out that although benefits may be paid to people who are not expected to be permanently disabled, there has been no change in the degree of impairment that is considered disabling. A person is considered disabled only if he is sufflering from a psysical or mental impairment so severe that he is unable to do any substantial work for which he is qualified by age, experience, and education.

If you have any questions regarding disability provisions under Social Security, please write to the Social Security District Office, 625 Mount Auburn Street, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02138—or telephone 491-0700. You may also contact the Social Security representative at the Woburn Library any Tuesday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Serving The Community For 87 Years

Editorials:

You Pays Your Money And You Gets No Choice

"Dear Folks: I would like to officially welcome you to the new 7th Congressional District in which you now live. I want you to know that I am happy to extend my offer to be of assistance to you in my capacity as your Congressman in this District."

"As I no longer represent Winchester. . ."

The first paragraph represents the exact words of a letter received throughout Winchester recently from Congressman Torbert Macdonald (a Democrat) and the second is a paraphrase of how Congressman Bradford Morse (a Republican) has been answering requests from persons in Winchester and other towns lost in the recent redistricting since last fall.

The Star gets more than one call a week asking why it still runs the name of U. S. Congressman Morse in its box for Winchester's legislative representatives when "Mr. Macdonald now represents us." Good question. But the answer appears to be that the paper would be wrong either way.

Congressman Morse, in a conversation this week from Washington, expressed strongly to the Star that he felt his actions to be based upon the legal readings of the law. His office had earlier read to us a letter from the Massachusetts Attorney General's office which noted that "by terms of the act, the (redistricting) took effect in July, 1967." But later in the letter, Assistant Attorney General Howard M. Miller added, in answer to a question, "If you meant that its (the act's) earliest application would be on those persons who are running for election for the 91st Congress, this is of course the practical consequence of this legislation."

The difference between "practical consequence" and that of a legal interpretation is hard to see. It would seem to us that practical action is what the Massachusetts Congressmen have taken in deciding to handle their present mail as though it were from the districts into which the 91st Congress will be divided. But — legally correct action?

The Congressman in explaining things used the words "tradition" and "courtesy." This approach is indeed understandable. Tradition is strong in Congress. Our Congressmen cannot be expected to buck it. This doesn't mean, however, that voters here have to like it.

"I agree with the Star that Representative Morse was elected for a two-year term and is legally and officially Congressman for this district until the new session of Congress meets next January . . . If he prefers to turn over his Congressional function in this area to Representative Torbert Macdonald, this is an informal arrangement between the two Congressmen," said State Representative Harrison Chadwick in response to a query on his opinion.

In March, State Elections Division head Norman Gleason, while calling the question "a two sided one with a two-sided answer," also indicated that no matter how the legislators are cutting up the pie, if he had to hold an election in the event of the death of one, he would have to hold it in the old 5th district lines.

Until the Attorney General's office or some other comparable authority calls the Star clearly wrong, we intend to continue running Congressman Morse's name in our "Representing Winchester" box. Just stubborn.

Year For Discretion

It was not unexpected that the unrelenting leaders of opposition to Winchester participation in the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity plan to bus selected Negro children into the suburbs appeared before the Selectmen Monday night. It is not surprising that they had with them a petition against the program containing 254 names. There are many more persons whose names did not appear who are from moderately to violently opposed.

Of those appearing in support of the petition, none was a new face. Of the arguments presented, none was new. The word "rumour" bandied as a fact, historically becomes one. The wording of the petition to include "other busing" has a potential for obfuscating the issue. Few are fooled.

The issue too, is the same as last year. The national climate is dramatically and portentously different. Last year the Selectmen went along with a request for an "expression of town feeling" in calling a Special Town Meeting, which could in no way legally affect actions of the School Committee. The action seemed warranted and the results probably helpful locally albeit clearly destructive to the town's reputation abroad.

This year it appears to be a matter of the "discretion" of the Selectmen whether or not they put the town through the same wringer. Discretion connotes prudence, caution. We hope they say no.

Editorial Comments

The speed of the spread of ecumenism continues to amaze. Retiring Reverend H. Newton Clay reports this week that the Methodist New England Conference held its ordination services at the new U Mass Catholic Newman Club altar this past week and that two priests actually joined in the ceremonies. Monsignor Joseph W. Lyons of Saint Eulalia's participated Saturday morning at the Church of the Epiphany when the Reverend Michael Jupin was ordained. And Dr. Robert A. Storer, Unitarian, says he has participated with priests in many wedding services in the past few weeks. As Mr. Clay says, the churches are just catching up to the people — who have wanted this for a long time.

The Spock trial has come and gone. In its wake it is of interest to remind ourselves that of the two best-known defendants one, a former Olympic oarsman, served as a lieutenant commander in the Navy in World War II. He also campaigned vigorously for Johnson in 1964. That was Dr. Benjamin Spock. Another left college to volunteer for the Army in 1943 later to serve as a paratrooper, a weapons instructor, then liaison officer. He went back to college and on to theological school only to interupt his studies again to volunteer for military service in the Korean War and work for the C.I.A. before going back to finish. That was the Reverend William Sloane Coffin Jr. Their actions on the present war, whether right or wrong, appear to have been based on convictions not lightly made.

Rain has soddened the past eight of nine playing days for the local Little League and during the good hours the Towns fields have been on round the clock duty. June 1967 treated us to much the same kind of weather. We can console ourselves. Icarus didn't collide with the earth on Friday, the prognostication of many soothsayers notwithstanding. A MIT class had, as a hypothetical exercise, prepared a plan to detour Icarus should it come. The plan involved blasting it with nine nuclear-tipped Saturn rockets but in reporting the mental exercise the Institute professor was quoted as saying, "Fortunately, our little plan was never needed, but we had our fingers crossed on Friday." We liked to think that it was the crossed fingers that worked.

The late Senator Robert F. Kennedy deserves high praise for the fine speech quoted by his brother at his funeral Mass. At the end of his speech, however, he had inserted a quotation which so appropriately expressed his thought that the public seems now unable to accept that he had borrowed the phrase. "Some men see things as they are and say why. I dream things that never were and say, why not," was taken by the late senator from the writings of George Bernard Shaw and so acknowledged.

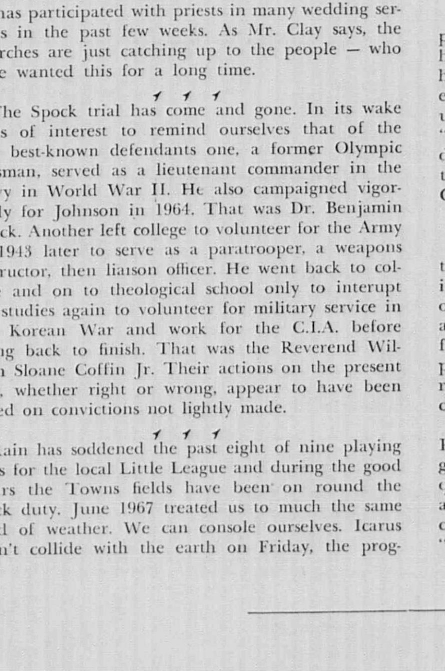
Americans are taking a second look at their "right to bear arms" . . . and those of other countries. For instance they are finding out that in Russia private ownership of rifles and revolvers is punishable by as much as two years imprisonment — though up in far north Siberia rifles may be bought with a special permit. Nobody in Britain may have a firearm by right. Getting one for hunting even demands a long certifying procedure.

In counteracting the arguments of the National Rifle Association wherein they disapprove of stricter gun laws, one might well paraphrase the above quotation and remark that some men are making a great fuss over the instigation of stricter gun control laws and say "why," and we would say, "why not?"



Vox Populi

Monday morning found Gildo Corsi of the Post Office staff putting the snorkel mail boxes back onto the islands in that area. To legalize them a "Keep Right" sign was all that was needed, effecting a one-way street on the south extension of Waterfield Road. Citizen complaint and citizen action brought about the change. Elaboration

Editor of the Star:

I welcome the opportunity to elaborate on the details of my proposals as requested by Lenore Frazier in last week's Star and commend her for her open-minded interest.

First, let us consider the ideal. Since I'm sure we all recognize that there are many degrees of commitment and non-commitment to solving the problems of integration, I propose that those people who want to be actively involved and feel deeply committed to the cause have the opportunity to participate in a truly meaningful manner by moving into ghetto areas. The introduction of white people of varied economic and educational levels would bring the diversity that is needed just as much in the ghettos as in the suburbs and would strengthen the demands of Negroes for the improvement of schools, housing, recreational facilities, police protection, sanitation services, etc. since white people of this high caliber have the know-how and power to influence the white power structure responsible for present inequities.

In turn, I believe that the inspiring example set by these dedicated people would undoubtedly begin to stir the conscience of their suburban friends who have not yet reached this high degree of commitment but who conceivably could be influenced enough by their example to accept a Negro neighbor. However, the heavy silence which greeted this proposal forces me to admit that I have to stand on my original statement that the number of whites who love their Negro brothers enough to become this actively involved is nil and another less idealistic way will have to be found.

This, of course, brings me to my alternate proposal which deals with the exchange of Winchester students for an equal number of students from ghetto areas. Again I would ask that those who feel most deeply committed and desire active involvement take the first step and set an example for others to follow. I fail to understand the reasoning of last week's letter writers who ardently support METCO and yet found my proposal for exchanging students on a voluntary basis so completely unacceptable. Perhaps these writers are unaware that the original METCO proposal read as follows: "We are committed to the notion that a metropolitan concept of public education must be developed as it has been and is being developed in other areas of public interest, and we will seek out and encourage any possibilities that support this goal." Because of strong public reaction this statement was dropped from the following proposals.

However, at the School Committee Meeting of June 3, Charles Harris, treasurer of METCO, stated that METCO does indeed stand for metropolitan. Since he is an officer of METCO, I, for one, would not question his veracity. I presume that the writers are also unaware that the Massachusetts Legislature has already voted for the establishment of a pilot metropolitan school which will bus volunteer students from stated cities and towns. (General Laws, Chapter 808, the Acts of 1967).

Since it is only a matter of time before metropolitan schools become a reality, my proposal would permit Winchester to take a position of leadership and meaningful commitment rather than our present position of being a follower committed to the tokenism of METCO. Does anyone really believe that 25 children represent more than a token?

As to the benefits to be derived from the presence of Winchester students in ghetto areas, again I suggest that the white parents of these students have the ability and power to influence significant changes for the better in the Boston educational system. In addition, I believe an exchange would remove the stigma of charity attached to the METCO plan and would help to foster some pride by indicating that the Negro child is worthy of recognition in home territory as well as in the suburbs.

As for Mrs. Frazier's concern that under my plan a small section of the white community would be shouldering the responsibilities of the whole, I can only make an educated guess. Judging from the letters to the editor and other news articles in the Winchester Star, it appears to me that if the supporters of METCO and members of the Winchester Council for Community Action joined forces to implement my proposal, a much larger segment of the community would be involved than our participation in METCO permits.

I believe that this plan, supplemented by a sustained effort on behalf of Fair Housing, would constitute a meaningful commitment for Winchester. Meanwhile, I suggest that those who are applauding the vote for METCO should wait until Winchester is willing to accept the Negro as a neighbor who can enjoy all the advantages of our town rather than as a visitor who can look but can't have!

A Parochial View

Editor of the Star:

This letter is with reference to your report of the School Committee METCO meeting published in the Winchester Star, issued for Thursday, June 6.

I believe I am the unidentified speaker whom you report stated it was ". . . not relevant to argue ideals and that the question now is what can the committee do right now." At the risk of appearing to argue a distinction that has no difference, I would attempt to set forth my remarks more fully.

I stated that I agreed completely with what I understood to be the basic premises of the comments of Messrs. Arthur Hewis and Vincent Galvin: that the fulfillment of the American Dream and the proper goal of the American system is full, complete and immediate equality for all people without regard to race, creed or economic level; and the METCO, at best, can have only a very slight impact on the fulfillment of these goals. I dissented, however, from their conclusion that these views justified a rejection of the METCO program.

The question which Winchester in general, and our school committee, in particular must answer is—What can we do in this situation at this time with regard to these problems? Viewed in this light, METCO which does represent greater educational opportunity for participating students should command our fullest support and our eager participation.

I further noted that it seemed to me previous speakers had overlooked the important consideration of the contribution the METCO students would make to Winchester. We intend to view our participation in METCO as a giving by us to METCO students and their families of benefits and opportunities to which they otherwise could not aspire. This, it seems to me, is a very parochial view: at the very least, the introduction of METCO students into our school system will bring some small measure of mixed racial and mixed cultural experience to an otherwise dead white community. More likely, the individual METCO student will bring to our community and our schools his own particular qualities of experience and personhood with which to enrich our own understanding.

There is an old saying: "Opportunity knocks but once; temptation beats the door down." It seems to me we have heard the unusual situation where opportunity has come knocking at our door a second time. It would be tragic for us to give an inadequate response.

Very truly yours,
Harry Downs

"Regret to Say . . ."

Editor of the Star:

I cannot begin to convey to you how deeply shocked and bewildered I am as a result of the assassination attempt and subsequent death of Senator Robert Kennedy. I am sure my feelings are shared by every American whoever or whatever he may be.

I am deeply horrified to realize that in the past five years, three prominent national and world figures have been felled by assassins' bullets. I am dumbfounded. How can such atrocities occur in our own front yards?

We must all realize that we cannot expect any possible future for following generations, if acts of violence like this and others are permitted to strike uncurtailed.

We must act accordingly, and we must act now. What must be done is to insure protection for all such important persons. I realize the latter is a reiteration of what has been said so many times before. But what I realize most is the fact that such acts of violence are still occurring, more so now than ever before.

I am only 19 years of age. Because of this I cannot help but feel that people might think I couldn't, or shouldn't be concerned with what is happening in this country today. Well, I am concerned, and quite frankly, I am afraid of what kind of world my children may have to live in.

I regret to say this, but your generation, it seems, has not left mine with much to work with.

I sincerely hope and pray that we all will be blessed with the power to insure that all the John Kennedys and Martin King Jrs. and Robert Kennedys not yet born, will live to help make your, mine, and their world a much safer place in which to live.

Sincerely,

Housing

Editor of the Star:

I am really furious with our Town that spends so much for beautification and other things and cannot see housing for our elderly who need housing badly.

I received a letter from our Governor last week — very polite but came to the point like this: try another town. After living in Winchester for 45 years you have to pick up stakes and move because Winchester doesn't want small units for our elderly. Even in the least expensive places of Winchester rents are $75 and then gas, light and heat. Heat is about $40 per month.

What chance does a poor person have with this kind of expenses? Social security is no good as it pays so little you couldn't even feed yourself on it. Your expenses would be as follows: rent, $75; gas, $7; light, $5, heat. $40 — adding up to $127. Add $40 for food makes $167.00. Social Security is $47.40 per month.

All our other towns no matter how poor have housing for their own.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Louise Chase

Cruel Facts

Editor of the Star:

The Department of Defense is presently embarking on an effort to revive the long-since discredited home-fallout-shelter program. In this connection, every resident of a one-, two-, or three-family structure has already received, or will shortly receive, a questionnaire regarding the characteristics of his house, particularly of the basement area. The replies are to be reviewed, and the owner advised concerning possible improvements.

Because the alleged protection offered by fallout shelters is entirely illusory. I have returned the questionnaire unanswered, with the following explanation:

"I have not supplied the information requested because your entire fallout-shelter program is totally irrelevant to the problems of the protection of civilians from the effects of nuclear attack. The cruel fact is that the so-called fallout shelter covered by your operations offers no protection against the real hazards of nuclear attack. As pointed out by many competent scientific authorities who have analyzed the problem (see, for instance, the testimony of Prof. Wm. F. Schreiber of M.I.T. before a subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee on June 24, 1963, reported in some detail in Stone's Bi-Weekly of July 8, 1963), the real hazards to the civilian population consist of fire and blast damage. The most carefully designed fallout shelter offers no protection against these hazards. Indeed, a fallout shelter would merely serve as a crematorium for those trapped in it.

"In advocating the establishment of fallout shelters, the Department of Defense is not only perpetrating a hoax. It is engaging in a dangerous and indefensible effort to convince the population that nuclear warfare is inevitable. Furthermore, at a time when all efforts should be directed towards reduction of international tension, the revival of the shelter program is an irresponsible gesture which can, and doubtless will, be interpreted as evidence that an exchange of nuclear weapons is a cornerstone of United States policy."

Sincerly

Kennedy Boys

Editor of The Star:

I wrote this poem a few days ago, and I thought maybe you could find room for it in one of your issues. I'm sure that many of your readers share the same feelings.

This country is saddened, and bitterness shows,
we lost two great men, as everyone knows.
These were two brothers, two men so great,
and it's so Ironic that they met the same fate.
John was our President, a great one we say,
until he was shot, that November day.
Bob followed by putting his hat in the ring,
then fate dealt him the very same thing.
The tears that were shed, I'm willing to bet, would float a few ships, and have more left yet.
They caught the men that fired the guns,
but, are they the only ones?
Who's really guilty of this great crime?
Let's find them, if it takes till the end of time.

BOOK REVIEW

by Katrine C. Laban
Winchester Public Library

BEFORE THE DELUGE

by Herbert Wendt

Paleontology is a baby science. It was taken seriously only in the last century. True, isolated scientists, among them the preternaturally curious Leonardo de Vinci as well as some ancient Greeks and Romans, investigated earth history, but were discredited. Religious doctrines and preconceived notions kept these men from being listened to and science died aborning for many centuries. We feel now that animal and vegetable life has existed for just the last third of the earth's history, which is now estimated at three-and-a-half to four billion years.

This book is extremely difficult to review. Each scientist had some new theory and fought the others like a prehistoric beast. Most (but not all) agree that a species died out not from some cataclysm (Noah has caused a lot of trouble) but from over-specialization. "Sooner or later...every family of animals dies out and gives way to new forms." Fritz Kahn writes.

> Are not one hundred million years enough for the dominance of a family and one hundred million years for the despotism of giants? Is not Olympus vacant now and the Parthenon a ruin. Why do you expect any stock to be immortal. Everyone knows that everything mortal is mortal. Families die out, so do nations, races: and so have the saurians disappeared. It only seems rapid to us because it lies so far back in the past and because in a hundred million years, one can toss ten million about as if they were nothing.

"A curious, somewhat comic hypothesis, ascribes the death of the saurians to the disappearance of the extensive jungles of fern." "Ferns contain purgative oils," Kahn explains, and thus with the disappearance of the fern forest the giants lost accustomed laxative. The great masters of the earth became indifferent about fighting and sex, and so they ingloriously died out from constipation (I think this rather pathetic).

There is really no need to talk of Darwin, so well known is he. He figures prominently in Before the Deluge. The less well-known scientists with their bitter fights, who often died of frustration and rage are the more moving characters. Oddly enough many of them were extremely wealthy, though one usually thinks of the members of their profession as poor and struggling. They could give time and money to their chosen field.

And still the discoveries mount and paleontloy changes. It is a gigantic puzzle and appeals to the adventurous and contentious.

Hospital Answers

Editor of the Star:

An article in a recent issue of the Boston Sunday Globe prompts me to write to clarify the misstatements and misunderstandings that the article created.

Contrary to the inferences expressed in the article, Winchester Hospital by its very nature has been socially oriented from its very beginning, accepting patients and selecting its employees without reference to race, creed or color. Winchester Hospital always has had employees from among the minority groups and, as with all employees, they are placed in positions appropriate to their education and experience, including the care of patients.

We have always been very proud of all of our employees who have served our patients and their families well.

Sincerely,
Reese E. James

In 1964 the Beacon Press published Dr. Broyles' re-written doctoral dissertation on the Birch Society, "The John Birch Society: Anatomy of a Protest" (revised paperback published in 1966). Research for this description and analysis of the leadership, membership and goals of this group carried Dr. Broyles from Gloucester, to Los Angeles, California. He interviewed leaders, members, and opponents of the Birch Society in 12 cities where the Society, with "its closed-minded and logic-tight ideology has engaged in essentially irrational community conflict."

The son of a Methodist minister and college professor and president, the late Dr. Joseph W. Broyles, Dr. Broyles was born in Johnson City, Tennessee. He has served Methodist Churches in Boothbay Harbor and Orono, Maine and has lived also in Minnesota, Alabama, West Virginia, Ohio, California and nearby in Newton.

The newly appointed local clergyman was graduated from the University of Redlands, Redlands, California in 1956 and met and married his wife while there. He came to Boston University for his theological education, receiving his S.T.B. from the School of Theology in 1959 while Mrs. Broyles taught in the Newton Public School system. Mr. Broyles continued in graduate study in sociology and social ethics at Boston University and received his Ph.D. degree from the B. U. Graduate School in 1963.

While attending B. U., Mr. Broyles served as Danielson fellow administering a prisoner sponsorship program, also as chairman of the University Student-Faculty Human Relations Committee, as president of the School of Theology Student Association, and as graduate fellow in Industrial Relations.

In the summer of 1964 Dr. and Mrs. Broyles attended the Christian Peace Conference in Prague, Czechoslovakia as official observers of the Methodist Maine Annual Conference. In the summer of 1966 they attended tne World Council of Churches' Conference on Church and Society in Geneva as official observers of the Maine Council of Churches.

Dr. Broyles is a member of the Americal Sociological Association, NAACP, and ACLU.

He is listed in "Who's Who In The Methodist Church," and in "Outstanding Young Men in America."

He will preach his first sermon at 11 a.m. Sunday on the subject. "Mighty Works of God."

Handbook Lists Medicare Benefits

Within the coming weeks, older people will be receiving a new copy of "Your Medicare Handbook," a new up-to-date guidebook on their Medicare benefits, how the program works, and how payments are made.

John E. Lonergan, Jr., Social Security district manager in Cambridge, said the new handbook highlights the changes enacted in the 1967 social security amendments, improving protection, and simplifying Medicare procedures. It has also been made easier for older people to read and understand.

Delivery of the new red, white, and blue edition to the 19.6 million Americans 65 and over will be cycled over the next six weeks, Mr. Lonergan said.

An index on the back cover of the Handbook going into the mail this week lists the changes in the Medicare program enacted in the 1967 social security amendments and a symbol "67" shows where they are explained on the particular page.

Another section of the new Handbook tells about the change in the law that makes it easier to claim Medicare benefits for doctor bills and other medical services. Before, if the doctor did not want to submit his bill to Medicare, the Medicare beneficiary had to pay the doctor before he could apply for the Medicare payment.

Richard Kasprzak To Exhibit Works

Richard Kasprzak is having an exhibit of his recent work at 2 Salem Street, Medford Square, from June 22 to June 30. Hours are on Saturday and Sunday 1 to 6 p.m. and on Monday through Friday 1 to 8 p.m.

RICHARD KASPRZAK

A native of Massachusetts and married to the former Maryann MacKenzie of Medford, he now resides and maintains his studio in Hampton Falls, New Hampshire.

The artist works in several mediums, oil, pastel, charcoal, and watercolors but has chosen for this showing only his oil and watercolors, giving a glimpse of his varied subjects — landscapes, seascapes, still lifes and his portraits, many of which he paints on commission.

He has studied at the Museum School of Fine Arts in Boston, The New England School of Art, individual studies at many schools and privately with the teacher and painter Jean Dana Bastian. He interrupted his work only for service to his country in Korea during the conflict.

When asked about his work, which will be on display in Medford, the artist said "owning a painting of one's own choice adds joy and pleasure to the lives of all of us. Each person should have the right to choose the work which most appeals to him or her. Too much emphasis is placed on what others judge the best, but I feel strongly in individual choice."

Works on display will be available for purchase.

There are presently three groups participating in the Living Room Dialogues, and others will be formed in the fall. All persons interested in hearing about the dialogues are invited to come. Those intending to come are asked to call Robert Abbanat at 648-0793.

Who needs it? Generally it is the rug or carpet dealer who has to offer loss-leaders to get business into his showroom.

More often than not, a sale is misleading because it involves merchandise that a dealer wants to close out or get rid of . . . sometimes it will involve prices that were originally inflated and are now back to normal mark-up.

Our business has been built on the premise that good service, quality merchandise and fair prices will always win out.

You can rest assured that when we use any one of the four words above that it will be for a very special occasion and well worth a visit to our showroom.

Speed Reading Available

Winchester Adults and High School students can now take speed reading in neighboring Melrose. The Scholastic Achievement Center offers the best of speed reading techniques, adjusting from sophisticated mechanical aids to complete independence from such. Today business expects its executives to be thoroughly informed and well read. Schools give more and longer reading assignments.

Most individuals find their reading skills are not sufficient to meet the increasing demands rising from the growing bulk of printed material they are expected to read.

Through proper training an individual can double or triple his reading speed, and find that invaluable "time stretcher" needed to keep pace with the present volume of written communication.

For further information and brochure, call 665-0227.

Crittenton Party

For the Winchester Senior Circle of the Florence Crittenton League Mrs. Paul E. Lamarche again this year opened her summer home at Wingaersheek Beach, Gloucester, for the annual beach party for girls from the Crittenton Hastings House.

On a fine summer day 36 girls, accompanied by a nurse and a social worker, enjoyed the beach, swimming, the box lunch and other refreshments provided by the league.

Town Gets $1,300 In Salt Case

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson announced recently that Winchester will be one of 243 Bay State cities and towns which will share $70,132.63 in damages recovered on their behalf from producers of highway salt. Winchester will receive $1,309.10.

The figure represents the Town's share of the $161,000 recovered by the Attorney General's office from the three major producers of highway salt for cities, towns and state agencies.

Checks for the amounts due the cities and towns are being processed by the office of the State Treasurer.

The case, settled prior to trial, was brought by the Commonwealth against Morton Salt Company of Chicago, Illinois, International Salt Company of Clark Summit, Pennsylvania, and Diamond Salt Company of Detroit, Michigan. Brought before the Federal District Court, Boston, the case involved price fixing on highway de-icing rock salt.

CAP League Schedules Division Championships

by James R. Steward Jr.

The Winchester Little League CAP League season is drawing to a close this weekend with Division titles at stake. This Saturday and Sunday at Ginn Field, all 10 teams will be in action for the finals of their 10 game season. Culminating some very exciting baseball, the three divisions will be playing a Shaughnessy-type play-off tournament to determine the winners of Divisions I, II and III. The players on the champion nines will receive an appropriate memento to wear with pride on one of their jackets or sweaters.

Division I consists of Tom McCarthy's Kelly Greens, Roger Stillman's Black Knights, Phil Stackpole's Miami Orange, and Jim McGoldrick's Chattanooga Maroons. Division II covers Don Bumiller's Cincinnati Reds, Bill Wolfe's Purple Ramblers, Bill Coppins' Green Phantoms and Jim McIsaac's Golden Eagles. In Division III are Al Kajander's Confederate Grays and Bob Paridy's Royal Blues.

In the Play-offs, in each of Division I and II, Saturday's games will pit the first and third place teams and the second and fourth place teams. On Sunday, the winners of Saturday's games will play each other for 1st and second position. In Division III, the two teams will play a home and home series to determine their champion. This past week-end there were some surprise upsets of teams which figured to be in top positions for the play-offs. Although the Kelly Greens withstood rough competition to remain at the top of Division I with a 7 wins, 1 loss record, last week's second place Black Knights took another loss and dropped to fourth, while the Miami Orange also lost another game, and the Chattanooga Maroons hit often and early to wind up in 2nd place. So it will be the Kelly Greens vs the Miami Orange and the Black Knights vs the Chattanooga Maroons. In Division II, the Cincinnati Reds and the Purple Ramblers ended in a tie for first place. On Saturday ,they will toss for first position and the honor of meeting the Green Phantoms, who upset the Miami Orange last week. while the "loser" of the toss will play the Golden Eagles.

Extra Innings

The games are fast and exciting as those who have watched the contests will verify. In two games, this past week-end, games were won in the last half of regulation time or in extra innings. In another game, the winner plated two runs in the first inning and then held off the opposition for the rest of the game.

Roger Stillman of 224 Ridge Street is the CAP League director, after taking over from George Tello, this year, and he has a great deal of enthusiasm going among the players, managers, coaches and those who have had the opportunity to see the games as spectators. It is hoped that many more people will come to Ginn Field this Saturday and Sunday afternoons from 1 to 4 p.m. to cheer on their favorites, or just to give encouragement to these youngsters. Mrs. Stillman has been bringing refreshments to the abandoned stand each day, so there will be plenty of thirst-quenching and hunger-satisfying "goodies" for all.

LL Portrait: NL Red Sox Team

Under new manager, Fred McGrath, the Red Sox have had a battle to get some wins under their belts. "It's a little different from the minor league," said Fred, "but I feel the Sox will gain confidence as the season goes along, and we'll be battling for the pennant, come June."

Jeff Ashton is the team's leading hitter at the moment, and an excellent catcher. Rich Jacobs takes care of first base, and has raised his batting average solidly, lately. Doug Ewart is the mainstay of the pitching corps, and, when not hurling, can and will play any other pisition with skill. Jimmy Dee, a lefthander, causes many batters to groan when he comes in to relieve a pitcher, while Mike Heffernan catches all kinds of pitches with ease when he is not playing center field. At the keystone, shortstops Wayne Dennis (when he is not pitching) and Tommy Brennan, second baseman, gobble up balls as if they owned the center of the diamond.

John Freiberg is a rare switch hitter on the team, and also carries a lot of savvy when he is sent in at shortstop, or the outfield. Joe Bowen plays third base with distinction like a coming Brooks Robinson. In the outfield, sure-handed catchers and strong throwers are Andy Samoiloff, Ricky Joyce (who also plays the infield), Bob Goldhammer, Gene Cormier, little Jay McGrath and Don Allard, who is being groomed for a pitching slot as the Red Sox gird themselves for winning contests in the League.

LL Portrait: Leopards

Last year's champion Leopards look like the team to beat, again, in 1968. Manager Steve Parker, though not blessed with too many returnees, has molded an enviable team out of his 15 players.

Ace pitcher Tommy Finnegan is undefeated in two years and plays a smart first base when resting his arm. Ben Kerman is also a first baseman, and a leading hitter. At second, Dave Curtis leads the team in hitting and team spirit. His partner at shortstop is Steve Baldacci (he also pitches), Mike Bergen (he also pitches), or Frank Cavaretta, and any one of them helps make many double plays.

At third base stands Steve Armstrong, whom nothing gets by, Billy McLean, on whom nobody bunts safely, and Frank Smedley, when he isn't catching. Frank Harrington does most of the catching, and his big bat has been booming all season.

Still another good pitcher is Hank Porter, who also plays the outfield with distinction. The outfield garden is expertly patrolled by stellar lefthanders Tommy Bird and Mark Wilhelm, while righthanders Hugh MacKenzie, Jimmy Saliba, and Dave Putnam (also a budding shortstop) hold sway in the field. The Leopards look like repeaters this year.

LL Portrait: Wildcats

John Coakley, the new manager of the Wildcats, says his team may not win all the marbles this year, but they are giving parent spectators a lively game to watch every inning they play.

Fred Kimball is the coach. On the field, the Wildcats are getting great catching from Jeff Christianson as well as fine clutch hitting, to go with the star pitching performance of nine-year-old Jay Estabrook. Jeff plays the infield when not pitching, along with first baseman John Parkhurst, another outstanding pitcher), second sackers Bill Piantedosi and Paul Petrillo, two clever pivot men, shortstop Phil Neergaard, the team's best hitter, and unusually steady Chris Gill at third base. Chris also plays second base with the best of them, even though a lefthander.

Peter Richmond is the slickest outfielder in the league, and combines his talents on defense with Ed Dunn, Paul Lee, Paul Obanhein, Dave Pettee and Alan Matthews, right field owner. Ready for outfield or infield duty are Bobby McCabe, Keith Perkins and Archie McDonald. Before the season is over many teams will bear claw marks from this hungry pack of Wildcats.

Among The Scholastic Award Winners

Parkhurst Holds Science Fair

On Tuesday evening, May 28, sixth-grade students at the Parkhurst School invited friends and parents to their science fair. The students had spent a month studying individually or in groups a subject which was of special interest to them.

Through the use of reports, charts, observations, and experiments carried on under the guidance of Mrs. Ruth Graham, science teacher, they performed demonstrations for the guests.

Parents also viewed the electricity unit just finished by the fourth grade. To show electricity at work bells rang, windmills turned, houses lit up, motorboats ran, lighthouses shone, drawbridges raised, cars ran around a track, several answer boards flashed or buzzed for correct answers, and a cuckoo came in and out of a small house.

The fifth graders made a backdrop which stretched the length of the stage and was almost the height of the curtain. Cut out and placed upon the black background were the nine painted planets with their moons, stars, asteroids, and comets. Mounted in front was a telescope on a tripod which belonged to one of the boys. It was pointed directly at outer space and placed beside the sign which read "Looking Forward."

TENNIS COURT RULES

JUNIOR BRAD LINDGREN compiled a 19-0 win record with WHS tennis team this year and in the State finals held Friday at Newton South against the defending champs, brought home the only victory in play for his team. WHS ended number two in Massachusetts for the year.

For information, please contact the North Suburban Y.M.C.A., 553 Main Street, Woburn, 935-3270.

Summer Bask'tball Opens Friday Nite

This Friday Night at 6 on the Ginn Field basketball court, all interested basketball players from junior high school age to alumni are urged to meet and begin the Winchester Summer Basketball League.

The high school team, led by next year's captain, Tom Workman, should be a strong contender. It is also rumored, however, that a potent alumni club led by such former greats as Rod Gay, George Neville, Stevo Fahey and new head basketball coach Vandy French will be on hand to provide intense competition.

After Friday night, it is planned to meet every Tuesday and Friday night, weather permitting, throughout the summer. Depending on the response Friday, plans will be made for future organization.

Yaz Trailer With Trophies Due Next Week

An "Impossible Dream" trailer filled with Carl Yastrzemski trophies will be parked at the First National Store's parking lot a week from today.

Sponsored by Hendries, Incorporated, ice cream makers in Milton, the trailer will be open for a very minimum amount as a Jimmy Fund benefit. The slugger's wife, Carol, will be on hand as hostess.

Among the top awards on display are the Most Valuable Player and the Triple Crown, which Yaz earned in his team's drive to the pennant last year. Also on display are the Hickok Belt, the Silver Bats of the League Batting Championship, the Silver Baseball earned as 1960 Rookie of the Year, and the Golden Glove awards for defense, earned in 1963, 1965 and 1967. Recordings will replay some of the exciting moments in the career of Carl Yastrzemski.

The trailer is equipped with color slides and commentary which tell the story of a boy from a Long Island potato farm and sandlot baseball teams, encouraged and guided by loving parents, who became 1967's Most Valuable Player. It tells, too, of his interest in less fortunate youngsters and his dedication to the task of raising funds for the Children's Cancer Research Center through the Jimmy Fund.

Power Windows Can Be Dangerous

"Strangulations and other serious injuries to children and adults as the result of improper use of power windows on passenger cars continues to be cause for concern throughout the country," Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin said recently.

Mr. McLaughlin joined forces with the National Highway Safety Bureau as he warned parents against leaving children unattended in cars with power windows.

Dr. William Haddon, Jr., director of the Bureau issued the following statement:

"1. Children, left unattended in automobiles, often play with power window switches. The results can be—and have been—death through strangulation, cutting off of or injury to limbs, and other damage to small children. Do not leave small children unattended in automobiles with power windows.

"2. Although some current car models are designed so that the power windows cannot be operated when the key is in the 'off' position, most cars do not have this feature. If your car's power windows operate when the key is off, have a mechanic or dealer adjust the wiring so that the windows cannot operate unless the ignition switch is on. This is a fairly simple and inexpensive modification.

"3. In purchasing a new car, ask your dealer whether the power windows can be closed when the key is off. If they can, have the system adjusted to prevent their being closed when the key is off.

"4. As with all other motor vehicles, cars with power windows should be left completely locked when not in use. This not only greatly reduces the chances of theft, but also prevents inquisitive children from injuring themselves with power windows, cigarette lighters, and other dangerous equipment, or by releasing the brake.

"Parents must be alerted to the dangers of leaving their children alone in cars with power windows, when the risk exists of playful closing of the window with resulting death or injury to the youngster."

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Gertrude Stein once wrote: "A rose is a rose, is a rose." And many people nowadays seem to feel with respect to insurance that "A policy is a policy, is a policy." But unfortunately, while roses may be similar, policies often aren't! They may look alike but there is often a vast difference in the coverages, and in the way they "work."

Some people are in the habit of shopping for "bargains"—and they measure the article or policy by price alone. This can be a costly mistake. There are no "closeout bargains" in insurance. Essentially, an insurance policy is nothing more than a contract for future benefits and services. It is worth no more than the company or agency that guarantees its fulfillment.

One major insurance company expresses it this way: "Insurance is like a parachute. There's only one chance to see if it works. It can't be taken back for alterations if it doesn't. A person must be sure of its dependability BEFORE he buys!"

That's why we say "a policy is NOT necessarily a policy, . . ." And we feel it is important that you know the difference!

If you would like to know MORE about this — and want DEPENDABLE insurance Service—we invite you to phone or stop by.

Prevention of Blindness Society Warns Parents About Fireworks

State Fire Marshal Ralph L. Garrett has forwarded to Fire Chief I. Francis Amico the following communication received from Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness:

Bootleg fireworks either sold or smuggled into Massachusetts from out of state resulted in two boys having eyes removed because of fireworks accidents occurring during June and July of 1967, according to a study released by The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc. The number of injuries due to fireworks last year were two losses of eyes; one loss of sight of an eye; five serious injuries to eyes; 28 less serious injuries to eyes.

Both cases of eye loss were due to injury by illegally procuring cherry bombs. These patients who had to have an eye removed surgically were boys aged 12 and 15 years.

Another 12-year-old boy still has his eye, but has lost all vision (including light perception) in one eye due to cherry bomb injury last Fourth of July.

The causes of injuries were: 19 from sparklers; seven from cherry bombs; 10 from other fireworks including one from debris from community fireworks display. Of these, six were admitted to hospitals and 30 were treated and sent home.

It should be pointed out that this study covers eye injury only and only those injuries serious enough to prompt a patient to seek care from an eye specialist. These figures might have been much higher but for the action of the Legislature in rescinding a law passed in 1966 which would have legalized some sparklers. The Legislature in June, 1967, restored to Massachusetts the Model Fireworks Law which it has followed for 25 years.

Governor John Volpe placed an emergency preamble on the law banning sparklers to make the law effective immediately and not in 90 days which is the usual practice in Massachusetts. It is impossible to estimate how many children may have been saved from eye injury and blindness by the Governor's action.

The struggle to save youngsters from injury and blindness due to fireworks has been spearheaded by the Massachusetts Safety Council, National Fire Protection Association, National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc., the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind, and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

The State Fire Marshal and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc., request that you do all you can to urge parents not to permit their children to buy fireworks through the mail, nor to buy any fireworks from illicit dealers who may sell fireworks in violation of the law, nor from out-of-state dealers.

Parents are further urged to teach and explain to their children the dangers of fireworks.

Winchester Women In Labor Force In Larger Numbers

In Winchester, there is less likelihood than ever of finding a woman at home during the daytime.

The chances are that she is busily at work instead, in some office, store or factory on in some professional capacity.

With each passing year, more and more local woman reach the conclusion that it is possible to fulfill their household responsibilities and still have enough free time to take outside jobs.

For the working wife, the two-sided role requires a rearrangement and adjustment of her household chores. The net results is that she has less leisure time but more spending money than before.

Details on this feminine surge into the labor force, as it affects the local area and other parts of the country, come from the Labor Department, the National Industrial Conference Board and other sources.

They show that, on the basis of the latest national figures, an estimated 33.4 percent of Winchester's female population over the age of 14 are now in the labor force.

In other sections of the United States, by way of comparison, the average is 37.4 percent.

In the last few decades there has been a vast change in attitude toward outside work on the part of women. Back in 1940 there were only 11 million women at work in the United States. Today there are nearly 28 million. They hold down more than a third of all the jobs in the country.

Especially in evidence is the rise in the number of working mothers. According to Dr. Kate Mueller of Indiana University, "if we were to look for the one person most affected by the social changes of the last quarter century, we would find her to be the married woman of 35 to 45, whose family no longer demands most of her time and who feels the push and pull toward gainful employment."

The proportion of working women in Winchester has been moving forward steadily since 1960, when the last census was taken.

At that time there were 2,290 local women in the labor force, equal to 30.5 percent of those over 14, as compared with the present ratio of 33.4 percent.

Life Here In 2500 B.C.? New Cusack Book Says Yes

The life of man in Winchester has been authenticated as existing back about 2500 B.C. and events yesterday in the Governor's Office of the State House highlighted the first publication of the story behind this revelation.

At 2:30 yesterday Governor John A. Volpe took part in a ceremony on the occasion of the publication of "Collector's Luck — Giant Steps Into Prehistory," a second private publication by Betty Bugbee Cusack of 2 Lakeview Road. The book, published for Mrs. Cusack by the Barnstead Printing Company of Stoneham, includes a chapter relating to artifacts of pre-history Winchester, found in the area.

Governor Volpe has announced his intention to ask the Legislature to create a State authority set up to investigate and protect the archaeological sites in the State, and to include parts of Winchester in this project.

Mrs. Cusack, wife of well-known Town Meeting member William Cusack and a mother of two sons and grandmother of six, first published "Collector's Luck A Thousand Years at Lewis Bay, Cape Cod" just over a year ago. Politically active, she has served as an Eisenhower appointee on the United Nations Children's Fund as well as being a Republican leader here and active in many civic groups.

The Winchester-found artifacts were among the collection which was on display at the State House yesterday. They include specimens which have been authenticated by Harvard, Tufts and the Massachusetts Archaeological Society.

Mrs. Cusack's book deals with a large sum of separated historical findings, including reproductions of magazine articles arguing the case for many pre-Columbus settlements in America.

Russell Collection

Most of her Winchester references relate to Indian artifacts all found by and belonging to Sherman Russell of 1 Wolcott Road and his father. These findings came to the author's attention by chance when she visited Macefield's on Winchester Place to have set an obsidian arrowhead found by a grandchild in the Southeast. Inquiring whether Macefield's had ever seen anything comparable, she was told that they had set something very similar for Mr. Russell. This alert put her on to the sequence of inquiries which led to the events yesterday.

"The Russells came to the Winchester-West Medford area in 1842," says Mr. Russell. "My grandfather married a Symmes and other members of the Winchester Symmes family have such artifacts."

"We lost literally bushels of arrowheads when old Pat White's barn burned. The area was loaded with artifacts and my great-grandfather found many of them also."

Some of the Russell family specimens can be seen in the Amherst Museum. But Mrs. Cusack has focussed local attention on them. And among those on display yesterday and identified by Dr. Maurice Robbins, director of the Bronson Museum in Attleboro and president of the Massachusetts Archaeological Society, were: — a projectile point resembling the type in use about 1500 to 1000 B.C.; — a tiny very early lavendar colored arrow head; — a polished stone perforator of undertermined age; — a leaf-shaped knife of tan Pennsylvanian stone; — a knife or projectile point probably archaic, to 1000 B.C.; — a half-grooved axe possibly of limestone dating about 2500 B.C. and — a gauge, or woodworking tool, common in New England in around 2000 B.C.

The Governor himself visited the scenes of many some of the findings, (many are in the lake and river areas of town), recently in company with Charles Doucette, chairman of the Selectmen, a representative of the Arlington Selectmen, Dr. Dena Dincauze of the Harvard's Peabody Museum and Mr. Russell.

"Giant Steps Into Pre-History" includes among its more than 120 illustrations clear photos of the Winchester artifacts. It also includes about 16 of Mrs. Cusack's own fine, pen etchings.

Incinerator Break Causes Emergency

Emergency dumping controls were announced Tuesday adopted jointly by the Board of Selectmen and the Board of Health following a furnace breakdown at the Town's incinerator.

The limitations, which "respectfully request the townspeople to cooperate" until the incinerator is repaired — estimated to be a time of four or five weeks — will prohibit all commercial trucking-load burning at the incinerator and will accomodate normal household dumping loads only.

Dump personnel will allow trucks to dump at the outdoor cage site and will supervise minimum controlled burning in the cage up until late afternoon aiming at completely extinguishing all fires by 4:30 p.m.

"We recognize that this will create a nuisance in the area and have made the decision reluctantly," said Dr. Warren Taylor, chairman of the Board of Health.

"The measures are emergency ones only," he continued, pointing out that the officials had but three alternatives: to close the dump completely; to contract with a neighboring Town's dump (if one could be found which would accept Winchester rubbish) by the truckload at a cost likely to be prohibitively expensive; and to follow the course chosen.

The emergency has come about due to the complete break down of one of the incinerator's two furnaces. An overload on the remaining furnace could cause a complete breakdown. Parts needed to repair the furnace have been ordered. They are not, however, stocked, but must be made for the Winchester incinerator.

The incinerator, installed here seven years ago, has been plagued with breakdowns over the past few years.

Rep. Chadwick To Run Again For Legislature

Representative Harrison Chadwick of the Massachusetts General Court has taken out nomination papers to run for his 12th term on Beacon Hill.

Mr. Chadwick, who also has served as the Town Moderator for 13 years, is a native and has made his home at 24 Everett Avenue much of his life. He went to the Winchester High School and then to Phillips Andover Academy before attending Harvard. A hockey player throughout his student days, he for many years coached the Winchester varsity.

Mr. Chadwick was associated in the automobile business, with General Motors Company in Michigan, until joining the Army in World War II which he served for four years. He was discharged as a captain.

In Winchester he was a longtime Town Meeting Member and has served also as director of the United Fund and of the Home for the Aged, and as an active memmember of the Epiphany church as church school head, vestryman for nine years and warden for four. He is presently a trustee of the Savings Bank and a member of the Monday Club.

Mr. Chadwick first ran for the Legislature in 1946 and has served the district since.

In the Legislature he is currently serving on the joint House-Senate Transportation Committee and as a member of the Computer and Federal Financial Assistance Committees. He is also a director and vice president of the Massachusetts' Moderators' Association.

Summer Theatre In High Gear For First Show

Winchester's new Summer Community Theatre got a dual send-off last week. On the two nights set aside for the tryouts for its first production, "You Can't Take It With You," it recorded 94 persons who showed up to read for 19 parts. On Saturday night it had a champagne-party launching of the venture.

Veterans of local theatre endeavors had never seen a turnout to compare with the enthusiastic applications for the cast of the show scheduled for July 24-27; and Jean St. Jean, director, is pleased with the group chosen which, in addition to Winchester actors, will have players from Arlington, Concord, Lexington, Melrose and Waltham.

The casting committee reported difficulty in making the final selections among the qualified applicants. Several stage workers also signed up.

Chief Derro Named To Head Mass. Chiefs

On June 20, Chief Joseph J. Derro of Winchester was elected president of the Mass. Chiefs of Police Association at a meeting held at West Dennis.

Chief Derro has been a member of the association for the past eight years, and has been active in several important committees, including the Public Safety Committee, and he has been a director for several years.

CHIEF JOSEPH J. DERRO

The Chief was appointed to the Police Department in 1928, and on May 24, 1936, was appointed a sergeant. One of the members of the Board of Selectmen at that time was the present Chief Justice, Raymond Wilkins, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

On October 26, 1949, Chief Derro was elevated to the position of lieutenant, which was followed by his subsequent appointment on April 8, 1960, as Chief of Police.

During his tenure of office, the Chief has been responsible for creating a juvenile department, an inspectors' department, and recently the position of safety officer was established.

The airman is a graduate of Winchester High School.

Celebration For July 4th

It'll be foot racing and food racing, balloons, magicians and a clown at McDonald (formerly Loring Avenue) Field on Fourth of July afternoon, from 1 to 5 p.m.

This year it's the Vets sponsoring the annual celebration for all boys and girls. Everything will be as normal as blueberry pie—that is, for those who can eat more than normal in the pie-eating race. Watermelon-eaters will contest, too —and boys and girls will separately vie for the 100 and 50-yard-dash titles, among others.

Post 3719 Veterans of Foreign Wars co-chairmen Ralph Fiore and Robert Swymer announce also a magician and dog act among the vaudeville presentations. All ages are welcome.

Assisting in arrangements are Post members John Collins, Larry Harrington, Robert Powers and James Rae.

'Neighbors For Open Winchester' Incorporate

NOW has just incorporated here. Neighbors for Open Winchester officially organized Monday night at the Unitarian Church for the purpose of furthering racial and intergroup harmony. The corporation will attempt to encourage black citizens seeking suburban housing to consider Winchester favorably.

NOW plans to offer financial and other assistance, in particular through second mortages and other types of loans. Those attending the meeting had pledged funds over the $4,000 mark requested less than one month ago by the Winchester Council for Community Action and the Winchester Fair Housing Association.

METCO Meeting Vote Delayed By Selectmen

The Board of Selectmen Monday night took no action on the petition received last week asking a Special Town Meeting to consider METCO "and any other school busing program."

They announced they would vote on the proposal at their meeting next week and they gave no indication of the direction of their decision.

Chairman Charles Doucette stated that the reason for postponement was the absence of member, Ralph Swanson. Members Paul Amico, John Sullivan and Edmund Williams were present but did not discuss this subject.

On the topic of the possible land takings at numbers 56 and 64 Fletcher Street, the homes burned out in the April fire, the Board went into executive session to discuss appraisal finances. A check on Tuesday brought the information that they intend to consult "immediately" with the Planning Board before any further action is taken in this area.

The Selectmen also:

—heard Town Counsel Leonard Mullen report on a meeting of the Board of Health earlier that evening at which the Board told of its decision, after joint conference with Boston and Maine Railroad officials, to recommend that Winchester undertake an anti-pigeon program which would involve the welding of bolts to the steel underparts of the overpasses at Bacon Street and Waterfield Road and the Center Circle and the application thereto of tough, fine plastic netting so as to preclude the roosting of the birds—such a program to cost the Town in the vicinity of $4,000;

River Breakthrough At Coffer Dam Site Floods HS Pipe Bed

The Aberjona broke through under the Skillings By-Pass bridge abutment on Monday afternoon flooding the construction area and the 35-foot conduit-pipe bed. It caused the road to be shut off and a delay which could go over a week in the construction of the new High School playing field area.

The accident occured at 2:15 Monday, without warning. Foreman Bob LeBlanc in charge of the job for the Richard White Company, reported seven or eight men to have been down around the abutment area when the waters started to pour around the temporary steel coffer dam.

"I hollered and they jumped for safety."

Mr. LeBlanc next raced to open the Aberjona dam at the Converse Bridge. "Without this relief, we'd have really been in trouble," he said.

Police closed the road for the night as the accident caused a section of the sidewalk at the bridge end to be heaved up when the earth embankment below gave way and some depression on the north of the road.

Two shifts of about 20 men worked through the night to get things under control, with four major pumps going. The Auxiliary Firefighter's Lighting truck was requested by the Police to aid, and in answer to a question about their help, Mr. LeBlanc exclaimed "Oh did they help! We really blessed them."

The accident occured in the area where the men are constructing the bed on which to lay the seven-foot conduits to carry the river waters underground and thereby increase the play-field area between the two tracks. Construction on the bed had progressed to a point where it had been graded and filled with gravel. Larger stone was to be laid next, and the driving of piles to support the pipes was continuing.

The Aberjona has been running in a temporary bed just east of the pipe-laying construction with its course coming back into the construction area just to go under the bridge.

The flooding, which filled the dried bed up to about six feet or over, and narrowly missed putting out of commission the pile driver sitting there, brought a layer of silt over the gravel. Before work can continue the silt will have to be removed and some of the concrete forms which were moved by the waters replaced.

"The rain isn't going to help any," remarked Mr. LeBlanc who was unwilling to estimate whether it will be days or a week or more before the job catches up to where it was before the accident.

To the frequently asked question of who pays for the loss, he indicated that the company itself must sustain it on a contract job.

MONDAY SCENE OF CONSTRUCTION TROUBLE

Railroad Service May End On Monday

Winchester's two jousters in the commuter service fight—Representative Harrison Chadwick in the House of Representative and Sherman Saltmarsh Jr., M.B.T.A. Advisory Council member—are up to their ears in trouble this week. If they lose the fight, the town's more than 1,000 daily commuters will be busing or driving cars to Boston.

Mr. Chadwick has been pressing his co-legislators all this week to get the MBTA Railroad Bill out of Committee.

On Monday he urged the bill—which authorizes the MBTA to purchase rail cars and rights-of-way from the B and M — be brought out before the stadium bill. He suggested, too, that the commuter bill was being withheld in committee on the theory that the 78 communities (which include Winchester) in the stadium-MBTA district might want the former and turn their backs on the railroads.

Mr. Chadwick was reached yesterday at 2:30 just after the stadium bill had been brought onto the House floor. He is opposed to the stadium bill and is going to "do everything in my power to get the commuter bill passed."

He felt the situation was becoming more tight, however, and pointed to the Tuesday news that Boston's Mayor White was against the bill as cutting down its chances considerably.

WATER AND SEWER BOARD NOTICE

As part of the Water System Improvement Program, a contract has been awarded to Mainlining Service, Inc., of Tonawanda, N. Y., to clean and cement line the water mains from Forest Street along Washington Street to Main Street, and along Main Street to Symmes Corner. This may result in discolored water anywhere in the system due to the reversal of flow of water in the mains. However, the purity of the water will not be affected. Work will commence on July 1, 1968, and will continue for approximately 60 days.

Pharmacies To Close at 1 On Sundays

Sunday closing hours are announced today by Winchester's six pharmacies.

Beginning this Sunday, July 1, and continuing through August, Winchester's drug stores will close down at 1 p.m.

A spokesman for the group noted that the pharmacists will, as usual, honor off-hour emergency requests.

New Police Cruiser In $700 Collision

An accident occurring to one of the Police Department cruisers on Thursday afternoon caused an estimated $700 dollars damage to the 1968 Ford official vehicle.

The accident occurred at 5:45 p.m. on Highland Avenue when the cruiser, driven by Officer John Frongillo, was answering a call to the Winchester Hospital.

The Police car was reported in collision at the intersection of Wolcott Road with a car driven by Mrs. Elaine Sawyer of 30 Bellevue Avenue when this vehicle stopped for a turn.

The Police car was extensively damaged on its front end.

This accident represents the third collision involving Winchester Police cars within the past year and one-half. In January 1967 a night accident caused the total loss of one Department cruiser.

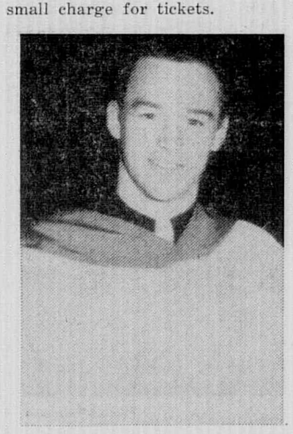
Christopher King To Give Concert In Methuen on 3rd

Organist Christopher King of 92 Hillcrest Parkway will give a concert at the Methuen Memorial Music Hall on Wednesday, July 3, at 8:30 p.m. He will be assisted by Christopher Gates, tenor, and Jonathan Ridpath, treble. The concert is open to the public with a small charge for tickets.



CHRISTOPHER KING

Mr. King holds A.B. and A.M. degrees from Harvard University and the associate degree of the American Guild of Organists. He is a graduate of Winchester High School. For the past five years he has been organist and choirmaster of Trinity Church, Topsfield, after serving previously at St. Michael's Church, Marblehead.

Mr. King has played many recitals throughout New England, including a concert last fall on the City Hall organ in Portland, Maine; a series of concerts in four states with soloists from Topsfield; and over a dozen radio broadcasts sponsored by the Boston Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. This past April he played a recital at St. Thomas Church, New York City. Mr. King is also active as composer and pianist; the first performance of his cantata "Gethsemane" was given by Trinity Church Choir in 1966 in the presence of Cardinal Cushing and Bishop Stokes and was later broadcast on the radio.

An unusual feature of the concert in Methuen will be a performance of "Abraham and Isaac," a canticle for tenor, boy treble, and piano by Benjamin Britten.

A wide variety of musical styles will be represented in the organ music to be played at Methuen. The program will open with the Chorale Fantasy on "If only Thou art with me" by Reinhold Seyerlen, contemporary of Reger and great-grandfather of Christopher King. The well-known "Toccata, Adagio, and Fugue in C Major" by Bach will follow.

Following the intermission, two contrasting pieces by Cesar Franck, "Cantabile" and "Piece heroique," will be heard. The program will conclude with two works by contemporary American composers, "Air with Variations" by Leo Sowerby and the stunning "Introduction, Passacaglia, and Fugue" by Searle Wright.

The bride wore a full length gown of ivory imported Alencon lace with a high neck and long fitted sleeves. The detachable cathedral length train, as well as the mantilla, had appliques of the same lace. Her bouquet was of cream-colored roses, with two orchids in the center, feathery greens cascading to the floor.

Miss Ronee Miller was maid of honor. Other attendants were the Misses Iris Garnett, Maxine Laser, Jane Rothblatt and Rita Rothblatt, the latter cousins of the bride.

Dr. Joseph B. Santo, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers included Klaus Boldt of Dusseldorf, West Germany; Norbert M. Goldner of West Berlin; Thomas J. Lo Bianco; and Jon Rothblatt, the bride's cousin.

Mrs. Santo was graduated this month from Finch College, where she was awarded a B.A. as an English major. In her junior year she was recognized by acceptance into Ineamus Meliora, the college honorary society.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, a well-known criminal defense attorney and author. Her mother, Emma Alden Rothblatt, is former deputy commissioner of commerce and public events and deputy chief of protocol of the City of New York.

The bridegroom is vice-president of Wusteria Inc., which operates fast-food restaurants and discotheques. He manages the Yellow Fingers Restaurant in the city.

His father is the retired president of a construction company.

The bride's going-away costume was a blue dress with an imprint of pikaka, the Hawaiian wedding flower. The outfit was accessorized in beige. After a honeymoon in Hawaii, the couple will make their home in New York City.

The ceremony was performed by the bride's uncle, the Reverend Leo S. Cannon, O.P. of Providence College in Providence, Rhode Island.

The bride wore a gown of ivory bengalese and organza with a silk illusion veil, and carried a missal bound in ivory and decorated with white roses.

Miss Ann Aldrich, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and Robert H. Bell of Cambridge was best man.

Mrs. Davis, an alumna of the Winsor School, was presented at the Debutante Cotillion in Boston in 1964. She was graduated from Radcliffe College, where she was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society, last June. She has studied at Oxford University and at Yale, where she is now enrolled in a doctoral program. Her father was general attorney for the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company and is now attorney for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York.

Mr. Davis was graduated from the Belmont Hill School in 1963 and from Harvard College in 1967 and is currently studying for a doctorate at Yale. At Harvard he was president of the Harvard Advocate and president of the Signet Society, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. His father is a public relations consultant for schools and colleges in the East.

Lynne Sauber, Pat Amos Visit On Exchange

Miss Pat Amos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Amos of 42 Vine Street, and Miss Lynne Sauber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sauber of 21 Warren Street, students at Winchester High School are participating in a student exchange program this summer.

Miss Amos will go to San Paulo, Brazil, and will live for three months with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Lamartine de Assis. Miss Sauber will go to Lima, Peru where she will be living with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Walter.

The girls will attend school and take part in guided cultural tours. The Parent Faculty Associations of several Winchester schools, the Senior High Student Council, and Rotary Club have contributed to see the girls on their way.

This program has been made available by the International Fellowship, which has sent many students abroad in the last 13 years and has received as many in exchange from South America and Hawaii. Students are sent to countries where there are established chapters of the organization.

Violins And Waltzes, Champagne, Show, Make Art Group's Boston Ball Success

Winchester's first formal Boston ball held in the Grand Ballroom of the Sheraton-Plaza at Copley Square on June 15 was a huge success. Approximately 250 Winchesterites attended the elegant affair organized to raise funds for the Winchester Art Association's proposed art center.

Upon arrival, guests were greeted by junior hostesses, comprised of 10 Winchester High School seniors, their escorts serving as ushers. Their second greeting was by waiters with large trays of sparkling glasses of champagne.

A quintet of ushers later escorted guests to their tables where they found large foil-covered flowerpots, containing not only colorful glass-like flowers, but three bottles of champagne. Bowls of Chinese fortune cookies with important messages for each guest added to the merriment of the evening.

After a grand fanfare, special guests — those who helped make the ball the success it was — were formally announced into the ballroom by Robert Magnusen. As the first announced couple, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Howard entered the ballroom, the orchestra played the Champagne Ball Waltz. The The Howards then started the evening's waltzing. Mrs. Joseph R. DeSimone had chaired the arrangements for the ball and she and Mr. DeSimone were among the 17 couples in all which were singled out for special entrance and greeted with much applause.

The music had a symphonic quality as Guy Ormandy had been asked by the chairman to include a violin section in his 10-piece orchestra. No one stopped dancing until the very last note was played at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

At one point in the evening there was an elaborate grand march which filled the ballroom and concluded before a small balcony where Joseph Corish's donated painting was spotlighted and displayed. Vincent Carr announced the lucky winner of the large seascape: Dr. and Mrs. Graham Hunt of Thornberry Road. Three consolation prizes — bottles of champagne — were won by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rindoni, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cirace, and Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Hoag, all of Winchester.

The lovely centerpieces which were designed, handmade and donated by Mrs. Byron Stites were sold at the end of the evening for a nominal price to add to the proceeds earned by the ball.

Special thank yous were extended to those who could not attend the ball but sent donations anyway. They were: Mrs. Benjamin Svetkey of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Davidson of Arlington, Mr. Charles R. Blyth, Jr., of Cambridge, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Cohen of Boston, Dr. and Mrs. Roy Allen Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. William D. Barone, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Longo, Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Woodward and Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Whitten, all of Winchester, and a most generous gift received by Mrs. DeSimone was from Dr. and Mrs. Freddy Homburger, Switzerland's Honory Consul in Boston.

All the Junior Hostesses and their escorts worked very hard and diligently at their special tasks which added a special dignity and pomp to the ball. They were: Paula Garcelon and Robert Hilfinger; Elizabeth Ewing and John Carroll; Debbie McLean and Jeff Schlener; Sharron Gerould and John Wisbach; Audrey Puffer and Jeff Buchanan; Wendy Nelson and David Cavanaugh; Janice Dignam and Jim Stabile; Linda Deleo and George O'Brien; Lynn Stites and Roger Fenn.

Proceeds from the ball will be announced at a future date. In the meantime, those who attended are reported already looking forward to next year's ball.

The Winchester Star

Editorials:

Apartment Dilemna

Last week's hearing before the Planning Board requesting a zoning amendment in the single home residence district "A" to allow a high rise apartment complex, put the spotlight on the need for Winchester master planning and on the complexities of the problem which are no doubt large factors in the slow pace at which the five-man Board appears to be getting it pulled together.

Citizen interest is peaked by the dramatic kind of concept attorney Jack Moss and his wife Sarah, Cambridge Street 95-acre tract owner, presented. But there was minimal citizen response in March when the Board went to the Town with a request for comments on "do we need more apartments?" Builders were present at the hearing presenting Mr. Moss's plans for six seven-story apartment buildings to house 1350 living units or about 2,500 apartment dwellers. It is reported some there were also from out-of-town. The most cogent argument for the plan was that it would bring in a far better tax return than would a multiple-home development, and cause the Town far fewer headaches.

But home owners in that area have bought and constructed with a commitment from the Town – this is a single-home 20,000 foot lot area. They do not want it "commercialized" or "downgraded." They are arguing the case not just for owners in the immediate vicinity, but for those in the total, roughly 800 acre single house "A" district, which extends along Cambridge south to Wildwood – up to Ridge and back to the Town's north border. A favorable decision to Mr. Moss would, theoretically, open the door to other large apartment complexes back up on the hill.

Mr. Moss and his architect were excellent salesmen and left very little to the imagination. We do not go along with the argument that an apartment complex need "downgrade" or "commercialize." Because they do not exist in the Boston area does not mean that in many parts of the country there are not extremely good-looking apartment lay-outs which appearance-wise are far better additions to the landscape than say, a group of houses built with no trees as in our Cross Street area. For our money the high, craggy contours in the Moss tract are ideally suited to high buildings – constructed of some warm-toned, blending material and put up so as to leave 90% of the trees. Take down the trees and add a bunch of ordinary homes and you would have an aesthetic effect far less attractive – one which might well cheapen the area to a far larger extent.

But the answer is not as simple as this. Although Mr. Moss's architect seemed excited about doing just what we would like to see done, there are no controls whatever to see that he would do this. And, legally, he could take down all the trees and build another colosseum-like structure – or maybe an acropolis this time. The hearing's first questioner – David Ewing – phrased it best: What protection can the Town have? For example, 15 years from now how would we know that (the builders) wouldn't add more buildings? . . . Can there be ironclad guarantees and restrictions?"

The answer appears to be no. And the answer as to whether or not the Planning Board could give an O.K. to the Mosses and then later deny another builder in the same area appears also to be no. Spot zoning does not, apparently, stand up in court these days. Today the Star prints below a letter from a correspondent who suggests an Apartment House zone with restrictions. It welcomes reports of experiences from other Towns wherein this problem has been satisfactorily solved.

Man Against the Miscreants

Although it wasn't held under the railroad overpass in the Center as suggested by a Star correspondent a couple of weeks ago, the Board of Health sponsored a meeting last week with the Boston and Maine Railroad authorities. Results: a man-against-pigeon campaign was hatched.

When the overpass was built more than 10 years ago it might well have been pigeon-designed, so perfectly does its underpinnings accommodate the nesting of the feathered foulers. It seems pretty outlandish that the Town must protect its millinery by constructing a coverall netting at the cost of $4,000 or thereabouts but it appears to be necessary.

Betty Cusack's new book out yesterday has among its historical miscellany a note about a special edict pronounced by the Town of Sandwich in 1695 relating to single men and blackbirds. Every unmarried man "should kill six blackbirds or three crows while single," and they "should not marry until they had done so." There are plenty of pigeons in Winchester. But are there enough single men?

Editorial Comments

Post 3719 VFW's "old pro" cook-out Saturday at 5:30 should bring crowds to the White Street Veteran's headquarters to get the family's supper out and honor a late departed valuable citizen. The affair has been scheduled as a benefit to help pay the way of the Paul W. Connors scholarship, given for the first time at the 1968 WHS graduation to Kenneth Cooper. The popular former WHS baseball captain, unmarried himself, had made the youth of the town his family by adoption and given much of himself especially in Little League and Babe Ruth League efforts. Townspeople in turn are asked to give so that a memorial scholarship fund may materialize.

* * * * *

Betty Cusack's new book, which highlights Winchester pre-history as evidenced by Sherman Russell's family artifact collection, sends one for another look at Chapman's "History of Winchester." Through the publication of "Collector's Luck – Giant Steps Into Pre-History," Mrs. Cusack has highlighted some of the evidence of stone-age Winchester days. In Chapman's the remarkable aspects of some of the Town's vegetation purport to take us back to pre-glacial days. A sum of plants found around Winter Pond and not found any nearer to Winchester than in Georgia or Central Illinois, are said to have been driven southward by the advancing glaciers and not suffciently hardy to hold again in most places where they had been, once the ice receded. Winter Pond however, according to Chapman and for a reason botanists cannot explain, was more hospitable to these declining species than many hundreds of other ponds.

Starred by the Star:

'If Everything Were Equal'

Editor of the Star:

At the Planning Board hearing last Tuesday, I spoke against the apartment proposal. After the meeting, I was questioned as to the reasons for my stand, and I realized that my main point of argument had been missed by many. I would like, therefore, to restate my position.

If everything else were equal, I feel more apartments in Winchester could be desirable. If everything else were equal, apartments on the proposed West Side Hill site might be the best utilization of the land. If everything else were equal, the greater net revenue to the town from apartments rather than single homes might justify the break with tradition.

BUT – everything else is not equal! This is an area which is intended to be single residences on large lots. The people living in the whole of "Single Residence District A," as well as those nearby, have assumed that their investment in their homes was protected by the zoning bylaws. If a zoning change is made to allow apartments on this one site, it would be virtually impossible to prevent the construction of others anywhere in the district, which includes almost all of the land west of Cambridge Street. I strongly object to this zoning change because of the massive effect it could have on the character of the town.

The proper way to introduce apartment construction in Winchester is to establish rules and regulations for an Apartment House Zone. This could ensure that heights of buildings, parking, open space requirements, access roads, etc., were controlled in the best interests of the whole town. Then, and only then, should the town decide what areas should properly be used for apartments.

With proper zoning bylaw control, applied to suitable areas in the town, I would favor some apartment construction. Indeed, with the proper controls, I would much prefer the proposed apartments on the ninety-five acre site to hundreds of single homes. The site is relatively isolated, is near a main street, and would be far more open and beautiful than with tract houses. But I cannot but object to allowing apartments on this ninety-five acres, if it also permits them everywhere else on the West Side Hill.

My main point should be clear. We do need apartments. But before anymore are built, we need good, impartially restrictive regulations on their construction. We need to establish in our zoning bylaws provisions for apartment houses. We then must determine what areas of town would best be developed by construction of apartments, as controlled by the bylaws. If this is wisely done, I believe apartments could, and possibly should be allowed on this site.

Very truly yours,
Kendall H. Spencer

Republicans Here Boosting New Unity Bank In Roxbury

Winchester Republicans are joining in a statewide program to encourage citizens all over to assist New England's first bi-racial bank, the Unity Bank and Trust Company of Roxbury, which has just opened on Warren Street.

Mrs. Victor H. Soucek has been named coordinator for the town's efforts. Mrs. Cynthia Barone, newly elected member of the State Committee from the 6th Middlesex District, is in overall charge of the District's efforts.

"Unity Bank is only the second of its kind in the country," reminds Mrs. Barone. "The Republican Party drive throughout the State in its support is designed to help the Roxbury people to help themselves."

"By opening checking or savings accounts there, persons here in town will be directly helping to increase the equity capital and augment credit facilities for the bank."

Earlier this month, Governor John A. Volpe and Josiah A. Spaulding, chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee, opened the first accounts at the bank and on May 20 the State Committee by unanimous vote created a $5000 savings account. The Committee hopes to keep demonstrating positive support of an important effort by a community to cope with its own problems.

Mrs. Soucek will be happy to provide anyone interested in participating with full particulars about the bank and the procedure for becoming part of this new venture. She may be reached by calling 729-3049.

New Book

Her material jumps from stories of Leif Ericson to archaeological findings in Alabama, New Hampshire, Ipswich, Middleboro and many other areas. It includes in its entirety the intriguing proposition of the American discoveries of the sixth century Irish Saint Beendan, written by William Verity for Extension Magazine.

The book-cover material includes these words by Dr. Robbins: "Mrs. Cusack has covered a broad range of interest. Her subjects range in time from the Paleozoic to the present and on to the future. In space the range is equally wide, from ancient Greece to America and on to the Moon. — In short this book is full of interesting people and their ideas. To find it all for yourself you would have to read hundreds of books, many of them, difficult to locate."

Coach

He went on to captain both baseball and basketball at Tufts and then to be junior varsity coach at Waltham High, also serving the faculty as a teacher of American history.

Vandy, as he is well known here, has been given a School Committee appointment which will keep him on the WHS social studies faculty and also have him continue as Student Council advisor. He holds a master's degree in education from Harvard University.

The new varsity coach made an early sports name for himself in Winchester, playing Little League ball on a team which reached the semi-finals in Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

The husband of the former Leslie Sanger, WHS '62, who is teaching in elementary schools in Lexington, Vandy has made his home in that town for the past two years. He and Mrs. French are moving to Winchester this month.

Jim Phillips, who has headed the Sachem five for about 15 years, will be on a leave of absence from 1968-69.

NOW

The corporation hopes to work closely with Route 128 personnel officers, realtors, and Fair Housing, Inc. It also plans to invest part of its funds directly in the Inner City.

A board of directors was elected including Chairman Edward R. Haddad, a realtor; treasurer Peter W. Neurath, assistant professor of medicine at Tufts; Daniel Hritzay an Avco Corporation executive was elected vice chairman, and Allan G. Rodgers, of the Boston law firm of Hill and Barlow was elected secretary of the corporation.

Other members of the board of directors are: Monsignor Joseph W. Lyons, pastor of St. Eulalia's Church; Reverend Harold Ross, Jr., pastor of St. John's Baptist Church, Woburn and executive director of the Boston Association for Better Housing, at Freedom House; Mrs. Richard Hillger; Richard L. Banks, Esq., a lawyer from Boston; Frederick Rozelle, Jr., vice president of the Old Colony Trust Co.; Robert F. Jasse, a manufacturer; and Mrs. Alvin Hendler who is associated with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination. Mrs. Wallace McDonald, head of the Social Action group of the First Congregational Church of Winchester, chaired the meeting and was also elected to the board.

One of the first Inner City contributions voted through the NOW Corporation by personal designated gifts is one to Fair Housing, Inc. for their program of assisting large families to become homeowners rather than renters.

The one hundred dollar redeemable bonds planned to be issued by the Corporation appear to have attracted the widest support by the initial subscribers, according to the treasurer, Mr. Neurath. It was pointed out by Mr. Neurath that the activities of the Corporation are directed toward putting an end to white supervised "charity" and "welfare" and working toward financial backing of black groups and individuals on a business basis. A town-wide campaign to recruit members and to raise funds was initiated at the meeting.

Other suburbs actively considering similar plans to those of NOW are Melrose, Belmont and Brookline.

Summer Theatre

Bumper stickers of orange and green boosting the theater group, posters and a flag have added to the push the interdepartmental-created group is getting. The Tony Carrigans hosted the party Saturday which gave planners for WSCT a start in the spirit of summertime activities.

It is not too late to enroll for the theatre workshop course being offered in conjunction with the production. The first class will be held July 1, at 7:15 at WHS. The enrollment fee is very moderate. Any questions should be directed to WSCT, 71 Mt. Vernon Street, or Tom Morse, coordinator of special programs, 1017 Main Street.

The focus of future activities will be on an evening of two one-act plays to be presented in August. Tryouts will be held July 8 and 9 at 7:45 in the WHS auditorium. It is hoped that an even larger turnout will be present for the casting of these two plays.

Railroad

Mr. Saltmarsh meets tomorrow morning with the full MBTA Advisory Board. He agrees with Judge Charles Cabot, chairman of the MBTA, that if the Legislature does not vote the commuter bill, the Board can vote to allow the service to continue for another six months with the operational costs to be assessed on the 79 cities and towns in the district.

The effect of a vote in this direction would mean a much higher assessment to Winchester.

Judge Cabot spoke out strongly against the Legislative sit-down on the bill. He was quoted as saying, "If we don't have these railroad corridors for future transportation, Boston, Cambridge, Somerville and the suburbs are going to suffer terribly," and he predicted that the "new Boston will be old hat if it doesn't have a transportation system second to none."

Chief Derro

During the past year, Governor John A. Volpe appointed him to the Governor's Committee on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice, for a period of two years. Chief Derro is also a member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the Mass. Police Association, New England Police Chiefs Association, and the Mass. Police Officials Association. He belongs to the Winchester Rotary Club.

The Chief is married to the former Concetta Ferrina, and they make their home at 23 Hinds Road. They are the parents of three children, Joseph Jr., who is a teacher at the Pentucket Regional High School in Newbury, Mrs. Vincent Howard of Reading, and Dr. Robert A. Derro, who is presently doing research work in Bad Neuheim in West Germany.

Letters To The Editor

Injustices Are Age Old

Editor of the Star:

This is not in defense of Mrs. Preston's letter recently published in the Winchester Star as I believe she needs no defense for the right to express her opinion whether Pat Globus and other Metco sympathizers who were surprised and hurt because she does not agree with their views on injustices of a certain group.

Injustices have been perpetrated on many people right down through the ages. I could relate many stories lived by my dear grandparents of prejudice, discrimination and abuse heaped upon foreigners. Yes, my grandparents like Mrs. Preston's came from Europe in the late Nineties. I recall my wise old grandfather telling me, these courageous people had no bed of roses on their arrival in this country. They had three strikes against them.

First they felt unwanted, insecure, with no knowledge of our language, second, society did not approve of their way of life and third they did not like their religion. They not only endured the hardships of coming to a new and strange country, but were called vile names, were given the worst of menial jobs, yes, were even beaten if they opened their mouth to complain and told to go back to the old country if they didn't like it. Many times they had to take jobs which took them away from their homes and the only shelter that was provided for them was a shanty with straw on a dirt floor for a bed. The food was not even fit for animals to eat. Added to this, on pay day, out of their wages of a twelve hour work day, they had to kick back a portion of it to the bosses for getting them the job.

Yet, in spite of this abuse and humiliation, they did not lose their self-respect or respect for law and order, but were determined to overcome as they knew only too well this was the only nation in the world to afford unheard of opportunities if they had the initiative and ambition to work and help build a better America. So with a deep faith in God and determination they slowly were on their way to achieve their goal for a better life for the future of their families. It took many years of perseverance, honest hard work, learning and self-educating themselves the best they could to improve their station in life, which helped them to overcome many inequities.

Everyone should have the opportunity to work and efforts should be made in helping to secure it rather than offer them pity and welfare as this is not a cure for poverty. Much more could be accomplished by a work-education program. Society is not to blame for poverty. I do not have a guilt complex in this regard and I believe Mrs. Preston and many others feel the same way. I am a firm believer in equal rights and justice for all regardless of race, color or creed, but no special rights for any group.

Thank you for allowing me to express my views.

Yours truly,
(Mrs.) Jennifer G. Flowers,
9 Winter Street

The resolution was reported at Monday night's regular School Committee meeting. The Committee also noted tht Washington and Wyman School principals have specifically requested METCO youngsters.

During the meeting Arthur Hewis spoke against the program.

BOOK REVIEW

DOCTOR GRINGO

As Told to Helen Butler

Helen Butler, who was once an industrial editor for an oil company in Oklahoma, and is now a novelist, has written this book about a young doctor whom she met in Mexico. She has acted as a recorder for his words and ideas and has succeeded in suppressing her own personality so that his comes across clearly.

As his pseudonymn suggests, Dr. Gringo is a North American whose father's work as an engineer took him and his family to Mexico.

> "My sisters and I grew up bilingual and since the entire family is dark complexioned, we are more often taken for Mexicans who can speak English than for Americans who talk like Mexicans."

As a student in the medical school which is part of the University of Mexico, Dr. Gringo was required, as is each student graduating from that University, "to repay the government for his practically free education by giving six months of service in one of a number of small Mexican towns throughout the country." This is the story of the six months which Dr. Gringo spent in the little town of Lagos, at the newly built health centre which he operated with the help of a nurse.

Most of the people in the village of Lagos were illiterate and ignorant, superstitious and wretchedly poor. Many would not approach the doctor until their condition was hopeless and they came to him as a last resort. There were others, however, who arrived almost before the doctor was ready for them.

> "How word of my arrival spread so fast puzzled me. By the time I had finished unpacking, the waiting room was full. I had hoped to sit down with the nurse and learn how she had been handling things but instead, I put on my whites and went to work."

One of the most extraordinary characters living in Lagos was Dona Marta Perez de Flores, whose qualities of determination, energy, and the ability to organize were outstanding.

> "When I first saw Dona Marta Perez de Flores I thought she was a teenager with her baby sister on her hip. She had brown hair in pigtails and everything about her radiated young energy and good nature. You could not help noticing her eyes, light, a little on the hazel side with flecks of yellow, which went with the few freckles over her intelligent face . . .
> I said, "Which one of you is the patient?" "The baby here. She is my youngest of eight." "Eight? You can't mean it! You don't look over eighteen yourself!" "I am thirty-one. My husband is thirty-five. We live only a block from here, where the shrubs are carved to look like animals. Esteban has carved a dick, a burro, and a rabbit and now he is carving a kitten. He carves everything he can put his hands on!"

The main meal of the day is comida, which is served at two o'clock, when "wheels cease to turn, shops close, locks drop into place and streets are deserted while the Mexican family is nourished." From that day on until his six months' duty was accomplished, Dona Marta brought the comida to his office for the doctor and refused to accept payment.

Dr. Gringo tried not to reveal the fact that he was, in fact, a gringo and succeeded in concealing this very well until he forgot himself when the matter of free milk for the children arose. It was announced that the sister of First Deputy Eduardo Morelos would be bringing free milk for the preschool children of Lagos. With much propaganda a very small supply of powdered milk was delivered by the Doctor, and Dona Marta was persuaded to dispense it, though hindered by the jealousies of the local political faction.

> "The real surprise in the milk program came the third morning when I arrived at the school just as Dona Marta and three other women volunteers were cutting open the cartons. Until this morning I had been too occupied with cleanliness and preparation to notice that they were covered with printing in sereval different languages. My eyes fastened immediately on the English as I picked up one of the boxes and began to read, I could scarcely comprehend what I saw.
> Without realizing I was speaking English, I yelled out to Dona Marta, "Hey, what do you know? Look at this!? and then catching myself, I said in Spanish, "Look, this milk! It says here it is a gift from the people of the United States of America . . ."
> Then one of the volunteer women broke the silence with a disgusted grunt, and said "Doctor, the Americans are supposed to be so rich! Why do they send us only 160 cups a day? . . . I wanted to blast out, "Because your politicians won't let you have any more!" but I hesitated just long enough that no answer was necessary.

Mrs. Butler's note at the beginning of the book tells us that Dr. Gringo is now specializing in the States and planning to return to practice in Mexico. His story is well worth reading from every point of view.

Selectmen Order Dogs Restrained

Two dogs owned by Arthur Metcalf of 45 Arlington Street were ordered permanently restrained by the Board of Selectmen on June 17.

The Board's decision followed a hearing called as a result of general complaints about the dogs, which culminated recently with the distress of a citizen whose five-year-old daughter was purportedly bitten by one of the animals on May 5.

In ordering the dogs permanently restrained, the Board denied a request by Attorney John Dolan, representing Mr. Metcalf, that the temporary restraining order upon the dogs be removed upon the completion of a six-foot American chain link fence around his entire seven-acre property. Mr. Dolan informed the Board that his client had already made arrangements for the construction of the fence.

Mr. Dolan explained to the Board, "Mr. Metcalf has authorized me to indicate that he is not in any sense interested in harboring vicious dogs." He added that his client keeps the animals out of concern for the well-being of his house and housekeeper, since the area has been the scene of housebreakings. "The dogs have served a significant purpose in that no one has broken into his house."

Mr. Dolan further noted that during Mr. Metcalf's five year's residency in town, he has been confronted with trespassers and vandals.

To this Attorney Vincent Burns, who represented Robert Crisafi of 33 Myopia Hill Road, whose child was reportedly attacked on May 5, replied that the girl was not guilty of trespassing or vandalism. He declared that four adults would testify that the dog leaped over a fence onto property adjoining the Metcalf's, knocked down the child, and put his teeth her back. Mr. Burns submitted photographs of the marks on her back.

Police Chief Joseph Derro presented information on three other alleged bitting incidents by the Metcalf dogs since January, 1967. He also stated that a police check in the nieghborhood showed that of the more than ten persons contacted a third reported being frightened or bothered by the dogs, while the remainder found them playful or wished to make no complaints.

About 20 persons attended the hearing.

Washington School Holds Public Speaking Contest

An old-fashioned public speaking contest was the highlight of Flag Day observances at the Washington School on Friday, June 14.

Under the guidance of Miss Sally Fishman, speech therapist in the school department, activities were planned focusing on voice projection, articulation, and quality of presentation or expression. All grades, one through six, participated on a voluntary basis and approximately 25 students received small flags for their efforts in the contest. Thomas Gramzow acted as master of ceremonies.

First and second graders did choral speaking and sang some patriotic songs. Grade 6 later sang patriotic songs in three parts.

Grades 3 through 6 competitors were awarded first and second prizes following the judging by principals Richard Young of Tufts School, Martha Cuningham of Lincoln School, and Raymond Dickman of Mystic School. Writer-coordinator, Robert Forest of Tufts School presented the awards to: Grade 3, First prize, Patricia Hicks; Second prize, Michael Cavarretta; Grade 4, First prize, John Fahey; Second prize, Kathleen Regan; Grade5, First prize, James Graves; Second prize, Cynthia Vita; Grade 6, First prize, Steven Kelly; Second prize, Marlene Ciroli.

Patriotic compositions were chosen entirely by the pupils and ranged from the story of the Stars and Stripes to an originally composed poem by the relative of one of the students.

They will be heard in a number of Italian cities during their stay with several concerts scheduled in Siena by the full orchestra as well as a smaller chamber orchestra. On tour they expect to perform in Trieste Pisa, Arezzo, Florence, and the famed Spoleto Festival on July 10. The Italian nationwide television network will carry one program from Siena.

Retarded Now Served By Mystic Valley Assoc.

The new Mystic Valley Association for the Retarded with Winchester membership, is in effect as of June 1.

The officers for the new association, elected and installed, are:

President—Richard Gilgun
First Vice Pres. — John Sullivan
Second Vice Pres.—Ralph Parkman of Winchester
Third Vice Pres.—Mrs. Charles Tracey
Recording Sec. — Mrs. Thomas Basti
Membership Sec.—Mrs. William Price
Publicity Sec.—Mrs. Joseph Fardon
Treasurer—Mrs. Edward Reil

Also elected is a representative from each town in the organization. These are Richard Binnall, Burlington; George MacMillan, Winchester; and Mrs. Arthur Higgins, Woburn; The association serves the needs of all the retarded in the towns of Winchester, Woburn, and Burlington, towns which formerly were part of the East Middlesex Association for Retarded Children.

The newly organized group has come about because the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Children has advised all member associations in the state to realign within the Mental Health Area Boards which have been designated by Governor Volpe. Therefore, the towns of Burlington, Winchester and Woburn have formed the Mystic Valley Association for the Retarded with the expectation that the towns of Lexington and Arlington will join this association when they have been released from their present area association of Concord and Boston, respectively.

The services the association plans to maintain are the Pre-School Nursery at Burlington; the Occupational Training Center at Woburn; the HYA Club at Burlington, and in the future hopes to establish a Half-Way House.

The Mystic Valley Association for the Retarded invites all parents and interested persons to join them in helping to provide the needed services for the retarded in this area.

Information may be had by calling Mr. MacMillan at 729-4997.

70 Senior Citizens Take Bus Trip To North Shore

Cape Ann was the focus and the North Shore the total route for 70 members of the Senior Citizens' group who took an all-day bus trip on June 19.

The bus left the Town Hall at 10:45 a.m. and returned at 5:45 p.m. — several stops, a concert and a fine repast taking place in between.

The Rockport art center and shops were a highlight of the trip as was East Gloucester and the Fisherman's statue. At the Hammond Museum the group toured the castle and was treated to a concert on the huge, 14,000 pipe organ — part of it done sing-a-long for their benefit.

The Molly Waldo in Marblehead furnished the sea food repast which finished things off for the Winchester travelers.

Next project: North Shore Theatre matinee on the last Wednesday in July.

Fun And Games Ends Year For Wyman Sixth Graders

The sixth graders at the Noonan Annex celebrated the successful completion of their elementary school education at a Fun and Games Field Day Frolic at the West Side Field on Wednesday, afternoon, June 19.

Sponsored by the Wyman Parents' Association, under the able chairmanship of Mrs. Edward McDavitt, the event was a great success for pupils, teachers, and parents.

A cavalcade of balloon-festooned cars transported the 50 children to the field where they were divided into teams for the various events. Competition was exceeded only by enthusiasm and energy expended for each race. High points of the day were the "mod look" (leftover attic) shared by all in the suitcase relay; the surprise Backward Bag Breaking for teachers and mothers; the tug of war which resulted in the complete severing of the one-inch line used for the event; and of course, the cold drinks, ice cream, and watermelon—most welcome after an afternoon of exercise in the sun.

Blue, red, and white ribbons were awarded to the first, second, and third place winners as follows:

ACROSS THE COUNTER

A friend of mine, Stan Larken, looked puzzled. When I said so, he said: "You're right. I'm puzzled by all the various kinds of health, accident, and hospital insurance. I know you sell many forms of coverage, so tell me: Which is the best buy?"

"Hmm," I replied, "now you've got me puzzled. Are you worried about hospital and medical bills up to $500, or the big one that might go up in the thousands of dollars?"

"Well, primarily a big one," Stan said. "If we received a $400 or $500 hospital bill I know I could get it paid."

"That's sound thinking," I said. "The real family financial crisis comes when the bill runs up into the thousands. This might take years to pay off, or require you to liquidate everything you had."

"What's your answer then?" Stan asked.

"A major Medical Policy," I replied. "Undoubtedly, Major Medical is the best buy in health insurance today. You get most possible benefit with the least premium through this coverage."

"Get out your pencil then," Stan said, "and give me a figure."

May we discuss Major Medical and health insurance with YOU as well?

Swiedler Stars with Opener Ace As Fagerland-Harvey Retain Cup

The annual WCC Member-Guest tourney was taken for the second-straight year by John Fagerland teamed with Jackie Harvey of Oyster Harbors. They put things away in a playoff 19th hole when Fagerland dropped a four-foot putt and recorded a gross par, a net birdie and the title.

They defeated for the second-straight year Jim Wilcox playing with John Arnold of Duxbury.

The large group of followers out on Sunday wasn't on hand to see Thursday's highlight—a hole-in-one on the 140-yard 14th sole sunk by Dave Swiedler of 47 Cabot Street.

Dave, who plays out of Meadow Brook, was playing as guest of WCC Cary Triplett in a foursome with Arthur Conlon of Pittsfield and Bill Cannon Jr.

He sank the ace with a no. 7 iron.

The Fagerland-Harvey team win was a crowd-catcher, with the winners well ahead for the first four holes of the match, then, at the 16th, only by two strokes. Both missed their putts on the 17th and both hit into the rough on the 18th, necessitating the playoff.

Winners in the second flight were Charles Raffi and Lored Reider (Wellesley) over Bill Hood and Bud Boutwell (Concord) one up. In the third, Peter Berg and Gene Kinesewich (Duxbury) took Bob Zirkel and Leo Grace, Charles River) 4 and 3; and in the fourth Garnett Nagle and Ted Kenieson (Dedham) defeated Jim Adams and Terry Frechett (of Andover) in 19 holes.

What do you tell your child about God?

Or, more important, what do you tell yourself about God?

Nothing has greater bearing on your well-being and your child's.

The confidence you have in God's love helps your child feel God's presence. It helps him gain confidence in good. And it creates an atmosphere of harmony, which is so important in any home.

The Bible, books, and periodicals in our Reading Room can help you research and prove for yourself the truth about God and man. And this can bless all the members of your family.

Charles River Squadron Defines Distress Signals

Every boatman today no matter what his proficiency should understand distress signals. He should know how to recognize them so he may give assistance and should know how to render them so he may receive assistance.

Here are a few signals taught by the Charles River Power Squadron in their free boating classes.

Should you be out of hailing distance, use a rapid and repeated sounding of your boat's horn or bell. Red signal flares are easy to obtain and use. They should be kept on board. If you have a radiotelephone, call for assistance on 2182 kc. Use the words MAYDAY—MAYDAY—MAYDAY and be prepared to give your position and a discription of your emergency.

Other signals include: the flying of your flag upside down, the blinking of to signal SOS (3 dots, 3 dashes, 3 dots) or a fire in a pail. Be sure when the fire in the pail is used the fire is held overboard and down wind as not to endanger the boat. Do not use gasoline as a fuel.

Two small craft signals recognized by the U. S. Coast Guard are: an orange-red flag waved from side to side and a 45 in. by 72 in. flourescent orange-red cloth panel having an 18 in. square and an 18 in. black circle along the major axis of the panel about 18 in. apart. This latter signal, when tied across the deck or cabin, is easily seen from the air.

To broaden your knowledge of boating enroll in the free boating classes given by USPS. For information write to: Charles River Power Squadron, 120 North Road, Bedford, Massachusetts 01730.

Little League Portrait Of Am. League Reds

The Reds finished third in 1967, and although they lost seven players from last year's squad, have led their division this year.

The pitching staff has had two veteran returnees—Rickey Ball and Brian Marks. Both throw hard and have good control. Brian can also play the outfield, while Rickey plays shortstop when he isn't pitching.

Stephen Waite and Peter Sandford round out the pitching staff. Stephen covers third base and catches when he isn't pitching. He is quite versatile and, for an 11-year-old, shows great promise. Peter plays first base when he isn't pitching and is a good leadoff man, gets on base often.

Second base is covered by Peter Corcoran, a veteran from last year's squad. Peter has improved tremendously, especially at bat. Two newcomers are being groomed for infield duty, John Mulvaney and John Mulcare. Mulvaney plays short and second, and Mulcare plays third and second. Both have strong arms and show great promise.

The outfield has four returnees from last year's team. Left field is covered by Chipper Whitman, who has a strong arm, is a good fielder, covers lots of ground. Also in left field is Lewis Franklin, an 11-year-old with good potential. Lewis has a strong arm and is a good hitter. Keith McPhail covers center field, although he can play all the outfield positions. He has great speed and is potentially a great hitter. Mark Siegfriedt covers right field like a glove. Strong-armed and very fast.

Paul Goodwin plays right and left field, has a strong arm and swings a heavy bat. Paul hits the long ball. John Minehan plays right and center field and relief pitches also. John is a place hitter and hits good in the clutch. John has won two games this year with clutch hitting.

Two 10-years-olds round out the Reds squad, Donny Ball and Jim Corsaut. Donny plays first base and catches, is a long-ball hitter. Jim Corsaut is also a catcher with great potential, throws well and also hits the long ball. Rickey Bunn, one of last year's members, fractured a bone in his ankle along with torn ligaments just before the season started. He is now rounding into shape, and it is hoped he will be allowed to play this year. Rickey covered all the outfield positions.

The Purity - Supreme Market sponsors this team, which is coached by Bill Cortina and managed by Leo Pollachi.

Summer Basketball League

The Winchester Summer Basketball League began its schedule last Friday evening at Ginn Field with the high schoolers squeaking to a 90-86 victory over the alumni.

Chuck Rotundi, Frank Grabiec and Ron Floyd led the fast-breaking high school five, each displaying some good offensive moves and board work.

Rotundi was particularly tough on defense, as his tight man-to-man tactics forced his older and more experienced opponents to lose the ball on numerous occasions.

The beleaguered alumni, suffering from layoffitis, came to life late in the ball game, led by Vic Papadinis, Steve Kajander and Richie the shot, and nearly headed the whiz kids.

A good turnout of approximately 15 boys was treated to 2 hours of intensive basketball. The new rims and nets supplied by the Recreation Department and set up by the Park Department certainly added to the night's enjoyment.

The two teams will square off every Tuesday and Friday nights at 6 on the Ginn Field court, and all interested basketballers are urged to attend.

CAP League Plays Championships; 250 Boys Conclude Top Season

All CAP League Divisions held their Shaugnessy Playoffs this past weekend at Ginn Field, and three teams emerged winners in their respective Divisions. There were enthusiastic crowds at each game. The boys played their legs out, the spectators cheered their lungs out.

Division I

In Division I, on Saturday, the Miami Orange and the Kelly Greens played an exciting five innings with neither team being able to score. In the last half of the sixth inning, however, the Miami Orangemen were patient enough to wait out the Green's pitcher, and a walk with the bases loaded scored the winning run and boosted the Orange into the finals.

On Sunday, a tight ball game saw the Orange and the Chantanooga Maroons tied at 2 each after the first inning, but single runs in successive innings put the Orange on top as they held the Maroons to a single extra run, and won the title on a 4-3 decision. For third place and down, Saturday's games saw the Chatanooga Maroons beat the Black Knights 6 to 0 to go into the finals, and then the Greens beat the Blacks 12-2. Miami Orange, Chatanooga Maroon, Kelly Green and Black Knights were the final standings of the teams, but there was actually little to choose between them.

Division II

In Division II, the Purple Ramblers outlasted the Green Phantoms by 9-8 while the Cincinnatti Reds smashed the Golden Eagles by 17-0 in the Saturday games. Then, on Sunday, the Purple Ramblers, led by the slugging of Chris Morgan (a bases loaded triple and a two run homer) walloped the Cincinnatti Reds by 18-9 to win that title. In the consolation games, the Green Phantoms clipped the wings of the Golden Eagles by 12-1.

Therefore, Division II's final standings show the Purple Ramblers, the Cincinnatti Reds, the Green Phantoms and the Golden Eagles.

Division III

Division III saw a turn-about in the final game, Sunday. On Saturday, the Confederate Grays blanked the Royal Blues by 5-0. But on Sunday, the Blues more than avenged the loss by walloping the Grays 18-3. On the basis of runs scored, therefore, the Royal Blues won the Division III title.

As soon as arrangements have been completed, there will be an appropriate ceremony to present the Division winners with an emblem indicating their championships. Awards and dates of awards will be announced in the Star next week.

Little League officals report that Roger Stillman deserves a great deal of credit for his handling of this year's Little League CAP League Divisions—that his untiring efforts and his handling of details was excellent. Without his direction of these activities, more than 250 Winchester youngsters from 8 through 12 would not have had such an enjoyable two months, according to President James Stewart.

"Sandy Stillman, too, is to be congratulated on her expert handling of the refreshment situation, after we lost the locked house at Ginn Field through malicious breakage. She and Roger hauled all of the drinks and food every weekend and those players and spectators who participateed in the program were well aware of the benefit the refreshment stand had on all concerned."

"In 1969, we will be fortunate to have a man and wife as devoted to their selfish task as have been Roger and Sandy this past season."

Bernice Keane Takes Third In Seniors

Mrs. Bernice Keane of Lloyd Street scored 90 at North Reading lest week to place third in the Women's Golf Association Seniors title play at North Reading.

Bernice, women's champion at Meadow Brook, shot 90 in very tough competition, which saw Leslie Sampson of Haverhill win her second-straight title with a nine-over-par 83 in the final day of the state competition on the Thomson Club course.

Mrs. Donald McClusky, Worcester champ, recorded 85, and Mrs. H. Jackson of The Country Club 86.

Winchester's New Big League In Eastern Regional Tournament

Winchester's Big League Baseball activity, in its pilot season this year, qualifies to send a tournament team to the Eastern Region playoffs.

The playoffs will take place in Hempstead, Long Island tenetatively on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 29, 30 and 31. Winchester, representing Massachusetts and New England, will play the New York State representative team in the first round with teams from Delaware and New Jersey meeting in the second round. The winning teams will then meet for the right to play in the National Finals to be played probably on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 5, 6, 7 and 8 at Winston Salem, North Carolina.

All tournament games will be played on the double loss before elimination N.C.A.A. basis.

With 13 players from this year's High School varsity team, another 15 from the JV team, and several fine players from private schools in the new league, Winchester is expecting to field a very strong tournament team.

Edgell Afghans Star at Show

At the recent Greenwich Kennel Club Show, held at the Civic Center, Old Greenwich, Connecticut this year, Khanda Baron-Ghan, the Afghan Hound belonging to the Edgell family of 8 Sheffield West, placed second (in competition) in her class, while in the races held afterwards, Ishtar of Xanadu, also owned by the Edgells, was second by a head, and Khanda third by half a length.

Each dog was in one race, because of the large number of entries of not only Afghans, but Salukis, Greyhounds, Whippets, and Dachshunds. The races were under the direction of the Eastern Coursing Club, and were a featured highlight of the show.

At the annual meeting of the Colonial Afghan Hound Club in Holden, Mrs. Stephen Edgell was elected to serve the post of librarian.

E-W should reach 4 Hearts with alacrity, the probable auction being: S-I Diamond, W-1 Heart, N-2 Diamonds (or 3 Diamonds, if this is pre-emptive), E-4 Hearts. East has such excellent support for hearts that even if partner's overcall is on the sketchy side, there should still be a play for game. As it turns out, 4 Hearts cannot be beaten, and most Wests will make an overtrick by finessing North for the Spade Queen. When the spades break 3-3, declarer can pitch his losing club on the long spade, thus removing the need for a club guess. Some E-W pairs may miss game if East is forced to open the bidding in fourth-seat, as may happen since South's and West's possible opening bids are borderline. When this occurs, the auction will probably come to an abrupt halt after South overcalls in diamonds and West jumps in hearts.

Scholarship To Benefit From Cook-Out

The Local Post 3719, Veteran's of Foreign Wars have planned a town-wide cook-out for this Saturday at 5:30 at the Post headquarters, 15 White Street. The reason: to build up capital for an annual scholarship to be given in honor of Paul E. Connors.

The scholarship was presented for the first time this year, to Kenneth Cooper, named as the boy in the senior class who had by "conscientious participation in athletic activity demonstrated the kind of interest and sportmanship that Mr. Connors worked all his life to develop in the young people in Winchester." Ken plans to go to Harvard.

First Church Offers Services At Institutions

Members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, have been conducting services weekly during May and June at the Metropolitan State Hospital in Waltham. These services conform to Sunday services held in Christian Science churches throughout the world.

Readers during this period have been Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harvey, Mrs. Rodger Marsh, and Richard Sampson. Many other members have participated as musicians and ushers. Local chairman for this activity is Clarence Feldmann.

From January through June of next year, the local church will conduct two regular Sunday services each week at the Concord Reformatory.

Christian Science churches in Massachusetts provide institutional service at the several mental and penal institutions to offer spiritual understanding and healing.

Small Club Award To Local Lions

For an organization numbering less than 20 members, the Winchester Lions Club is certainly an active group.

Recognition for their local activities has not yet gone unnoticed, however. At the annual State Lions Convention held in Swampscott, the Winchester Club was awarded its second consecutive "Small Club" award for its civic contributions.

President Michael Boodakian accepted the honor in behalf of the local organization.

Tanglewood On Home Radios

WGBH radio will once again broadcast all Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts live from the orchestra's summer home at Tanglewood, from Friday, July 5, at 9 p.m., through the middle of August.

The concerts will be heard Fridays at 9 p.m., Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Conductor Erich Leinsdorf begins the 1968 Berkshire Festival with two all-Mozart programs. On Friday an exciting young violinist, James Oliver Buswell IV, a Harvard undergraduate who had his own special on Channel 2 last month, makes his Tanglewood debut in a program which includes the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Violin Concerto No. 1, K. 207, and Serenade in D, K. 320.

On Saturday, July 6, at 8 p.m., the noted American soprano Beverly Sills joins the Boston Symphony Orchestra to perform three Mozart concert arias, including the always popular "Exultate Jubilate." Also on the program will be Symphony No. 28, K. 200, and the Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, K. 525.

Among the outstanding artists who will be appearing at Tanglewood this summer will be pianists Grant Johannesen and Gina Bachauer, soprano Rosalind Elias, and conductors Aaron Copland, William Steinberg and Charles Munch. WGBH hopes many mf the concerts from Tanglewood this summer will be broadcast in stereo, but since the necessary additional stereo equipment may not be ready by July 5, some of the early programs will probably be in mono.

Jaycee-ette Leaders For 1968

Jaycee And Jaycee-ettes Install Officers For 1968-69

Friday, June 14 marked the first joint installation of offiers for the Winchester Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes. It was held at the Battle Green Inn in Lexington. The newly elected officers for the Jaycees are: L. Lee Osburn, president; John Hackett, vice president; James Edson, secretary, and William Edwards, treasurer.

Presiding over the election was National Director Richard Giglio of the Eastern District. He gave a short talk on community involvement and its rewards.

Mrs. Russell Watson of Braintree, immediate past-president of the Massachusetts Jaycee-ettes presided over the candlelight installation of the new slate of Winchester Jaycee-ette officers: Mrs. Louis Cappello, president; Mrs. John Hackett, vice president; Mrs. Charles Price, secretary and Mrs. Roger Dominico, treasurer.

The chapter received third place state award in the fund raiser category. This was its wig raffle to which many loyal Winchesterites contributed. Two other awards were also presented one to Mrs. John Williams and the other to Mrs. Charles Price for their participation in local and state Jaycee-ette programs.

"Bring 'em Back Alive"- People, That Is

The Massachusetts Division of the American Automobile Asociation sets out today to preserve the biggest game of all — human lives.

The campaign, which aims to win a decrease in traffic accidents over the July 4th holiday weekend, bears the banner, "Bring 'em Back Alive!"

In the Bay State, AAA plans to distribute posters, bumper stickers, clothing patches, restaurant placemats and table tents. Each of these visual aids has blazoned in "big game" yellow-and-black the slogan: "Bring 'em Back Alive!"

AAA offers these proven suggestons for enjoyable — and safe — motoring:

* Keep your car in safe running condition.

* Plan your route in advance.

* Keep your seat belts buckled—all the time.

* Change drivers often—let everyone enjoy the sights.

* Be alert on familiar roads.

* Know the safe driving rules and obey them.

* Be extra cautious during the first few minutes of a rain storm, when roads are most slippery.
